PSALM 84

*The Blessedness of Dwelling in the House of God*To the Chief Musician. <sup>a</sup> On <sup>1</sup> an instrument of Gath. A Psalm of the sons of Korah.How <sup>b</sup>lovely <sup>2</sup>is Your tabernacle, O LORD of hosts!

Psalm 83 is a psalm of lament in which particular attention is given to the wicked. The curse that Asaph utters against the wicked puts this psalm in the category of the imprecatory psalms. When we read the strong words in this psalm, we need to keep in mind that the intent of the psalmist Asaph is to vindicate the glory of God. The psalm's structure is as follows: (1) a call for God to speak out in judgment on the wicked (vv. 1-4); (2) a recital of the acts of the wicked (vv. 5-8); (3) a recital of God's acts of judgment in the past (vv. 9-12); (4) a call for God to judge the wicked (vv. 13-18).

83:1 Do not keep silent: Calls for God to awaken, to rouse Himself, to turn and look, and to speak, are all ways the psalmists prayed for God to act. They believed that God as the Holy One would root out all evil. What they did not always recognize was that God's delay in judgment was an expression of His mercy.

83:2, 3 Asaph feels revulsion against the enemies of the Lord. He hates what God hates (101:6-8). The attacks of the wicked are not only against God, but also against the people of God.

83:4 let us cut them off: God's attitude toward those who plots the destruction of His people is clear: His curse will rest on them (Gen. 12:2, 3). Asaph here is simply praying that God would act according to His promises.

83:5-8 consulted together: Throughout history, many nations have conspired to bring about the ruin of Israel and Judah. All such endeavors are condemned in this psalm. against You: In conspiring against the people of God, the wicked actually resist God Himself. The tents of Edom: The place names in this passage refer to nations on the borders of Israel and Judah. The Hagrites may have come from Arabia (1 Chr. 5:10, 19, 20). The people of Gebal may have lived in a mountainous region south of the Dead Sea; alternatively, Gebal may have been another name for Byblos, a city near Tyre.

83:9 Asaph recites God's great victories against the formidable foes of Israel. God's victory at Midian was accomplished through Gideon (Judg. 7). God's victory over Sisera was accomplished through Deborah and Barak (Judg. 4, 5). The same God who had battled Israel's enemies in the past would fight all those who might oppose His people in the future.

83:13 In a culture in which remembering a person was very important, an ultimate curse would have been to regard a person's memory as whirling dust or windblown chaff.

83:16 Shame is the opposite of dignity, an attribute of the righteous (25:2; 97:7). seek Your name: Asaph's first call for God to shame Israel's enemies is redemptive—that the nations might hear, feel shame, repent, and seek the face of the Lord. Yet if they continued in their wicked path, they would face further confounding and would one day face God in judgment. The title Most High is often used in the Psalms to speak of God's control over all the nations of the world (47:2; 78:35; 97:9).

Psalm 84 is one of the psalms of Zion. These psalms celebrate God's presence in Jerusalem, the city where His temple was

PSALM 85

Prayer that the LORD Will Restore Favor to the Land

To the Chief Musician. A Psalm <sup>a</sup>of the sons of Korah.

LORD, You have been favorable to Your land;

built. Today it is not necessary to go to Jerusalem to draw near to God, for God is near those who trust in His Son (Matt. 28:18–20). This psalm was composed by the sons of Korah (see Ps. 42; 44–49; 85; 87; 88). There are six movements: (1) the expression of the desire to be at home in Zion (vv. 1, 2); (2) the blessings of being at home in Zion (vv. 3, 4); (3) the blessings of those who make pilgrimages to Zion (vv. 5–7); (4) a prayer for God's attention in Zion (vv. 8, 9); (5) the joy of being at home in Zion (vv. 10, 11); (6) the blessing of trusting in God (v. 12).

84:1, 2 Tabernacle is used here as a poetic term for the temple that was built by Solomon. longs . . . faints: For a similar expression of a psalmist's desire for the Lord's presence, see 42:1, 2. the living God: All other "gods" are nonentities; but He who created the universe, who chose Israel as His people, and who provided salvation for the world, lives forever in great glory.

84:3, 4 sparrow . . . swallow: By describing the approach of birds to the courtyards of the temple, the poet expresses his own great joy. Blessed, the same term used in 1:1, means "O, the great happiness of."

84:5–7 The phrase whose heart is set on pilgrimage refers those who make their way to the temple not out of obligation, but out of a wellspring of joy. The Valley of Baca, or "Valley of Weeping," refers to the various difficulties that one might face on a pilgrimage. The person on a pilgrimage might discover that the once-dark valley is filled with springs, rain, and pools—all signs of God's blessing. strength to strength: As one nears the temple, the rigors of the journey become tolerable, for the joy of the approaching arrival strengthens the soul.

84:8 LORD God of hosts, literally the "God of armies," speaks of God's transcendence. The hosts are the angelic armies of the heavens. This title is balanced by the phrase God of Jacob, referring to the covenant relationship God established with the patriarchs of Israel.

84:9 The two phrases our shield and Your anointed both point to the same person, the king of Israel (see 89:3, 4). Each person who was anointed in the OT foreshadowed the coming Anointed One, the Messiah.

84:10, 11 a day . . . a thousand: Nothing in the pilgrim's daily experience can be compared to a day spent in the worship of God in the holy temple. a doorkeeper . . . dwell in the tents: The role of a menial servant in the house of his God is more desirable than a life of luxury with those who practice wickedness. Sun and shield means "splendid shield." Grace and glory may be rephrased as "glorious grace." Whereas the anointed king was a "shield" (v. 9), the greater Shield is God Himself. No good thing will He withhold: This is the observation of a wise and righteous person; time after time, God gives good gifts to His people.

Psalm 85 is a prayer for restoration that is rooted deeply in trust in God. The setting for the psalm appears to be the restoration of the people of God following a great catastrophe—perhaps the Babylonian captivity. With this psalm, the people prayed for a revival of their spirits and a renewal in their land. The ultimate fulfillment of their prayer would be in the coming glorious kingdom of the Savior Jesus. This is one of the psalms composed by the sons of Korah (see Ps. 42; 44–49; 84; 87; 88). The development of this psalm is in four sections: (1) a celebration of God's favor on the land (vv. 1–3); (2) a petition

SUN (Heb. shemesh) (84:11; Josh. 10:12, 13). Strong's #8121: The Hebrew word for sun most often refers to the celestial body that illuminates the earth (136:7, 8). The idiom "before the sun" may describe an action done openly or in public (see 2 Sam 12:12). The sun is also a biblical symbol for righteousness (Mal. 4:2) and even a title for God in the Psalms (84:11). Many of the ancients worshiped the sun, moon, and stars (see 2 Kin. 21:3; Ezek. 8:16). But the psalmist understood that the sun, moon, and stars worshiped God because He created them (148:3). In the new creation, there will be no need of the sun because God Himself will be an everlasting light to the people (Is. 60:19).

PSALM 86

Prayer for Mercy, with Meditation on the Excellencies of the LORD

A Prayer of David.

- Bow down Your ear, O LORD, hear me;
- For I am poor and needy.
- <sup>2</sup> Preserve my <sup>j</sup>life, for I am holy;
You are my God;
Save Your servant who trusts in You!
- <sup>3</sup> Be merciful to me, O Lord,
For I cry to You all day long.
- <sup>4</sup> <sup>2</sup> Rejoice the soul of Your servant, <sup>a</sup>For to You, O Lord, I lift up my soul.
- <sup>5</sup> For <sup>b</sup>You, Lord, are good, and ready to forgive,
And abundant in mercy to all those who call upon You.
- <sup>6</sup> Give ear, O LORD, to my prayer;
And attend to the voice of my supplications.
- <sup>7</sup> In the day of my trouble I will call upon You,
For You will answer me.
- <sup>8</sup> <sup>c</sup>Among the gods there is none like You, O Lord;

for restoration and revival (vv. 4–7); (3) an expectation that God will act soon (vv. 8, 9); (4) a description of the restoration (vv. 10–13).

85:1 You have brought back the captivity may refer to the return of the exiles from Babylon. But it also may be a more general reversal of fortune (14:7).

85:4–7 God of our salvation may be rephrased as “our Saving God.” Your anger: The first section of this psalm already says God’s anger has turned away from the people (v. 3). Yet until the restoration is complete, the people still feel the effects of God’s wrath. This suggests an understanding that the people’s troubles were due to their own sin disciplined by God. revive us: The people prayed for their own welfare and for renewed ability to praise God. Mercy may also be translated “loyal love.”

85:8, 9 The speaker here may be a priest expecting to hear a direct revelation from the Lord. Such a revelation would be consistent with God’s character. Peace suggests wholeness, fullness, things as they ought to be. The word saints is related to the term translated mercy in v. 7; these are people who reflect the love of God in their own lives. not turn back to folly: God’s blessing would continue only as long as the people remained faithful to Him. His salvation can describe any act of mercy on the part of God.

85:10–13 The words mercy and truth often appear together in the Scriptures to express one concept (see 25:10; 61:7; 86:15; 89:14). Here they are viewed as separate entities that come together, in the same way that righteousness and peace have kissed. The union of God’s mercy and truth and His righteousness and peace describes the way things ought to be, or the state of peace spoken of in v. 8. The blending of the ideals of truth and righteousness in v. 11 suggests a vision of the kingdom of God (see Is. 11). The fact that the word righteousness appears three times in the last four verses of this psalm alludes to the holiness of the coming kingdom of God and the sinlessness of the Savior and King who will rule over it.

Psalm 86 is a psalm of lament in which David expresses grave concerns about his lowly state, as well as joy in the God who alone is merciful. This poem is the only one in Book III of the Psalms that has David’s name in the title. The structure is as follows: (1) a call for God to deliver David from distress (vv. 1–5); (2) a call for God to hear David’s prayer (vv. 6, 7); (3) a statement that there is none other like God (vv. 8–10); (4) a petition for God to teach David about Himself so that he can praise Him forever (vv. 11–13); (5) a comparison of the assaults of the wicked with the character of the Lord (vv. 14, 15); (6) a renewed call for God to show His goodness to David in his distress (vv. 16, 17).

86:1–4 Bow down Your ear: As in 31:2, David uses a dramatic phrase that captures the grandeur of God on high and David’s humble position on the earth below. Here the phrase I am holy does not speak of the transcendence of God, as in Is. 6:3. Rather it speaks of the faithfulness and godliness of a righteous person who, by God’s grace, is living in accordance with God’s law. It is another way that David describes himself as a servant of the Lord. Rejoice: God rejoices in those who serve Him, and His servants find their joy in Him.

86:8, 9 Among the gods: The ancient nations took their sense of identity in part from their ties to their supposed gods. When the nations found out that their “gods” did not exist,

Nor are there any works like Your works.
 9 All nations whom You have made Shall come and worship before You, O Lord, And shall glorify Your name.
 10 For You are great, and <sup>d</sup>do wondrous things;

11 <sup>f</sup>Teach me Your way, O LORD; I will walk in Your truth;
 12 <sup>g</sup>Unite my heart to fear Your name. I will praise You, O Lord my God, with all my heart, And I will glorify Your name forevermore.
 13 For great is Your mercy toward me, And You have delivered my soul from the depths of <sup>h</sup>Sheol.

14 O God, the proud have risen against me, And a mob of violent men have sought my life, And have not set You before them.
 15 But <sup>i</sup>You, O Lord, are a God full of compassion, and gracious, Longsuffering and abundant in mercy and truth.

PSALM 87

The Glories of the City of God

A Psalm of the sons of Korah. A Song.

His foundation is in the holy mountains.

2 <sup>a</sup> The LORD loves the gates of Zion More than all the dwellings of Jacob.
 3 <sup>b</sup> Glorious things are spoken of you, O city of God! Selah

4 “I will make mention of <sup>c</sup>Rahab and Babylon to those who know Me; Behold, O Philistia and Tyre, with Ethiopia:
 ‘This one was born there.’ ”

5 And of Zion it will be said,
 “This one and that one were born in her;

they would have to acknowledge that the Lord alone is God. Here David envisions other nations worshiping the true God and thus anticipates the missionary thrust of the NT (Ps. 117; Matt. 28:18–20).

86:11–13 Teach me Your way: David asks the Lord to teach him so that he will be able to praise God in the midst of the congregation. Mercy is the “loyal love” of the Lord. depths of Sheol: David describes the Lord as mercifully delivering him from certain death (9:17; 116:3, 4).

86:14 The Psalms consistently describe God as the enemy of the proud and the friend of the humble (138:6; 147:6).

86:15 The phrase abundant in mercy and truth is a precursor of the NT phrase “full of grace and truth” (John 1:14). The Lord upholds the truth so that He can mercifully free those caught in falsehoods.

86:16 save the son of Your maidservant: The idea here may be that since David’s mother was a pious woman, the Lord ought to save David from his lowly state (116:16).

Psalm 87, a psalm of Zion, is also an intensely evangelistic psalm that anticipates the NT mission to present the gospel to the entire world (see Matt. 28:18–20). This psalm is one of the collection from the sons of Korah (Ps. 42; 44–49; 84; 85; 88). It has three movements: (1) a description of God’s love for the city of Zion (vv. 1–3); (2) a description of the citizens of Zion coming from all nations (vv. 4–6); (3) a celebration of God’s salvation (v. 7).

87:1 His foundation: God Himself established Zion or Jerusalem as the center of true worship. He ordained Solomon to build a temple there so that He could live among the Israelites (1 Kin. 6:13). Zion is holy because of God’s declaration (1 Kin 11:13), His promise, the worship given Him there (1 Kin. 8:14–66), the future work of the Savior there (Matt. 21:4–11), and the future rule of the King there (Rev. 21).

87:2, 3 God has a special love for the place where His name is worshiped. The gates of Zion are the conspicuous entrance to the city. The verb loves includes the idea of choice (see Deut. 6:5) as well as emotion. God chose Jerusalem; and He also has an enduring affection for the city. City of God may also be translated “city of the True God.”

87:4 I will make mention: In this verse, God Himself speaks. Rahab is a symbolic name for Egypt (Is. 30:7) that has negative connotations. It alludes to the arrogance of the Egyptians. This is not the Rahab of Josh. 2:3–11, whose name is spelled differently in Hebrew. Babylon was the proverbial seat of apostasy and idolatry (Gen. 10:10). To those who know Me may be rephrased “as those who know Me.” Thus the verse anticipates a time when foreigners would know and worship the living God. Among those who came to Zion to worship the Lord were people from Egypt, Babylon, Philistia, Tyre, and Ethiopia. At the time of the writing of this psalm, perhaps in the later period of Hezekiah’s reign, foreigners were worshipping God in the temple along with Jews.

87:5 And of Zion: Despite their foreign heritage, the people who worshipped God were considered as having been born truth (Heb. ‘emet) (86:11; 1 Kin. 10:6; Esth. 9:30) Strong’s #571: This Hebrew term signifies truth that conforms to a standard—either to created reality or to God’s standards. Truth is often associated with mercy, especially God’s mercy (57:3; 117:2; Gen. 24:49). This word is also frequently used in the context of legal language: In secular contexts it is used in speaking of witnesses and judgments (Prov. 14:25; Zech. 8:16), while in religious contexts it is used in reference to the law and commandments of God (119:142, 151). Truth is precious, and its absence was lamented by the Prophets (Is. 59:14; Jer. 9:5; Hos. 4:1). God desires truth in the inward parts of His people (15:2; 51:6); thus it is the basis of a lifestyle that pleases Him (25:5, 10; 26:3).

And the Most High Himself shall establish her.”

<sup>6</sup> The LORD will record,
When He <sup>c</sup>registers the peoples:
“This one was born there.” Selah

<sup>7</sup> Both the singers and the players on instruments say,
“All my springs are in you.”

PSALM 88

A Prayer for Help in Despondency

A Song. A Psalm of the sons of Korah. To the Chief Musician. Set to “Mahalath Leannoth.”

O LORD, <sup>b</sup>God of my salvation,
I have cried out day and night before You.

And my life <sup>c</sup>draws near to the grave.

<sup>4</sup> I am counted with those who <sup>d</sup>go<sup>3</sup> down to the pit;

<sup>e</sup>I am like a man who has no strength,
<sup>5</sup> <sup>4</sup> Adrift among the dead,
Like the slain who lie in the grave,
Whom You remember no more,
And who are cut off from Your hand.

<sup>6</sup> You have laid me in the lowest pit,
In darkness, in the depths.

in Zion. Thus this psalm anticipates the NT teaching of the second birth (John 3). The title Most High is used particularly with reference to God's power over the nations (47:2; 78:35; 82:6). shall establish her: Zion would become the place where more and more people from other nations would come to worship the living God. This is prophetic of the coming of the gospel of Jesus, the spread of that gospel, and the culmination of the gospel in the rule of the Savior King (Is. 2:1–4).

87:6 The LORD will record pictures God making a register of the people of the nations. All believers will find their true identity in the Lord, to whom they will offer their worship in Zion.

87:7 The singers and the players are called to celebrate together the joy of the Savior God. The image of springs indicates salvation, which is found only in the Lord (Is. 12:3). This anticipated the salvation that God would offer through Jesus Christ (Titus 2:11).

Psalm 88 begins as a psalm of lament but never comes to the resolution of trust and praise that is the hallmark of those psalms. Thus Ps. 88 can be considered a psalm of complaint, a development of the lament portion of the psalms of lament. The title ascribes the psalm to the sons of Korah (Ps. 42; 44–49; 84; 85; 87), more specifically to Heman the Ezrahite. Heman is identified in 1 Kin. 4:31 as a gifted wise man, and in 1 Chr. 15:16–19 as one of the musically gifted Levites who ministered in worship during the time of David. The term Ezrahite may mean “native born.” The name of the tune perhaps means “A Dance of Affliction.” The structure is: (1) an opening prayer for deliverance (vv. 1, 2); (2) Heman's impending death

(vv. 3–5); (3) a complaint about the Lord's attack on Heman (vv. 6–8); (4) God's delay in coming to the aid of Heman (vv. 9–12); (5) Heman's desperation as he senses no deliverance from the Lord (vv. 13–18).

88:1, 2 Even in the midst of despair, Heman confesses his faith in God's saving goodness—O LORD, God of my salvation (vv. 9, 13). cried out . . . my cry: This language of desperate weeping is not unusual in the psalms of lament. The Hebrew word for cried indicates a loud scream. The psalmist's appeal for God to listen—incline Your ear—has the same wording as in 86:1.

88:3–5 Grave here is the familiar word Sheol (86:13), which is often linked with the term pit as a symbol of death (30:3; 143:7; Prov. 1:12; Is. 14:15; 38:18). Heman feels so near to death that he describes himself as adrift among the dead.

88:6–8 Heman feels as though he were in the lowest pit and the deepest darkness. His most vexing problem, however, is his belief that God has brought this trouble on him. put away . . . from me: Not only does he feel troubled by God; he is also alone, separated from all of his friends.

88:9 Verses 9 and 13 are a reprise of v. 1. Heman continues to pray. Even though his eyes are strained and bloodshot from constant weeping, he continues to call out to the Lord for salvation.

88:10–12 The context of these verses is the worshipping community in Jerusalem (Ps. 6). If God allows Heman to die, Heman's voice will never again be heard in the temple giving praise to God. The word translated place of destruction is also found in Job 26:6; 28:22; Prov. 15:11; 27:20.

PSALM 89

Remembering the Covenant with David, and Sorrow for Lost Blessings

A <sup>1</sup> Contemplation of <sup>a</sup> Ethan the Ezrahite.

- I will sing of the mercies of the LORD
 forever;
 With my mouth will I make known Your faithfulness to all generations.
 2 For I have said, “Mercy shall be built up forever;
<sup>b</sup> Your faithfulness You shall establish in the very heavens.”
 3 “I <sup>c</sup> have made a covenant with My chosen,
 I have <sup>d</sup> sworn to My servant David:
 4 ‘Your seed I will establish forever,
 And build up your throne <sup>e</sup> to all generations.’” Selah 5 And <sup>f</sup> the heavens will praise Your wonders, O LORD;
 Your faithfulness also in the assembly of the saints.

- 6 <sup>g</sup> For who in the heavens can be compared to the LORD?
 Who among the sons of the mighty can be likened to the LORD?
 7 <sup>h</sup> God is greatly to be feared in the assembly of the saints,
 And to be held in reverence by all those around Him.
 8 O LORD God of hosts,
 Who is mighty like You, O LORD?
 Your faithfulness also surrounds You.
 9 <sup>i</sup> You rule the raging of the sea;
 When its waves rise, You still them.
 10 <sup>j</sup> You have broken <sup>2</sup> Rahab in pieces, as one who is slain;
 You have scattered Your enemies with Your mighty arm.
 11 <sup>k</sup> The heavens are Yours, the earth also is Yours;
 The world and all its fullness, You have founded them.
 12 The north and the south, You have created them;
<sup>l</sup> Tabor and <sup>m</sup> Hermon rejoice in Your name.
 13 You have a mighty arm;
 Strong is Your hand, and high is
 Your right hand.
 14 Righteousness and justice are the foundation of Your throne;
 Mercy and truth go before Your face.
 15 Blessed are the people who know the “joyful sound!

88:17, 18 In this psalm, Heman renews his complaints from earlier sections. However, he does not come to any resolution. As a person adrift at sea is aware only of the engulfing water, so Heman knows only the terrors of his life, which he believes come from the Lord. Loved one: In v. 8, Heman describes himself as removed from his friends; now he says his friends are removed from him. At the close of the psalm, Heman still feels alone, even though the psalms consistently describe a Lord that hears and answers those who call on Him (see 28:6).

Psalm 89 begins as a psalm of praise but ends as a psalm of lament. It celebrates God’s covenant with David (2 Sam. 7) and then laments how David’s descendants had not remained faithful to the provisions of that covenant (see 2 Sam. 7:14). Yet even in the face of unfaithfulness, this psalm reaffirms God’s faithfulness to His covenant and its ultimate fulfillment in David’s greater Son, the Messiah (vv. 33–37). The title attributes the psalm to Ethan, who was also known as Jeduthun (1 Chr. 25:1, 3, 6). The structure of the psalm is: (1) praise to the Lord for His everlasting covenant with David (vv. 1–4); (2) a celebration of God who established His covenant with David (vv. 5–18); (3) a review of the covenant with David (vv. 19–37); (4) consternation at a time of national distress (vv. 38–45); (5) a complaint to the Lord to provoke Him to remember His covenant and restore the fortunes of His people (vv. 46–51); (6) an appendix of blessing (v. 52).

89:1, 2 The mercies of the Lord in this psalm center on the covenant He made with David, promising him an eternal dynasty (see 2 Sam. 7). Mercy, which may be translated “loyal love,” refers to the exact words of God’s promise to David (2 Sam.

7:15). The Lord had promised that His mercy would always rest on David’s son.

89:3, 4 Ethan quoted God’s words to David in 2 Sam. 7. David is referred to as My chosen and My servant (v. 20)—names that describe his intimate relationship with the Lord (see 2 Sam. 7:7). Your seed . . . your throne: God had promised David a line of descent and an enduring throne (2 Sam. 7:12, 13).

89:6 All praise in heaven and earth belongs to God, who is incomparable. No one, not even the supposed gods, can match His strength and love. This is the point of the question, who in the heavens can be compared to the LORD? The Hebrew phrase for the sons of the mighty may mean “sons of gods” or “heavenly beings.” The reference could be to other supposed gods or to angels, members of the heavenly court (Job 1:6).

89:9, 10 Rahab is a title for Egypt (87:4). The sea and Rahab refer to God’s great victories: in the beginning, His control of His creation; in the historic past, His victory over Egypt; and in the future, His complete triumph over Satan, sin, and death (Is. 27:1; 51:9). The psalmists regularly assert God’s complete control of creation (see 24:1). Nothing can challenge God’s majestic rule over the entire universe.

89:13, 14 God is the great Deliverer; He brandished His arm and hand in delivering His people from Egypt (Ex. 6:6; 15:6). Righteousness and justice means “utter righteousness.” Mercy and truth may be rephrased as “unbreakable loyalty.”

89:15–18 Blessed, the same word used in 1:1, means “manifest happiness.” To exalt the horn of the people (75:4, 5; 92:10; 132:17) means to give them power and eventual triumph. The Holy One of Israel (78:41) is the title Isaiah uses to describe

They walk, O LORD, in the light of
Your countenance.
16 In Your name they rejoice all day
long,
And in Your righteousness they are exalted.
17 For You are the glory of their strength,
And in Your favor our <sup>3</sup>horn is <sup>o</sup>exalted.
18 For our shield belongs to the LORD,
And our king to the Holy One of Israel.
19 Then You spoke in a vision to Your <sup>4</sup>holy one,
And said: “I have given help to one
who is mighty;
I have exalted one <sup>p</sup>chosen from the people.
20 <sup>q</sup>I have found My servant David;
With My holy oil I have anointed
him,
21 <sup>r</sup>With whom My hand shall be established;
Also My arm shall strengthen him.
22 The enemy shall not <sup>s</sup>outwit him,
Nor the son of wickedness afflict
him.
23 I will beat down his foes before his face,
And plague those who hate him.
24 “But My faithfulness and My mercy
shall be with him,
And in My name his horn shall be exalted.
25 Also I will <sup>t</sup>set his hand over the sea,
And his right hand over the rivers.
26 He shall cry to Me, “You are <sup>u</sup>my God, following his experience of God's holiness in his memorable vision of God's throne (Is. 6).

89:19 The psalm recounts God's remarkable intervention in the life of David and the specifics of His covenant with David. Your holy one: David had been singled out as holy to the Lord. Yet his beginnings were not spectacular, for he was from the people; he had been an ordinary shepherd (2 Sam 7:18). In these respects and in many others, David was a type, or a divinely intended portrait, of the Savior. In a similar way, Jesus came from humble origins as the son of a carpenter. Yet He was the Holy One, the Son of the Most High.

89:24, 25 My faithfulness and My mercy: The usual order of this common phrase is reversed here (vv. 1, 2). But the point is the same: God will remain true to His word and demonstrate His love to His servant. sea . . . rivers: The possible reference here is to Israel's expansion of its borders. But note the language used to describe God's control over creation (vv. 9, 10). The Lord is extending to His servant the authority He has over creation.

89:26-30 Father . . . firstborn: This wording is derived from God's covenant with David (2 Sam. 7:14). seed . . . throne:

These words are repeated from v. 4 (see v. 36; 2 Sam. 7:12, 13). his sons: The provisions of the Davidic covenant in 2 Sam. 7 included the discipline of errant sons.

89:34 The words my covenant I will not break and the wording of v. 35 are strong, so as to assure the reader that the will of the Lord is quite settled in this matter. The people might become faithless, but God cannot deny Himself. In spite of errors, rebellions, sins, and apostasies in the lives of many of the kings of Judah, God is determined to complete, fulfill, and accomplish His grand plan for David's dynasty (2 Sam. 7:1-24).

89:39 After the long recital of the details of the Lord's covenant with David and God's sworn statement that He would not revoke it (v. 35), the psalmist questions whether the covenant had really been honored. Most likely the occasion of this psalm was the defeat of Israel's armies, accounting for the psalmist's strong sense of consternation before the Lord. With the repeated use of the pronoun You, he addresses his complaint directly to God. You have renounced the covenant of Your servant: As in the case of Ps. 60, the military defeat that likely sparked this psalm was a temporary situation; a 40 You have broken down all his hedges;

You have brought his <sup>3</sup>strongholds to ruin.
41 All who pass by the way <sup>k</sup>plunder
him;
He is a reproach to his neighbors.
42 You have exalted the right hand of his adversaries;
You have made all his enemies
rejoice.
43 You have also turned back the edge of his sword,
And have not sustained him in the battle.
44 You have made his <sup>4</sup>glory cease,
And cast his throne down to the ground.
45 The days of his youth You have shortened;
You have covered him with shame.

PSALM 90

The Eternity of God, and Man's Frailty

A Prayer <sup>a</sup>of Moses the man of God.

Lord, <sup>b</sup>You have been our <sup>1</sup>dwelling place in all generations.
2 <sup>c</sup>Before the mountains were brought forth,
Or ever You <sup>2</sup>had formed the earth and the world,
Even from everlasting to everlasting,
You are God.
3 You turn man to destruction,
And say, <sup>d</sup>"Return, O children of men."
4 <sup>e</sup>For a thousand years in Your sight
Are like yesterday when it is past,
And like a watch in the night.
5 You carry them away like a flood;
<sup>f</sup>They are like a sleep.
In the morning <sup>g</sup>they are like grass
which grows up:
6 In the morning it flourishes and grows up;
In the evening it is cut down and withers.
7 For we have been consumed by Your anger,
And by Your wrath we are terrified.

victory was still to come. Nonetheless, the poet presses his claim to God: This is the covenant that the Lord has established, that He has sworn Himself to uphold.

89:40–45 As a result of the military defeat, the people were depondent and disillusioned. The psalmist voices their feelings and thus allows the process of healing to begin, even as the people wait for their deliverance from the Lord.

89:49–51 The writer complains that God has not been keeping His promises to David (2 Sam. 7:1–24). As a result, His people are experiencing undeserved reproach from their enemies. There is no resolution to this psalm; it ends with the people, the king, and the psalmist in distress. Yet the inclusion of this psalm among the praises of Israel suggests that God did answer this prayer of His beleaguered people, just as He did in the case of Ps. 60.

89:52 This verse is an editorial addition to Ps. 89, the concluding line of praise for Book III of the Psalms.

Psalm 90 is a psalm of lament in which the community complains of God's judgment and the brevity of life. But even in the midst of sorrow, the people acknowledge the security they have in the Lord and pray for renewal. This is the only poem in the Book of Psalms attributed to Moses, who wrote two other poems recorded in the Pentateuch (Ex. 15; Deut. 32). Psalm 90 has four sections: (1) an affirmation of the security of a life lived close to the Lord (vv. 1, 2); (2) a complaint about the brevity of life (vv. 3–6); (3) a complaint about God's judgment on His people (vv. 7–12); (4) a prayer for restoration (vv. 13–17).

90:1, 2 Lord here is not God's personal name (Ex. 3:14, 15), but a Hebrew word celebrating His majestic authority. The word suggests a title similar to "my Supreme Master." Dwelling place refers to the Lord as the "refuge" of His people (71:3; 91:9). in all generations: Throughout history, people have found the Lord to be their refuge in life.

90:4, 5 Even if people lived a thousand years, they would pass away like a watch in the night. A thousand years may seem long at the time, but not in comparison to God's eternal existence. Grass sprouts after the spring rains, but wilts quickly in the heat—almost in a single day.

90:7 wrath: The allusion is to the anger of God against the unbelieving Israelites in the wilderness (see Num. 13; 14). An entire generation spent their lives wandering in the wilderness because of their unbelief and rebellion.

Our <sup>i</sup> secret sins in the light of Your countenance.

<sup>9</sup> For all our days have passed away in Your wrath;
We finish our years like a sigh.

<sup>10</sup> The days of our lives are seventy years;
And if by reason of strength they are eighty years,
Yet their boast is only labor and sorrow;
For it is soon cut off, and we fly away.

<sup>11</sup> Who knows the power of Your anger?
For as the fear of You, so is Your wrath.

That we may gain a heart of wisdom.

How long?
And <sup>k</sup> have compassion on Your servants.

<sup>14</sup> Oh, satisfy us early with Your mercy,

<sup>15</sup> Make us glad according to the days in which You have afflicted us,
The years in which we have seen evil.

And Your glory to their children.

PSALM 91

Safety of Abiding in the Presence of God

H<sup>e</sup> <sup>a</sup> who dwells in the secret place of the Most High Shall abide <sup>b</sup> under the shadow of the Almighty.

<sup>2</sup> <sup>c</sup> I will say of the LORD, “He is my refuge and my fortress; My God, in Him I will trust.”

And under His wings you shall take refuge;
His truth shall be your shield and <sup>2</sup> buckler.

Nor of the arrow that flies by day,
<sup>6</sup> Nor of the pestilence that walks in darkness,
Nor of the destruction that lays waste at noonday.

And ten thousand at your right hand;
But it shall not come near you.

90:10 seventy . . . eighty years: The point here is not to set a maximum, but to present a context for the brevity of human life. No matter how long people live, it is inevitable that they will fly away to death.

90:11, 12 These verses are the key of the psalm. Moses had experienced a sufficient measure of God’s anger (Ex. 32; Num. 14:11–25; Deut. 3:23–28). teach: What Moses needed was a new understanding of the meaning of his own life. number our days: This is more than just having a sense of mortality; it means valuing the time we do have by using it for eternal purposes.

90:13, 14 Moses uses the word “return” in v. 3 to refer to God’s call for his death. Here he asks God to return for a renewed sense of life. compassion . . . mercy: Moses is asking God for new meaning in his life in the days that remain.

90:16, 17 Your work . . . Your glory: Moses asks God to give him a sense of lasting meaning in life, something that will continue to the next generation. The same idea is expressed in the words the work of our hands. Beauty refers to the “pleasurateness” of God.

Psalm 91, a psalm of trust, does not identify its author. The psalm is sufficiently similar to Ps. 90, a psalm of Moses, that it might also be by him. Alternatively, the experiences and ideas of Moses could have been used by an anonymous writer. This poem has a very strong messianic thrust, and God Himself speaks in vv. 14–16 (see also Ps. 12; 60; 75; 87). The development of the psalm is in four main sections: (1) a confession of confidence in the Lord (vv. 1, 2); (2) assurance that those who trust in the Lord need not fear evil (vv. 3–8); (3) promises of God’s protection to the coming One (vv. 9–13); (4) a description of the Lord’s protection of the coming One (vv. 14–16).

91:1, 2 in the secret place: The person who trusts in God is the one who lives close to Him. The title Most High emphasizes God’s majesty (92:1) and is parallel to the term Almighty, a translation of the divine title Shaddai. Together the terms Most High and Shaddai speak of God as a mountain-like majesty, in whose presence there is a “secret place” or a shadow. My refuge and my fortress may be rephrased as “my secure fortress.”

91:3 fowler . . . pestilence: The images of a bird trap and various types of disease are a general description of dangers that might come to helpless people.

91:4 His feathers . . . His wings: God is described as a mother hen under whose wings the psalmist can come for refuge (61:4; 63:7). Shield and buckler indicates complete protection from all harm. God is an all protective shield for the believer.

91:5, 6 The interplay of words for night and day in these verses indicates the universal nature of God’s protection. Terror, arrow, pestilence, and destruction together refer to evil in general.

91:7, 8 A thousand . . . ten thousand: Like the Israelites in Egypt who were spared the danger that touched their neighbors (Ex. 9:26; 10:23; 11:7), believers in the Lord are protected from any assault. look . . . And see: The punishment of the wicked is as sure as the deliverance of the righteous.

8 Only <sup>a</sup>with your eyes shall you look,
And see the reward of the wicked.

9 Because you have made the LORD,
who is <sup>h</sup>my refuge,
Even the Most High, <sup>i</sup>your dwelling place,

10 <sup>j</sup>No evil shall befall you,
Nor shall any plague come near your dwelling;

11 <sup>k</sup>For He shall give His angels charge over you,
To keep you in all your ways.

12 In their hands they shall <sup>3</sup>bear you up,
<sup>l</sup>Lest you <sup>4</sup>dash your foot against a stone.

13 You shall tread upon the lion and the cobra,
The young lion and the serpent you shall trample underfoot.

14 “Because he has set his love upon Me,
therefore I will deliver him;
I will <sup>5</sup>set him on high, because he has <sup>m</sup>known My name.

15 He shall <sup>n</sup>call upon Me, and I will answer him;
I will be <sup>o</sup>with him in trouble;
I will deliver him and honor him.

16 With <sup>o</sup>long life I will satisfy him,
And show him My salvation.”

For behold, Your enemies shall 11 <sup>l</sup>My eye also has seen my desire on my enemies;

Who rise up against me.

92:9, 10 In vv. 14–16, God describes directly the same person addressed by the psalmist in vv. 9–13. This person is the coming One. My refuge is the same word used in v. 2. Dwelling place is the same word used in 90:1. Most High: The psalmist indicates that the coming One’s faith in God is the same as the psalmist’s.

92:11–13 His angels . . . a stone: These words were used by Satan to tempt the Savior (Matt. 4:5, 6). the lion and the cobra: The animal and snake imagery in this verse pictures all kinds of evil that might threaten the coming One. The Father will protect Him no matter what the danger.

92:14 The verb used here for love is not the usual Hebrew word for love. It has the idea of “holding close to,” even “hugging tightly in love” (Deut. 7:7; 10:15). He has known My name speaks of an intimate, experiential knowledge of the Father (John 1:18).

Psalm 92, a psalm of descriptive praise (Ps. 113), celebrates the person and work of God in an exuberant way. The psalm also includes several wisdom themes. The title is unusual in that it attaches the designation “for the Sabbath day.” The poem has four brief sections: (1) an encouragement for the people to respond to God in praise and worship (vv. 1–4);

(2) a celebration of the wisdom of God in bringing judgment on the wicked (vv. 5–9); (3) an acknowledgment of the mercy of God who has established the believer’s present life (vv. 10, 11); (4) an anticipation of the mercy of God that will continue in the life to come (vv. 12–15).

92:1–4 The wording of this section has similarities to Ps. 33:1, 2; 147:1; 149:1. To give thanks means “to give public acknowledgment” or to praise God verbally in a public setting (35:18; 105:1).

92:6 A senseless man . . . a fool: In contrast to the limitless wisdom of God is the shallow nature of the fool (14:1).

92:8, 9 You, LORD, are on high forevermore is the central shout of this psalm of descriptive praise (113:4). The Lord’s eternity is contrasted with the brevity of the lives of His enemies. Because of God’s patience, He allows evil to occur (2 Pet. 3:9)—but He will not allow it to flourish forever.

92:10 My horn You have exalted (75:4, 5; 89:17, 24; 132:17) is a figure of speech for the psalmist’s eventual triumph, the celebration of the psalmist’s strength. I have been anointed with fresh oil is not just a general statement of God’s interest in the poet, but a prediction of the coming One, the Lord’s Anointed.

PSALM 93

The Eternal Reign of the LORD

The <sup>a</sup> LORD reigns, He is clothed with majesty;

The LORD is clothed,
<sup>b</sup> He has girded Himself with strength.
Surely the world is established, so that it cannot be <sup>1</sup> moved.
<sup>2</sup> <sup>c</sup> Your throne is established from of old;
You are from everlasting.
<sup>3</sup> The floods have <sup>2</sup> lifted up, O LORD,
The floods have lifted up their voice;
The floods lift up their waves.
<sup>4</sup> <sup>d</sup> The LORD on high is mightier
Than the noise of many waters,
Than the mighty waves of the sea.
<sup>5</sup> Your testimonies are very sure;
Holiness adorns Your house,
O LORD, <sup>3</sup> forever.

92:12–15 The language of this section speaks of God’s continuing blessing on the believer not only in this life but also in the life to come (Ps. 23). The tree image recalls the words of 1:3. Psalm 93, a royal psalm, focuses on the reign of God over the earth, making use of a distinctly Canaanite perspective. The psalmist denies Baal and shouts exuberantly in praise of God. God is King of the universe. What are humans compared to Him? God is King of heaven. What are the gods compared to Him? God is King of all. To whom may He be compared (Is. 40:25)? This focus is one of the most impressive ideas in the Bible. The structure of Ps. 93 is as follows: (1) the establishment of the reign of God as King of creation (vv. 1, 2); (2) the celebration of the stability of God as King of creation (vv. 3, 4); (3) the acknowledgment of the excellent nature of God (v. 5). 93:1, 2 The LORD reigns is the key of the royal psalms (96:10; 97:1; 99:1). The language girded Himself with strength describes the victor of one-on-one combat. God is dressed in the garments of victory. This is a celebration of God as the Creator. cannot be moved: There is no power on earth or in the universe that can wrench control of the earth from God. from of old: Unlike Baal, who was a recent “upstart” in the myths of Canaan, the rule of God is from antiquity. The living God is eternal.

93:3, 4 The floods: Baal was supposed to have been victorious over the waters; thus this section of the poem is a continuing refutation of Baal worship while it joyfully celebrates the power of God. The LORD . . . is mightier: The Creator King is infinite in power; no force in the universe competes with Him.

93:5 While this psalm uses language resembling the worship of Baal to emphasize the greatness of God (Ps. 29), it also glorifies God with praises never attributed to Baal. None of the accolades of Baal speak of his testimonies. But God is superior to Baal, for He is faithful to His word. He is the gracious God who speaks to His people; He is the holy God of Scripture who is approached by His people; and He is the eternal God whom we worship, as did the people of ancient Israel.

Royal Psalms Some of the most inspiring psalms are the royal psalms. These are psalms that celebrate God as King. It is amazing that the first time Scripture refers to God as King is in one of the oracles of Balaam, the pagan seer who was blind to spiritual reality until God confronted him (Num. 23:21). Once God was revealed as the Great King, the psalmists made much of that fact.

The reign of God in the Psalms is presented against the cultural backdrop of Canaanite thought and religion. The Canaanites regarded their chief deity El as king of the gods. But according to Canaanite mythology, El’s rule was attacked by Baal, a god of storm and fertility. He defeated a number of the followers of El. These were the gods Yamm (the god of the sea), Lotan (a sea monster), and Mot (the god of death). Baal himself was mortally wounded in this conflict and Anat, the wife-sister of Baal, was associated with his resuscitation. With this victory, Baal became king. But there was always a lingering question: How long would Baal rule? How long would his enemies remain defeated? Could not Lotan surge anew and threaten Baal’s position? The Canaanites who believed in these stories lived their lives on the brink of a heavenly catastrophe. Their gods were fragile; they were easily established and easily deposed.

It is against this background that the words of Ps. 93 obtain their force. The living God is the King from the beginning of time; He is no recent claimant to power (vv. 1, 2). As King, He exercises authority over all. He does not have to fear a resurgent sea (vv. 3, 4). Not only is the Lord omnipotent, but He is truthful and holy, unlike any of the gods of the Canaanite imagination (v. 5).

In general, the royal psalms speak of the Lord as King in three different ways. He is King over creation, for He is the Creator (74:12–17). He is King over the Israelites (44:4), for He is their Savior. And He is the coming King, for He will eventually judge everyone (47:7, 8). Sometimes in people’s minds God’s kingdom is narrowly identified with the coming glorious rule of Jesus: God’s present reign over creation is ignored. But sometimes the opposite is true. God’s present rule can be emphasized so much that Jesus’ coming is disregarded. The royal psalms consistently balance these two ideas: “The LORD reigns” (93:1), but the Lord is also coming to establish His permanent rule (24:9).

PSALM 94

God the Refuge of the Righteous

O LORD God, <sup>a</sup>to whom vengeance belongs—
 O God, to whom vengeance belongs, shine forth!

 All the workers of iniquity boast in themselves.

 And afflict Your heritage.

<sup>6</sup> They slay the widow and the stranger,
 And murder the fatherless.

<sup>8</sup> Understand, you senseless among the people;
 And you fools, when will you be wise?

 He who formed the eye, shall He not see?

 He who teaches man knowledge?

 Nor will He forsake His inheritance.
<sup>15</sup> But judgment will return to righteousness,
 And all the upright in heart will follow it.

<sup>18</sup> If I say, “My foot slips,”
 Your mercy, O LORD, will hold me up.

<sup>19</sup> In the multitude of my anxieties within me,
 Your comforts delight my soul.

 Have fellowship with You?
<sup>21</sup> They gather together against the life of the righteous,
 And condemn <sup>j</sup>innocent blood.

Psalm 94 is a royal psalm, since the phrase “Judge of the earth” (v. 2) is equivalent to “King” (50:4–6). The righteous call for the divine Judge to punish evil in the world (82:8; 96:13; 98:9). Psalms 93–99 are a splendid set of psalms focused on the eternal reign of God. The order of the psalm is as follows: (1) a call for the Judge of the earth to punish the wicked (vv. 1–3); (2) a description of the senseless acts of the wicked (vv. 4–7); (3) a chiding of the wicked concerning their ignorance of God (vv. 8–11); (4) a blessing on the righteous (vv. 12–15); (5) a prayer for God’s intervention in the psalmist’s life (vv. 16–19); (6) a prayer for God’s defense of His own purposes (vv. 20–23).

94:1–3 Even when the poets call out for divine vengeance, they recognize that God decides when to exercise His wrath and judgment. God’s law clearly states that vengeance belongs to Him (Deut. 32:35). How long will the wicked triumph: This question is based on a concern for the glory of God. How long would the wicked defy God? The answer, of course, is in God’s mercy. The Lord may delay this judgment, but in His own timing He will come to establish true justice (2 Pet. 3:9).

94:4–6 The Psalms often describe the wicked in terms of their evil speech (Ps. 12). They slay the widow and the stranger: The Israelites had been commanded to comfort widows and orphans and to welcome strangers as long as those strangers obeyed the Law of God (Ex. 22:22). Thus the wicked were brazenly disobeying God’s commands.

94:8–11 The command to understand is for fools to abandon their foolishness. Surely, the poet argues, the Creator of the earth is not deaf, nor is the Fashioner of the eye blind. Although idols do not have real eyes and ears (115:3–8), the God of heaven does see and hear. The LORD knows: The difference between the thoughts of God and the thoughts of human beings is beyond comprehension. The thoughts of man apart from God are futile or “quickly passing.”

94:12 Blessed is the man: This beatitude uses the word with which the Book of Psalms begins, a term meaning “manifest happiness.” These words are very similar to the ideas of 1:2.

94:13, 14 Pit is one of the words used as a synonym for Sheol (16:10). Digging the “pit” is a way of describing the preparations for the final judgment of the wicked (Rev. 20). will not cast off His people: God will not forget His people any more than He will forget or deny Himself (2 Tim. 2:13).

94:16–19 Who will rise up for me is an appeal to the Lord who alone is the sure defense of the believer. settled in silence: The psalmist exclaims that if the Lord had not delivered him, he would have died. As in Ps. 6, if the psalmist had died, his voice would no longer be able to praise God in the temple. The comforts of God extend from His hearing the call of the righteous to His meeting their needs even when they are not aware of them.

94:20–23 Throne of iniquity is a description of the wicked who have great power. The holy Lord cannot tolerate evil in His presence. The LORD . . . shall cut them off: Final judgment will one day come to the wicked.

And my God the rock of my refuge.
 23 He has brought on them their own iniquity,
 And shall <sup>7</sup>cut them off in their own wickedness;
 The LORD our God shall cut them off.

PSALM 95

A Call to Worship and Obedience

Oh come, let us sing to the LORD!
 Let us shout joyfully to the Rock of our salvation.
 2 Let us come before His presence with thanksgiving;
 Let us shout joyfully to Him with <sup>a</sup>psalms.
 3 For <sup>b</sup>the LORD is the great God,
 And the great King above all gods.
 4 <sup>1</sup>In His hand are the deep places of the earth;
 The heights of the hills are His also.
 5 <sup>c</sup>The sea is His, for He made it;
 And His hands formed the dry land.
 6 Oh come, let us worship and bow down;
 Let <sup>d</sup>us kneel before the LORD our Maker.
 7 For He is our God,
 And <sup>e</sup>we are the people of His pasture,
 And the sheep <sup>2</sup>of His hand.

PSALM 96

A Song of Praise to God Coming in Judgment

Oh, <sup>a</sup>sing to the LORD a new song!
 Sing to the LORD, all the earth.
 2 Sing to the LORD, bless His name;
 Proclaim the good news of His salvation from day to day.
 3 Declare His glory among the <sup>1</sup>nations,
 His wonders among all peoples.
 4 For <sup>b</sup>the LORD is great and <sup>c</sup>greatly to be praised;
<sup>d</sup>He is to be feared above all gods.
 5 For <sup>e</sup>all the gods of the peoples are idols,
<sup>f</sup>But the LORD made the heavens.
 6 Honor and majesty are before Him;
 Strength and <sup>g</sup>beauty are in His sanctuary.

Psalm 95 places particular emphasis on the worship of God, making it a worship psalm. But it is also a royal psalm because of the way it acknowledges God as the great King (v. 3). The psalm has three movements, each reflecting a “mood” of the worshipping community: (1) the worship of God in a mood of celebration (vv. 1–5); (2) the worship of God in a contemplative mood (vv. 6, 7); (3) the worship of God in obedience (vv. 8–11).

95:1–4 Oh come: The psalm begins with energy and delight at the prospect of worshipping God in the temple (Ps. 100). The use of the psalms in worship is indicated in this passage. In His hand refers to God’s control over all that He has made.

95:6, 7 Each of the key verbs in this sentence describes a physical posture of humility before the Lord. The Hebrew word translated worship means literally “to prostrate oneself.” When bow down, kneel, and worship occur together as in this verse, they amplify each other and call for a reflective, humble approach to God. Worship is joyful and can be done with abandon (vv. 1–5); but at other times worship may be quiet reverence of the Almighty (see Ps. 134). people of His pasture: These words seem to be an inversion of the wording of 100:3, expressing the loving care the Father has for His children.

95:7–11 The third movement of this psalm is a call for obedience in worship and a reminder of God’s judgments in past times on people who did not take Him seriously. The entire section is quoted in its entirety in Heb. 3:7–11, with a notable introduction: “Therefore, as the Holy Spirit says” (Heb. 3:7). This phrase reminds us that the words of the psalms, which are the response of the worshipping Israelite community, are also the oracles of God.

95:8 The word rebellion is literally “Meribah,” a word that would remind the Israelites of the times they had doubted the Lord’s provision for them (Ex. 17:7; Num. 20:13). The event of Meribah was the rebellion of the first generation at Kadesh (Num. 14). By refusing to enter Canaan, the entire generation of Israelites lost their opportunity to enjoy the promises of God in the land of blessing.

Psalm 96, a royal psalm, is part of the set that begins at Ps. 93. This psalm emphasizes world mission, specifically the prophetic fulfillment of the mission provision of the Abrahamic covenant (Ps. 67). The structure of the poem is as follows: (1) a call to praise God (vv. 1–3); (2) a celebration of God the Creator (vv. 4–6); (3) a celebration of God the King (vv. 7–10); (4) a celebration of God the coming One (vv. 11–13).

96:3 Among the nations is a bold declaration that one day the message of God’s mercy will be known the world over. One day the message of God’s salvation will be known among all peoples. This declaration depends on God’s promise to Abraham that through his descendants all nations of the earth will be blessed (Gen. 12:1–3). It also anticipates Jesus’ command to his disciples to spread the news of God’s goodness to a desperate world (Matt. 28:18–20; see also Ps. 67).

96:4–6 The mention of other gods in v. 4 is clarified by the words of v. 5: these gods are merely idols. Honor and majesty may be rephrased as “majestic honor.” Strength and beauty may be rephrased as “beautiful strength.”

- <sup>7</sup> <sup>h</sup> Give<sup>2</sup> to the LORD, O families of the peoples, Give to the LORD glory and strength.
- <sup>8</sup> <sup>3</sup> Give to the LORD the glory due His name;
Bring an offering, and come into His courts.
- <sup>9</sup> Oh, worship the LORD <sup>i</sup> in the beauty of holiness!
Tremble before Him, all the earth.
- <sup>10</sup> Say among the <sup>4</sup> nations, <sup>j</sup> “The LORD reigns;
The world also is firmly established,
It shall not be <sup>5</sup> moved;
- <sup>11</sup> <sup>l</sup> Let the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad;
<sup>m</sup> Let the sea roar, and <sup>6</sup> all its fullness;
- <sup>12</sup> Let the field be joyful, and all that is in it.
Then all the trees of the woods will rejoice
before the LORD
For He is coming, for He is coming to judge the earth.
<sup>n</sup> He shall judge the world with righteousness,
And the peoples with His truth.

- <sup>11</sup> <sup>o</sup> Light is sown for the righteous,
And gladness for the upright in heart.
- <sup>12</sup> <sup>p</sup> Rejoice in the LORD, you righteous,

96:7-9 families of the peoples: The allusion to the Abrahamic covenant continues (vv. 2, 3; see Gen. 12:1-3). One day, the praise of God will come gladly from people of all nations. Give to the LORD: The words of vv. 7-9 are quoted from 29:1, 2, with the substitution of “O families of the peoples” for “O you mighty ones.”

96:10 The LORD reigns is the key phrase of the royal psalms (93:1). It was the countercultural cry of ancient Israelites in a world that believed that gods could rise and fall. In contrast, the living God remains Ruler for all eternity. He shall judge: This verse answers the cry of the oppressed peoples of world history. God will restore justice (82:8; 94:1-3).

96:11-13 Let the heavens rejoice: This poem calls for all of creation to respond to the coming of the King of glory. He is coming . . . He is coming: Like the echo of approaching footsteps, the words echo each other. judge the world: See 98:9 for similar words; see Rev. 19; 20 for their fulfillment.

Psalm 97, one of the series of royal psalms (Ps. 93-99), has a particularly apocalyptic tone in its description of God’s final judgment on the wicked before He establishes His great kingdom. The structure of the poem is: (1) a call for the praise of God the King (v. 1); (2) a vision of the coming judgment of the wicked (vv. 2-6); (3) a prophetic statement about the end of idolatry (vv. 7-9); (4) a promise of great joy for the righteous (vv. 10, 11); (5) a call for the praise of God the King (v. 12).

97:1 The LORD reigns is the key phrase of the royal psalms

(93:1). The earth as a whole and its smallest parts—the isles—join together in rejoicing at the prospect of God’s reign on earth.

97:2 Clouds and darkness may be rephrased “impenetrable clouds,” an indicator of the final judgment and God’s awesome power (Joel 2:2; Zeph. 1:15). Righteousness and justice may be rephrased as “absolute righteousness.” The foundation of God’s coming judgment will be His integrity; His judgments will be correct.

97:3 fire: The psalmist uses the imagery of the storm god Baal to describe God’s judgment. This poetic language attempts to describe the final judgment of God upon the earth before He establishes His kingdom.

97:7, 8 The continuing practice of idolatry throughout world history is a grave offense against the Lord. Such behavior will finally end in shame and terror (14:5). Worship Him: Anything that serves as an object of worship will one day bow before the true God (115:4-10).

97:10, 11 To hate means to reject; to love means to choose. Since both are an expression of the will and not merely an emotion, the Bible commands both love and hatred. Light is sown: The picture is that of someone sowing seed, with the seed being light and joy. This speaks of the restoration of the earth (Ps. 110).

97:12 Rejoice: The psalm begins and ends on a note of rejoicing.

PSALM 98

A Song of Praise to the LORD for His Salvation and Judgment

A Psalm.

- Oh, <sup>a</sup>sing to the LORD a new song!
 For He has <sup>b</sup>done marvelous things;
 His right hand and His holy arm have gained Him the victory.
- <sup>2</sup> “The LORD has made known His salvation;

 the sight of the <sup>1</sup>nations.
- <sup>3</sup> He has remembered His mercy and His faithfulness to the house of Israel;
<sup>e</sup>All the ends of the earth have seen
 the salvation of our God.
- <sup>4</sup> Shout joyfully to the LORD, all the earth;
 Break forth in song, rejoice, and sing praises.
- <sup>5</sup> Sing to the LORD with the harp,
 With the harp and the sound of a
 psalm,
- <sup>6</sup> With trumpets and the sound of a horn;
 Shout joyfully before the LORD, the King.
- <sup>7</sup> Let the sea roar, and all its fullness,
 The world and those who dwell in it;
<sup>8</sup> Let the rivers clap their hands;
 Let the hills be joyful together
 before the LORD,

PSALM 99

Praise to the LORD for His Holiness

- The LORD reigns;
 Let the peoples tremble!
- <sup>a</sup>He dwells between the cherubim;
 Let the earth be <sup>1</sup>moved!
- <sup>2</sup> The LORD is great in Zion,
 And He is high above all the peoples.
- <sup>3</sup> Let them praise Your great and awesome name—
<sup>2</sup>He is holy.
- <sup>4</sup> The King’s strength also loves justice;
 You have established equity;
 You have executed justice and righteousness in Jacob.
- <sup>5</sup> Exalt the LORD our God,
 And worship at His footstool—
 He is holy.
- <sup>6</sup> Moses and Aaron were among His priests,
 And Samuel was among those who <sup>b</sup>called upon His name;
 They called upon the LORD, and He answered them.
- <sup>7</sup> He spoke to them in the cloudy
 pillar;
 They kept His testimonies and the

Psalm 98, one of the set of royal psalms that includes Ps. 93—99, is an exuberant psalm of praise. This poem shares the same joy as Ps. 96. The outline is as follows: (1) a call to praise God as the Savior (vv. 1–3); (2) a call to praise God as the King (vv. 4–6); (3) a call to praise God as the coming Judge (vv. 7–9).

98:1–2 The term marvelous things is used only to describe the actions of God in the Bible. The right hand of the Lord is a way of referring to His great salvation of Israel from Egypt (Ex. 15:6; Deut. 4:34). The phrase is like a slogan for the Lord’s redemption (118:15, 16). sight of the nations: God’s salvation was designed to be a witness to the nations (Deut. 4:6).

98:7, 8 In Canaanite thought, the sea represented a dark deity. In the Psalms, the sea is a part of creation that God completely controls (Ps. 93). The clapping of the hands of the rivers and the rejoicing of the hills represents the praise of creation at the establishment of God’s kingdom on the earth.

98:9 He is coming: This verse and 96:13 answer the call for justice found at many points in the Psalms. The coming of the Judge is a reason for joy. At last the Lord will put an end to cruelty, evil, and injustice.

Psalm 99, the last of the set of royal psalms that began with Ps. 93, praises God as the King of His people. The psalm has three movements, each ending with the words “He is holy”: (1) praise to the Lord in the greatness of His glory (vv. 1–3); (2) praise to the King in the justice of His rule (vv. 4, 5); (3) praise to the Lord who answers the prayers of His people (vv. 6–9).

99:1, 2 The cherubim are the angels most closely related to the glory of God. Two gold cherubim graced the mercy seat of the ark of the covenant (Ex. 25:18–22). Let the earth be moved: Since God is the great King, the stability of the earth depends on Him; He can shake the world to demonstrate His power over it (Matt. 24:29). great in Zion: The holy temple in Jerusalem was the earthly structure for God’s heavenly presence. But His reign extends throughout the entire world.

99:3 awesome name: The name of God is a blessing and comfort; it also evokes awe and wonder. Holy means to be “distant” or “distinct from.” This is the principal Hebrew word used to describe the transcendence of God (113:4–6).

99:5 the footstool of the Lord is sometimes said to be the earth (Is. 66:1); but more specifically, Zion is the Lord’s footstool (132:7; Is. 60:13). When the Israelites came to the temple in Jerusalem to worship, they pictured themselves as being at the feet of the Creator.

99:6 The psalmists worshiped God by recalling His saving acts to their predecessors. Moses is mentioned by name in the Psalms several times (77:20; 103:7; 105:26; 106:16, 23, 32), as is Aaron (77:20; 105:26; 106:16; 115:10, 12; 118:3; 133:2; 135:19). This psalm is the only one to mention Samuel by name. He answered: The inference is clear—the Lord heard their prayers and did not remain silent. Since God answered the prayers of our ancestors, surely He will continue to answer the prayers of those who call upon Him.

PSALM 101

Promised Faithfulness to the LORD

A Psalm of David.

I will sing of mercy and justice;
To You, O LORD, I will sing praises.

- 2 I will behave wisely in a <sup>1</sup> perfect way.
Oh, when will You come to me?
I will <sup>a</sup> walk within my house with a perfect heart.
- 3 I will set nothing <sup>2</sup> wicked before my eyes;
<sup>b</sup> I hate the work of those <sup>c</sup> who fall away;
It shall not cling to me.
- 4 A perverse heart shall depart from me;
I will not <sup>d</sup> know wickedness.
- 5 Whoever secretly slanders his neighbor,
Him I will destroy;
<sup>e</sup> The one who has a haughty look and a proud heart,
Him I will not endure.
- 6 My eyes shall be on the faithful of the land,
That they may dwell with me;
He who walks in a <sup>3</sup> perfect way,
He shall serve me.

- 8 You answered them, O LORD our God;
You were to them God-Who-Forgives,
Though You took vengeance on their deeds.
- 9 Exalt the LORD our God,
And worship at His holy hill;
For the LORD our God is holy.

PSALM 100

A Song of Praise for the LORD's Faithfulness to His People<sup>a</sup> A Psalm of Thanksgiving.

- Make <sup>b</sup> a joyful shout to the LORD, <sup>1</sup> all you lands!
2 Serve the LORD with gladness;
Come before His presence with singing.
- 3 Know that the LORD, He is God;
<sup>c</sup> It is He who has made us, and <sup>2</sup> not we ourselves;
<sup>d</sup> We are His people and the sheep of His pasture.
- 4 <sup>e</sup> Enter into His gates with thanksgiving,
And into His courts with praise.
Be thankful to Him, and bless His name.
- 5 For the LORD is good;
And His truth endures to all generations.

99:9 His holy hill: As in 2:6, the site of Zion is “holy” because of the presence of the Lord. This holy hill is also His “footstool” (see v. 5).

Psalm 100 is a psalm of descriptive praise that follows a set of royal psalms (Ps. 93–99). Perhaps the ancient editors felt that the royal psalms demanded the response of worship provided by this psalm. The phrase “A Psalm of Thanksgiving” refers to public acknowledgment of the Lord.

100:1, 2 The Hebrew verb for make a joyful shout is a highly charged command for public praise. The command is addressed not just to Israel but to all the earth. The Israelites were to be a people who would attract the nations to worship God. with gladness: Joyful abandon was not the only mood of worship in ancient Israel (Ps. 95), but there was great emphasis placed on it.

100:3 The words the LORD, He is God reflect the great confession of faith in Deut 6:4–9. To know that the Lord is God is very similar to the command to “hear” in Deuteronomy. And not we ourselves is sometimes read “and His we are.” sheep of His pasture: An inversion of these words can be found in 95:7.

100:4 Enter: The commands of vv. 1, 2 are reiterated. The people of the Lord may actually come into His presence and bring Him worship that pleases Him. Be thankful is a command for public expression of praise (106:1).

100:5 the LORD is good: The shout of the goodness of God in this verse is buttressed by an appeal to His mercy and His truth. The Hebrew word for truth comes from the root meaning “to be established” or “to be confirmed.” From this root also comes the word amen, meaning “surely” or “truly.” God’s goodness is based on His loyal love and His truth.

Psalm 101 is a royal psalm. David the king declares his purposes and asks for God’s help in maintaining righteousness. This brief psalm has a tone of strong judgment, indicating a desire not only to preserve the innocent and protect the needy, but also to maintain the reputation of God against the attacks of His foes. The outline of the poem is: (1) a determination to praise the Lord (v. 1); (2) a determination to behave wisely (v. 2); (3) a determination to abstain from wickedness (vv. 3–5); (4) a determination to discriminate between the righteous and the wicked (vv. 6–8).

101:1, 2 Mercy and justice may be rephrased as “gracious justice.” There is a harshness to the tone of the psalm that might emphasize the justice element of this phrasing, but underlying the justice is God’s “mercy” or “loyal love.” Behave wisely means to act with skill. The strong form of the word indicates intense determination, not just a passing desire.

101:3, 4 The Hebrew expression for wicked implies utter worthlessness. The phrase I hate indicates utter rejection (5:5). David hated what God hated and loved what God loved. not know: The Hebrew verb for “to know” here has the idea of experience or intimate relationship with something or someone.

101:6–8 David made a covenant with his eyes (Job 31:1) to observe the righteous and sustain them in their walk. Alternatively, his eyes were also directed against the wicked. the evildoers: Elsewhere, this Hebrew phrase is rendered workers of iniquity (14:4).

7 He who works deceit shall not dwell within my house;
He who tells lies shall not <sup>d</sup>continue in my presence.
8 <sup>f</sup>Early I will destroy all the wicked of
the land,
That I may cut off all the evildoers

PSALM 102

The LORD's Eternal Love

A Prayer of the afflicted, <sup>a</sup>when he is overwhelmed and pours out his complaint
before the LORD.

Hear my prayer, O LORD,
And let my cry come to You.
2 <sup>b</sup>Do not hide Your face from me in the day of my trouble;
Incline Your ear to me;
In the day that I call, answer me speedily.
3 For my days <sup>1</sup>are <sup>c</sup>consumed like smoke,
And my bones are burned like a hearth.
4 My heart is stricken and withered
like grass,
So that I forget to eat my bread.
5 Because of the sound of my groaning
My bones cling to my <sup>2</sup>skin.
6 I am like a pelican of the wilderness;
I am like an owl of the desert.
7 I lie awake,
And am like a sparrow alone on the housetop.
8 My enemies reproach me all day
long;
Those who deride me swear an oath against me.
9 For I have eaten ashes like bread,
And mingled my drink with weeping,

10 Because of Your indignation and Your wrath;
For You have lifted me up and cast me away.
11 My days are like a shadow that lengthens,
And I wither away like grass.
12 But You, O LORD, shall endure
forever,
And the remembrance of Your name
to all generations.
13 You will arise and have mercy on
Zion;
For the time to favor her,
Yes, the set time, has come.
14 For Your servants take pleasure in her stones,
And show favor to her dust.
15 So the <sup>3</sup>nations shall <sup>d</sup>fear the name of the LORD,
And all the kings of the earth Your glory.
16 For the LORD shall build up Zion;
<sup>e</sup>He shall appear in His glory.
17 <sup>j</sup>He shall regard the prayer of the destitute,
And shall not despise their prayer.
18 This will be <sup>g</sup>written for the generation to come,
That <sup>h</sup>a people yet to be created may
praise the LORD.
19 For He <sup>i</sup>looked down from the height of His sanctuary;
From heaven the LORD viewed the
earth,
20 <sup>j</sup>To hear the groaning of the prisoner,
To release those appointed to death,
21 To <sup>k</sup>declare the name of the LORD in Zion,
And His praise in Jerusalem,
22 <sup>l</sup>When the peoples are gathered together,
And the kingdoms, to serve the LORD.

Psalm 102, a penitential psalm, has an unusual inscription. The title describes a person in distress but does not name him. The structure of the poem is: (1) a cry to the Lord for deliverance (vv. 1, 2); (2) a description of the groaning brought about by guilt (vv. 3–7); (3) a description of suffering that results from the laughter of enemies (vv. 8–11); (4) praise to the Lord who rises to answer prayer (vv. 12–17); (5) praise to the Lord who stoops to the needs of His people (vv. 18–22); (6) a petition to the Lord to renew the strength of His servant (vv. 23–28).

102:1 In its entreaty for the Lord to hear, the beginning of the psalm reflects a pattern of lament (see 13:1, 2). The next section (vv. 3–7) reflects a pattern of penitence (see 32:3–5).

102:3 my days are consumed: This description of the psalmist's sense of his own frailty is matched by the words of 144:4, "like a passing shadow."

102:6–8 The psalmist names birds—a pelican, an owl, and a sparrow—who live in distant, lonely places. The psalmist felt isolated, alone, and vulnerable, an isolation intensified by the harsh ranting of his enemies, who deride him for his decision to trust in the Lord.

102:12 Shall endure may also be translated "sits enthroned." God is King forever. He is gracious, loves His people, and promises to favor them. With these words of praise, the psalmist expresses his hope that God will deliver him.

102:15 The psalmist anticipates a time when the Lord will reign over all the nations (Ps. 96–98); but his prayer is for God's answer to his own cry for deliverance.

102:18, 19 The psalmist realizes that the Eternal One has stooped from heaven to meet his need, that the King of kings has come to his aid. His joy is such that he wants people who have not yet been born to learn what God has done.

23 He weakened my strength in the way;
He <sup>m</sup>shortened my days.
24 <sup>n</sup>I said, "O my God,
Do not take me away in the midst of my days;
<sup>o</sup>Your years are throughout all generations.
25 <sup>p</sup>Of old You laid the foundation of the earth,
And the heavens are the work of Your hands.
26 <sup>q</sup>They will perish, but You will <sup>4</sup>endure;
Yes, they will all grow old like a garment;
Like a cloak You will change them,
And they will be changed.
27 But <sup>r</sup>You are the same,
And Your years will have no end.
28 <sup>s</sup>The children of Your servants will continue,
And their descendants will be established before You."

8 <sup>g</sup>The LORD is merciful and gracious,
Slow to anger, and abounding in mercy.
9 <sup>h</sup>He will not always strive with us,
Nor will He keep His anger forever.
10 <sup>i</sup>He has not dealt with us according to our sins,
Nor punished us according to our iniquities.
11 For as the heavens are high above the earth,
So great is His mercy toward those who fear Him;
12 As far as the east is from the west,
So far has He <sup>j</sup>removed our transgressions from us.
13 <sup>k</sup>As a father pities his children,

103:24, 25 midst of my days: The psalmist remembers his troubling experiences and contrasts the brevity of his own life with the eternity of God. Of old: God is eternal and His works are from ancient times. The writer of the Book of Hebrews applies these words of creation and eternity to the Son (vv. 25-27; Heb. 1:10-12).

Psalm 103, a wisdom psalm attributed to David, is also a psalm of praise. The poem begins with the psalmist speaking in the singular (v. 1), but then moves to include the community, both angels and people (vv. 20-22). The structure of the psalm is: (1) praise of the Lord for His many benefits (vv. 1-5); (2) praise of the Lord for His ongoing mercy (vv. 6-10); (3) praise of the Lord for His transcendent glory and gentle care (vv. 11-14); (4) a comparison of the transitory nature of humanity with the everlasting rule of God (vv. 15-19); (5) a call for heaven and earth to bless the Lord (vv. 20-22).

103:1 To bless the LORD is to remember that He is the source of all our blessings. The psalmist blesses the Lord with his entire being (146:2).

103:3-5 heals all your diseases: There are godly people who suffer illness, despite repeated prayers for healing. Even though God is not bound to heal every disease, every healing does come from Him. Who satisfies your mouth: In addition to being a healer, God provides food as well as other blessings (111:5). His mercy enables the believer to rise up like an eagle (see Is. 40:31).

103:6 God is for the helpless and the oppressed. He is not unfair, for He is the One who will restore justice to the earth.

103:7 made known His ways to Moses: God blessed His servant Moses in a special way by revealing the Law to him. His acts: During the Exodus and the wilderness wanderings, God acted on the Israelites' behalf. He saved them from Pharaoh's army, provided them with water and food, but most importantly revealed the Law to them.

103:8-14 The LORD is merciful: This is a basic description of God in the OT (see 86:15; Ex. 34:6, 7). If God dealt with us according to our sins, no one could stand before Him (130:3). There is no way to compare the divine with the mortal; the mercy of God is greater than the heavens. He removes our sins completely (Mic. 7:19) and cares for His people as a good father cares for his children. The fact that God remembers who we are and how He made us is another mark of His mercy, for we are dust.

soul (Heb. nephesh) (11:5; 103:1, 2; Lev. 26:30; Is. 1:14; 42:1; Jer. 5:9; 15:1) Strong's #5315: This Hebrew word occurs more than 750 times in the Bible. It has quite a number of meanings, but most of them can be reduced to the following three categories: (1) life or the life force, especially in connection with blood (Gen. 9:4, 5; Lev. 17:11, 14); (2) one's soul or the immaterial being, the seat of intellect and emotion (42:1, 2; 86:4; 1 Sam. 1:10; 2 Sam. 5:8; Prov. 23:7; Song 1:7); and (3) an individual or person (84:2; Gen. 2:7; Judg. 12:3; Ezek. 18:4). Originally the word probably referred to the breath (Job 41:22). The Bible typically considers a person as an interconnected whole. This is why the Bible tells us to love God with all our heart, soul, and strength—in other words, with our entire being (Deut. 6:4, 5; Josh. 22:5).

So the LORD pities those who fear Him.
 14 For He <sup>1</sup> knows our frame; He remembers that we are dust.
 15 As for man, <sup>1</sup> his days are like grass; As a flower of the field, so he flourishes.
 16 <sup>m</sup> For the wind passes over it, and it is <sup>2</sup> gone, And <sup>n</sup> its place remembers it no more.
 17 But the mercy of the LORD is from everlasting to everlasting On those who fear Him, And His righteousness to children's children, 18 <sup>o</sup> To such as keep His covenant, And to those who remember His commandments to do them.
 19 The LORD has established His throne in heaven, And <sup>p</sup> His kingdom rules over all.
 20 <sup>q</sup> Bless the LORD, you His angels, Who excel in strength, who <sup>r</sup> do His word, Heeding the voice of His word.
 21 Bless the LORD, all you His hosts, <sup>s</sup> You <sup>3</sup> ministers of His, who do His pleasure.
 22 Bless the LORD, all His works, In all places of His dominion.
 Bless the LORD, O my soul!

 Who stretch out the heavens like a curtain.
 3 <sup>b</sup> He lays the beams of His upper chambers in the waters,
 Who makes the clouds His chariot,
 Who walks on the wings of the wind,
 4 Who makes His angels spirits,
 His <sup>1</sup> ministers a flame of fire.
 5 You who <sup>2</sup> laid the foundations of the earth,
 So that it should not be moved forever,
 6 You <sup>c</sup> covered it with the deep as with a garment;
 The waters stood above the mountains.
 7 At Your rebuke they fled;
 At the voice of Your thunder they hastened away.
 8 <sup>3</sup> They went up over the mountains;
 They went down into the valleys,
 To the place which You founded for them.
 9 You have <sup>d</sup> set a boundary that they may not pass over,
<sup>e</sup> That they may not return to cover the earth.
 10 He sends the springs into the valleys;
 They flow among the hills.
 11 They give drink to every beast of the field;
 The wild donkeys quench their thirst.
 12 By them the birds of the heavens have their home;

103:17-19 Mercy may be rephrased as “loyal love.” God’s anger is for a moment (v. 8); His loyal love is forever. His blessing is on those who keep faith with Him (147:11). His throne: The Lord is King of all and King forever. His rule is the only rule that matters.

103:20-22 Bless the LORD: The poet began the psalm with a call to his own inner being to respond with praise to God (v. 1); he concludes the psalm with a call to heaven and earth to join him in joyful praise.

Psalm 104, a wisdom psalm, is also a creation psalm (Ps. 19). It is an exuberant poetic recasting of Gen. 1, a joyful celebration of the world as the creation of God. The poetry of the psalmists and the prophets often reflects upon God’s work in creation. The structure of the poem is: (1) praise for God’s great creation (vv. 1, 2); (2) the creation of the heavens (vv. 3, 4); (3) the creation of the earth (vv. 5-9); (4) the waters of blessing (vv. 10-13); (5) the fullness of the earth (vv. 14-18); (6) the patterns of life (vv. 19-23); (7) praise for God’s great creation (vv. 24-26); (8) an acknowledgment that all life is dependent upon the Lord (vv. 27-30); (9) a prayer for God’s glory (vv. 31, 32); (10) a personal response to God (vv. 33-35).

104:2 God is Spirit (see John 4:24), and descriptions of Him vary through the Bible. One strong description of Him is light (see 1 John 1:5). Here light is described as the garment that enfolds His wonder. The first act of God in Genesis was the command for light (Gen. 1:3).

104:3, 4 beams of His upper chambers: With these poetic words, the psalmist alludes to the heavenly dwelling place of God, a place beyond human understanding. makes the clouds His chariot: Idolaters used similar language of Baal. The psalmist strips Baal of these honors and applied them to the living God (Ps. 93). Angels are also spirit beings; they may appear as flames of fire (Is. 6:2).

104:5-7 You who laid the foundations of the earth is a poetic way of describing how God created the heavens and the earth. The deep is the same term used in Gen. 1:2. At Your rebuke: The poet recalls that God brought dry land from the watery abyss in Gen. 1:9, 10. The word of God is referred to as a “rebuke” or a “thundering.”

104:9 A boundary is a regular theme in wisdom literature (Prov. 8:29). God’s control over the turbulent waters (Ps. 93) is proof that He, not Baal, is the true Sovereign.

They sing among the branches.
 13 <sup>f</sup>He waters the hills from His upper chambers;
 The earth is satisfied with <sup>g</sup>the fruit of Your works.
 14 <sup>h</sup>He causes the grass to grow for the cattle,
 And vegetation for the service of man,
 That he may bring forth <sup>i</sup>food from the earth,
 15 And <sup>j</sup>wine that makes glad the heart of man,
 Oil to make his face shine,
 And bread which strengthens man's heart.
 16 The trees of the LORD are full of sap,
 The cedars of Lebanon which He planted,
 17 Where the birds make their nests;
 The stork has her home in the fir trees.
 18 The high hills are for the wild goats;
 The cliffs are a refuge for the <sup>k</sup>rock <sup>l</sup>badgers.

Language

The language of the Psalms resembles the poetry of the ancient city of Ugarit. The Psalms pick up some of the phrases and expressions that were popular during that time, but this does not mean that the Psalms were copied from the literature of Ugarit. Psalm 104 is remarkably similar to the Egyptian “Hymn to Aton” in its use of poetic parallelism and in the thoughts of some verses. Although these similarities are too close to be incidental, a close comparison of the two poems shows that the biblical poem is clearly monotheistic (affirming the existence of one God) and quite different from the Egyptian poem in structure. Perhaps the Hebrew poet composed his hymn with the Egyptian piece before him. What the polytheistic poet ascribed to Aton, the monotheistic biblical poet attributed to Yahweh.

*There is that <sup>s</sup>Leviathan<sup>s</sup>
 Which You have <sup>t</sup>made to play there.*

27 <sup>u</sup>These all wait for You,
 That You may give them their food in due season.
 28 What You give them they gather in;
 You open Your hand, they are filled with good.
 29 You hide Your face, they are troubled;
<sup>v</sup>You take away their breath, they die and return to their dust.
 30 <sup>w</sup>You send forth Your Spirit, they are created;
 And You renew the face of the earth.
 31 May the glory of the LORD endure forever;
 May the LORD <sup>w</sup>rejoice in His works.
 32 He looks on the earth, and it <sup>x</sup>trembles;
<sup>y</sup>He touches the hills, and they smoke.
 33 <sup>z</sup>I will sing to the LORD as long as I live;
 I will sing praise to my God while I have my being.
 34 May my <sup>aa</sup>meditation be sweet to Him;
 I will be glad in the LORD.

104:14, 15 vegetation: The basis for this section is Gen. 1:11–13, the creative acts of God on the third day. Here the psalmist indicates the specific purpose of God's creation: to provide for the needs of human beings. Wine, oil, and bread—staples of everyday life in Israel—are blessings of God to enrich life.

104:19 seasons: The events of the fourth day of creation are reviewed here (Gen. 1:14–19). The point is that God has established the patterns of life.

104:24 The Hebrew wisdom writers looked at the world with a sense of wonder and reverence because it reflected the wisdom of its Creator.

104:25, 26 References to the sea in the psalms are generally in the context of Canaanite ideas. The Canaanites said that Baal controlled the powerful gods of the seas. But the psalmist asserts in the face of this falsehood that God created the waters and everything in them—even Leviathan, the great sea monster (see Job 41).

104:27–30 These all wait: All creation depends on the Creator for birth, life, and sustenance. Even death is controlled by the Sovereign One.

104:31 God continues to rejoice in His creative work on earth (Prov. 8:30, 31). The Lord considered His creation “good” from the beginning (Gen. 1:31), and His pleasure in it remains.

104:34, 35 my meditation: The poet wants to respond properly to God's creation. Bless the LORD echoes the beginning of the psalm (v. 1).

PSALM 105

The Eternal Faithfulness of the LORD

O <sup>a</sup>h, <sup>a</sup>give thanks to the LORD!
 Call upon His name;
<sup>b</sup>Make known His deeds among the peoples!
 2 Sing to Him, sing psalms to Him;
<sup>c</sup>Talk of all His wondrous works!
 3 Glory in His holy name;
 Let the hearts of those rejoice who seek the LORD!
 4 Seek the LORD and His strength;
<sup>d</sup>Seek His face evermore!
 5 <sup>e</sup>Remember His marvelous works which He has done,
 His wonders, and the judgments of
 His mouth,
 6 O seed of Abraham His servant,
 You children of Jacob, His chosen ones!
 7 He <sup>f</sup>is the LORD our God;
<sup>f</sup>His judgments <sup>are</sup> in all the earth.
 8 He <sup>g</sup>remembers His covenant forever,
 The word <sup>which</sup> He commanded, for a thousand generations,
 9 <sup>h</sup>The covenant which He made with Abraham,
 And His oath to Isaac,

10 And confirmed it to Jacob for a statute,
 To Israel <sup>as</sup> an everlasting covenant, 11 Saying, <sup>i</sup>“To you I will give the land of Canaan
 As the allotment of your inheritance,”
 12 <sup>j</sup>When they were few in number,
 Indeed very few, <sup>k</sup>and strangers in it.
 13 When they went from one nation to another,
 From <sup>one</sup> kingdom to another
 people,
 14 <sup>l</sup>He permitted no one to do them wrong;
 Yes, <sup>m</sup>He rebuked kings for their sakes,
 15 <sup>n</sup>Saying, “Do not touch My anointed
 ones,
 And do My prophets no harm.”
 16 Moreover <sup>o</sup>He called for a famine in
 the land;
 He destroyed all the <sup>q</sup>provision of bread.
 17 <sup>p</sup>He sent a man before them—
 Joseph—<sup>who</sup> <sup>q</sup>was sold as a slave.
 18 <sup>r</sup>They hurt his feet with fetters,
 19 Until the time that his word came to pass,
<sup>s</sup>The word of the LORD tested him.
 20 <sup>t</sup>The king sent and released him,
 The ruler of the people let him go free.
 21 <sup>u</sup>He made him lord of his house,
 And ruler of all his possessions,

Psalm 105, a psalm of praise (compare Ps. 113), focuses on the positive experiences of Israel in their early history. Contrast Ps. 106, which reviews the same period of history but with an emphasis on the faithlessness of the people. This poem celebrates God’s faithfulness to His covenant with Abraham in the lives of His people. The people needed to remember to be faithful to God, who had never forgotten to be faithful to them. The structure of the poem is: (1) a call for praise to God (vv. 1–6); (2) God’s covenant with Abraham (vv. 7–12); (3) the early experiences of God’s people (vv. 13–15); (4) the experience of Joseph (vv. 16–22); (5) the experience of Israel in Egypt (vv. 23–25); (6) the great deliverance from Egypt (vv. 26–36); (7) the great provisions (vv. 37–41); (8) God’s promise to Abraham (vv. 42–45). 105:5 The psalmist calls to memory what God did for His people in fulfillment of the covenant with Abraham (Gen. 12:1–3; 13:14–17; 15:13–21; 17:7, 8; 26:3, 4; 28:13–15). Remember is the key idea of the psalm: the psalmist wanted to remind God’s people of His goodness.

105:8 The psalmist assured his audience that even if they did not remember, God does remember. He remembers: The words of the original promise to Abraham set out the Lord’s obligation in strong terms (Gen. 12:1–3). These ideas are reinforced by the dramatic encounter with Abraham in Gen. 15. In the story of the binding of Isaac in Gen. 22, the Lord undertakes an irrevocable oath of obligation (Gen. 22:16–18).

105:13–15 When they went: This section is an overview of the history of Israel, probably written after the return of the exiles from Babylon (Ps. 147). This is not a necessary conclusion, but it appears likely. The major theme of the poem is God’s faithfulness to His people in their early history. My anointed ones: The parallel term My prophets suggests that these are the leaders of Israel—the kings and priests.

105:17 The experiences of Joseph occupy a long section of the Book of Genesis (Gen. 37—50). Here Joseph’s story is recounted as poetry and song.

give thanks (Heb. yadah) (105:1; 122:4; 136:1) Strong’s #3034: Surprisingly in Hebrew, there is no verb that means “to thank” in the way the English word thank is used as a common expression of gratitude between people. The meaning of the Hebrew word is “to make public acknowledgment,” and its association with the Hebrew noun yad, meaning “hand,” suggests hands outstretched towards God. The word is used regularly in the Bible to depict public commendation of God’s person and attributes, and the public testimony to what He has done for His people; this is the core meaning of praise. Old Testament believers such as Leah (Gen. 29:35), David (2 Chr. 7:6), the psalmists (7:17; 42:5; 118:21), and the prophets (Is. 25:1; Jer. 33:11) all gave thanks, praising the Lord for His mercy towards them.

22 To <sup>2</sup>bind his princes at his pleasure,
And teach his elders wisdom.

23 <sup>v</sup> Israel also came into Egypt,
And Jacob dwelt <sup>w</sup> in the land of Ham.

24 <sup>x</sup> He increased His people greatly,
And made them stronger than their enemies.

25 <sup>y</sup> He turned their heart to hate His people,
To deal craftily with His servants.

26 <sup>z</sup> He sent Moses His servant,
And Aaron whom He had chosen.

27 They <sup>a</sup> performed His signs among them,
And wonders in the land of Ham.

28 He sent darkness, and made it dark;
And they did not rebel against His word.

29 <sup>b</sup> He turned their waters into blood,
And killed their fish.

30 <sup>c</sup> Their land abounded with frogs,
Even in the chambers of their kings.

31 <sup>d</sup> He spoke, and there came swarms of flies,
And lice in all their territory.

32 <sup>e</sup> He gave them hail for rain,
And flaming fire in their land.

33 <sup>f</sup> He struck their vines also, and their fig trees,
And splintered the trees of their territory.

34 <sup>g</sup> He spoke, and locusts came,
Young locusts without number,

35 And ate up all the vegetation in their land,
And devoured the fruit of their ground.

36 <sup>h</sup> He also <sup>3</sup> destroyed all the firstborn in their land,

37 <sup>j</sup> He also brought them out with silver and gold,

PSALM 106

Joy in Forgiveness of Israel's Sins

Praise <sup>1</sup> the LORD!
<sup>a</sup> Oh, give thanks to the LORD, for He is good!
For His mercy endures forever.

2 Who can <sup>2</sup> utter the mighty acts of the LORD?
Who can declare all His praise?

3 Blessed are those who keep justice,
And <sup>3</sup> he who <sup>b</sup> does righteousness at <sup>c</sup> all times!

105:26 The psalmist recites the history of the plagues to demonstrate the Lord's power. The plagues took place within time and space; they were the action of God with humans in the real world. But the verses of this psalm are not historical prose; they are a poetic version of the events that capture the horror of it. The order of the plagues is not followed strictly, and only eight of the plagues are mentioned (Ex. 7-11).

105:43, 44 with gladness: This poem celebrates the joy of the Lord in His acts of deliverance. gave them the lands: The psalm was probably composed after the exile in Babylon. A celebration of God's gift of land would have been a tremendous source of encouragement to the people who had just returned to the land.

Psalm 106, a wisdom psalm, rehearses much of the same history covered in Ps. 105. The two poems are companions, although their perspectives are different. Psalm 106 emphasizes the rebellion of the people despite the unflinching goodness of God. If Ps. 105 is about remembering, Ps. 106 is about forgetting—specifically God's people forgetting His mercies. This is a psalm of praise (as is Ps. 105), in that it calls for the praise of God despite the short memories of His people. The structure of Ps. 106 is: (1) a call to praise God (v. 1); (2) a report on the status of the present generation (vv. 2-15); (3) a recitation of the works of God on behalf of earlier generations (vv. 16-43); (4) a concluding appeal (vv. 44-47); (5) words of praise to conclude Book IV of the Psalms (v. 48).

106:1-4 Oh, give thanks to the LORD: The words of v. 1 and the general language of praise in v. 2 connect this poem with Ps. 105 as a set (105:1, 2). Possibly both psalms were written by the same poet and were designed to go together, since this psalm builds on the theme of remembering. Remember me seems to be a personal prayer based on the recitation of Israel's history in Ps. 105.

 Oh, visit me with Your salvation,
<sup>5</sup> That I may see the benefit of Your chosen ones,
 That I may rejoice in the gladness of Your nation,
 That I may glory with <sup>4</sup> Your inheritance.
<sup>6</sup> e We have sinned with our fathers,
 We have committed iniquity,
 We have done wickedly.
<sup>7</sup> Our fathers in Egypt did not understand Your wonders;
 They did not remember the multitude of Your mercies,
<sup>f</sup> But rebelled by the sea—the Red Sea.
<sup>8</sup> Nevertheless He saved them for His name's sake,
<sup>9</sup> h He rebuked the Red Sea also, and it dried up;
 So <sup>i</sup> He led them through the depths,
 As through the wilderness.
<sup>10</sup> He <sup>j</sup> saved them from the hand of him who hated them,
 And redeemed them from the hand of the enemy.
<sup>11</sup> k The waters covered their enemies;
 There was not one of them left.
<sup>12</sup> <sup>l</sup> Then they believed His words;
 They sang His praise.
<sup>13</sup> m They soon forgot His works;
 They did not wait for His counsel,
<sup>14</sup> <sup>n</sup> But lusted exceedingly in the wilderness,
 And tested God in the desert.
<sup>15</sup> <sup>o</sup> And He gave them their request,
 But <sup>p</sup> sent leanness into their soul.

 And Aaron the saint of the LORD,
<sup>17</sup> <sup>r</sup> The earth opened up and swallowed Dathan,
 And covered the faction of Abiram.
<sup>18</sup> <sup>s</sup> A fire was kindled in their company;
 The flame burned up the wicked.
<sup>19</sup> <sup>t</sup> They made a calf in Horeb,
 And worshiped the molded image.
<sup>20</sup> Thus <sup>u</sup> they changed their glory
 Into the image of an ox that eats grass.
<sup>21</sup> They forgot God their Savior,
 Who had done great things in Egypt,
<sup>22</sup> Wondrous works in the land of Ham,
 Awesome things by the Red Sea.
<sup>23</sup> <sup>v</sup> Therefore He said that He would destroy them,
 Had not Moses His chosen one
<sup>w</sup> stood before Him in the breach,
 To turn away His wrath, lest He destroy them.
<sup>24</sup> Then they despised <sup>x</sup> the pleasant land;
 They <sup>y</sup> did not believe His word,
<sup>25</sup> <sup>z</sup> But complained in their tents,
 And did not heed the voice of the LORD.
<sup>27</sup> <sup>c</sup> To <sup>6</sup> overthrow their descendants among the <sup>7</sup> nations,
 And to scatter them in the lands.
 And ate sacrifices <sup>8</sup> made to the dead.
<sup>29</sup> Thus they provoked Him to anger with their deeds,
 And the plague broke out among them.

106:6 We have sinned with our fathers: The confession of sin comes without warning. This is a psalm of community penitence. The connection of the present generation to the sins of the fathers is ominous. Would the present generation have to suffer the misfortunes and judgments that God brought upon their fathers?

106:8-12 God knew that His people would be faithless repeatedly, yet He saved them for His name's sake. The crossing of the waters of the Red Sea was not mentioned in Ps. 105 but is included here. Then they believed: The people were often faithless; but they had moments of true faith and performed actions of true praise.

106:13-15 They soon forgot: These words contrast dramatically with the emphasis of Ps. 105, which may indicate that the two psalms were written by the same poet and designed to go together. He gave them their request: Several times God gave the people what they thought they wanted, but with the gift came His judgment on their sin.

106:17 The rebellion of Dathan and Abiram is described in Num. 16.

106:19, 20 The story of the gold calf is recorded in Ex. 32. changed their glory: In exchange for the living God, the people accepted an image of an ox.

106:24 The fact that they despised the pleasant land is regarded as a result of their unbelief and rejection of God's good gift. God's judgment (Num. 13; 14) was fully deserved.

106:28-30 Baal of Peor refers to the incident described in Num. 25, following the encounter of Balaam and Balak at Moab. However, this psalm adds a new detail to the story: eating sacrifices offered to the dead. Phinehas, one of the great champions of God in the OT, is celebrated in this poem. As Abraham's faith was accounted to him for righteousness (Gen. 15:6), so was the action of Phinehas (Num. 25).

30 <sup>e</sup> Then Phinehas stood up and intervened,
 And the plague was stopped.
 31 And that was accounted to him <sup>f</sup> for righteousness
 To all generations forevermore.
 32 <sup>g</sup> They angered Him also at the waters of <sup>h</sup> strife, <sup>h</sup> So that it went ill with Moses on account of them;
 33 <sup>i</sup> Because they rebelled against His Spirit,
 So that he spoke rashly with his lips.
 34 <sup>j</sup> They did not destroy the peoples,
<sup>k</sup> Concerning whom the LORD had commanded them,
 35 <sup>l</sup> But they mingled with the Gentiles
 And learned their works;
 36 <sup>m</sup> They served their idols,
<sup>n</sup> Which became a snare to them.
 37 <sup>o</sup> They even sacrificed their sons
 And their daughters to <sup>p</sup> demons,
 38 And shed innocent blood,
 The blood of their sons and daughters,
 Whom they sacrificed to the idols of Canaan;
 And <sup>q</sup> the land was polluted with blood.
 39 Thus they <sup>r</sup> were <sup>r</sup> defiled by their own works,

Ezra 9:9; Neh. 1:11; Jer. 42:12 47 <sup>c</sup> 1 Chr. 16:35, 36

106:32, 33 Waters of strife is a reference to Meribah (95:8; Num. 20:1-13). Here the sin of Moses is called “speaking rashly.” In Num. 20:12, God specifically identified Moses’ sin as dishonoring Him before the people by not trusting Him. By not following God’s command “to speak” to the rock, Moses had not modeled proper obedience and respect for God’s command. 106:34-39 God’s judgment on Israel in Canaan was a result of the Israelites’ failure to destroy the peoples. If the Canaanites had been driven out of the land, the people of Israel might never have succumbed to the idolatry that marked their existence for hundreds of years. Instead, the Israelites learned to worship the Canaanite idols. They participated in the worst aspects of their religion and played the harlot against God their Redeemer.

106:40 The wrath of the LORD must be viewed in the context of His long-standing mercy and forbearance. There was a long history of rebellion in the face of His gracious provision before God became enraged. Yet even in the midst of His wrath, God’s merciful nature was evident. He remained faithful to His covenant with His people even during their rebellion.

106:47 The words of appeal save us are buttressed with the words O LORD our God. Though the people had been faithless,

Two Sides of the Coin “Think positive” is the message preached from many pulpits today. And for good reason: The message of salvation in Christ is good, positive news in a world that sometimes seems more and more depressing by the day.

However, before we can fully embrace the good news about God’s Son, we must first accept the bad news about our own sin. Psalm 106 is the flip side of Ps. 105. Both recall Israel’s history. But whereas Ps. 105 is an enthusiastic celebration of the Lord’s faithfulness, Ps. 106 focuses on the continuing unfaithfulness of His people. Still, the piece is not without hope: The Lord remains committed to mercy, forgiveness, and doing the mighty wonders necessary to sustain His wayward children (106:44-46). No wonder the psalm concludes with a blessing for the Lord “from everlasting to everlasting” (106:48).

If Ps. 105 stood alone, the forgetful student of history might assume that God swept His people into the Promised Land with no setbacks or opposition. But Ps. 106 puts things in perspective. As we look at that same history, it confronts us with the ugly face of sin and shows why people (and nations) so badly need forgiveness. Thus Ps. 105 and 106 show the two realities involved in salvation: sin and grace. Focusing on either one without the other will lead to distortion.

PSALM 107

Thanksgiving to the LORD for His Great Works of Deliverance

Oh, <sup>a</sup> give thanks to the LORD, for He
is good!

<sup>2</sup> Let the redeemed of the LORD say so, Whom He has redeemed from the hand of the enemy,

<sup>3</sup> And <sup>b</sup> gathered out of the lands,
 From the east and from the west,
 From the north and from the south.

<sup>4</sup> They wandered in <sup>c</sup> the wilderness in a desolate way;
 They found no city to dwell in.

<sup>5</sup> Hungry and thirsty,
 Their soul fainted in them.

<sup>6</sup> <sup>d</sup> Then they cried out to the LORD in
 their trouble,
And He delivered them out of their distresses.

<sup>7</sup> And He led them forth by the <sup>e</sup> right way,
 That they might go to a city for a dwelling place.

<sup>8</sup> <sup>f</sup> Oh, that men would give thanks to the LORD for His goodness,
 And for His wonderful works to the children of men!

 And fills the hungry soul with goodness.

<sup>10</sup> Those who <sup>h</sup> sat in darkness and in
 the shadow of death,

<sup>11</sup> Because they <sup>j</sup> rebelled against the words of God,
 And <sup>3</sup> despised <sup>k</sup> the counsel of the Most High,

<sup>12</sup> Therefore He brought down their heart with labor;
 They fell down, and there was <sup>l</sup> none to help.

<sup>13</sup> Then they cried out to the LORD in
 their trouble,
And He saved them out of their
 distresses.

<sup>14</sup> <sup>m</sup> He brought them out of darkness and
 the shadow of death,
 And broke their chains in pieces.

<sup>15</sup> Oh, that men would give thanks to
 the LORD for His goodness,
 And for His wonderful works to the
 children of men!

<sup>16</sup> For He has <sup>n</sup> broken the gates of bronze,
 And cut the bars of iron in two.

<sup>17</sup> Fools, <sup>o</sup> because of their transgression,
 And because of their iniquities, were afflicted.

<sup>18</sup> <sup>p</sup> Their soul abhorred all manner of food,
 And they <sup>q</sup> drew near to the gates of death.

<sup>19</sup> Then they cried out to the LORD in
 their trouble,
And He saved them out of their
 distresses.

the Lord was still their God. If they would return to Him, they would have a home in His mercy and a promise of eventual triumph.

106:48 Blessed be the LORD God of Israel: This verse is an addition to Ps. 106 that forms the concluding verse of Book IV of the Psalms. It is a beautiful liturgical call for the people together to bless their faithful God.

Psalm 107, a wisdom psalm, shares the form and many of the same themes as Ps. 105 and 106. The fact that this psalm begins Book V of the Psalms, however, suggests that it may not have been written as a companion psalm to the previous two psalms. Psalm 107 reviews God's actions in the experiences of His people, using illustrations not found in the narrative of the Pentateuch. The psalm begins and concludes with appeals to trust in the "loyal love" of God. The structure of the psalm is: (1) a celebration of God's enduring loyal love (vv. 1–3); (2) affirmation that God meets the needs of those who wander in the wilderness (vv. 4–9); (3) assurance that God delivers those in exile or in prison (vv. 10–16); (4) a declaration that God saves the foolish who call to Him (vv. 17–22); (5) God's salvation of those caught in storms (vv. 23–32); (6) God's provision for those in barren lands (vv. 33–38); (7) an affirmation that God multiplies peoples who are diminished (vv. 39–42); (8) a call to rediscover the loyal love of God (v. 43).

107:1 Oh, give thanks to the LORD: The beginning of this psalm links it to the two preceding poems (105:1; 106:1). The key point of this psalm is that God's mercy endures forever. He is always willing to restore those who call on Him.

107:4–9 They wandered in the wilderness: This may refer to the historical experience of Israel in the desert of Sinai. It also can apply to any group of dispersed Hebrew people away from the mercies of God. Oh, that men would give thanks to the LORD: These words are a refrain throughout the psalm, exhorting the reader to thank God for His mercy (vv. 15, 21, 31). He satisfies: This is the point that every generation of believers needs to remember. We will never discover anything more satisfying than the Lord, who will meet all our needs.

107:10 Those who sat in darkness refers to prisoners. Those who know the Lord will call out to Him in their distress, even though it may have been their own rebellion that caused the distress. The mercy of God is demonstrated in His acts of deliverance, acts that call for renewed praise to Him for His goodness.

107:17 Fools is a harsh word that emphasizes moral failure (Prov. 1:7; 15:5). These people deserved the trouble they suffered. Yet they too may call upon the Lord, and He will deliver and restore them.

And <sup>t</sup>delivered them from their destructions.

21 Oh, that men would give thanks to the LORD for His goodness,
And for His wonderful works to the
children of men!

22 <sup>u</sup>Let them sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving,
And <sup>v</sup>declare His works with <sup>4</sup>rejoicing.

23 Those who go down to the sea in ships,
Who do business on great waters,
24 They see the works of the LORD,
And His wonders in the deep.

25 For He commands and <sup>w</sup>raises the stormy wind,
Which lifts up the waves of the sea.

26 They mount up to the heavens,
They go down again to the depths;
<sup>x</sup>Their soul melts because of trouble.

27 They reel to and fro, and stagger like a drunken man,
And <sup>5</sup>are at their wits' end.

28 Then they cry out to the LORD in
their trouble,
And He brings them out of their
distresses.

29 <sup>y</sup>He calms the storm,
So that its waves are still.

30 Then they are glad because they are quiet;
So He guides them to their desired haven.

31 <sup>z</sup>Oh, that men would give thanks to the LORD for His goodness,
And for His wonderful works to the
children of men!

32 Let them exalt Him also <sup>a</sup>in the assembly of the people,
And praise Him in the company of the elders.

33 He <sup>b</sup>turns rivers into a wilderness,
And the watersprings into dry
ground;

34 A <sup>c</sup>fruitful land into <sup>6</sup>barrenness,
For the wickedness of those who dwell in it.

2 <sup>b</sup> Ps. 57:8-11
4 <sup>c</sup> skies

35 <sup>d</sup> He turns a wilderness into pools of water,
And dry land into watersprings.

36 There He makes the hungry dwell,
That they may establish a city for a
dwelling place,

37 And sow fields and plant vineyards,
That they may yield a fruitful harvest.

38 <sup>e</sup> He also blesses them, and they multiply greatly;
And He does not let their cattle
<sup>f</sup>decrease.

39 When they are <sup>g</sup>diminished and brought low
Through oppression, affliction, and sorrow,

40 <sup>h</sup> He pours contempt on princes,
And causes them to wander in the wilderness where there is no way;

41 <sup>i</sup> Yet He sets the poor on high, far from affliction,
And <sup>j</sup>makes their families like a flock.

42 <sup>k</sup> The righteous see it and rejoice,
And all <sup>l</sup>iniquity stops its mouth.

43 <sup>m</sup> Whoever is wise will observe these things,
And they will understand the lovingkindness of the LORD.

PSALM 108

Assurance of God's Victory over Enemies

A Song. A Psalm of David.

O <sup>a</sup>God, my heart is steadfast;
I will sing and give praise,
even with my glory.

2 <sup>b</sup>Awake, lute and harp!
I will awaken the dawn.

3 I will praise You, O LORD, among the
peoples,
And I will sing praises to You among
the nations.

4 For Your mercy is great above the <sup>l</sup>heavens,
And Your truth reaches to the clouds.

107:33-35 He turns rivers into a wilderness: Because of the people's sinfulness, God may bring curses on the land and afflict people with harsh circumstances in order to drive them back into His loving arms (1 Kin. 17:1-7). turns a wilderness into pools of water: When His people cried to Him for assistance, God restored the fertility of the land (Deut. 30:1-10; Ruth 1:6).

107:43 Whoever is wise: There is no wisdom apart from centering in and responding to the love of God. The psalmist exhorts the readers to review God's history of delivering those in trouble, and to praise His great love.

Psalm 108, a psalm of trust, reveals the assurance a person can have when the Lord is his or her God. The psalm is actually a medley of two other psalms of David. Verses 1-5 are from 57:7-11, and vv. 6-13 are from 60:5-12. Since David is the author of both of these psalms, the verses of this psalm may be ascribed to him as well, even if the arrangement may have been the work of an anonymous editor. As this psalm shows, there was considerable reworking of some parts of the Book of Psalms so that the psalms could be used in the varying circumstances of temple worship.

108:2 I will awaken the dawn: The psalmist wanted to sing to the Lord before the sun rose. The prospect of a sleepless night did not deter him from praise and thanksgiving.

- 5 <sup>c</sup> Be exalted, O God, above the heavens,
And Your glory above all the earth;
6 <sup>d</sup> That Your beloved may be delivered, Save with Your right hand, and <sup>2</sup> hear me.
- 7 God has spoken in His holiness:
“I will rejoice;
I will divide Shechem
And measure out the Valley of Succoth.
8 Gilead is Mine; Manasseh is Mine;
Ephraim also is the <sup>3</sup> helmet for My head;
<sup>c</sup> Judah is My lawgiver.
9 Moab is My washpot;
Over Edom I will cast My shoe;
Over Philistia I will triumph.”
- 10 <sup>f</sup> Who will bring me into the strong city?
Who will lead me to Edom?
11 Is it not You, O God, who cast us off?
And You, O God, who did not go out with our armies?
12 Give us help from trouble,
For the help of man is useless.
13 <sup>g</sup> Through God we will do valiantly,
For it is He who shall tread down our enemies.

And in the generation following let their <sup>l</sup> name be blotted out.
- 14 <sup>m</sup> Let the iniquity of his fathers be remembered before the LORD,
And let not the sin of his mother <sup>n</sup> be blotted out.
15 Let them be continually before the LORD,
That He may <sup>o</sup> cut off the memory of them from the earth;
16 Because he did not remember to show mercy,
But persecuted the poor and needy man,
That he might even slay the <sup>p</sup> broken in heart.

108:7 The remarkable fact about the words I will rejoice is that they are spoken by God. The Lord has pleasure in delivering His people and giving them victory: He celebrates His deliverance of them.

Psalm 109, a psalm of lament, pays particular attention to the psalmist's enemies. As a result, this poem may also be regarded as an imprecatory psalm. The structure is: (1) a call for God not to be silent in the midst of the attacks from the psalmist's enemies (vv. 1-5); (2) a call for God to bring judgment on the wicked (vv. 6-20); (3) a call for God to come to the aid of the innocent (vv. 21-29); (4) a determination to praise the Lord (vv. 30, 31).

109:1-3 The call to not keep silent is a regular feature of the lament psalms. fought against me without a cause: The psalmist declares his innocence and insists that his enemies have rewarded his prayers with evil, his love with hatred.

109:6-8 Set a wicked man over him: Here the psalm takes a decidedly negative tone. The description of the wife of the enemy becoming an impoverished widow and the children becoming beggars seems particularly harsh. However, the psalmist directs these strong requests to the Lord; he does not actually take the sword into his own hand. He may feel compelled to vent his anger in words, but the psalmist understands that vengeance itself belongs to the Lord. let another take his office: These words (along with the words of 69:25) are quoted in Acts 1:20 as having been fulfilled in the replacement of Judas Iscariot.

109:14-16 Let the iniquity of his fathers be remembered: Although the psalmist's words may seem extremely hostile, he is simply asking that his enemy's evil actions be judged. The poor are not those without wealth so much as those without protection or defenders.

17 <sup>a</sup>As he loved cursing, so let it come to him;
As he did not delight in blessing, so let it be far from him.

18 As he clothed himself with cursing as with his garment,
So let it <sup>v</sup>enter his body like water,
And like oil into his bones.

19 Let it be to him like the garment which covers him,
And for a belt with which he girds himself continually.

20 Let this be the LORD's reward to my accusers,
And to those who speak evil against my person.

21 But You, O God the Lord,
Deal with me for Your name's sake;
Because Your mercy is good, deliver me.

22 For I am poor and needy,
And my heart is wounded within me.

23 I am gone <sup>s</sup>like a shadow when it lengthens;
I am shaken off like a locust.

24 My <sup>k</sup>knees are weak through fasting,
And my flesh is feeble from lack of fatness.

25 I also have become <sup>a</sup>a reproach to them;
When they look at me, <sup>v</sup>they shake their heads.

26 Help me, O LORD my God!
Oh, save me according to Your mercy,

PSALM 110

Announcement of the Messiah's Reign

A Psalm of David.

The <sup>a</sup>LORD said to my Lord, “Sit at My right hand,
Till I make Your enemies Your <sup>b</sup>footstool.”

2 The LORD shall send the rod of Your strength <sup>c</sup>out of Zion.

<sup>d</sup>Rule in the midst of Your enemies!

3 <sup>e</sup>Rule your people shall be volunteers
In the day of Your power;

109:21 The poet asks for action that would befit God's name, a name associated with righteousness (23:3). His appeal is to God's mercy or “loyal love.” The poet describes himself as a wasted, hollow shell of a man, as in 22:6–8. The intensity of the psalmist's attacks on his enemies can be explained in part by the intensity of his own afflictions, as described in these verses.

109:27 That they may know: Even in the psalmist's intense emotional state, he wants to see the name of God defended, proclaimed, and honored. The Psalms always lead to the praise of God, even from the depths of desperate circumstances.

109:30, 31 The poet makes his vow of praise for the deliverance he knows that the Lord will provide. This vow to praise God is a characteristic of many of the psalms. He shall stand at the right hand of the poor: See 142:4 for a description of God as a shield at one's right hand.

Psalm 110, a royal psalm, is one of the most directly messianic of all the psalms. It should be read in conjunction with other messianic psalms such as Ps. 2; 24. Jesus Himself identified David as the writer of this psalm, as the title also indicates. Jesus' interpretation of this psalm is crucial for unlocking the psalm's meaning (Matt. 22:41–45; Mark 12:35–37; Luke 20:41–44; compare Peter's exposition of the psalm in Acts 2:34–36). The interpretative key to the psalm lies in the identification of “my Lord” in v. 1. Jesus asserted that in v. 1, David was speaking of someone greater than himself. Since no ordinary son of David could be greater than him, “the LORD” of v. 1 refers to the coming Messiah, God's Son. Hence this psalm describes a conversation between God the Father and God the Son (v. 1), in which the Father grants the Son royal and priestly honors. The structure of this brief psalm is as follows: (1) God's command to the Son to sit at His right hand (v. 1); (2) God's command to the Son to rule in the midst of His enemies (vv. 2, 3); (3) God's appointment of the Son to be a priest forever (v. 4); (4) God's description of the battle the Son must wage to win His kingdom (vv. 5–7).

110:1 The LORD is the Hebrew name Yahweh and refers to God the Father. to my Lord: According to Jesus' interpretation of the passage (Matt. 22:41–45; Mark 12:35–37; Luke 20:41–44), this is a reference to the Son of God in heaven in the presence of the Father. David himself confesses the Son to be his Lord, that is, his master or sovereign. at My right hand: This position of high honor beside the Father was given to the Savior upon His resurrection and ascension (Acts 2:33–36; 1 Cor. 15:20–28; Col. 3:1; Heb. 1:13). The Savior's placing His feet on His foes depicts the utter defeat of the enemies of Christ. Paul too describes this complete victory of Jesus (1 Cor. 15:25, 26; Eph. 1:22, 23).

110:2, 3 Rule: The Father commands the Son to take His kingdom back from His enemies. The outcome of this final battle was determined long ago (47:3). Your people: The description in vv. 2, 3 of the people who join the coming King in His great battle accords well with that in Rev. 19:14. From the womb of the morning describes the volunteer army in their robust and fresh vigor; they are ready for a holy battle.

womb of the morning,
You have the dew of Your youth.
<sup>4</sup>The LORD has sworn

and Justice*

Praise <sup>1</sup> the LORD!
<sup>a</sup> I will praise the LORD with my whole heart,
In the assembly of the upright and in the congregation.

110:4 priest: David himself had performed some priestly functions, especially when he led the worship surrounding the arrival of the ark of the covenant (2 Sam 6:12–19). He even exercised some authority over the priests by supervising the Levites (1 Chr. 23:1–6). But here David envisions God appointing the coming Messiah to be a priest (Heb. 7). This was a source of confusion for Jews, as evidenced by the questions the NT Jews had about the Messiah. Some Dead Sea Scrolls give evidence that more than one Messiah was anticipated. According to Scripture, the Messiah would be a descendant of David (Is. 9:7), but this prophecy presents Him as a priest. This might seem to be a contradiction because true priests had to be descendants of Aaron. The solution to this problem is that the Messiah was a priest by divine declaration—not human descent. Melchizedek is first mentioned in Gen. 14:18–20. He was a true priest of the Most High God, unrelated to Abraham and who lived hundreds of years before Aaron. He became a prototype of the Messiah, whose priesthood was not based upon connection with the line of Aaron, but was by divine decree (Heb. 5:5–11; 6:20; 7:1–28).

110:5–7 The Savior King is in battle (vv. 2, 3), and the Father is His shield at His right hand (16:8; 142:4). God the Father assists the Son in the battle. execute kings: The rule of the King will be absolute, dramatic, and forceful. dead bodies: This image is elaborated in Rev. 19:19–21. He shall lift up the head: As the great Victor, the Son will hold His head high in triumph over all His enemies (3:3).

Psalm 111, a wisdom psalm, also serves as a psalm of praise. This psalm and the next are written as acrostics. The structure of Ps. 111 is: (1) a determination to praise God in the midst of the congregation (v. 1); (2) a description of the praise of God for His wonderful works towards His people (vv. 2–9); (3) a concluding word tying the nature of true wisdom to the fear of the Lord (v. 10).

111:2–9 The distinctive message of this section of the psalm is an appreciation of the works of the LORD for the way they

The Messiah in the Psalms For the Christian, perhaps nothing in the Psalms is more compelling than the prophecies that the book contains concerning the Lord Jesus Christ. Psalm 2 speaks of His coming reign; Ps. 22 describes His crucifixion; Ps. 16 speaks of His resurrection; Ps. 110 pictures the Savior at the right hand of the Father in heaven and as a Priest according to the order of Melchizedek. These and other celebrated passages have led many to speak of a category of messianic psalms.

Many psalms are messianic because they point forward to Jesus Christ. Some psalms are directly prophetic (Ps. 2; 110). Others prophetically foreshadow events related to Christ (compare the description of a wedding of a King in Ps. 45 with Heb. 1:8, 9; Rev. 19:6–8). But almost all the psalms point forward in some way to the coming Messiah and His eternal reign of righteousness (1:1–3; 41:9). For example, the words of 6:8, “Depart from me, all you workers of iniquity,” do not seem to have a messianic thrust to them. Yet they are messianic, for Jesus is recorded to have used these very words in His prophetic pronouncement of the final judgment (see Matt. 7:23). This indicates that David’s experience recorded in Ps. 6 was in some manner prophetically linked to the experience of Jesus. In fact, David’s language in the psalms regularly suggests the language of the great King to come—that is, Jesus Christ. Consider the words of 7:8:

The LORD shall judge the peoples;
Judge me, O LORD, according to my righteousness,
And according to my integrity within me.

These words are David’s protest. Suffering without cause, he cried out to God to clear his name. But David, though innocent of the specific charge, was not innocent of every charge. There is only One whose innocence is absolute, whose freedom from sin is complete. Jesus is the One who can be judged on the basis of His righteousness alone. He alone could say these words without flinching, for these words depict His character.

The suffering of the poor (as in Ps. 13), the unjust attacks upon the righteous (as in Ps. 7), the idealization of justice (as in Ps. 15), the portrait of the righteous person (as in Ps. 1), the images of royalty (as in Ps. 45), even the pronouncements of curses on one’s enemies (as in Ps. 6) are all motifs of the Messiah in the Psalms. Jesus is the coming One; many of the psalms are in fact His songs.

And His righteousness endures
forever.
<sup>4</sup> He has made His wonderful works to be remembered;
<sup>e</sup>The LORD is gracious and full of compassion.
<sup>5</sup> He has given food to those who fear
Him;
He will ever be mindful of His covenant.
<sup>6</sup> He has declared to His people the power of His works,
In giving them the <sup>2</sup>heritage of the nations.
<sup>7</sup> The works of His hands are <sup>f</sup>verity<sup>3</sup>
and justice;
All His precepts are sure.
<sup>8</sup> <sup>g</sup>They stand fast forever and ever,
And are <sup>h</sup>done in truth and uprightness.
<sup>9</sup> <sup>i</sup>He has sent redemption to His
people;
He has commanded His covenant
forever:
<sup>j</sup>Holy and awesome is His name.
<sup>10</sup> <sup>k</sup>The fear of the LORD is the beginning of wisdom;
A good understanding have all those

His praise endures forever.

The Majesty and Condescension of God

cause the psalmist to glorify God. Creation calls attention to the Creator (19:1–6; 104:1–35). Gracious and full of compassion may be rephrased as “wonderfully gracious.” Faith understands food and all other provisions as gifts of God. redemption: The psalmists constantly look back to the Exodus, but they also speak of that which was still to come—redemption in the Savior Jesus.

111:10 The fear of the LORD describes an obedient response of wonder and awe before the Most High God.

Psalm 112, a wisdom psalm, is very similar to Ps. 111; together they form a matched pair of acrostic poems. The structure of the poem is: (1) a determination to praise God (v. 1); (2) the praise of God based on His works with His people (vv. 2–9); (3) the defeat of the wicked (v. 10).

112:1 Praise the LORD: Like Ps. 111, this psalm begins with the Hebrew word hallelujah. It then picks up where Ps. 111 left off. Blessed, a word meaning “one who is manifestly happy,” is the same term with which the Book of Psalms begins.

112:2–9 His descendants will be mighty: Compare the blessings of vv. 2, 3 with the strong curses placed on the wicked in 109:6–13 to see the vivid contrast the Psalms make between the destinies of the wicked and the righteous. This black and white distinction is characteristic of the wisdom writers in Israel. The description of the good man in v. 5 is similar to the description in Ps. 15. The horn is a symbol of power. When used of a righteous person, it speaks of prominence and a lasting sense of worth in his or her life.

112:10 Here as in Ps. 1, the contrast between the righteous and the wicked is sharp and uncompromising. The desire of the righteous will prevail (v. 8), but the desire of the wicked will perish.

Psalm 113, a psalm of descriptive praise, begins and concludes with the words “Praise the LORD!” (in Hebrew, hallelujah). This psalm and Ps. 114 are regularly recited at the Passover Seder, a celebratory meal before the serving of the dinner. Ps. 115–118 are recited following the dinner. The structure of Ps. 113 is: (1) an exhortation to praise the name of the Lord (vv. 1–3); (2) a celebration of the transcendent glory and abundant mercy of the Lord (vv. 4–6); (3) illustrations of God’s grace (vv. 7–9).

113:1–3 The name of the LORD refers to the person of God. In biblical times there was a close association between a

The Futility of Idols and the Trustworthiness of God

- Not <sup>a</sup>unto us, O LORD, not unto us,
But to Your name give glory,
Because of Your mercy,
Because of Your truth.
- <sup>2</sup> Why should the <sup>1</sup>Gentiles say,

person's name and his or her identity. The name symbolized the person. Therefore, praising the name of God centers one's thoughts on God's character. The rising of the sun is the east and its going down is the west. The verse does not mean at every time, from dawn to dusk, but in every place, from east to west, the name of God is to be praised.

113:4-6 high above all nations: Unlike the man-made gods of the ancient Middle East, the Lord is not limited to a certain tribe or territory. He is sovereign over all; He is Most High (7:17; 47:2). glory above the heavens: Not only is God supreme over all nations, His glory cannot be contained in the universe. His glory is not only beyond the universe, it is beyond the capacity of human language to fully describe. Perhaps this explains Paul's response to his visit above the heavens (2 Cor. 12:1-4). The rhetorical words who is like the LORD present the incomparability of God (Is. 40:25). Who humbles Himself: God draws near to us.

113:7 The poor might try to eke out their existence by scratching at rubbish heaps outside the city wall, that is, out of the dust. God's care for the poor and needy is a special interest in the Psalms. In this psalm we see a marvelous picture of salvation. While we scavenge about for significance, God's mercy in Jesus makes us citizens of heaven.

113:9 No image better conveys human emotional suffering in biblical times than that of the barren woman. In that time and culture, a barren woman was without significance and without joy. Note that God stoops down to bring her the joy for which she craves—happy children. Salvation is like that. Not only does God fill us with significance, but also with joy. Psalm 114 celebrates Israel's deliverance from Egypt. There is a light, lively spirit to this poem that balances the heavier pacing and stronger theology of the first song of deliverance in Ex. 15. This poem is recited with Ps. 113 at Passover before the dinner is served. This psalm has three movements: (1) a celebration of Israel's redemption from Egypt (vv. 1, 2); (2) a characterization of Israel's enemies (vv. 3-6); (3) a celebration of the Lord who redeemed Israel (vv. 7, 8).

114:1, 2 The newly freed slaves left Egypt still refusing the strange language of their long-term captors. With this slight, Israel affirmed that true values in life were not to be found in the “glories of Egypt,” but in the presence of the Lord. sanctuary: This verse anticipates the NT sense of God living among His people rather than in a shrine (Ezek. 37:26, 27; 2 Cor. 6:16-18).

114:3-6 The sea and the Jordan, the mountains and the hills, all appear as frightened animals before the awesome presence of the Lord, who is not mentioned until v. 7.

114:8 God not only delivered His people from Egypt, He also provided for their needs by bringing water from a rock (Ex. 17; Num. 20). Water was a physical blessing, but also a spiritual symbol of His salvation.

Psalm 115, a community psalm of praise, focuses on the glory of the Lord in the salvation of His people. Several sections of this psalm are used in Ps. 135. This poem has five movements: (1) a glorification of the Lord who alone deserves praise (vv. 1, 2); (2) a comparison of the false gods and the true, living God (vv. 3-8); (3) a litany of trust in the Lord (vv. 9-11); (4) a litany of blessing in the Lord (vv. 12-15); (5) a glorification of the Lord (vv. 16-18).

115:1, 2 Not unto us: People have a natural tendency to divert to themselves glory that belongs to God. This psalm redirects the glory to its proper focus, the Lord Himself. The Gentiles, who do not know God, are prone to insult believers in times of testing when God's activity is not apparent (42:3).

He does whatever He pleases.*

115:3, 4 Like the prophets (Is. 40; Jer. 10), the psalms are derivative toward the idols of the nations. The psalmist denies any reality to the false gods created by people (135:15–18). In contrast to these “gods” that have to be carried about, propped up, and coddled, Israel exalted the God who is in heaven and who does whatever He pleases. He is the only God who can demand our worship.

115:9–11 On the basis of the confession of the reality of God, the psalm commences a litany that encourages trust in God alone. With this litany the choir leader would exhort first Israel, then the house of Aaron, and finally all who fear the LORD to trust God. The refrain proclaims God’s protective care over them: He is their help and their shield.

115:12–15 A second litany focuses on God’s blessing. Not only is He the only God who is trustworthy, He also desires to bless all those who trust in Him.

115:16, 17 The plural heavens may refer to the dwelling place of God (2 Cor. 12:2). The dead: As in 6:5, this is not a theology of death, but of praise. It is the work of the living to praise God. When anyone dies, that voice is lost from the living choir. Praise the LORD: Many of the Passover psalms (Ps. 115–117) conclude with word hallelujah, the Hebrew for “praise the LORD.”

Psalms of the Passover The celebrants of the Passover today either read or sing Ps. 113–118 as part of the haggadah, the liturgical retelling of the story of God’s deliverance of Israel from Egypt. As part of the Passover commemoration of God’s saving acts during the Exodus, these psalms lead the celebrants through a cycle of praise to their God and Savior.

Before the Passover feast, celebrating Jews read or sing Ps. 113 and 114. Both psalms remarkably capture in poetry and song the major ideas of the prose liturgy that is also recited before the Passover meal. That is, they speak of God’s saving works at the time of the Exodus. The first psalm focuses the worshipers on the condescending grace of God. He is the merciful Redeemer who bends from heaven to meet the needs of His people. Then with the singing of Ps. 114, the Jews recall Israel’s deliverance from Egypt—the reason for the Passover celebration and the central act of God’s saving grace. This psalm begins on a light and happy note, the salvation of Israel, and ends on an arresting and somber note, the earth trembling before the Almighty Lord. It is a wonderful companion piece to the songs of Moses and Miriam in Ex. 15.

After the meal, Ps. 115–118; 136 are read or sung. Psalm 115 is similar to a responsive reading, which includes the community’s expression of trust in the Lord (vv. 1–8, 12, 13, 16–18) and the priest’s blessing (vv. 9–11, 14, 15). After declaring their confidence in God, the celebrants praise God for saving them with the words of Ps. 116. Then the two verses of Ps. 117 build on the previous psalm by exhorting all the nations to praise the Lord for His love and faithfulness. Psalm 118 continues the emphasis on God’s faithfulness by celebrating the Lord’s enduring love in a responsive or antiphonal song. The heart of this psalm prophetically describes God’s deliverance of a rejected person; the despised or rejected One is Jesus Himself (v. 22; Is. 53:3; Mark 12:1–12). Finally Ps. 136 concludes the Passover supper. With the recitation of the history of the Lord’s saving works, it continues the previous psalm’s refrain “For His mercy endures forever.” With these songs, the celebrants leave the meal with their hunger satisfied, their hearts filled with thankfulness, and their lips overflowing with praise to the Lord.

Praise the LORD!

Psalm 116, a messianic psalm, is one of the Passover psalms (Ps. 113–118). This psalm most likely was recited by Jesus on the night of His arrest, the night He celebrated Passover with His disciples (Luke 22:15). The structure of the poem is: (1) a declaration of the psalmist’s love for the Lord (vv. 1, 2); (2) an experience on the brink of death (vv. 3, 4); (3) praise for God (vv. 5–7); (4) the psalmist’s deliverance from death (vv. 8–11); (5) a vow of praise to the Lord (vv. 12–14); (6) a reflection on the psalmist’s deliverance (vv. 15–17); (7) payment of his vow of praise to the Lord (vv. 18, 19).

116:1, 2 The wording of I love the LORD in Hebrew suggests deep excitement and emotion. He has inclined His ear to me: As in 40:1, these words speak of the love of God: He bends from His place of glory to meet the needs of His people.

116:3 Pains of death describes the psalmist’s harrowing experience of suffering that brought him seemingly to the brink of death (86:13). These words point prophetically to the Savior’s anguish on the cross (Matt. 27:27–35).

116:6 In this context, simple means innocent, clean, or untarnished. In the Book of Proverbs, the word usually means naive or untested (Prov. 1:22).

116:9, 10 Paul quotes the words I believed, therefore I spoke in 2 Cor. 4:13, 14 as proof of the scriptural hope of the resurrection of the Savior Jesus. The belief in v. 10 is the hope, articulated in v. 9, that the psalmist would walk in the land of the living.

116:12, 13 With the phrase what shall I render, the psalmist vows to praise God in an audible and public manner among the people of faith. At Passover this psalm is read after the meal, immediately following the third cup of wine, called the cup of salvation. How appropriate that this Passover psalm would call to mind God’s cup of salvation the very night that the Savior was betrayed (Matt. 26:27; Luke 22:14–22).

116:16, 17 The psalmist declares that he is God’s servant. As Jesus demonstrated in the Upper Room celebration of the Passover, every true follower of Christ must become a servant. Just as Jesus the Son of God became a servant to His disciples and washed their feet, so every believer needs to serve others (John 13:1–17). The words of the psalm were prophetically fulfilled when they were sung by Jesus on the night before He was crucified. The term thanksgiving basically means “public acknowledgment.”

116:18 I will pay my vows: These words are evidently the concluding words of the psalmist, declaring his intention to make good on his promise to bring his offering of praise to the temple court.

Psalm 117 is a descriptive psalm of praise. It is the shortest psalm and has a simple structure: (1) a call for the nations to praise God (v. 1); (2) an enumeration of reasons for the nations to praise God (v. 2).

117:1 Laud, which means “to speak well of,” nicely parallels the term praise, which means “to be excitedly boastful about.” The Hebrew word for Gentiles means all people except Jews; the word for peoples speaks of smaller groups of people, along ethnic and language lines.

117:2 Merciful kindness, or “loyal love,” refers to God’s faithfulness to His covenant promises to His people. The reason the nations are to give praise to God is found in His relationship with Israel. Praise the LORD: The concluding Hallelujah is an appropriate shout of triumph in God's mercy.

Psalm 118, a psalm of declarative praise, is the climax of the group of psalms called the Passover psalms or Hallel psalms, after the Hebrew word for praise, hallel. Hallelujah comes from this word. These psalms were probably sung by the Savior on the night before His death. The structure of the poem is: (1) a call for the praise of God in the community of the redeemed (vv. 1-4); (2) a report of confidence in the Lord (vv. 5-9); (3) a report of God's deliverance in a time of trouble (vv. 10-14); (4) the praise of the Lord by the righteous (vv. 15-18); (5) the declaration of the psalmist that he would enter the gate of the city to praise the Lord (vv. 19-21); (6) the picture of the rejected cornerstone (vv. 22-24); (7) the shout of “Hosanna” by the people in praise of God (vv. 25, 26); (8) the continuing determination of the psalmist to bring his praise to the Lord (vv. 27, 28); (9) the renewed call for the praise of God (v. 29).

118:2 The liturgical instruction let Israel now say appears from time to time in the Psalms (Ps. 124; 129). This psalm was recited in antiphonal responses. The refrain praises God's mercy: His mercy endures forever.

118:5-8 The idea of distress in these psalms is a picture of constraint, constriction, or lack of room. Even when surrounded by impossible circumstances, the believer can proclaim the LORD is on my side. And if so, what can man do to me? See 56:4, 9; 94:17. If our trust is in the Lord's strength, we do not have to fear the reprisals of our enemies. confidence in princes: Although relying on other people is part of living, our ultimate trust can only be placed in the Lord God. Even powerful rulers are limited by their own mortality (146:3).

118:10, 11 The poet feels that he is alone and that the whole world is arrayed against him. The words I will destroy them are used three times in vv. 10-12; the repetition is for emphasis and finality. Even though the psalmist is completely encircled by his enemies, he knows that God will help him triumph over them.

118:13, 14 You pushed me: Translated literally, the Hebrew phrase means “pushing, you pushed me to make me fall.” But the LORD helped me: Compare Paul's words in 2 Tim. 4:17, 18. Deliverance always comes from God. The Lord is not only our Helper, but also our strength and song. These words are a quotation from the “Song of Moses” (Ex. 15:2); they are also quoted in Is. 12:2. The God who delivered the Israelites by dividing the waters of the Red Sea was ready to deliver the psalmist from trouble.

118:15-17 The voice of rejoicing: The psalmist summons the people of God to join him in praise, just as in the days of the Exodus from Egypt. The slogan of redemption, the right hand of the LORD, is again a quotation from the Song of Moses (Ex. 15:6). It depicts God using His limitless strength to save the psalmist. I shall not die: The poet describes a near-death experience, as in 16:9-11.

118:19-21 Open to me the gates: The poet draws on the wording and imagery of Ps. 24. There is only One who can enter the gates of the Lord of His own accord—the perfect King of glory. gate of the LORD: It is possible that the literal reference is to the gate of Jerusalem, the city of God—or even to a gate of the temple. Jesus declared that He was the gate or door leading to salvation (see John 10:9).

21 I will praise You,
For You have <sup>v</sup>answered me,
And have become my salvation.

118:22 The Savior is pictured as a discarded stone that is then reused as the most significant stone of all, the chief cornerstone. This potent imagery depicts Jesus' rejection by many (Is. 53:3; Mark 8:31; Luke 9:22; 17:25). Jesus elaborated on this prophetic verse with the parable of the vineyard owner. In this parable, the rejection included the murder of the owner's son—a reference to God's only Son (Mark 12:1–12). But even though the Savior was rejected, He was elevated to the right hand of God (Acts 7:56). Only God could do this marvelous and unexpected work. The cross, the symbol of Jesus' rejection, has become the symbol of our salvation (1 Cor. 1:18; Heb. 12:2).

118:25, 26 The words save now in Hebrew are more familiar in the transliteration "hosanna." These words are so significant that if the children had not shouted them aloud (see Matt. 21:16) when Jesus entered Jerusalem, the stones would have had to shout them (Luke 19:40). The words blessed is he who comes are the words the people used to bless Jesus on his triumphal entry into Jerusalem (Matt. 21:9; Mark 11:9; Luke 19:38). As God's only Son, Jesus is the One who comes in the name of the LORD; He is the One who reveals God the Father (John 14:8–11).

118:29 The closing words call the community to end the psalm as it began (v. 1)—with praise for the goodness and love of the Most High God.

Psalm 119, a wisdom psalm, is the premier song about the Torah (Ps. 19). It celebrates the Word of God in a way that is almost exhaustive. This very lengthy poem is an acrostic: For each of the 22 consonants in the Hebrew alphabet, there are eight verses beginning with that letter. Within the psalm, eight words for God's Law occur again and again: law; testimonies; promise; precepts; statutes; commandments; judgments; word. The psalm uses the full meaning of all these words as it elaborates on the application of the Law of God to both daily life and Israel's destiny. The Law is never considered a curse; it is always seen as a gift from God. The cumulative effect of this lengthy celebration of the Word of God is impressive: the psalmist cannot stop praising God for His mercy and goodness in providing His people with instructions for living.

119:1 The Hebrew word torah, translated law, basically means "instruction" or "direction." Broadly it refers to all God's instructions from Moses to the prophets. More strictly it refers to the first five books of the OT. The Law was never designed as a means of salvation; no one could be saved by keeping it. The Lord gave His law to a people with whom He had already graciously established a covenantal relationship (Ex. 20:2). Instead, the Law was the means for the Israelites to learn how to live as God's holy people. The psalmists consistently describe the Law of God as a great blessing, for it was God's gracious revelation to His people for their own good (Deut. 6:1–3). In the Law, God mercifully pointed out the right path to follow. Only mistaken legalistic interpretations of the Law prompted the negative statements concerning it in the NT.

word (Heb. imrah )	39	a general term for God's revelation	"Your word I have hidden in my heart, that I might not sin against You" (v. 11)

119:16 The Hebrew word for statutes refers to something marked out as a boundary, something inscribed or engraved. Hence the word speaks of the permanence of the Law. Indeed God Himself had engraved it in stone (Ex. 24:12). The same word is often translated "decree" (2:7).
119:22 The Hebrew word translated testimonies is derived from the Hebrew verb meaning "to witness" or "to testify." It refers to the Ten Commandments, called the "two tablets of the Testimony" (Ex. 31:18). The commandments were a testimony because they were a witness to the Israelites of their faithfulness or unfaithfulness to the covenant (Deut. 31:26).

119:37 The phrase Your way describes the will of God as a path, distinguished from other paths that lead to destruction (compare Prov. 2:8). God's path leads to life, and His ways are a reflection of His good character.

119:44, 45 at liberty: The psalmist celebrates the freedom that is found in obeying God's instruction. Although many think of laws, instructions, and commandments (v. 47) as limiting and restricting, the Law of God paradoxically frees us. It frees us from sin (v. 133) and gives us the peace that comes from following the Lord's instructions (v. 165).

119:56 precepts: This Hebrew word means "an appointed thing," "something for which one is given charge." The word has the same idea as a commandment (v. 4), for both words assume that the One who commands has the authority "to take charge" or "to appoint."

119:61, 62 the wicked have bound me: The psalmist describes a hostile world in which even rulers persecute him (v. 161). His enemies not only fabricate lies about him (v. 69), but also seek his death (v. 87). Yet in the same breath by which the psalmist voices his concerns, he proclaims his allegiance to the Law. He will not abandon the truth even under pressure.

But I will keep Your precepts with my whole heart.

119:70–72 The psalmist regularly affirms his delight with the Law (vv. 25, 35, 47, 174). This is not the delight of a passive observer, but the delight of a disciple who has staked his life and security on a cause or principle. The psalmist maintains this type of complete commitment to the Law, which he consistently values over material wealth (vv. 14, 127, 162).

119:82 The Hebrew term for word is derived from the verb “to say.” The term is a general word for God’s Law, encompassing everything that the Lord has promised and spoken.

119:89–91 The stability of the universe, or the heaven, mirrors God’s faithfulness, love, and care. But even more important, it reflects the permanence of God’s laws and the fact that the universe serves Him.

119:97–103 The psalmist again and again proclaims his love for the Law (vv. 47, 119, 127, 159, 167). He compares his desire to a thirst for water (v. 131) and a craving for honey (v. 103). Fundamentally, his attraction to the Law is the result of his love for God Himself, his Teacher (vv. 102, 132).

 127<sup>s</sup> Therefore I love Your commandments
 More than gold, yes, than fine gold!
 128 Therefore all Your precepts concerning all things
 I consider to be right;
 I hate every false way.

119:105 Word means the utterance of the Lord God. That God speaks at all to His people indicates His wonderful grace. God's speech to His people is something the psalmists marvel at, for God has not spoken this way to any other nation (147:19, 20). Here the psalmist describes God's Word as light, that is, a guide for living. In v. 130, the light refers to understanding.

119:127 Commandments pertain to anything the Lord God has ordered. The word alludes to God's authority to govern His people. The commandments of God are positive and negative, specific and general, restrictive and permissive. Yet most important, they help a person to identify his or her way in a world that is filled with confusion, sin, and error.

law (Heb. torah) (1:2; 89:30; 119:97; Ex. 24:12) Strong's #8451: Although usually translated law, the noun torah is derived from the verb yarah, meaning "to teach," and should be understood as carrying the idea of "instruction." The term can refer to any set of regulations, such as the instructions of parents (Prov. 1:8) or of a psalmist (78:1). But usually the word refers to God's law. The writer of Ps. 119 expressed great love for God's law, because it led him to wisdom and righteousness (119:97-176). In the NT, Paul also praised God's law because it pointed out his sin and made him realize his desperate need for a Savior (Rom. 7:7).

119:132 As Your custom: Here the psalmist identifies himself as a servant of the Lord and asks to be treated as one of His own. The psalmist's reference to God's mercy in this verse alludes to God's promise to show mercy to those who love Him (Ex. 20:6).

119:149 To revive means "to cause to live." With this word the psalmist begs God to transform his life, to breathe new life back into his soul. The psalmist does not want his obedience to be mechanical; he asks for a renewed spirit. The basis of his plea is God's covenantal love and His just nature.

119:160 The word judgments is derived from the Hebrew word meaning "to judge." God has given decisions that are like the calls of a referee or the legal rulings of a judge; He has rendered judgments on what is acceptable behavior and what actions will receive His blessing. God is the Judge over all, and His decisions establish true justice.

God the Help of Those Who Seek Him

A Song of Ascents.

I will lift up my eyes to the hills—
From whence comes my help?
2<sup>b</sup> My help comes from the LORD,
Who made heaven and earth.
3<sup>c</sup> He will not allow your foot to <sup>1</sup>be moved;

119:169–176 come before: This term usually refers to the presentation of an offering before God. The only offering the psalmist can present here is his cry for help. Although he has chosen the Law of God to live by, he has not always kept it. Therefore, the psalmist ends his lengthy poem with a confession and a plea for salvation.

Psalm 120 is the first of a group of psalms called the Songs of Ascent (Ps. 120—134). This group of hymns was likely used by pilgrims making their way to Jerusalem to worship the Lord during the three annual national feasts—Passover, Pentecost, and Tabernacles (Lev. 23). As pilgrim families made the arduous journey to the holy city for festive worship, they would use these psalms as encouragement along the way. It is also possible that once they arrived in Jerusalem, they would sing these songs anew as they drew near the temple, reenacting their journey and affirming God's blessing on their path. Ps. 120, a psalm of lament, focuses on the lies of the wicked that affect the righteous. The structure of the psalm is: (1) a report of deliverance and a prayer for help (vv. 1, 2); (2) a taunt of the adversary who attacks with lies (vv. 3, 4); (3) a lament concerning life in a hostile environment (vv. 5–7).

120:2, 3 lying lips: In the context of these psalms, the lying lips belong to those who assault the believers for their trust in the Lord (40:4). You false tongue: As in Ps. 12, the poet is distraught at the seeming power of the words of the wicked.

120:5–7 This section of the psalm reveals the intensity of the psalmist's distress—woe is me. His environment was hostile even to his faith. Meshech and Kedar are random examples of the pagan peoples among whom the psalmist had to live. I am for peace: This may have set the stage for believers to make their pilgrimage to Jerusalem. In Zion they would be among the people of God. In Jerusalem they would hear the words of truth. In the temple they could pray for the peace of God (122:6; 125:5; 128:6).

Psalm 121, a psalm of trust (Ps. 23), is the second song of ascent. Ps. 120 sets the stage for the Israelites' journey to the Holy City; this poem is a song "for the road." The psalm may also have been designed for antiphonal response, like Ps. 118; 124; 129; 134; 135; 136. The structure of the poem is: (1) an affirmation that help is from God (vv. 1, 2); (2) a word of praise to God, who does not slumber (vv. 3, 4); (3) a word of praise to God who keeps His people (vv. 5, 6); (4) an affirmation that God will protect His people during their journeys (vv. 7, 8).

121:1, 2 The words lift up my eyes dramatically picture a traveler approaching the city of Jerusalem. On first sight of the city walls and the temple, the singer asks rhetorically where <sup>d</sup>He who keeps you will not slumber.

 4 Behold, He who keeps Israel
 Shall neither slumber nor sleep.
 5 The LORD is your <sup>2</sup>keeper;
 The LORD is <sup>e</sup>your shade <sup>f</sup>at your

 Nor the moon by night.

 6 <sup>f</sup>Pray for the peace of Jerusalem:
 “May they prosper who love you.
 7 Peace be within your walls,
 Prosperity within your palaces.”
 8 For the sake of my brethren and companions,
 I will now say, “Peace be within help is to be found. The answer is the strong affirmation: My help comes from the LORD.

121:3–6 He will not allow: It is possible that several sections of this brief poem were recited back and forth by small groups of pilgrims; there is an antiphonal quality to these verses (also Ps. 124). will not slumber: On the long journey to Jerusalem the people would have to stop and sleep, yet they would still be cared for by God. The language of confidence in this psalm indicates that it is about the psalmist's trust in the living Lord, his Protector. The phrase nor the moon indicates that at no time is God “off duty.” The Keeper of Israel is always present.

121:8 and even forevermore: In what appears to be an antiphonal response to the words of vv. 6, 7, the poem concludes with a renewed affirmation of God's ongoing protection in this life and the life to come (23:6).

Psalm 122, a psalm of Zion, is the third song of ascent. This poem describes the joy of the pilgrim on arriving at Jerusalem to worship God. This is one of four songs of ascent attributed to David (also Ps. 124; 131; 133). The structure of the poem is as follows: (1) a description of the pilgrim's joy in coming to Jerusalem (vv. 1, 2); (2) a description of the beauty of Jerusalem (vv. 3–5); (3) a prayer for the peace of Jerusalem (vv. 6–9).

122:1 I was glad: The Hebrew verb for laughter and delight is used to describe the attitude of the pilgrim who arrives in Jerusalem to worship the Lord. The joy of the pilgrim in this psalm contrasts strongly with the sorrow of those who were not able to come to worship God, because of personal (42:1–3) or national exile (137:1–3).

122:3 The visitor is overwhelmed not just by the buildings of Jerusalem, but by the fact that the city was the place for the worship of God. Where the tribes go up: This refers to the three annual feasts of ancient Israel (Lev. 23), as well as to any time that an individual or family needed to worship the Lord in the Holy City.

122:4 The Testimony of Israel may refer to the ark of the covenant (Ex. 16:34). To give thanks means “to make a public declaration” or “to give public acknowledgment” (105:1). The people of God would praise God for His goodness in their own lives. Their vocal praises would accompany their offerings of animals, grain, wine, and oil.

122:5 thrones: Jerusalem was not only the central place for worship, it was also the site where civil judgments and decisions were made. Religious and civil issues were closely intertwined in the Law of God.

122:6–9 peace of Jerusalem: In the process of praying for the good of the city, the people came under God's blessing. It is God's desire for the city to have peace (125:5; 128:6). True peace will only come when the Prince of Peace returns to establish His rule (Ps. 98). Because of the house: The determination

The LORD the Strength of His People

A Song of Ascents.

Those who trust in the LORD
Are like Mount Zion,

of the pilgrim to seek the good of Jerusalem was based on the fact that the site was the central location for the worship of the Lord and the place God had chosen for Himself (1 Kin. 11:36).

Psalm 123, an individual psalm of lament, is the fourth song of ascent. This brief poem has two sections, as follows: (1) an affirmation that the people’s eyes are fixed on the Lord (vv. 1, 2); (2) a petition for the Lord to direct His attention to His people (vv. 3, 4).

123:1, 2 who dwell in the heavens: The temple was considered God’s dwelling place (132:5, 13, 14); yet the Israelites also knew that the One who made the heavens did not live in buildings made by hands (113:4–6). As the eyes: True servants fix their eyes on their masters; similarly, our eyes should be fixed on God. The more we look to the Lord, the more we become like Him (2 Cor. 3:18). Not being distracted by the other things of this life causes us to win in the race of life (Heb. 12:1, 2).

123:3 The people who prayed for God’s mercy had to endure the contempt of their neighbors. Perhaps they were being mocked for their resolute faith in God at a time when it seemed that God was not answering their prayers.

Psalm 124, a psalm of declarative praise, is one of four songs of ascent attributed to David (see also Ps. 122; 131; 133). This psalm was likely designed to be read aloud as an antiphonal response (see also 118:1–4; compare Ps. 121; 129; 134; 135; 136). The structure of the poem is: (1) a call for the people to con-less God’s deliverance (vv. 1–5); (2) a blessing on the Lord for His deliverance (vv. 6–8).

124:1, 2 The LORD who was on our side amplifies the meaning of the divine name of God (Ex. 3:14, 15). The wording of the Hebrew text is even more dramatic: “The LORD was for us.” The priests may have spoken the words let Israel now say as encouragement for the people to rehearse aloud their national experience (Ps. 129).

124:3 swallowed us alive: The poet describes his enemies first as ravenous beasts, then as raging waters; but God has defeated them all. As in other psalms, the reference to raging waters has a double source—the story of creation and the Canaanite myths concerning evil gods who were believed to be water deities (Ps. 93).

124:6, 7 Blessed be the LORD: Blessing God means identifying Him as the source of our blessing (103:2). as prey: The animal imagery of the enemies (v. 3) continues in this praise of God. The image of a helpless bird that has escaped a trap is common in the Psalms (111:1–3).

124:8 The words who made heaven and earth are similar to the words in 121:2; 134:3. These liturgical phrases were recited by the worshipping community during their journey to Jerusalem and when they arrived for corporate worship.

Psalm 125, a psalm of trust (Ps. 23), is also a song of Zion. This anonymous poem is the sixth song of ascent. The structure of the poem is as follows: (1) a celebration of God’s protection mercy (Heb. chanan) (102:14; 123:2; Ex. 33:19; Is. 26:10) Strong’s #2603: This term signifies an act of graciousness to someone in need, from a person of superior rank or circumstance. The writers of wisdom literature frequently commend showing mercy to the needy (112:5; Prov. 14:21, 31; 28:8). But most of the references to mercy in the Bible have to do with God as the direct agent of mercy. The Scripture records God’s mercy being sought on numerous occasions, often using the phrase familiar from the psalms of lament, “Have mercy on me” (4:1; 6:2; 25:16; 51:1; 86:16). God shows His graciousness in many ways, including the prevention of harm, the bestowal of family and possessions, and the communication of divine law (119:29, 124; Gen. 33:5, 11; 2 Kin. 13:23).

Which cannot be moved, but abides forever.

- <sup>2</sup> As the mountains surround Jerusalem,
So the LORD surrounds His people
From this time forth and forever.
- <sup>3</sup> For <sup>a</sup>the scepter of wickedness shall not rest
On the land allotted to the righteous,
Lest the righteous reach out their hands to iniquity.
- <sup>4</sup> Do good, O LORD, to those who are good,
And to those who are upright in their hearts.
- <sup>5</sup> As for such as turn aside to their <sup>b</sup>crooked ways,
The LORD shall lead them away
With the workers of iniquity.

<sup>c</sup>Peace be upon Israel!

PSALM 127

Laboring and Prospering with the LORD

A Song of Ascents. Of Solomon.

Unless the LORD builds the house,
They labor in vain who build it;
Unless <sup>a</sup>the LORD guards the city,
The watchman stays awake in vain.
<sup>2</sup> It is vain for you to rise up early,
To sit up late,

of the righteous (vv. 1, 2); (2) a declaration that the power of the wicked cannot endure (v. 3); (3) a prayer for the upright (v. 4); (4) a curse on the wicked and a call for the peace of Israel (v. 5).

125:1, 2 As in the other songs of Zion (Ps. 48), there is a deep belief in the invincibility of the city of Jerusalem because of the Lord's choice of Mount Zion (1 Kin. 11:36). Likewise, the psalmist proclaims that those who trust in the Lord will endure. the mountains surround Jerusalem: Jerusalem is built on one of seven mountain peaks in the region. The mountains provide some protection for the city, since any invading army would have to march through arduous and dangerous mountain paths. Yet the city's true protection comes from the Lord.

125:3 The scepter of wickedness is a symbol of the power of evil. This verse recalls the Lord's promise that the gates of hell will not prevail against His church (Matt. 16:18). In this way, God in His mercy protects His people from participation in evil.

125:5 The phrase workers of iniquity is often found in the wisdom psalms (14:4); the Lord will oppose those who do evil.

Peace: The psalm concludes with a prayer for God's peace to rest on His people. The same prayer appears at the close of Ps. 128; it may be a shortened version of the priestly benediction recorded in Num. 6:24, 25.

Psalm 126, a song of Zion, is the seventh song of ascent. The distinctive element of this poem is that it comes from the time of the restoration of Jerusalem following the Babylonian captivity (compare Ps. 137). The mood of this psalm is one of sweet joy following the sorrows of long separation. The structure of the poem is: (1) a description of the return from captivity (vv. 1–3); (2) a prayer for God to complete the process of return (v. 4); (3) a comparison of the return from captivity to a long-delayed harvest (vv. 5, 6).

126:1 The return from Babylonian captivity had been anticipated for so long that it seemed like a dream to the returnees. Some of the people had waited an entire lifetime. The joy of the people could not be contained; their praise to God was unstoppable. The mood of this section is one of laughter and joy, of rejoicing in God's salvation (Is. 12).

126:4 The people who returned were a small percentage of those who had been exiled. Bring back is the beginning of the prayer that God would complete the restoration of His people to their land. Ultimately, this is a prayer for the coming of Jesus, who will complete God's work among His people.

126:5 The people of Judah had gone to Babylon in tears. Yet their sorrow reaped tremendous rewards; the Lord came to the rescue of His humbled people (34:18; Is. 66:2; Matt. 5:4). Upon their return to Jerusalem and Judah, they were reaping a harvest of rejoicing.

Psalm 127, a wisdom psalm and the eighth song of ascent, is one of only two psalms attributed to Solomon (the other is Ps. 72). The structure of the poem is: (1) an exhortation about the vanity of an endeavor in which the Lord is not active (vv. 1, 2); (2) a celebration of the value of an endeavor in which the Lord is glorified (vv. 3–5).

127:1, 2 With the words unless the LORD builds, the psalmist asserts that life lived apart from God is not worth living, a view that this psalm shares with the Book of Ecclesiastes. Even building a house is useless if the Lord is not in the process. The phrase the bread of sorrows captures the essence of those removed from a sense of the Lord in their lives. The food that should give them strength for life and a zest for living only maintains them in their miserable state.

To <sup>b</sup>eat the bread of sorrows;
For so He gives His beloved sleep.

- 3 Behold, <sup>c</sup>children are a heritage from the LORD,
<sup>d</sup>The fruit of the womb is a <sup>e</sup>reward.
4 Like arrows in the hand of a warrior,
So are the children of one's youth.

PSALM 129

Song of Victory over Zion's Enemies

A Song of Ascents.

“Many a time they have <sup>a</sup>afflicted <sup>i</sup>me from <sup>b</sup>my youth,”

- <sup>c</sup>Let Israel now say—
2 <sup>c</sup>“Many a time they have afflicted me from my youth;
Yet they have not prevailed against me.
3 The plowers plowed on my back;
They made their furrows long.”
4 The LORD is righteous;

127:3-5 children are a heritage: Children are God's gifts (128:3). Like arrows: In ancient times, having many children was regarded as a symbol of strength. This was particularly true in an agricultural economy, since the extra hands of children increased the productivity of the farmer. A full quiver was a mark of God's blessing. The blessing of a home in ancient times gave a person a measure of pride in the community. The gate was the place where the elders of the city met and where citizens would convene (Ruth 4:1-12).

Psalm 128, a wisdom psalm, is also a psalm of Zion. Like Ps. 127, this poem addresses God's blessings in the home and family. The feasts of ancient Israel were family affairs. As families made their way to the holy city for the annual festivals, they would encounter other families and mutually celebrate the goodness of God in their lives. Psalm 128 is the ninth song of ascent. The structure of the poem is as follows: (1) a blessing on the righteous (v. 1); (2) a description of the blessing (vv. 2-4); (3) a prayer for the blessing (v. 5); (3) a blessing on the community (v. 6).

128:1 The word blessed describes the happiness of those who trust in the Lord and do His will (127:5). who fears the LORD: The fear of God is an attitude of respect, a response of reverence and wonder. It is the only appropriate response to our Creator and Redeemer.

128:2, 3 labor of your hands: There is a reward in work and a satisfaction in labor that is a blessing of God (Eccl. 3:9-13). Your wife: This psalm focuses on the godly man in ancient Israel. Bearing children was a mark of God's blessing on his wife. His children were regarded as precious provisions, like olive plants, in his home (127:3-5). In that time more children meant more people who could work in the fields and increase the general welfare of the family.

128:5, 6 The LORD bless you: This is the psalmist's prayer for the man who desires for his own family the blessings described in the psalm. children's children: This priestly prayer of blessing includes a desire for longevity and for happy posterity in the land. Only when God grants His peace on His people will the ideal conditions of family life be realized. Therefore, whoever prays for the blessing of God on a family also prays for the blessing of God's peace on the community as a whole (122:6-9; 125:5).

Psalm 129, a psalm of trust (Ps. 23), has its roots in the psalms of lament, for those psalms contain a section proclaiming trust in the Lord. The psalm has an antiphonal quality, calling for response and counter-response (compare 118:1-4; 124:1-5). This is the tenth song of ascent. Its structure is as follows: (1) a rehearsal of the afflictions of Israel (vv. 1-3); (2) an affirmation of the victory of God (v. 4); (3) a condemnation of the wicked who have afflicted Israel (vv. 5-8).

129:1-4 Many a time: The psalm begins with a liturgy of suffering, as the people of God acknowledge that throughout their history in the land they have been under constant assault by various peoples. With the words let Israel now say, the priest calls for the people to rehearse their history aloud (124:1). The plowers plowed: This imagery of the brutal treatment they suffered was especially vivid in an agrarian setting. Even in the midst of such cruel circumstances, the Lord was righteous. He remained faithful to His promises to His people and He fought for them.

happy (Heb. 'esher) (84:12; 127:5; 144:15; Eccl. 10:17) Strong's #835: This Hebrew word can also mean "blessed" or "fortunate." As in 1:1, it is often used in congratulatory exclamation. The characteristic biblical beatitude concerns a person who trusts in the Lord and lives by His revelation (1:1, 2; 34:8; Prov. 16:20). The word is often associated with those who have found wisdom or express benevolence; thus over half of its occurrences are in Psalms, with several more in Proverbs (41:1; Prov. 3:13, 18; 14:21). Jesus begins the Sermon on the Mount with a list of beatitudes that conform to the OT pattern (see Matt. 5:3-12).

He has cut in pieces the cords of the wicked.

- <sup>5</sup> Let all those who hate Zion
Be put to shame and turned back.
<sup>6</sup> Let them be as the <sup>d</sup>grass on the housetops,
Which withers before it grows up,
<sup>7</sup> With which the reaper does not fill his hand,
Nor he who binds sheaves, his <sup>2</sup>arms.
<sup>8</sup> Neither let those who pass by them say,
“The blessing of the LORD be upon
you;
We bless you in the name of the
LORD!”

PSALM 131

Simple Trust in the LORD

A Song of Ascents. Of David.

- LORD, my heart is not <sup>1</sup>haughty,
Nor my eyes <sup>2</sup>lofty.
<sup>a</sup> Neither do I <sup>3</sup>concern myself with great matters,
Nor with things too <sup>4</sup>profound for
me.
<sup>2</sup> Surely I have calmed and quieted my soul,
<sup>b</sup> Like a weaned child with his mother;
Like a weaned child is my soul
within me.
From this time forth and forever.

129:5, 6 those who hate Zion: This begins the imprecation or cursing of the foes of Jerusalem. Shame is the intended end of the wicked (35:26). This is not just a desire for their embarrassment but for complete humiliation before the Lord. as the grass on the housetops: Sod was sometimes used on the roofs of houses. After a spring rain, there might be grass growing on the housetop. But this was not grass that flourished; it soon withered under the summer heat. The curse here is strong: May the enemies wither as quickly as rooftop grass.

Psalm 130 is a penitential psalm. Its placement following a psalm of imprecation (Ps. 129) is fitting. After all, a person might take such joy in the destruction of the wicked that he or she no longer would consider his or her own heart before the Lord. This psalm is the eleventh song of ascent. The structure is as follows: (1) a call for God's mercy (vv. 1, 2); (2) a recognition of God's forgiveness (vv. 3, 4); (3) an expectation of God's forgiveness (v. 5, 6); (4) a call for God's mercy on all (vv. 7, 8).

130:1 The poet shouts aloud to God from the depths of his own despair (Ps. 32; 51). In this case it was not enemies who were plowing his back (129:3), but his own sense of sin that was eating at the depths of his soul.

130:3, 4 God does not mark or keep count of our sins. Through the sacrificial system and ultimately in the provision of Jesus Christ, God dismissed His people's sins altogether (Mic. 7:19); He does not keep track—as an accountant would—of their sins. The grace of God in His provision for forgiveness is not to be taken lightly (Rom. 6:1, 2). The truly forgiven sinner realizes the magnitude of God's grace, remains grateful for Jesus' sacrifice for sins, and lives in the fear or awe of God (Ps. 128).

130:5, 6 I wait . . . I do hope: In these two verses, the poet repeats five times that his hope is in the Lord. This was a confident expectation in the God who is always faithful to His promises.

130:7, 8 The psalm moves from the experience of an individual to that of the community. After proclaiming his own hope, the psalmist exhorts the community of Israel to hope in the LORD. God is not only capable of delivering the individual, He also delivers the community of believers who hope in Him (131:3). He shall redeem: In the OT, the redemption of God's people refers to God's deliverance of His people from Egypt and from all other national foes, as well as to God's forgiveness of sins through the sacrificial system. The final redemption of all God's people came only in the death and resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ (Gal. 3:13).

Psalm 131, a psalm of trust, is one of four songs of ascent attributed to David (also Ps. 122; 124; 133). The structure of the poem is as follows: (1) a statement of humility (v. 1); (2) a portrait of trust (v. 2); (3) a call for hope (v. 3).

131:1 my heart is not haughty: David presents himself with genuine humility, a delicate balance between self-abasement and arrogant pride. From the life of David we know that he was not always able to keep this balance. But it was his desire, and at times—by God's grace—a reality in his life.

131:2, 3 Like a weaned child: The image is that of a child who is no longer unsettled and discontented, but one who is at peace and trusting in his mother, who is there to comfort and to meet his needs. The words hope in the LORD recall 130:7.

Psalm 132, a royal psalm, is the thirteenth song of ascent. Like Ps. 89, this poem reflects in poetry God’s covenant with David (2 Sam. 7), in which He promised David a royal house—a promise that would be fulfilled in the coming of the great Savior King. It is possible that this psalm was written late in Israel’s history, after the exile in Babylon. This would explain the people’s call for God to remember His covenant with David. With no king on the royal throne of David, the people had great reason to call upon God to remember His promise. Psalm 132 is the longest of the songs of ascent and is sometimes classified as a messianic psalm. Its structure is as follows: (1) a call for God to remember His covenant with David (vv. 1–5); (2) the expectation of the fulfillment of the promise (vv. 6–9); (3) a prayer for God’s kingdom to come (v. 10); (4) a recitation of the promise yet to be fulfilled (vv. 11, 12); (5) an elaboration of God’s covenant with David (vv. 13–18).

132:1 If this psalm was written during the postexilic period, the words remember David have a significant meaning. During the years between the return of the people to Jerusalem and the birth of Jesus, there would have been a growing desire on the part of godly people for the Lord to restore David’s kingdom in fulfillment of the Lord’s promise.

132:2 The Mighty One of Jacob is a rare designation for God. Identical or similar expressions are found elsewhere in the Bible only in Gen. 49:24 and the Book of Isaiah (Is. 1:24; 49:26; 60:16). a place: The poet recalls David’s desire to build a temple for the Lord (2 Sam. 7:1, 2).

132:6–8 Ephrathah refers to the region of Bethlehem (Ruth 1:2). The temple in Jerusalem was regarded as the footstool of God, whose dwelling is in heaven (99:5). In the context of this psalm, the call arise, O LORD is a prayer for God to fulfill His covenant promise to place a great king on David’s throne (v. 1).

132:10 Do not turn away: Based on God’s promise to David (2 Sam. 7), the psalmist calls for God to fulfill His word to send His Anointed. This is a clarion call for the coming of the Savior King, Jesus.

132:11, 12 The words the LORD has sworn are a poetic recasting of the central words of the Davidic covenant in 2 Sam. 7:8–16 (see also 89:3, 4, 26–29). The ultimate fulfillment of these words is in Jesus Christ, the Son of David (Luke 1:32, 33; Acts 2:30). your sons: The promise to David was specific in terms of God’s intended blessings on faithful sons, His chastening of wayward sons, and His ultimate fulfillment in the anticipated coming Son.

132:13 God’s choice of the Davidic line was also a choice of Zion as His dwelling place.

132:17 This verse celebrates God’s covenant to send His Anointed One (v. 10). The words horn and lamp speak of the Messiah’s authority and righteousness (Is. 11:1–5). His crown:

shout for joy (Heb. ranan) (51:14; 132:9; Is. 35:6) Strong’s #7442: This Hebrew word means “to utter loudly,” with the vast majority of references being to shouts of joy or hearty, joyful singing (35:27; 59:16; 71:23). Twice the term is used of the summons of wisdom and once for the boisterous clamoring of a drunk (78:65; Prov. 1:20; 8:3). About half of its occurrences are in Psalms and about one-fourth are in Isaiah. This word is associated with many terms for joy in the OT (32:11; Is. 49:13; Zech. 2:10). It is used to summon the heavens, the Gentiles, and most frequently the people of God—collectively and individually—to rejoice in God’s blessings (33:11; Deut. 32:43; Is. 44:23; Zech. 2:10). Our loud rejoicing in the Lord is based on His greatness and His goodness to us (5:11; 145:7; Lev. 9:24; Is. 12:6).

Blessed Unity of the People of God

A Song of Ascents. Of David.

Behold, how good and how pleasant
it is
For <sup>4</sup>brethren to dwell together in unity!

2 It is like the precious oil upon the head,
Running down on the beard,
The beard of Aaron,
Running down on the edge of his garments.

3 It is like the dew of <sup>2</sup>Hermon, Descending upon the mountains of
Zion;
For <sup>1</sup>there the LORD commanded the blessing—
Life forevermore.

Praising the LORD in His House at Night

A Song of Ascents.

Behold, bless the LORD,
All you servants of the LORD,

Who by night stand in the house of
the LORD!

2 <sup>4</sup>Lift up your hands in the sanctuary,
And bless the LORD.

3 The LORD who made heaven and
earth
Bless you from Zion!

PSALM 135

Praise to God in Creation and Redemption

Praise the LORD!

Praise the name of the LORD;
<sup>2</sup>Praise Him, O you servants of the
LORD!

2 <sup>2</sup>You who stand in the house of the
LORD,
In <sup>1</sup>the courts of the house of our God,

3 Praise the LORD, for <sup>2</sup>the LORD is good;
Sing praises to His name, <sup>1</sup>for it is pleasant.

4 For <sup>1</sup>the LORD has chosen Jacob for Himself,
Israel for His <sup>1</sup>special treasure.

5 For I know that <sup>2</sup>the LORD is great,
And our Lord is above all gods.

The Messiah's kingdom will be established forever (Is. 9:7); His enemies will not withstand Him (Ps. 2).

Psalm 133 is one of four songs of ascent attributed to David (see Ps. 122; 124; 131). With its emphasis on the unity of the believers, this poem anticipates Jesus' prayer in John 17. The structure of the psalm is as follows: (1) a portrait of the beauty of unity (v. 1); (2) the blessing of unity (vv. 2, 3).

133:1, 2 Good and . . . pleasant may be rephrased as “great delight” or “good pleasure.” There is a sense of serene wonder in these words describing the unity of God's people. like the precious oil: Priests were anointed with a fragrant oil as a symbol of God's blessing on their holy office (Ex. 30:22–33). This psalm pictures the oil in such large quantity that it flows from the head to the beard to the garment of Aaron, who represented the priests of God. When God's people live together in unity, they experience God's blessing.

133:3 like the dew of Hermon: This high mountain to the north of Israel received such large amounts of water that it seemed to be a source of moisture for the lands below. Similarly, the blessings of God flow to His people. the blessing: The intent of God is for the good of His people in this life and in the life to come. The people of Israel rarely achieved the level of unity—or the level of blessing—that the poem describes. Ultimately, this is a portrait of the kingdom of God. One day there will be the spiritual unity of God's people that this poem describes.

Psalm 134 concludes the songs of ascent. This psalm was likely read as a responsive poem of praise (see also Ps. 118; 121; 124; 129; 135; 136). The structure of this brief poem is as follows: (1) the blessing of the priests by the people (vv. 1, 2); (2) the blessing of the people by the priests (v. 3).

134:1, 2 To bless the LORD is to identify Him as the source of all blessing (103:2). In this context, servants of the LORD refers to the priests of Israel who conducted their ministry at all hours in the temple (135:1, 2). The idea behind this blessing was that the people who had come to worship at the temple were getting ready to go home. They had come for a great festival but had to return to their regular work and routine. However, the priests remained at the holy temple. It was their continuing worship of the Lord that allowed God's blessing to continue on the nation as a whole. Lift up your hands: One of the standard postures for prayer in biblical times was to stand with hands stretched out toward heaven (1 Tim. 2:8).

134:3 Bless you from Zion may have been the grateful response of the priests to the people, their own blessing on the people from the holy temple.

Psalm 135, a psalm of descriptive praise that recalls ideas and motifs from several earlier psalms, may have been composed after the exile in Babylon. The psalm presents God's saving works during the Exodus and contains a scathing attack on idolatry, taken from Ps. 115. The beginning and ending of this poem are written in the pattern of liturgical praise. The structure is as follows: (1) a call for the priests to bless the name of the Lord (vv. 1–4); (2) praise for the Lord who alone is the great and active God (vv. 5–7); (3) praise for the Lord's saving deeds (vv. 8–12); (4) praise for the Lord's saving name (vv. 13, 14); (5) contempt for the ineffective and powerless gods of the nations (vv. 15–18); (6) a call for the people to bless the name of the Lord (vv. 19–21).

135:1–4 you servants of the LORD: This psalm begins with a call for the priests of Israel to praise God in the temple (134:1, 2). The endearing term special treasure is used only here in the Psalms (see also Ex. 19:5; Deut. 7:6; 14:2).

Thanksgiving to God for His Enduring Mercy

- Oh, <sup>a</sup> give thanks to the LORD, for He
is good!
- <sup>b</sup> For His mercy endures forever.
- <sup>2</sup> Oh, give thanks to <sup>c</sup> the God of gods!
For His mercy endures forever.
- <sup>3</sup> Oh, give thanks to the Lord of lords!
For His mercy endures forever:
- <sup>4</sup> To Him <sup>d</sup> who alone does great wonders,
For His mercy endures forever;
- <sup>5</sup> <sup>e</sup> To Him who by wisdom made the heavens,
For His mercy endures forever;
- <sup>6</sup> <sup>f</sup> To Him who laid out the earth above
the waters,
For His mercy endures forever;
- <sup>7</sup> <sup>g</sup> To Him who made great lights,
For His mercy endures forever—
- <sup>8</sup> <sup>h</sup> The sun to rule by day,
For His mercy endures forever;

135:6, 7 Whatever the LORD pleases: These words are adapted from 115:3. The words lightning for the rain appear to be a citation of Jer. 10:13, indicating that this psalm was written after the exile in Babylon. The point of this section is clear: God is active in all creation. Conversely, the gods of the nations are impotent (vv. 15–18).

135:8 firstborn of Egypt: Like Ps. 78, this psalm rehearses the saving events of the Exodus, culminating in the events of the Passover (Ex. 12:12). The defeat of Egypt was solely the work of the Lord. Israel was merely His instrument; the battle belonged to Him (Ex. 15:3).

135:13, 14 God's saving actions established His reputation. Because of them, His name and His fame spread throughout the world. He will have compassion: As in Ps. 147, those who faced the hardships of restoring themselves in the land needed to know of God's continuing promise of mercy (Ps. 132).

135:15 The idols of the nations: This verse is a citation from 115:4–8. It is a devastating satirical attack on pagan idolatry. The people who returned from Babylon had had their fill of the worship of idols; at long last, the people of Israel were ready to worship the only true God.

135:19, 20 To bless the LORD is to identify Him as the source of all blessings (103:2) and to be grateful for all that He has given. This section is a sustained liturgy for the people to encourage one another to praise the Lord.

Psalm 136 is the quintessential psalm of descriptive praise. The worship leader, perhaps a priest, would read the first part of each verse. The people would then respond with their praise centering on the mercy of God: "For His mercy endures forever." This psalm, known as the "Great Hallel," was often recited in the temple as the Passover lambs were being slain. Some include Ps. 135 and the psalms of ascents (Ps. 120–134) in the "Great Hallel." The pattern for the psalm is: (1) a call for the people to praise the Lord (vv. 1–3); (2) praise for the Lord who is the great Creator (vv. 4–9); (3) praise for the Lord who is the great Deliverer (vv. 10–22); (4) praise for the Lord who remembers His people forever (vv. 23–25); (5) a concluding call for the people to praise the Lord (v. 26).

136:1, 2 Give thanks means "to give public acknowledgment"; it is one of the principal words for praise in the Psalms (35:18; 105:1; 122:4). Mercy, which may also be translated "loyal love," is the most significant term used in the Psalms to describe the character of God. His mercy is "forever"; it is part of His eternal character. God of gods: The poet uses Hebrew superlatives to proclaim the Lord as the Supreme Deity.

136:4, 5 In the OT, the term great wonders is used exclusively for the awe-inspiring actions of God. God's creation of the universe is the grand display of His wisdom. The heavens give a clear presentation of the glory of God (19:1–6). Romans 1:20 teaches that God's "invisible attributes" are clearly seen through the things He has made.

Story Music

The use of the epic song in worship started with the Hebrews, centuries before the Greek epics were written (such as the Iliad and the Odyssey). The earliest Hebrew worship songs arose out of a religious feeling toward God at important moments. For instance, the first recorded appearance of story music was when Miriam, Moses' sister, sang with joy after the Jews escaped the Pharaoh's men (Ex. 15:19–21). Many of the Psalms were epics (e.g., Ps. 114; 136; 137) and the prophets sometimes burst forth in epic songs (e.g., Is. 26; Hab. 3). The Hebrews did not apply intricate melodies to their epics, the tonal range of their songs was probably not great, and they selected rhythm instruments rather than melodic instruments. However, it is clear that the Hebrews came to consider the story songs an essential part of their worship. Their music sprang from the soul of a people whose everyday life was religiously ordered.

Longing for Zion in a Foreign Land

- By the rivers of Babylon,
There we sat down, yea, we wept
When we remembered Zion.
- <sup>2</sup> We hung our harps
Upon the willows in the midst of it.
- <sup>3</sup> For there those who carried us away captive asked of us a song,
And those who <sup>a</sup>plundered us

136:10–13 struck Egypt: The poet refers to God's great acts of deliverance in bringing Israel from Egypt at the dawn of Israel's redemption (Ps. 78; 105; 135:8–12). strong hand: This is a slogan of redemption (118:15; 16; see Ex. 15:6). It has been said when God created the universe, it was the work of His fingers (8:3); but when He battled for the salvation of His people, it was with His strong right hand. divided the Red Sea: God brought Israel across the Jordan by dividing its waters, then used the same waters to destroy the pursuing army of Egypt. 136:19, 20 The poet's recital of Israel's history includes the capture of the lands east of the Jordan, including the territories of Sihon and Og (Num. 21). The result was the gift of the land of Canaan to the people of Israel.

136:23 It is possible that the words remembered us suggest the return of the people of Judah and Jerusalem to their land following the Babylonian captivity. Like Ps. 135, Ps. 136 may have been written after the Exile.

136:26 Oh, give thanks: The psalm ends as it begins, with celebration of God's continuing faithfulness to His people Israel and a call to thank Him for His goodness.

Psalm 137, a song of Zion, is also a particularly impassioned imprecatory psalm. Although no author is named, the psalm clearly shares with the Book of Lamentations the despair of those who suffered the destruction of Jerusalem by the Babylonians in 586 B.C. This troubling psalm is one of deeply felt emotion. Its pattern is as follows: (1) weeping in Babylon at the memory of the destruction of Zion (vv. 1–3); (2) longing for Jerusalem and the restoration of song in praise of God (vv. 4–6); (3) desiring reprisals against Edom and Babylon for their destruction of Jerusalem (vv. 7–9).

137:1, 2 Babylon was one of the great empires in world history. When this psalm was written, the Jews were living there in involuntary exile. we wept: The emotions of the psalm are clearly indicated. The memory of Zion was painful for those in a foreign land (42:1–3). hung our harps: Making joyful music to the Lord in a foreign land was so difficult that the captives refused to make music at all. They took the words of their captors as taunts.

- 5 If I forget you, O Jerusalem,
Let my right hand forget its skill!
- 6 If I do not remember you, Let my <sup>b</sup>tongue cling to the roof of my mouth—
If I do not exalt Jerusalem
Above my chief joy.
- 7 Remember, O LORD, against <sup>c</sup>the sons of Edom
The day of Jerusalem,
Who said, <sup>1</sup>“Raze it, raze it,
To its very foundation!”
- 8 O daughter of Babylon, <sup>d</sup>who are to be destroyed,
Happy the one <sup>e</sup>who repays you as you have served us!
- 9 Happy the one who takes and <sup>f</sup>dashes
Your little ones against the rock!

1 <sup>a</sup> Ps. 17:3; Jer.
12:3

- For You have <sup>d</sup>magnified Your word
above all Your name.
- 3 In the day when I cried out, You answered me,
And made me bold with strength in my soul.
- 4 <sup>e</sup> All the kings of the earth shall praise
You, O LORD,
When they hear the words of Your mouth.
- 5 Yes, they shall sing of the ways of the
LORD,
For great is the glory of the LORD.
- 6 <sup>f</sup> Though the LORD is on high,
Yet <sup>g</sup>He regards the lowly;
But the proud He knows from afar.
- 7 <sup>h</sup> Though I walk in the midst of

You will stretch out Your hand
Against the wrath of my enemies,
And Your right hand will save me.
- 8 <sup>i</sup> The LORD will <sup>1</sup>perfect that which concerns me;
Your mercy, O LORD, endures forever; <sup>j</sup>Do not forsake the works of Your hands.

PSALM 139

God's Perfect Knowledge of Man

For the Chief Musician. A Psalm of David.

- O LORD, <sup>a</sup>You have searched me and known me.

137:5, 6 If I forget you: It is difficult for the modern reader to appreciate the love for Zion among the people of OT faith. As we observe regularly in the Psalms, this love was not just for a place but for its function in their lives. It was in Jerusalem that the temple had been built. The place was holy because of God's presence there (2:6).

137:7 Remember, O LORD: After speaking with great passion about his own remembering and forgetting (vv. 4–6), the psalmist calls upon the Lord to remember the abominable actions of the people of Edom in the day of Jerusalem's trouble (see Ps. 129 for a similar sentiment). Raze it: The men of Edom leered and jeered as Jerusalem was shamefully leveled.

137:9 Happy is the same term of blessing that begins the first psalm (1:1; 146:5). The blessing would come on the army that finally destroyed the wicked city of Babylon, that had itself been used as a tool of judgment in the hands of Almighty God (Hab. 1:12–17).

Psalm 138 is a psalm of declarative praise attributed to David. The mood of this psalm contrasts strongly with that of Ps. 137. Its structure is as follows: (1) a declaration of praise to God because of an overwhelming answer to the prayer of the king (vv. 1–3); (2) a prophetic vision of a future time in which all kings of the earth will join in the praise of God (vv. 4–6); (3) a determination to continually trust in God (vv. 7, 8).

138:1, 2 As in many psalms, the poet begins his praise with a determination to involve his whole being (146:1). Before the gods: David is so confident in his faith in the Lord that he is determined to take the name of God into foreign territory. Your holy temple: The use of the word “temple” does not rule out David as the author of this or similar poems (15:1). The Hebrew term is a general one that would fit whatever building was in use in David's day. The term was also proper for later readers and singers of this psalm when the actual temple had been built.

138:4–6 David, as a king who believed in God, looked forward to a day when all the kings of the earth would share his experience. great is the glory of the LORD: This is another way of expressing the reality of the living God. regards the lowly: God comes to the humble because they will have regard for Him. Conversely, He distances Himself from the proud (86:14; 147:6).

138:7, 8 Though I walk: The poet is well aware that new troubles will confront him. He has confidence that God, who has blessed him in the experience of this psalm, will continue to bless his path. perfect: The same Hebrew verb is translated “perform” in 57:2. The point of the word is that God acts on behalf of His servants. Your mercy, O LORD, endures forever: This is a slight rewording of the refrain in Ps. 136.

Psalm 139, attributed to David, is a wisdom psalm of descriptive praise. This mixture of wisdom and praise is not uncommon in the Psalms (see Ps. 145; 146). This poem describes the attributes of the Lord not as abstract qualities, but as active qualities by which He relates Himself to His people. The structure of the psalm is: (1) a description of God's intimate knowledge of His servant (vv. 1–6); (2) a celebration of God's presence with David (vv. 7–12); (3) a celebration of God's creation of David from the moment of conception (vv. 13–16); (4) a declaration that God's thoughts toward David

 You <sup>c</sup> understand my thought afar off.
<sup>3</sup> <sup>d</sup> You <sup>l</sup> comprehend my path and my lying down,
 And are acquainted with all my ways.
<sup>4</sup> For there is not a word on my tongue,
 But behold, O LORD, <sup>e</sup> You know it altogether.
<sup>5</sup> You have <sup>2</sup> hedged me behind and before,
 And laid Your hand upon me.
<sup>6</sup> <sup>f</sup> Such knowledge is too wonderful for me;
 It is high, I cannot attain it.
 Or where can I flee from Your presence?

are innumerable (vv. 17, 18); (5) a prayer for the punishment of God’s enemies (vv. 19–22); (6) a prayer that God might search and lead David (vv. 23, 24).

139:1–5 You have searched me: God is active to search and test His servants. He knows our motives, desires, and words before they are expressed. In short, He knows His servants completely. But as v. 5 makes clear, the purpose of His intimate knowledge of His servants is protective and helpful, not judgmental and condemning.

139:7 There are two different ways in which the words where can I go can be understood. One is that David wanted to flee from the presence of God, but could not. The second view takes the words as a celebration of God’s mercy, that there was no place in all creation where David, the servant of God, would find himself separated from God’s presence.

139:10–12 Your hand: The wording of v. 10 seems protective, suggesting that the psalm speaks of God’s helpful presence. darkness: Here David stretches his imagination to the brink. Darkness refers to death or the “pit” (16:10). This is an expansion of the words of v. 8, “If I make my bed in hell.” David suggests this as the one place in the universe where God would not be present. But even though God is opposed to all darkness, God would turn the darkness into light in order to find His servant David. As in 18:7–12, the Lord would overturn the structure of the universe to save the person who worshiped Him.

139:13–16 You formed my inward parts: David affirms that the work of God in his life extended back to his development in his mother’s womb. You covered me may also be translated as “You wove me together,” a description of the work of God creating the person in the mother’s womb. I am fearfully and wonderfully made might be rephrased as “I am an awesome wonder” (Ps. 8). skillfully wrought: The development of the fetus was something quite mysterious to the ancients. To them, it was as though the fetus were being developed in the middle of the earth. The Hebrew word my substance indicates the embryo. In Your book: The idea is that the life of a person, and the structure and meaning of that person’s life, are all established from the beginning by God.

The Sanctity of Life: Created in His Image God places special value on human life (Gen. 1:26, 27; Ps. 8:4–6). Human life is sacred because the man and woman alone were created in the image of God, and that life deserves protection. God commands His people to protect and defend innocent human life (Ezek. 16:20, 21, 36, 38). Under the Mosaic Law, the murder of another person deserved punishment by death because of the value of the life that was destroyed (Gen. 9:6; Ex. 20:13).

Scripture extends this special status and protection to human life in every stage of development and need (Is. 46:3, 4). The unborn child shares in God’s image (Ps. 139:13–16) and is protected under Old Testament law (Ex. 21:22–25). Believers are exhorted to defend and care for the sick, the elderly, and the poor (Lev. 19:32; Deut. 15:7, 8). No one is excluded from protection and care.

Throughout history this biblical view of the sanctity of all human life has faced opposition—most notably from those who advocate a “quality of life” viewpoint, suggesting that human life must possess certain qualities and abilities before it can be considered truly valuable and worthy of life sustenance. According to this distorted humanistic view, if the unborn child, the handicapped infant, or the elderly person does not possess these qualities, that individual is not entitled to the protection which Scripture or the Law would give.

The Bible rejects this “quality of life” view. The value of human life does not depend upon the person’s functional abilities or independent viability but is assured because of the image of God which is found in every human life. God does not measure the quality of a human being before He bestows His image. God calls upon us to extend our care and compassion to every life He has created, in every stage of development and in every need.

And skillfully wrought in the lowest parts of the earth.
 16 Your eyes saw my substance, being yet unformed.
 And in Your book they all were written,
 The days fashioned for me,
 When as yet there were none of them.

17 <sup>1</sup>How precious also are Your thoughts to me, O God!
 How great is the sum of them!
 18 If I should count them, they would be more in number than the sand;
 When I awake, I am still with You.

19 Oh, that You would <sup>m</sup>slay the wicked, O God!
<sup>n</sup>Depart from me, therefore, you <sup>o</sup>bloodthirsty men.
 20 For they <sup>o</sup>speak against You wickedly;
 21 <sup>p</sup>Do I not hate them, O LORD, who hate You?
 And do I not loathe those who rise up against You?
 22 I hate them with <sup>2</sup>perfect hatred; I count them my enemies.

23 <sup>q</sup>Search me, O God, and know my heart;
 Try me, and know my anxieties;
 24 And see if there is any wicked way in me,
 And <sup>r</sup>lead me in the way everlasting.

12 I know that the LORD will <sup>g</sup>maintain
 The cause of the afflicted,
 And justice for the poor.

139:19 slay the wicked: David desires a world in which there is no more evil, no more distraction, no more destruction. The enemies of God are David's own enemies because his life and thoughts are so closely tied to the Lord.

139:23, 24 Search me, O God: These words are similar to those of 19:14. David asks God to examine his thoughts and purge him of sin so that he might enter into everlasting life.

Psalm 140, a psalm of individual lament ascribed to David, is particularly concerned with the wicked. David's desire for the judgment of the Lord to come upon the wicked identifies this poem as an imprecatory psalm. The structure of Ps. 140 is as follows: (1) a petition that David be delivered from the wicked (vv. 1–3); (2) a petition that David be kept from the wicked (vv. 4, 5); (3) a confession of trust in the Lord (vv. 6–8); (4) a prayer for the punishment of the wicked (vv. 9–11); (5) a declaration that the Lord will deliver the afflicted (vv. 12, 13).

140:1 Deliver me: David cries out to the Lord for deliverance from the wicked, who continually harm the innocent. The words violent men are repeated in v. 4. The word violent describes people who are harsh and ruthless, who plan the destruction of the righteous. They are purposefully evil and will be satisfied only if they can participate in the destruction of God's people. But God is always ready to deliver His precious ones from their grasp.

140:6 With the words You are my God, David confesses his complete trust in the Lord even though he is surrounded by people plotting his destruction. On the basis of his trust, he now pleads with the Lord to deliver him.

140:10 Let burning coals fall upon them: Here David recalls the judgment of Sodom and Gomorrah (11:6; Gen. 19:12–29) and asks God to use this particular judgment on his enemies.

140:12, 13 The cause of the poor and the afflicted is of special interest to the Lord. He promises to uphold and comfort them (41:1; 72:4; 109:31; Luke 4:18; 6:20).

Prayer for Safekeeping from Wickedness

A Psalm of David.

LORD, I cry out to You;
Make haste to me!
Give ear to my voice when I cry out
to You.

2 Let my prayer be set before You <sup>a</sup> as incense,

<sup>b</sup>The lifting up of my hands as <sup>c</sup>the evening sacrifice.

3 Set a guard, O LORD, over my <sup>d</sup>mouth;

Keep watch over the door of my lips.

4 Do not incline my heart to any evil thing,

To practice wicked works
With men who work iniquity;

<sup>e</sup>And do not let me eat of their delicacies.

5 <sup>f</sup>Let the righteous strike me;
It shall be a kindness.

And let him rebuke me;
It shall be as excellent oil;
Let my head not refuse it.

For still my prayer is against the deeds of the wicked.

6 Their judges are overthrown by the sides of the <sup>1</sup>cliff,
And they hear my words, for they are sweet.

7 Our bones are scattered at the mouth of the grave,
As when one plows and breaks up
the earth.

8 But <sup>g</sup>my eyes are upon You, O God
the Lord;
In You I take refuge;

<sup>2</sup>Do not leave my soul destitute.

9 Keep me from <sup>h</sup>the snares they have laid for me,
And from the traps of the workers of iniquity.

10 <sup>i</sup>Let the wicked fall into their own nets,
While I escape safely.

PSALM 142

A Plea for Relief from Persecutors

A <sup>a</sup>Contemplation <sup>1</sup>of David. A Prayer <sup>b</sup>when he was in the cave.

I cry out to the LORD with my voice;
With my voice to the LORD I make my supplication.

2 I pour out my complaint before Him;
I declare before Him my trouble.

3 When my spirit <sup>2</sup>was <sup>c</sup>overwhelmed
within me,
Then You knew my path.

Psalm 141, an individual psalm of lament, is ascribed to David. In this case no particular event is cited as the cause for David's distress. Because this poem records David's desire for the judgment of his enemies, it falls into the category of the imprecatory psalms also. The structure is: (1) an introductory cry to the Lord (vv. 1, 2); (2) a prayer for a guard over David's mouth (vv. 3, 4); (3) an acceptance of righteous rebuke (v. 5a); (4) a vision of the punishment of the wicked (vv. 5b-7); (5) a statement of confidence in the Lord (vv. 8-10).

141:1, 2 LORD, I cry out to you: David asks to be heard as he prays in the assembly of the righteous. As the smoke and aroma of incense rises to the Lord as something sweet and compelling, so David desires that his prayer will not be ignored. The lifting up of my hands: With this impressive gesture David is asking God to pay attention to his plea.

141:3 Set a guard: This is a prayer for wisdom, for restraining evil language, and for knowing the correct words to speak. David wanted to avoid any act of impiety, irreverence, or even idolatry; he did not want to offend God with anything he said.

141:5 With the words let the righteous strike me, David expresses his willingness to accept the judgment of the righteous; what bothers him is the instruction and judgment of the wicked. against the deeds of the wicked: As in Ps. 140, the wicked have brought David to his state of distress. He envisions a day when the wicked will be destroyed—their power will collapse and justice will reign in its place.

141:8 In light of the wicked's strength, it is easy for us to fix our eyes on, or worry about, the wicked. It is also natural to focus on ourselves: we either become self-absorbed in our difficulties or exalt ourselves in our victories. But David fixes his eyes only on the Lord (2 Cor. 3:18; Heb. 12:2, 3).

Psalm 142, a psalm of individual lament ascribed to David, provides a specific reference for the setting of the poem. The term the cave may refer to one of two occasions on which David hid from King Saul in a cave. One occurred in En Gedi (Ps. 57; 1 Sam. 24); the other at Adullam (1 Sam. 22:1, 2). The second may well be the setting for this poem of deep anguish. This was a time in David's life when it appeared that he was totally alone. In fact, he began to doubt whether even God was truly for him. But as the superscription indicates, David turned to the Lord in prayer. The structure of the psalm is: (1) David's cry for help from the cave of his despair (vv. 1, 2); (2) David's lament of distress that no one was on his side (vv. 3, 4); (3) David's confession of trust and petition for deliverance (vv. 5, 6); (4) David's vow of praise when God delivered him (v. 7).

142:1 I cry out: There is a significant emphasis on the vocal and desperate nature of David's lament in this psalm. With my voice may also be translated "aloud."

142:3-5 In the midst of his distress, David makes his preliminary confession of trust—God knew his path from the beginning. Look on my right hand: With enemies on every path, David screams aloud to God that he is defenseless. The armed soldier in ancient Israel probably would have had his spear or sword in his right hand and his shield in his left. The shield of one man would protect the right side of his neighbor. David cries that there is no one on his right side; he expects to find

In the way in which I walk
They have secretly <sup>d</sup>set a snare for me.

<sup>4</sup> Look on my right hand and see,
For there is no one who acknowledges me;
Refuge has failed me;
No one cares for my soul.

<sup>5</sup> I cried out to You, O LORD:
I said, “You are my refuge,
My portion in the land of the living.

<sup>6</sup> <sup>3</sup> Attend to my cry,
For I am brought very low;
Deliver me from my persecutors,
For they are stronger than I.
<sup>7</sup> Bring my soul out of prison,
That I may <sup>e</sup>praise Your name;
The righteous shall surround me,
For You shall deal bountifully with
me.”

God there (3:3, 4). You are my refuge: In the midst of his pain, David renews his confession of trust that somehow God must be near. He then pleads with God to deliver him from his foes.

142:7 The cave that was intended as a place of refuge has become a place of confinement—a prison. The psalm ends with a vow that when God would deliver him from his awful experience, David would bring renewed praise to God in the worshiping community. Even though he is still in the midst of his distress, David is able to conclude with a prayer of faith: You shall deal bountifully with me.

Psalm 143, a psalm of individual lament ascribed to David, is similar in tone to other psalms of distress, particularly Ps. 6. Some scholars categorize Ps. 6 and 143 as penitential psalms. The structure of Ps. 143 is as follows: (1) a presentation of great personal distress (vv. 1-4); (2) a longing for former days of delight (vv. 5, 6); (3) prayers for deliverance (vv. 7-12).

143:2, 3 David asks God not to bring him into judgment, yet he does not confess his sins as in Ps. 32; 38. no one living is righteous: This is not so much a confession of sin as an observation that everyone is sinful. in darkness: The biblical metaphor of light and darkness begins in Gen. 1:2, 3. To live in darkness is similar to being in the pit (v. 7); this is the reason for the parallel to those who are already dead (Job 10:21, 22).

143:5, 6 the days of old: This is similar to 42:4, in which the psalmist remembers rejoicing in temple worship in times gone by. spread out my hands: This was one of the traditional postures for prayer in biblical times.

143:7, 8 the pit: Without a renewed sense of God's presence, described by the words, Your face, David believes that he is as good as dead. in the morning: Often in the psalms there is an expectation that an answer from God might come with the morning light (5:3; 30:5; 130:6).

143:11, 12 for Your name's sake: The requests of the psalmists are often tied to various character traits of God. When we pray “in Jesus' name,” we pray both in the authority of His name and in the character it represents. I am Your servant: To be a servant of the Lord is a position to which even kings might aspire. Since there is no greater Lord, there is no greater position than to be aligned with His purposes.

PSALM 144

A Song to the LORD Who Preserves and Prospers His People

A Psalm of David.

Blessed be the LORD my Rock,
 And my fingers for battle—
 My lovingkindness and my fortress,
 My high tower and my deliverer,
 My shield and the One in whom I take refuge,
 Who subdues <sup>1</sup> my people under me.

<sup>3</sup> LORD, what is man, that You take knowledge of him?
 Or the son of man, that You are mindful of him?

<sup>4</sup> Man is like a breath;
<sup>d</sup> His days are like a passing shadow.

<sup>5</sup> Bow down Your heavens, O LORD,
 and come down;
<sup>f</sup> Touch the mountains, and they shall smoke.

<sup>6</sup> Flash forth lightning and scatter
 them;
 Shoot out Your arrows and destroy
 them.

<sup>7</sup> Stretch out Your hand from above; Rescue me and deliver me out of great waters,
 From the hand of foreigners,
 Whose mouth <sup>h</sup> speaks <sup>2</sup> lying words,
 And whose right hand is a right hand of falsehood.

PSALM 145

A Song of God's Majesty and Love<sup>a</sup> A Praise of David.

I will <sup>1</sup> extol You, my God, O King;
 And I will bless Your name forever
 and ever.
<sup>2</sup> Every day I will bless You,

Psalm 144, a psalm of descriptive praise with overtones of lament and petition, is ascribed to David. This poem is similar to Ps. 18 in that it describes the salvation acts of the Lord in terms of great heavenly phenomena. It is also possible that this psalm was used in the training of the army (as was Ps. 149). Warfare in ancient Israel was tied closely to the worship of God. Deliverance from the enemy was not just a task for tough soldiers, it was a matter of active piety. The structure is as follows: (1) a confession of praise to God the great warrior (vv. 1, 2); (2) a description of the frailty of human beings (vv. 3, 4); (3) a description of the saving acts of God (vv. 5–8); (4) a determination to praise the Lord (vv. 9, 10); (5) a call for God's continual deliverance of His people (vv. 11–15). 144:1 The LORD my Rock is often used in the Psalms to describe God as the fortress of His people. At times, the word is translated strength (18:1). David found in the Lord the protection and preparation he needed in times of battle.

144:3, 4 what is man: This is a quotation from 8:4, but without the stunning answer presented in 8:5. Here the rhetorical question is used to speak of the frailty of humans who are in need of God's help. passing shadow: The sense of human frailty is illustrated dramatically in these words (102:2, 3).

144:6 The lightning of the Lord is a symbol of His judgment (97:4). Here David celebrates God's righteous judgments, which he prays will be exercised against his evil foes.

144:9, 10 I will sing a new song is David's vow to respond to God's deliverance with renewed worship and praise (149:1). David: It is rare for these poems to mention the psalmist by name (18:50). David's use of his own name indicated to later generations that this psalm arose out of actual experiences in his life.

144:11 lying words: The principal lie of the enemy was that the Lord could not save His people (Ps. 12).

144:12–15 The image of pillars seems to indicate health, beauty, and dignity. barns: Agricultural productivity was possible only in times of peace and would be meaningful only in times of national freedom. Happy is often translated "blessed" (1:1). Its use twice in v. 15 is dramatic. The happiness that David describes refers both to external well-being—in such a state—and to internal peace—whose God is the LORD.

Psalm 145, a wisdom psalm, is also a psalm of declarative praise. The poem is written in the form of an acrostic, with one verse for each letter of the Hebrew alphabet. The structure of the psalm is: (1) a focus on the greatness of the Lord (vv. 1–3); (2) an expectation of the ongoing praise of the Lord (vv. 4–7); (3) a focus on the character of the Lord (vv. 8, 9); (4) an expression concerning the kingdom of the Lord (vv. 10–13); (5) an acknowledgment of the grace of the Lord to all (vv. 14–16); (6) a focus on the righteous grace of the Lord (vv. 17–21).

And I will praise Your name forever
and ever.
<sup>3</sup> <sup>b</sup>Great is the LORD, and greatly to be praised;
And <sup>c</sup>His greatness is <sup>2</sup>unsearchable.
<sup>4</sup> <sup>d</sup>One generation shall praise Your works to another,
And shall declare Your mighty acts.
<sup>5</sup> <sup>3</sup>I will meditate on the glorious splendor of Your majesty,
And <sup>4</sup>on Your wondrous works.
<sup>6</sup> Men shall speak of the might of Your awesome acts,
And I will declare Your greatness.
<sup>7</sup> They shall <sup>5</sup>utter the memory of Your great goodness,
And shall sing of Your righteousness.
<sup>8</sup> <sup>e</sup>The LORD is gracious and full of compassion,
Slow to anger and great in mercy.
<sup>9</sup> <sup>f</sup>The LORD is good to all,
And His tender mercies are over all
His works.
<sup>10</sup> <sup>g</sup>All Your works shall praise You,
O LORD,
And Your saints shall bless You.

145:3 The familiar words great is the LORD express God's grandeur in the universe and remind us of how small we are in His presence. The fact that frail humans are used to praise God is a marvel to the psalmist.

145:4 One generation . . . to another: The expectation is that the message of God's wonder and mercy will be known throughout the land and will be taught for generations.

145:7 The word memory may refer to the divine name of God. The Hebrew term for memory is translated "memorial" in Ex. 3:15.

145:8 God had described Himself as gracious and full of compassion (Ex. 34:6, 7; Num. 14:18). David uses God's own words to praise Him for His merciful character (86:5, 15; 111:4; 112:4).

145:10–13 All Your works echoes the words of 19:1–3. All that God has made bears the marks of His wonder (111:2). They shall speak: The task of the righteous is to declare the works of the Lord to all people. an everlasting kingdom: Because the rule of God is eternal, the message of His wonders needs to be delivered to all people in the present time.

145:14 The words upholds all who fall describe the ongoing actions of God on behalf of the needy in a way that may suggest that these words are absolute and invariable. Yet the same people who sang the songs of praise also cried out to the Lord with the psalms of lament. In a world in which life is tough, the psalms delight in affirming that God is good and that there is no limit to His power, His love, and His concern for His people. The psalms celebrate each example of God's saving mercy and each example of His grace. Time after time, instance after instance—the whole becomes a beautiful tapestry of His ongoing grace.

145:17 The pairing of righteous and gracious is a powerful demonstration of the character of God. His righteousness leads to His discriminating judgment; His grace leads to His saving works and forgiving actions. God both preserves and destroys based on His infallible insight into human intent and purposes.

145:21 My mouth: David resolved to be faithful in praising the Lord (146:1), but he also saw his praise as one part of the praise of all creation—that is, all flesh.

extol (Heb. rum) (30:1; 34:3; 145:1; Ex. 15:2; Is. 25:1) Strong's #7311: The Hebrew word translated extol here is one of the many Hebrew words for praise in the Psalms. The specific meaning of this word is "to hold high" or "to esteem greatly." In contrast to King David's praise of the Lord as the exalted One (99:9; 2 Sam. 22:47), Lucifer's downfall came in trying to exalt himself above God (Is. 14:13). Thus in a negative sense, the word rum can mean "haughty" (see 2 Sam. 22:28). The psalmist's strong determination to honor and esteem God in 145:1 is indicated by the highly energized verb he employs in this passage, a verb which indicates a command directed to himself.

Psalm 146, a psalm of descriptive praise, is part of the grand pinnacle of praise in this book of praises. Each of the last five psalms begins and ends with the Hebrew word “Hallelujah!” This final set of praise psalms forms an exuberant ending to Israel’s orchestrated responses to the wonder of God and His gracious works on their behalf. Psalm 146 also shows some similarities with wisdom literature. The structure of the poem is as follows: (1) a call for a life of praise to God (vv. 1, 2); (2) a warning against putting one’s trust even in good people (vv. 3, 4); (3) a blessing on the one who finds help in God (vv. 5–7); (4) a description of the wonderful works of God in the lives of His people (vv. 8, 9); (5) a call to praise God the great King (v. 10).

146:1, 2 My soul is another way of speaking of one’s inner being and is often used as a substitute for the pronouns “I” or “me.” While I live: The poet makes a strong vow to praise the Lord for the rest of his life.

146:3 in princes: The point is that even the best of people are not adequate help in times of terrible stress. Even princes are mortal, and are not able even to help themselves (118:9). In contrast is the individual who finds ultimate help in God who lives forever (vv. 5–7).

146:5, 6 Happy indicates a deep and abiding pleasure, a manifest joy. This is the proper description of one whose help and hope is in God. Who made heaven and earth: Creation themes pervade the hymns of Israel (Ps. 104); here the point is that the Creator of the universe is the One who comes to the aid of the righteous.

146:8, 9 the eyes of the blind: In these two verses there is a special focus on the gracious actions of God on behalf of the impaired, the helpless, the lonely, and the needy (38:6). But the way of the wicked: The contrast in God’s treatment of the righteous and the wicked is as pronounced in this psalm as it is in other psalms (1:4, 6; 147:6).

146:10 The LORD shall reign forever: The Bible presents several dimensions of the rule of God: He is King as Creator (Ps. 93); He is King as Savior of His people (Ps. 99); and He is King as the coming One (Ps. 98). This verse speaks of God’s present and eternal reign rather than specifically of His coming rule at the end of time. Praise the LORD: The use of the Hebrew term hallelujah at the end of the psalm balances its use at the beginning.

Psalm 147, a psalm of descriptive praise, places a strong emphasis on creation themes. This anonymous poem was likely written following the return of the Jewish people to Jerusalem from the Babylonian captivity (also Ps. 126; 132; 135). The structure is threefold, with each section introduced by a command to praise the Lord: (1) a command to praise the Lord for His restorative mercies (vv. 1–6); (2) a command to praise the Lord for the joy He finds in His people (vv. 7–11); (3) a command to praise the Lord for His Word (vv. 12–20).

147:1 The sentiment praise is beautiful is also expressed in 33:1. The people of God may bring their offerings of praise and worship to the Lord.

147:2, 3 builds up Jerusalem: The few people who had returned from captivity faced an immense task. But they needed to know, as do all subsequent people who do the work of the Lord, that because the work was God’s, He would see that it was accomplished. It is a privilege for God’s people to be counted as part of the fulfillment of the task, but the glory belongs to Him. He heals the brokenhearted: God’s principal work is within the human heart (51:10–12).

147:4–6 He counts the number of the stars: Quoted from Is. 40:26, these words describe the infinite knowledge of God. But the words signify more: God’s principal interest is not in stars or insects; God’s interest is in His people (v. 11). lifts up the humble: God’s greatness may be approached only by

 He casts the wicked down to the ground.

<sup>7</sup> Sing to the LORD with thanksgiving;
 Sing praises on the harp to our God,
<sup>8</sup> <sup>l</sup>Who covers the heavens with clouds,
 Who prepares rain for the earth,
 Who makes grass to grow on the mountains.
<sup>9</sup> <sup>m</sup>He gives to the beast its food,
 And <sup>n</sup>to the young ravens that cry.

 He takes no pleasure in the legs of a man.
<sup>11</sup> The LORD takes pleasure in those who fear Him,
 In those who hope in His mercy.

<sup>12</sup> Praise the LORD, O Jerusalem!
 Praise your God, O Zion!
<sup>13</sup> For He has strengthened the bars of your gates;
 He has blessed your children within you.

PSALM 148

Praise to the LORD from Creation

Praise <sup>1</sup> the LORD!
 Praise the LORD from the heavens;
 Praise Him in the heights!
<sup>2</sup> Praise Him, all His angels;
 Praise Him, all His hosts!
<sup>3</sup> Praise Him, sun and moon;
 Praise Him, all you stars of light!
 And <sup>b</sup>you waters above the heavens!

<sup>5</sup> Let them praise the name of the LORD,
 For <sup>c</sup>He commanded and they were created.
<sup>6</sup> <sup>d</sup>He also established them forever and ever;
 He made a decree which shall not pass away.

<sup>7</sup> Praise the LORD from the earth,

the humble; He resists the proud, but He comforts the lowly (86:14; 146:9; James 4:6).

147:7-9 Sing praises: The second movement of the psalm begins with a new call for the praise of God (vv. 1, 12). rain for the earth: A regular part of God's covenantal mercies is the bringing of rain for produce and livelihood (Lev. 26:1-13). More than that, God sends rain on the just and the unjust because of His continuing mercy to all. We may describe the actions of these verses as God's "regular mercies." beast: Jesus describes God's care as extending even to sparrows (Matt. 10:29).

147:10, 11 He does not delight: The enjoyment God finds in His people is greater than any pleasure He may find in horses or runners. Forms of the verb delight and takes pleasure are found in 40:6-8; 51:16. These are God's responses to true piety; He enjoys people who respond rightly to Him (86:4). To fear God is to be properly responsive to Him in awe and wonder.

147:12 The words praise the LORD introduce the third movement of the psalm. This section was a reminder to the new settlers in the land of promise that God had blessed them in numerous ways. He had given them protection, posterity, peace, and productivity.

147:19, 20 God's word goes throughout His creation, causing snow, frost, hail, wind, and every other aspect of weather to obey His command. Here He gives His word to His people. Shall we obey as does the wind? Or shall we be the only element of creation that is unresponsive to the divine will? not dealt thus: Israel confessed the unique revelation that it had received from God and acknowledged their unique responsibility. Our responsibility is as profound as Israel's, for we too have heard the testimonies of the Creator through Scripture. Psalm 148 is a complex psalm. Because of its many references to the creation, it can be labeled a wisdom psalm, and more particularly a creation psalm (Ps. 19; 104). It is also highly charged with praise. Like Ps. 19, this psalm moves from the heavens to the human heart. The structure is as follows: (1) a call for the heavens to give God praise because He is the Creator (vv. 1-6); (2) a call for the elements of the earth to give God praise because He is also their Creator (vv. 7-12); (3) a call for the people of God to give God praise because of His wonder in their midst (vv. 13, 14).

148:1-5 Praise Him: All of the universe is called to boast of the wonder of God. In this first section, praise is commanded from all aspects of the heavens above, including the angelic hosts. The language waters above the heavens comes from the creation story in Gen. 1:7. He commanded: Genesis 1 describes creation as a spontaneous response to the word of God (33:9; 147:15).

148:7, 8 The focus of the psalm switches to the earth. All hosts above and all creatures below are to praise our great God. great sea creatures: This includes real sea creatures that inspired awe and wonder, as well as creatures of mythology

<sup>8</sup> Fire and hail, snow and clouds;
Stormy wind, fulfilling His word;
<sup>9</sup> <sup>f</sup>Mountains and all hills;
Fruitful trees and all cedars;
<sup>10</sup> Beasts and all cattle;
Creeping things and flying fowl;
<sup>11</sup> Kings of the earth and all peoples;
Princes and all judges of the earth;
<sup>12</sup> Both young men and maidens;
Old men and children.

<sup>13</sup> Let them praise the name of the LORD,
For His <sup>g</sup>name alone is exalted;
His glory is above the earth and heaven.

<sup>14</sup> And He <sup>h</sup>has exalted the <sup>2</sup>horn of
His people,
The praise of <sup>i</sup>all His saints—
Of the children of Israel,

Let All Things Praise the LORD

Praise <sup>a</sup> <sup>1</sup> the LORD!

Praise God in His sanctuary;

that the Canaanites had made into gods. Israel called on all creatures to praise God—both those that are His creation and those that their neighbors believed to be gods. In this way, every principality and power, every creature known and unknown, was called to worship God. Fire and hail: All natural phenomena are at God's command (147:15–18).

148:14, the horn of His people: The people are pictured here as an animal whose strength is in its horn. near: When we consider the meaning of God's holiness (99:1; Is. 6:3), the marvel that He approaches us to mercifully provide for us becomes overwhelming.

Psalm 149, an exuberant call to praise God, was used by the army of Israel as well as by the people in their worship of God. The structure of the psalm is: (1) a call for a new song of praise (v. 1); (2) a call for the joyful worship of praise in the congregation of the Lord (vv. 2–5); (3) a call for the joyful worship of praise in the army of the Lord (vv. 6–8); (4) a concluding shout of praise (v. 9).

149:1 The call for a new song comes at several points in the Psalms (33:3; 40:3; 144:9). These words encourage more than just novelty; they call for freshness and integrity in performing music. in the assembly of saints: One of the primary emphases in the Book of Psalms is that the praise of God is to take place in the center of the worshipping community. Praise unites the people of God (33:1–3).

149:2–5 Maker: Not only is God the Creator of the universe (8:3; 19:1; 104:1–35), He is particularly the Creator of His people (100:3) and their great King (Ps. 93). In the temple of the pre-exilic period, sacred dance was an integral aspect of worship (150:4). Saints refers to the redeemed who have been made God's people by His grace. The Hebrew word is related to the term meaning “loyal love” (13:5). The saints are those who demonstrate in their lives the characteristics of God whom they serve. on their beds: In some of the festivals of Israel, such as Passover, the people would recline at feast tables as a vivid symbol that they had been redeemed. In the first Passover (Ex. 12), the people were to eat standing, ready to travel. The custom had developed for the people to recline at the table, symbolizing their redemption and enjoyment of God's work in their lives.

149:6 two-edged sword: The focus of the psalm switches from the congregation at worship to the army in training. Israel's army was to be the vanguard for the battle of the Lord. Their training was to have a strong component of praise and worship to God.

149:9 the written judgment: It is likely that this is a direct reference to the Law (perhaps Deut. 7:1, 2) in which God decreed His judgment on the peoples of the land of Canaan.

Psalm 150, a psalm of praise, is a development of the Hebrew word hallelujah, meaning “Praise the LORD.” How fitting that sing (Heb. shir) (149:1; 137:3, 4; 1 Sam. 18:6; 1 Chr. 16:9; Is. 5:1; Zeph. 2:14) Strong's #7891: This Hebrew word signifies singing, often with various musical instruments accompanying (1 Kin. 10:12; 1 Chr. 15:16; 2 Chr. 9:11). It is used most frequently as a participle meaning “singers” (especially in Nehemiah) and as a summons—of oneself or of the entire world—to sing praises to the Lord (13:6; 21:13; 96:1; 2 Chr. 35:25; Ezra 7:7). Singing is often associated with giving praise to God (106:12; Judg. 5:3). Songs are sung to the Lord to extol His great power and His mercy to His people (59:16; 89:1; Ex. 15:1; 1 Chr. 16:23, 24; Jer. 20:13).

Trumpet

The trumpet was used by the priests during services of sacrifice, especially to signal the Day of Atonement. The trumpet was also used to rally troops on the battlefield. Made of metal or bones, the trumpet featured a sounding air column not quite two feet long. This short length gave this instrument a high, shrill sound. The tone of the trumpet apparently could be regulated (2 Chr. 5:12). One distinctive type of trumpet or horn used by the Hebrew people was the ram's horn, also known by its Hebrew name, the shophar (Hos. 5:8). The shophar was the greatest of the Jewish ritual instruments. Eventually the horn of a mountain goat was used for this instrument, rather than the horn of a ram. The shophar was basically a signaling instrument, used to assemble the army, to sound an attack, or to sound an alarm.

this book of praises—the meaning of the name of the Book of Psalms in Hebrew—ends in repeated commands to praise the Lord. The structure is as follows: (1) a call for the praise of God in heaven above (v. 1); (2) a call for the praise of God for His great works (v. 2); (3) a call for the praise of God with all instruments (vv. 3–5); (4) a call for the praise of God from all creatures here below (v. 6).

150:1 in His sanctuary: The intent is for praise to come to God in His dwelling in heaven (148:1–4).

150:3–5 The varied instruments in this section include horns, reeds, strings, and percussion, encompassing many of the instruments known in Israel at that time (33:2, 3; 98:4–6).

150:6 everything that has breath: The very breath that God gives us should be used to praise Him. As long as we live we should praise our Creator (146:1, 2). By His breath God created all things (33:6), and by our breath we should adore Him. The Book of Psalms begins with God's blessing on the righteous (1:1) and concludes with all of creation blessing its loving Creator.

praise (Heb. halal) (146:1, 10; 147:1; 149:3; 150:1, 6) Strong's #1984: The verb halal is a common Hebrew word for praise. It may be used to exalt human beauty (Song 6:9), a virtuous wife (Prov. 31:30), or a wise man (Prov. 12:8), but most frequently halal is used to praise God. It often occurs in the imperative, expressing an exhortation or command: "Praise!" (135:1) or "Praise Him" (150:2). The most familiar example of the imperative is halleluyah (meaning "Praise the LORD!"; see 146:1; 150:6), a combination of halal and the divine name Yah. The last five psalms present a climax to the praises contained in the Book of Psalms, commanding believers (145:10), the Israelites (149:2), the angels (148:2), Jerusalem itself (147:12), the heavens (148:1), and finally every being that has breath (150:6) to praise the Almighty God, the Creator of the universe.

The Book of Proverbs

Everyone knows the value of good advice. Listening to those who are wiser than we are gives us the benefit of their hard-won experience. Growing up, getting along with others, and holding a job all would be impossible without guidance from folks who have been there before. The Book of Proverbs gives that kind of help.

But the book is more than a collection of “tips and tricks.” It passes on a core of knowledge and experience that God says we must have if we are to live successfully. These proverbs are not merely old sayings that concern people in far-off lands, but universal principles that apply to all people of all times. They speak to modern problems as much as to ancient ones because they concern human nature and God’s ways. Human nature has not changed since Solomon’s time; neither has God’s. Only the landscape around us has changed.

Author and Date • King Solomon wrote many proverbs, more than those which have survived to this day. The title of the Book of Proverbs (1:1) and two collections of maxims within it (10:1; 25:1) identify him as their author. First Kings confirms this by attributing three thousand proverbs and more than a thousand songs to him (1 Kin. 4:32). In fact, the writer of Kings boasted that Solomon’s wisdom exceeded that of all the wise men in the East and in Egypt (1 Kin. 4:30). Solomon’s interests and research covered nearly every aspect of knowledge, from zoology and botany to grammar and theology. To think of wisdom in Israel was to think of Solomon, who was granted wisdom by God’s gracious gift (see 1 Kin. 3:12).

Although Solomon was the main writer of the Book of Proverbs (10:1—22:16), some proverbs were written by other writers, and some of Solomon’s were not added to the book until after his death. Agur wrote chapter 30, and Lemuel wrote 31:1–9. Moreover, it is not clear whether Solomon wrote the first nine chapters; they may have been contributed by someone else as an introduction to the book. Proverbs 25:1 tells us that a group of assistants to King Hezekiah (who reigned about 729–699 B.C.) compiled and added the proverbs of Solomon contained in chapters 25—29. The Book of Proverbs as we know it may well have been completed during Hezekiah’s time, but we cannot be certain, because we have no information about Agur (ch. 30) or Lemuel (31:1–9) besides their names.

Structure • Solomon’s 375 proverbs (10:1—22:16) appear as a large collection with no particular organization to the whole. In places a few sentences on one theme appear together, but other sentences on that theme often appear elsewhere as well. We might expect all proverbs on poverty to be in one section and all on child-rearing in another, but these and many other topics are interspersed throughout the collection. Sometimes repeated words or sounds are the link between separate sentences. Or it may be that phrases repeat, suggesting a new linking of ideas.

In addition to the proverbs that stand alone, at the beginning and ending of the book sections of extended instruction appear together (chs. 1—9; 30; 31). These chapters contain some of the same proverbs as the rest of the book, but as units they differ greatly from the main section of Solomon’s proverbs (10:1—22:16). Unlike the scattered arrangement of Solomon’s main section, these chapters develop themes.

Purpose and Theme • The prologue states the book’s purpose and theme (1:1–7): it is to give a course of instruction in wisdom, preparation for life, and the ways of life in God’s world. Many topics, such as riches, success, and social relations, appear in other collections of wisdom literature that have survived from the ancient Middle East, but they are treated differently. Israel's contribution to wisdom literature was to place all wisdom in the context of faith in the Lord. The words "The fear of the LORD is the beginning of knowledge" (1:7) set the record straight, so to speak. This is the foundation on which all other wise sayings stand. It is the Book of Proverbs' central idea: Fear of the Lord motivates us to obey God's commandments, and obedience to them constitutes true wisdom.

Christ in the Scriptures

Although Jesus is not identified by name in 8:22–31, it is clear that the writer is describing Him. Wisdom, godlike and perfect, is personified: "I have been established from everlasting, from the beginning, before there was ever an earth . . . When He prepared the heavens, I was there . . . I was beside Him as a master craftsman; and I was daily His delight" (8:23, 27, 30). Compare that to John 1:1, "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God . . . All things were made through Him, and without Him nothing was made that was made." This divine wisdom is also the source of biological and spiritual life (3:18; 8:35). It is right and moral (8:8, 9), and it is available to all who will receive it.

To <sup>1</sup>perceive the words of understanding,

<sup>3</sup> To receive the instruction of wisdom,

To the young man knowledge and discretion—

And a man of understanding will <sup>2</sup>attain wise counsel,

1:2, 3 Verses 2–6 explain the purpose of the Book of Proverbs. The verbs to know, to perceive, and to receive refer to the ways we acquire wisdom. Wisdom refers to skill. Instruction could also be translated discipline; it refers to the process of receiving knowledge and then applying it to daily life. A person develops discipline in life by applying words of insight.

1:3 The word for wisdom in this verse is different from the word used in v. 1. This word denotes applied skill, such as that of an artisan or a musician. That is, wisdom affects living much the way the skills of artists affect the practice of their craft. The words justice, judgment, and equity give wisdom, discipline, and words of insight a moral context. Biblical wisdom involves all of life; it involves a change of behavior and a commitment to justice.

1:4 The simple or "naive" is young, inexperienced, and likely to make mistakes. The terms prudence and discretion include the harsh facts of life. A wise person has learned by experience how to distinguish what is true, praiseworthy, and good from what is false, shameful, and bad (see Rom. 12:1, 2).

1:5, 6 increase learning: No one finishes the study of wisdom; there is always more to learn. Verse 6 speaks of the lessons that a more mature person gains from the study of a proverb, an enigma, words of the wise, and riddles.

6 To understand a proverb and an enigma,

The Call of Wisdom

20 <sup>o</sup> Wisdom calls aloud <sup>8</sup>outside;
She raises her voice in the open squares.

21 She cries out in the <sup>9</sup>chief concourses,
At the openings of the gates in the city
She speaks her words:
22 “How long, you <sup>i</sup>simple ones, will you love <sup>2</sup>simplicity?
For scorners delight in their scorning,
And fools hate knowledge.
23 Turn at my rebuke;
Surely <sup>p</sup>I will pour out my spirit on you;
I will make my words known to you.
24 <sup>q</sup>Because I have called and you refused,
I have stretched out my hand and no one regarded,
25 Because you <sup>r</sup>disdained all my counsel,
And would have none of my rebuke,
26 <sup>s</sup>I also will laugh at your calamity;
I will mock when your terror comes,
27 When <sup>t</sup>your terror comes like a storm,
And your destruction comes like a whirlwind,
When distress and anguish come upon you.

28 “Then <sup>u</sup>they will call on me, but I will not answer;
They will seek me diligently, but they will not find me.
29 Because they <sup>v</sup>hated knowledge

1:7 The fear of the LORD is the most basic ingredient in wisdom. All wisdom depends on knowledge of God and submission to His will. To know something but not to know God overturns the value of having knowledge in the first place. Fools have rejected the fear of the Lord. The term despise packs a strongly negative punch—not fearing God is the same as rejecting wisdom outright (see Dan. 11:32; John 17:3). 1:8, 9 The opening words of wisdom’s instruction come as an appeal from parents to their son (a generic term for child)—a theme that continues throughout the book. Both father and mother teach. 1:10–14 if sinners entice you: This is the first of several texts in which wisdom teaches by means of a story. 1:15–18 The parents speak words of caution. One step on this precipitous path is a step toward destruction. Spreading a net in the sight of the bird one wishes to trap would be a fruitless task. Yet the fool is less sensible than the bird; he will watch the trap being set and get caught in it anyway. 1:19 It takes away the life: These words conclude the story and introduce a theme that the following passages develop further: The study of wisdom is a matter of life and death. 1:20, 21 The word wisdom is plural but the verb calls is singular. The plural is intensive—it calls attention to the word and heightens its meaning. 1:22–27 Wisdom addresses the simple ones, or “open ones,” the naive. These are young people who have not yet made up their minds about life or the direction they will take. Wisdom ridicules those who reject her when they come to face the inevitable judgment of their foolishness (see Ps. 2:4). Yet Wisdom laughs with joy at God’s works and has delight in the people of God (8:30, 31). 1:28–33 I will not answer: When fools despise wisdom, they must face the results of their choice. Their hatred for wisdom arises out of a refusal to fear God (v. 29). Verses 31, 32 pick up the theme of v. 19 from the parents’ instruction: Fools bring about their own destruction. Rejection of wisdom will slay them. This dismal warning ends with a promise of life to the few who will listen; they will find safety and ease.

And did not <sup>w</sup> choose the fear of the LORD,
 30 <sup>x</sup> They would have none of my counsel
 And despised my every rebuke.
 31 Therefore <sup>y</sup> they shall eat the fruit of their own way,
 And be filled to the full with their own fancies.
 32 For the <sup>z</sup> turning away of the simple will slay them,
 And the complacency of fools will destroy them;
 33 But whoever listens to me will dwell <sup>aa</sup> safely,
 And <sup>ab</sup> will be <sup>ac</sup> secure, without fear of evil.”

The Value of Wisdom

2 My son, if you receive my words,
 And <sup>a</sup> treasure my commands within you,
 2 So that you incline your ear to wisdom,
 And apply your heart to understanding;
 3 Yes, if you cry out for discernment,
 And lift up your voice for understanding,
 4 <sup>b</sup> If you seek her as silver,
 And search for her as for hidden treasures;
 5 <sup>c</sup> Then you will understand the fear of the LORD,
 And find the knowledge of God.
 6 <sup>d</sup> For the LORD gives wisdom;
 From His mouth come knowledge and understanding;
 7 He stores up sound wisdom for the upright;
<sup>e</sup> He is a shield to those who walk uprightly;

 20 So you may walk in the way of goodness,
 And keep to the paths of righteousness.
 21 For the upright will dwell in the <sup>p</sup> land,
 And the blameless will remain in it;

2:1–4 These verses begin the second of the my son passages and tie the concepts of wisdom and the knowledge of God more closely together. On the one hand, wisdom is near and available. Yet it is not easy to embrace.

2:5–8 When a person seeks wisdom, he or she finds it in the fear of the LORD, or the knowledge of God. Those who know God fear (revere) Him. Verses 6–8 resemble the words of a psalm (compare Ps. 91). sound wisdom: Here is another word for wisdom, a word that may be translated “abiding success” or “victory.”

2:8–13 The phrase paths of justice (v. 8) contrasts strongly with ways of darkness (v. 13). This contrast introduces one of the dominant themes of Proverbs, the contrast of two roads. Jesus spoke of two roads, one narrow and the other broad (Matt. 7:13, 14). The right road is marked by demands of righteousness, justice, and equity (see 1:3). These demands come from God’s law.

2:10, 11 enters your heart: These words stress the internalization of wisdom. The proverbs do not merely provide knowledge; they provide insight to be learned intimately and practiced.

2:12–15 The way of evil (v. 12) contrasts directly with the way of wisdom. It is characterized by perverse things, by lies and distortion, by twisting and deception, and by darkness and deviousness.

2:16–19 The immoral woman is literally “the strange woman.” Adultery was foreign and strange to the ideal of God’s law. “Adulteress” also connoted prostitution, because the “foreign women” of the ancient Middle Eastern fertility cults included sexual practices in their worship rituals.

equity (Heb. meshar) (2:9; Ps. 17:2; 75:2; 99:4) Strong’s #4339: The verbal root of this word means “to be smooth, straight, or level.” Most of the occurrences of this word are in Psalms and Proverbs. Quite frequently, especially in Psalms, the word for equity appears in legal contexts with “righteousness” and “judgment,” indicating a fair or impartial hearing (8:6–8; Ps. 9:8; 58:1; 96:10; 98:9; Is. 45:19). Proverbs often associates equity with wisdom (8:6; 23:15, 16). It is used by the biblical writers to describe the speech of a righteous person, wisdom, and even God Himself (8:6; Is. 33:15; 45:19). God takes pleasure in equity; thus it is one of the bases of a righteous lifestyle (2:9; 1 Chr. 29:17; Is. 26:7).

Guidance for the Young

3 My son, do not forget my law,
<sup>a</sup> But let your heart keep my commands;
<sup>2</sup> For length of days and long life
And <sup>b</sup> peace they will add to you.
<sup>3</sup> Let not mercy and truth forsake you;
<sup>c</sup> Bind them around your neck,
<sup>d</sup> Write them on the tablet of your heart,
<sup>e</sup> And so find favor and <sup>1</sup> high esteem
In the sight of God and man.
<sup>4</sup> <sup>f</sup> Trust in the LORD with all your heart,
<sup>g</sup> And lean not on your own understanding;
And He shall <sup>2</sup> direct your paths.
<sup>7</sup> Do not be wise in your own <sup>i</sup> eyes;
Fear the LORD and depart from evil.
<sup>8</sup> It will be health to your <sup>3</sup> flesh,
And <sup>j</sup> strength <sup>4</sup> to your bones.
<sup>9</sup> <sup>k</sup> Honor the LORD with your possessions,
And with the firstfruits of all your increase;

10 <sup>1</sup> So your barns will be filled with plenty,
And your vats will overflow with new wine.
11 <sup>m</sup> My son, do not despise the chastening of the LORD,
Nor detest His correction;
12 For whom the LORD loves He corrects,
<sup>n</sup> Just as a father the son in whom he delights.
13 <sup>o</sup> Happy is the man who finds wisdom,
And the man who gains understanding;
14 <sup>p</sup> For her proceeds are better than the profits of silver,
And her gain than fine gold.
15 She is more precious than rubies,
And <sup>q</sup> all the things you may desire cannot compare with her.
16 <sup>r</sup> Length of days is in her right hand,
In her left hand riches and honor.
17 <sup>s</sup> Her ways are ways of pleasantness,
And all her paths are peace.
18 She is <sup>t</sup> a tree of life to those who take hold of her,
And happy are all who <sup>5</sup> retain her.
19 <sup>u</sup> The LORD by wisdom founded the earth;

18 <sup>t</sup> Gen. 2:9; Prov. 11:30; 13:12; 15:4; Rev. 2:7 <sup>5</sup> hold her fast
19 <sup>u</sup> Ps. 104:24; Prov. 8:27

3:1, 2 Law and commands are words that, as in 1:8, draw attention to the connection between wisdom and the Law of Moses. The proverbs are an application of the Law.
3:3, 4 Mercy and truth is an important pair of words in the Bible, describing God's character (see Ps. 100:5) and the demands He makes of His people. The apostle John used the Greek equivalent of these words, "grace and truth," to describe Jesus' character (John 1:14).
3:5, 6 The words trust in the LORD echo the command of Deut. 6:5 to love God with all our being. The verb trust is complemented by the verb "lean." Trusting in God is a conscious dependence on God, much like leaning on a tree for support. The idea is reinforced here by the command to acknowledge Him, which means to observe Him and get to know Him in the process of living. In doing so, a person finds time and time again that God smoothes out paths.
3:7-10 The promises in these verses describe general patterns, not rules that have no exceptions. These are the results that often follow a full commitment to God. The command to honor God with wealth and to give to Him from the firstfruits of all income is a part of what it means to worship God. In God's covenant with Israel, fullness of barns and vats was God's blessing, a part of God's covenant promise. Yet these verses should not be taken as a formula for getting rich. They speak of what righteous people can reasonably expect in life, not what God promises to return on investments.

3:11, 12 The discipline of the LORD is the other side of His grace. We should cherish God's correction in our lives, because God disciplines only those He loves (see Heb. 12:7-10).
3:13-18 Happy: The beatitudes of Jesus in the Sermon on the Mount (Matt. 5:3-12) work much the way these verses do. The Hebrew term blessed is an explosive word: "O the manifold happiness of" (see Ps. 1:1). It implies that God is truly pleased. The person who has discovered wisdom has found a priceless treasure. Adam and Eve were expelled from the Garden and forbidden access to the tree of life (Gen. 3:22-24), but wisdom is another tree of life and will begin to restore the lost happiness of Paradise.
3:19, 20 by wisdom founded the earth: One central theme in Proverbs is the association of wisdom with creation. Chapter 8 is devoted to this theme.

wisdom (Heb. chokmah) (3:13; 1 Kin. 4:29) Strong's #2451: The word chokmah also means "skill" and can refer to ability in craftsmanship (Ex. 31:6), in war (Is. 10:13), and in trade (Ezek. 28:4, 5). The most common use of chokmah is in reference to wisdom in daily living. This is the sense of the word as it is used throughout Proverbs, which teaches that true wisdom involves not only intelligence but also moral integrity (8:7-9). Because a sinful lifestyle is ultimately self-destructive, wisdom is extolled as the only path to a full and fruitful life (3:13-26). The source of wisdom is God, who by wisdom, founded the earth (3:19), numbered the clouds (Job 38:37), and made the world (Jer. 10:12). He alone can provide men and women with the wisdom to live righteously (2:6; Job 11:6).

By understanding He established the heavens;
 20 By His knowledge the depths were <sup>v</sup>broken up,
 And clouds drop down the dew.
 21 My son, let them not depart from your eyes—
 Keep sound wisdom and discretion;
 22 So they will be life to your soul
 And grace to your neck.
 23 <sup>w</sup> Then you will walk safely in your way,
 And your foot will not stumble.
 24 When you lie down, you will not be afraid;
 Yes, you will lie down and your sleep
     will be sweet.
 25 <sup>x</sup> Do not be afraid of sudden terror,
 Nor of trouble from the wicked when it comes;
 26 For the LORD will be your confidence,
 And will keep your foot from being caught.
 27 <sup>y</sup> Do not withhold good from <sup>z</sup> those to whom it is due,
 When it is in the power of your hand
     to do so.
 28 <sup>z</sup> Do not say to your neighbor,
 “Go, and come back,
     And tomorrow I will give it,”
 When you have it with you.
 29 Do not devise evil against your neighbor,
 For he dwells by you for safety’s sake.
 30 <sup>a</sup> Do not strive with a man without cause,
 If he has done you no harm.
 31 <sup>b</sup> Do not envy the oppressor,
 And choose none of his ways;

Security in Wisdom

4 Hear, <sup>a</sup> my children, the instruction of a father,
     And give attention to know
     understanding;
 2 For I give you good doctrine:
     Do not forsake my law.
 3 When I was my father’s son,
     <sup>b</sup>Tender and the only one in the sight of my mother,
 4 <sup>c</sup> He also taught me, and said
     to me:
     “Let your heart retain my words;
     <sup>d</sup>Keep my commands, and live.
 5 <sup>e</sup> Get wisdom! Get understanding!
     Do not forget, nor turn away from the words of my mouth.
 6 Do not forsake her, and she will preserve you;
     <sup>f</sup>Love her, and she will keep you.
 7 <sup>g</sup> Wisdom is the principal thing;
     Therefore get wisdom.
     And in all your getting, get
     understanding.
 8 <sup>h</sup> Exalt her, and she will promote you;
     She will bring you honor, when you embrace her.
 9 She will place on your head <sup>i</sup> an ornament of grace;
     A crown of glory she will deliver to
     you.”

3:21 let them not depart: This verse encourages the son to keep faith with wisdom. The intent is much like that of the Shema (see Deut. 6:4–9). It also resembles the basic ideas of Ps. 91 (compare v. 26 with Ps. 91:10–13).
3:28 This verse introduces a passage that explains the proper treatment of your neighbor, a theme that Jesus also developed (Luke 10:25–37).
3:31–35 There is no benefit in feeling envy for the wicked, because God detests wickedness. Only a fool would wish to be detestable to God! The section ends with a contrast of God’s blessing on the righteous and His curse on the wicked (see Gen. 12:3).
4:1–4 In most of the ancient Middle East instruction in wisdom was primarily a matter of training for the court. The masters were regarded as “fathers” of the students. But in Israel, training in wisdom extended to the home. Instruction of a father implies warmth and affection, as well as a parent’s concern and discipline. Verse 1 begins a little like the first parental section (1:8), but the addressee is now plural, my children. As his father had taught him, so the son now teaches his own sons, one generation instructing another. The call for parents to teach the things of God to their children is based on Deut. 6:7 and is reflected in the Psalms (as in Ps. 78:3, 4).

4:5–7 Verses 5–9 present an impassioned plea from the father to his sons to get wisdom whatever the cost. The presentation in these early chapters of Proverbs follows the pattern: statement, restatement, embellishment. By making generous use of creative restatement, the ideas come through all the more strongly. Particularly striking are the words of v. 7: Wisdom is the principal thing. The word principal is translated “the beginning of” in 1:7, but here it has the force of “first in importance.”
4:8, 9 These verses emphasize the supreme value of wisdom. The person who holds wisdom in highest esteem and embraces it fully will be exalted and honored; its very presence becomes an ornament of grace and a crown of glory. These metaphors are compelling calls for a heartfelt response (see 1:9; 3:3).

10 Hear, my son, and receive my sayings,
<sup>j</sup> And the years of your life will be many.
 11 I have <sup>k</sup>taught you in the way of wisdom;
 I have led you in right paths.
 12 When you walk, <sup>l</sup>your steps will not be hindered,
<sup>m</sup> And when you run, you will not stumble.
 13 Take firm hold of instruction, do not let go;
 Keep her, for she is your life.
 14 <sup>n</sup> Do not enter the path of the wicked,
 And do not walk in the way of evil.
 15 Avoid it, do not travel on it;
 Turn away from it and pass on.
 16 <sup>o</sup> For they do not sleep unless they have done evil;
 And their sleep is <sup>l</sup>taken away unless they make someone fall.
 17 For they eat the bread of wickedness,
 And drink the wine of violence.
 18 <sup>p</sup> But the path of the just <sup>q</sup>is like the shining <sup>2</sup>sun,
 That shines ever brighter unto the perfect day.
 19 <sup>r</sup> The way of the wicked is like darkness;
 They do not know what makes them stumble.
 20 My son, give attention to my words;
 Incline your ear to my sayings.
 21 Do not let them depart from your eyes;
 Keep them in the midst of your heart;
 22 For they are life to those who find them,
 And health to all their flesh.

And your eyelids look right before you.

 And let all your ways be established.
 27 Do not turn to the right or the left;
 Remove your foot from evil.

The Peril of Adultery

5 My son, pay attention to my wisdom;
<sup>1</sup> Lend your ear to my understanding,
 2 That you may <sup>2</sup>preserve discretion,
 And your lips <sup>4</sup>may keep knowledge.
 3 <sup>b</sup> For the lips of <sup>3</sup>an immoral woman drip honey,
 And her mouth is <sup>c</sup>smoother than oil;
 4 But in the end she is bitter as wormwood,
 Sharp as a two-edged sword.
 5 Her feet go down to death,
<sup>d</sup> Her steps lay hold of <sup>4</sup>hell.
 6 Lest you ponder her path of life—
 Her ways are unstable;
 You do not know them.
 7 Therefore hear me now, my children,
 And do not depart from the words of my mouth.
 8 Remove your way far from her,
 And do not go near the door of her house,
 9 Lest you give your <sup>5</sup>honor to others,
 And your years to the cruel one;
 10 Lest aliens be filled with your <sup>6</sup>wealth,
 And your labors go to the house of a foreigner;
 11 And you mourn at last,
 When your flesh and your body are consumed,
 12 And say:
 “How I have hated instruction,
 And my heart despised correction!
 13 I have not obeyed the voice of my teachers,
 Nor inclined my ear to those who instructed me!
 14 I was on the verge of total ruin,
 In the midst of the assembly and congregation.”

4:10–19 These verses present a renewed appeal from father to son to walk in the way of wisdom and to avoid the path of the wicked at all costs. The contrast of the two paths is profound. The way of wisdom is straight, unencumbered, and safe. The way of the wicked is tortuous, hazardous, and marked by violence. One road is a path of light, the other of darkness; one leads to promise, the other to a stumbling destruction.
 4:20–27 This section demands constancy of heart and purpose, honesty in speech, steadiness of gaze, and a right goal in walk and life. Setting off on the path of wisdom is no casual thing. Much of this chapter reiterates and refines the themes found in chs. 1–3. The emphasis on virtue prepares us for the frightening warnings of ch. 5.

 5:1–6 Chapter 5 returns to the theme of the immoral woman (see 2:16–19). This passage speaks strongly for marital fidelity against any and all pressure to the contrary. If you want to preserve discretion, heed these words, lest your feet go down to death.
 5:8–10 The Bible teaches elsewhere that temptation in general is unavoidable, but some temptations should be avoided at all costs. A wise son knows this and will not go near an immoral woman. The apostle Paul’s instruction to Timothy to flee youthful lusts (2 Tim. 2:22) teaches the same theme. Involvement with such sin dishonors and consumes all who fall into it.

15 Drink water from your own cistern,
And running water from your own well.
16 Should your fountains be dispersed abroad,

7 Streams of water in the streets?
17 Let them be only your own,
And not for strangers with
you.
18 Let your fountain be blessed,

5:15 In an arid country like Israel, a well was a prized possession and a privilege to be cared for. So was (and is) a spouse. Drink water is an oblique reference to sexual union (see 9:17), and from your own cistern is a clear call to marital fidelity—one man, one woman, together in marriage. The writers of the Bible sometimes speak of salvation as a spring (Is. 12:3); to call one's spouse a spring of water was a term of endearment (see Song 4:15).

The Poetry of the Proverbs A proverb is a self-contained unit that presents a capsule truth about life, the world, and the way God works. The Book of Proverbs contains many hundreds of these “sayings of the wise.” They are written in Hebrew poetic style, with its customary varieties of parallel units. They often employ bold imagery and daring uses of language. They are short, memorable, and transferable to all people of all times. Sometimes they state what is obvious to all, and sometimes they reveal what cannot be seen by direct observation.

Proverbs is cast in Hebrew poetry, a rich pattern of rhetoric that shares with poetry of many cultures a special use of words for effect, sound and sense, vivid imagery, and concise language. In contrast to other types of poetry, Hebrew poets—from the psalmists to the authors of proverbs—use parallelism, the repetition of related thoughts (see the article on “The Poetry of the Psalms,” Ps. 2, p. 821).

Synonymous parallelism restates the first line in slightly different terms:

A good name is to be chosen rather than great riches,
Loving favor rather than silver and gold. (22:1)

Both lines say nearly the same thing; but the restatement drives the point home. The pattern is: “A is so; so is B.”

Antithetical parallelism expresses the thought negatively:

A prudent man foresees evil and hides himself,
But the simple pass on and are punished. (22:3)

This proverb contrasts the prudent person with the simple person. The antithesis goes both ways. Each line amplifies and explains the other.

Climactic parallelism is when the second line completes the thought of the first line:

The rich and the poor have this in common,
The LORD is the maker of them all. (22:2)

The two lines are incomplete without each other.

Finally, many of the proverbs are based on comparisons between two parallel lines. These are the “better than” proverbs:

Better is a little with righteousness,
Than vast revenues without justice. (16:8)

All these examples illustrate the heart of Hebrew poetry: parallelism. Each verse sharpens and heightens the thought by use of restatement, comparison, and building to a climax. These subtle devices draw us in and cause us to see and understand the point of each proverb more clearly.

A proverb is memorable and transferable. A modern example is the saying “A stitch in time saves nine,” which comes from the observation that fixing a loose thread when it first starts to loosen saves the trouble of resewing the whole seam later on. This terse statement is short and easy to remember. It also applies to many areas of life—to the timely changing of a car’s oil or to interpersonal conflicts as well as to sewing.

The Hebrew proverb typically compares a principle with an ordinary human experience to illustrate its truth. Proverbs 21:17, for example, speaks of love of “wine and oil” to illustrate the danger of indulging in luxury. Everyone has felt a desire to have the best. The concrete example encourages us to see the truth of the proverb and to apply it immediately to our lives.

It is important to keep in mind that most proverbs are generalizations, not promises or predictions of the future. They report what we observe to be true most often, or what we can reasonably expect God to do. All of them rely on the assumption that final outcomes include eternity—which is to say, things may not turn out the way we hoped in this life. In keeping with this, the verbs in most proverbs use a tense that depicts actions repeated regularly, indicating that proverbs should be treated as guidelines.

- <sup>19</sup> <sup>f</sup>As a loving deer and a graceful doe,
Let her breasts satisfy you at all times;
And always be <sup>g</sup>enraptured with her love.
- <sup>20</sup> For why should you, my son, be enraptured by <sup>g</sup>an immoral woman,
And be embraced in the arms of a seductress?

- <sup>21</sup> <sup>h</sup>For the ways of man are before the eyes of the LORD,
And He <sup>g</sup>ponders all his paths.
- <sup>22</sup> <sup>i</sup>His own iniquities entrap the wicked man,
And he is caught in the cords of his sin.
- <sup>23</sup> <sup>j</sup>He shall die for lack of instruction,
And in the greatness of his folly he shall go astray.

Dangerous Promises

- 6 My son, <sup>a</sup>if you become <sup>1</sup>surety for your friend,
If you have <sup>2</sup>shaken hands in pledge for a stranger,

You are taken by the words of your mouth.
- <sup>3</sup> So do this, my son, and deliver yourself;
For you have come into the hand of your friend:
Go and humble yourself;
Plead with your friend.
- <sup>4</sup> <sup>b</sup>Give no sleep to your eyes,
Nor slumber to your eyelids.

The Folly of Indolence

- <sup>6</sup> <sup>c</sup>Go to the ant, you sluggard!
Consider her ways and be wise,
<sup>7</sup> Which, having no <sup>d</sup>captain,
Overseer or ruler,
<sup>8</sup> Provides her <sup>e</sup>supplies in the summer,
And gathers her food in the harvest.
- <sup>9</sup> <sup>d</sup>How long will you <sup>e</sup>slumber,
O sluggard?
When will you rise from your sleep?
<sup>10</sup> A little sleep, a little slumber,
A little folding of the hands to sleep—
<sup>11</sup> <sup>e</sup>So shall your poverty come on you like a prowler,
And your need like an armed man.

The Wicked Man

- <sup>12</sup> A worthless person, a wicked man, Walks with a perverse mouth;
<sup>13</sup> <sup>f</sup>He winks with his eyes,
He <sup>g</sup>shuffles his feet,
He points with his fingers;
<sup>14</sup> Perversity is in his heart,
<sup>g</sup>He devises evil continually,
- <sup>15</sup> Therefore his calamity shall come <sup>i</sup>suddenly;
Suddenly he shall <sup>j</sup>be broken <sup>k</sup>without remedy.
- <sup>16</sup> These six things the LORD hates,
Yes, seven are an abomination to <sup>8</sup>Him:
<sup>17</sup> <sup>1</sup> A <sup>o</sup> proud look,

5:18–20 The words rejoice with the wife of your youth comprise a command and an encouragement to find pleasure in the mutual joy of married love. Indeed, pleasure in the marriage bed is blest by God (see Song; Heb. 13:4).

6:1–5 These verses warn against putting up surety (see 11:15), or cosigning a loan. This does not mean we should never be generous or helpful if we have the means, only that we should not promise what we cannot deliver. In Solomon's day, a cosigner who could not pay could lose all he had and be reduced to slavery besides. Even though laws differ today, inability to pay a debt is still a form of bondage and can be a serious problem. Modern conditions are different than in OT times, but the warning still applies.

6:6–11 This passage warns against the trap of laziness. The sluggard or lazy person is held captive to leisure. He can learn all he needs to know by studying the ant, a humble creature that busies itself with storing food during the summer against the winter that lies ahead. Like the ant, a wise person works hard. By contrast, the lazy person is addicted to sleep and has lost all interest in work (see 26:13–16).

6:12–15 A wicked man is a troublemaker. Unlike the sluggard, whose only desire is another place to nap, the troublemaker cannot wait to cause more problems or to get into more mischief. Unlike the sluggard (see v. 6), he is too busy, though he is doing the wrong things. He delights in bringing dissension. But like the sluggard, he does not realize that calamity awaits him.

6:16–19 This passage is a numerical proverb (see 30:15–31) that describes seven things that the LORD hates. The use of numerical progression—six, even seven—in these proverbs is a rhetorical device that embellishes the poetry, provides a memory aid, and builds to a climax. The progression involves not just the numbers but also the words that describe God's response; the word hates progresses to abomination. The word abomination is the Bible's strongest expression of hatred for wickedness (compare Lev. 18:22). In a list of this type, the last item is the most prominent. Thus the reader knows that causing discord among brethren (see v. 14) causes God's greatest disapproval. Contrast the blessing of God on brothers who live together in peace (Ps. 133:1).

Beware of Adultery

20 <sup>s</sup> My son, keep your father's command,
 And do not forsake the law of your mother.
 21 <sup>t</sup> Bind them continually upon your heart;
 Tie them around your neck.
 22 <sup>u</sup> When you roam, <sup>v</sup> they will lead you;
 When you sleep, <sup>w</sup> they will keep you;
 And when you awake, they will speak with you.
 23 <sup>w</sup> For the commandment is a lamp,
 And the law a light;
 Reprints of instruction are the way
 of life,
 24 <sup>x</sup> To keep you from the evil woman,
 From the flattering tongue of a seductress.
 25 <sup>y</sup> Do not lust after her beauty in your heart,
 Nor let her allure you with her eyelids.
 26 For <sup>z</sup> by means of a harlot
 A man is reduced to a crust of bread;
<sup>a</sup> And <sup>2</sup> an adulteress will <sup>b</sup> prey upon his precious life.
 27 Can a man take fire to his bosom,
 And his clothes not be burned?
 28 Can one walk on hot coals,
 And his feet not be seared?
 29 So is he who goes in to his neighbor's wife;

Whoever touches her shall not be innocent.

30 People do not despise a thief
 If he steals to satisfy himself when he is starving.
 31 Yet when he is found, <sup>c</sup> he must restore sevenfold;
 He may have to give up all the substance of his house.
 32 Whoever commits adultery with a woman <sup>d</sup> lacks understanding;
 He who does so destroys his own
 soul.
 33 Wounds and dishonor he will get,
 And his reproach will not be wiped away.
 34 For <sup>e</sup> jealousy is a husband's fury;
 Therefore he will not spare in the day of vengeance.
 35 He will <sup>3</sup> accept no recompense,
 Nor will he be appeased though you give many gifts.

7 My son, keep my words,
 And <sup>a</sup> treasure my commands within
 you.
 2 <sup>b</sup> Keep my commands and live,
<sup>c</sup> And my law as the apple of your eye.
 3 <sup>d</sup> Bind them on your fingers;
 Write them on the tablet of your heart.
 4 Say to wisdom, "You are my sister,"
 And call understanding your nearest kin,
 5 <sup>e</sup> That they may keep you from the immoral woman,
 From the seductress who flatters with her words.

Wisdom Cries Out

Wisdom is personified in the Proverbs and acts as God's dynamic Word. In the New Testament, Jesus becomes the Wisdom and Word of God.

Origin of Wisdom	Teaching of Wisdom	Value of Wisdom
In God (v. 22) From everlasting (v. 23) Before all things (vv. 23-30)	Prudence (vv. 5, 12) Understanding (v. 5) Excellent things (v. 6) Truth (v. 7) Hatred of wickedness (v. 7) Righteousness (v. 8) Knowledge (v. 12) Discretion (v. 12) Fear of the Lord (v. 13)	Yields riches and honor (v. 18) Greater than gold and silver (v. 19) The wise are blessed (vv. 32, 34) The wise find life (v. 35) The foolish love death (v. 36)

6:20-24 This passage links the teaching of the father with that of the mother (see 1:8). The mother's instruction should be bound about one's heart and neck, a constant companion and a trusted guide—just like God's law (compare Deut. 6:4-9; 11:18-21). lamp . . . light: Compare Ps. 119:105.
6:30-35 steals to satisfy: This passage does not condone theft. It merely contrasts theft, which can be an understandable course of action, with adultery, which never makes sense.

Throwing away one's commitment to one's life-long companion is pure folly. For the ancient Israelites, marital fidelity was a mark of one's fidelity to God.
7:1-5 The problem of immorality (see 2:16-19; 5:1-23; 6:20-35) does have a solution: Keep my commands . . . as the apple of your eye. People should guard wise words as instinctively as they protect the pupil of the eye. God cares for His people with the same diligence (Deut. 32:10).

The Crafty Harlot

6 For at the window of my house
I looked through my lattice,
7 And saw among the simple,
I perceived among the <sup>1</sup>youths,
A young man <sup>1</sup>devoid <sup>2</sup> of
understanding,
8 Passing along the street near her corner;
And he took the path to her house
9 <sup>9</sup>In the twilight, in the evening,
In the black and dark night.
10 And there a woman met him,
With the attire of a harlot, and a crafty heart.
11 <sup>h</sup>She was loud and rebellious,
<sup>i</sup>Her feet would not stay at home.
12 At times she was outside, at times in the open square,
Lurking at every corner.
13 So she caught him and kissed him;
With an <sup>3</sup>impudent face she said to
him:
14 “I have peace offerings with me;
Today I have paid my vows.
15 So I came out to meet you,
Diligently to seek your face,
And I have found you.
16 I have spread my bed with tapestry,
Colored coverings of <sup>j</sup>Egyptian linen.
17 I have perfumed my bed
With myrrh, aloes, and cinnamon.
18 Come, let us take our fill of love until morning;
Let us delight ourselves with love.
19 For <sup>4</sup>my husband is not at home;
He has gone on a long journey;
20 He has taken a bag of money <sup>5</sup>with
him,
And will come home <sup>6</sup>on the appointed day.”
21 <sup>7</sup>With <sup>k</sup>her enticing speech she caused him to yield,
<sup>l</sup>With her flattering lips she <sup>8</sup>seduced
him.

27 <sup>o</sup>Her house is the way to <sup>3</sup>hell,
Descending to the chambers of death.

The Excellence of Wisdom

8 Does not <sup>a</sup>wisdom cry out,
And understanding lift up her voice?
2 She takes her stand on the top of the <sup>1</sup>high hill,
Beside the way, where the paths meet.
3 She cries out by the gates, at the entry of the city,
At the entrance of the doors:
4 “To you, O men, I call,
And my voice is to the sons of men.
5 O you <sup>2</sup>simple ones, understand prudence,
And you fools, be of an understanding heart.
6 Listen, for I will speak of <sup>b</sup>excellent things,
And from the opening of my lips will
come right things;
7 For my mouth will speak truth;
Wickedness is an abomination to my lips.

7:6–10 The young man who gives in to the immoral woman is described as simple, a term that pegs him as naive, inexperienced, and devoid of understanding (see 1:4; 9:3). He has no idea how foolish he is. He thinks he makes his way to the woman, but she in fact seduces him.
7:14–20 All the adulteress does is perverse. She audaciously begins her proposition by talking about her supposedly righteous actions that day. Since the offerings she presented to the Lord were fellowship or peace offerings, she could bring part of them home for a feast before the Lord. But here she presents the offering as a feast for the young man she plans to entrap. Her preparations and her words of invitation might pass between a wife and husband and be honored by God. But in her mouth these words become evil. She overcomes her target’s fear by assuring him that her husband will not come home and discover them together.

7:22, 23 The passage here uses several unflattering metaphors to describe how a young fool falls into immorality. The phrase as a fool to the correction of the stocks could be translated “as a stag prances into captivity.” The idea is that the young man is oblivious to his fate. Such a fool has no idea how foolish he is.
8:1–11 Chapter 8 is a hymn of praise about how wonderful wisdom is. Does not wisdom cry out: Wisdom wants to reach everyone and therefore broadcasts her message publicly, unlike the immoral woman, who uses privacy and deception to achieve her goals. Wisdom’s words can be trusted, and her offers of grace are beneficial. Her words of truth contrast with the lies of wickedness 7:21–23; wisdom will deliver on her promises; she is not a tawdry tease. What wisdom offers is of inestimable worth, far more valuable than silver and gold; no gems or other desirable things may be compared with it (see 3:14, 15 for a similar expression).

8 All the words of my mouth are with righteousness;
Nothing crooked or perverse is in them.

9 They are all plain to him who understands,
And right to those who find knowledge.

30 <sup>q</sup>Then I was beside Him as <sup>r</sup>a master craftsman;
Rejoicing always before Him,

8:12, 13 The words I, wisdom, dwell with prudence introduce the second section of this passage about the excellence of wisdom (vv. 12–21). Again in this context we see wisdom tied directly to the fear of the LORD. The offer of wisdom is held out only to those who fear God. Coming to wisdom requires coming to God, and coming to God means turning away from all that God hates—evil, pride, arrogance, misbehavior, and perverse speech. Jesus said that the truth is found in Him (see John 8:32).

8:14–18 princes . . . nobles . . . judges: Power and authority require the use of wisdom; this is one of its loftiest appeals. What’s more, wisdom leads those who follow her to riches and honor (see 9:1–6). These contrast directly with the shameful fate of the fool (6:33, 35).

8:22–31 This section of ch. 8 describes wisdom’s role in creation. The LORD possessed me at the beginning of His way: The Hebrew verb for possessed can mean “brought forth” or “created.” Melchizedek used the same word to identify God as creator of the universe (see Gen. 14:19). God, who is ever wise, produced wisdom; God, who possesses all knowledge, brought forth knowledge. Wisdom had a beginning only in the sense that God singled it out for special display at that time; insofar as it is one of God’s perfections, it has always existed (v. 23). These verses provide part of the background for the NT portrayal of Christ as the divine Word (John 1:1–3) and as the wisdom of God (1 Cor. 1:24, 30; Col. 2:3).

8:30, 31 The term master craftsman speaks of an artisan or of a darling child. Wisdom is both. With wisdom’s skill, God created the universe. A proper study of the universe is a progressive discovery of God’s wisdom (see Rom. 1:20). delight: In her playful, childlike exuberance, Wisdom is a darling child. And her greatest joy comes in the finest of the work of God—the sons of men—that is, humankind.

instruction (Heb. musar) (1:2; 4:1; 8:10; Deut. 11:2; Is. 26:16; 53:5) Strong’s #4148: The Hebrew word translated instruction means “discipline” that is instructive and corrective in nature. The word emphasizes the “nourishing” and “chastising” elements of bringing up a child. Instruction has to do with both the reception of knowledge through hearing and the application of that knowledge in daily life. In Proverbs, discipline comes primarily through one’s father but also through one’s mother (see 1:8; 3:11, 12, 13:1; 31:1). Usually the word refers to verbal instruction, but it can also refer to the rod of correction (see 13:24; 22:15; 23:13). The content of the instruction is frequently linked to wisdom, knowledge, and the fear of the Lord (1:2, 3; 12:1; 15:33; 23:12, 13). Outside of Proverbs, discipline and instruction is frequently connected to God. The Exile was identified by the prophets as God’s corrective punishment on the Israelites (Jer. 2:30; 5:3; 30:14).

- 31 Rejoicing in His inhabited world,
And <sup>s</sup>my delight was with the sons of men.
- 32 “Now therefore, listen to me, my children,
For <sup>t</sup>“blessed are those who keep my

- 33 Hear instruction and be wise,
And do not disdain it.
- 34 “Blessed is the man who listens to me,
Watching daily at my gates,
Waiting at the posts of my doors.
- 35 For whoever finds me finds life,
And <sup>v</sup>obtains favor from the LORD;
36 But he who sins against me <sup>w</sup>“wrongs
his own soul;
All those who hate me love death.”

The Way of Wisdom

- 9 Wisdom has <sup>a</sup>built her house,
She has hewn out her seven pillars;
2 <sup>b</sup>She has slaughtered her meat,
“She has mixed her wine,
She has also <sup>1</sup>furnished her table.
3 She has sent out her maidens,
She cries out from the highest places
of the city,
4 “Whoever <sup>d</sup>is simple, let him turn in here!”
As for him who lacks understanding,
she says to him,
5 “Come, <sup>e</sup>eat of my bread
And drink of the wine I have mixed.
6 Forsake foolishness and live,
And go in the way of understanding.

The Way of Folly

- 13 <sup>l</sup> A foolish woman is <sup>2</sup>clamorous;
She is simple, and knows nothing.
- 14 For she sits at the door of her house,
On a seat <sup>m</sup>by the highest places of the city,
15 To call to those who pass by,
Who go straight on their way:
16 “Whoever <sup>n</sup>is <sup>3</sup>simple, let him turn in
here”;

8:32–36 Now therefore, listen to me, my children: This section is the epilogue of the ch. 8 hymn of praise. It calls everyone to listen. Wisdom offers blessing and life to those who heed her, but cursing and death to those who hate her. Wisdom’s gracious invitation is more desirable than anything and an invitation to a blessed life.

9:1 Here is the final contrast between wisdom and folly. Each holds a banquet, one for life (vv. 1–6) and one for death (vv. 13–18). Between the two banquet descriptions is a section (vv. 7–12) that speaks of consequences of the life of wisdom and of the plight of folly. Wisdom has built her house: Here as in 1:20, the term for wisdom is in the intensive plural rather than the singular. It calls attention to itself. Seven pillars: The number seven represents completeness, as it often does in Semitic poetry. That is, it is not that there were precisely seven pillars so much as that the house of wisdom was solidly built and substantial in character.

9:2, 3 The meal at wisdom’s banquet includes meat and wine and a lovely table (see 7:14). Freshly butchered meat was a mark of a feast in biblical times. mixed her wine: Wine was a staple in ancient Israel; but when a feast was special, a home-maker would add aromatic spices to the wine, enlivening the bouquet and improving the taste (see Song 8:2). This all sets up a contrast with the foolish woman. While wisdom is busy, attending to every detail like a gracious hostess, the foolish woman sits at the entrance of her house with very little to do (v. 14). Wisdom sends her trusted maidens throughout the city, inviting people to come and dine.

9:4–6 Wisdom makes a point of inviting the simple, meaning those who have not yet made up their minds about their course in life (see 1:4; 7:6). bread . . . wine: Wisdom promises life. Forsake foolishness: The person who comes to wisdom has nothing to lose but naiveté. See Heb. 5:14, which speaks of a mature person as one who is able to eat and to enjoy solid food, in contrast to the naive who is able only to drink milk (Heb. 5:13).

9:7–9 A scoffer or mocker is thoroughly set against wisdom (see 1:22) and scoffs at the things of God (Ps. 1:1). How should a person respond to a mocker? It is best not to respond at all. By contrast, a wise man accepts correction and responds with gratitude to the one who points out his error. A wise person always welcomes constructive criticism; by implication, he or she is also humble (v. 10; 3:7; 11:2).

9:10–12 fear of the LORD: This is the central theme of the Book of Proverbs (see 1:7). The only appropriate way to approach the holy God is with fear, that is, reverence. The term Holy One is an intensive plural of the Hebrew word for holy: “the most Holy One” or “the quintessence of holiness.” for yourself . . . alone: You will feel the effects of your wisdom or foolishness directly; you cannot escape them.

9:13–18 This section is a parody of vv. 1–6. Like personified wisdom, the foolish woman calls out an invitation. But she is brash, loud, undisciplined, and knows nothing (see 7:10–12). She cries out in the same words that wisdom has used (compare v. 16 with v. 4), but with a twist: she has no marvelous banquet for her guests, only shabby food, stolen and meager. Though she gets lots of attention, her appeal makes sense only to him who lacks understanding.

- And as for him who lacks understanding, she says to him, 17 “Stolen<sup>o</sup> water is sweet,
 And bread eaten in secret is pleasant.”
 18 But he does not know that<sup>p</sup> the dead are there,
 That her guests are in the depths of<sup>4</sup> hell.

Wise Sayings of Solomon

10 The proverbs of<sup>a</sup> Solomon:

- <sup>b</sup> A wise son makes a glad father,
 But a foolish son is the grief of his mother.
 2 “Treasures of wickedness profit nothing,
<sup>d</sup> But righteousness delivers from death.
 3 “The LORD will not allow the righteous soul to famish,
 But He casts away the desire of the wicked.
 4 <sup>j</sup> He who has a slack hand becomes poor,
 But <sup>g</sup> the hand of the diligent makes rich.
 5 He who gathers in<sup>h</sup> summer is a wise son;
 He who sleeps in harvest is<sup>i</sup> a son who causes shame.

 7 <sup>j</sup> The memory of the righteous is blessed,
 But the name of the wicked will rot.
 8 The wise in heart will receive commands,
<sup>k</sup> But <sup>l</sup> a prating fool will <sup>2</sup> fall.
 9 <sup>j</sup> He who walks with integrity walks securely,
 But he who perverts his ways will become known.
 10 He who winks with the eye causes trouble,
 But a prating fool will fall.
 11 The mouth of the righteous is a well of life,
 But violence covers the mouth of the wicked.
 12 Hatred stirs up strife,
 But <sup>m</sup> love covers all sins.
 13 Wisdom is found on the lips of him who has understanding,
 But <sup>n</sup> a rod is for the back of him who <sup>3</sup> is devoid of understanding.

10:1 The proverbs of Solomon focus on the wise son, as in chs. 1–9, and contrast him with the foolish son. The term son is generic—the central issue is not that he is a son rather than a daughter, but that he is wise or foolish. The child’s behavior affects both parents. Both parents find their joy or sadness in their child who demonstrates skill in life. The tense of the verbs suggests that time after time a wise child gladdens parents, and time after time a foolish child brings distress to parents.

10:3 This verse speaks of God’s gracious provision of food for the righteous and His retributive justice on the wicked. Proverbs such as this emphasize (1) circumstances as they ought to be and (2) the end of the wicked (see Ps. 73:17). They do not necessarily indicate circumstances as they always are, nor what the wicked are experiencing right now.

10:4 slack hand . . . poor: Proverbs often link laziness with poverty, and hard work with riches, but not always (see v. 2). This proverb states the norm.

10:5 Gathers in summer contrasts a skillful person with a shameful person, based on whether he works hard during the harvest season. The description of the second person is particularly critical: “he who snores away during the harvest.”

10:7 In biblical times, a person’s name was significant and important. When a person’s name was remembered by future generations for good, that person’s life was believed to have been of great value. But when the memory of a name rotted away, it was as though that person had never lived.

10:8 The Hebrew verb for will fall means “is ruined” and comes from the same root as the verb will rot in v. 7. This type of poetic parallelism would have delighted the ancient Israelites.

10:9 Many of the proverbs contrast two paths of life. Walks with integrity means conforming to God’s law as a course of life. Choosing crooked paths is willfully to disdain the Law God so graciously provided.

10:10 winks with the eye: Although many proverbs contrast two behaviors, both units of this proverb speak of evil actions. Moreover, the second unit of this verse is identical with the second unit of v. 8; this is a connective link that ties the passage together.

10:12 Hatred . . . love: This verse describes interpersonal relationships, not salvation. When people respond in love to each other, they cover over the sins, or offenses, that would otherwise come between them.

10:13 This proverb tells of the positive role that speech can have—that of speaking wisdom. The rod refers to punishment, in this case deserved. The term devoid of understanding comes from the Hebrew idiom “lack heart.” The one who “lacks heart” is contrasted with the one who is “wise in heart” (see v. 8).

proverb (Heb. mashal) (10:1; 1 Sam. 10:12; 24:13; Ezek. 14:8) Strong’s #4912: This Hebrew word means an “insightful saying.” The word is commonly associated with Solomon, who spoke some three thousand proverbs (1 Kin. 4:32; Eccl. 12:9). In Proverbs, the section headings indicate that both the two-line witty adage and the longer instructions of wisdom can be called by this name (see 1:1; 10:1; 25:1). In Job, even an extended philosophical discourse can be called a proverb (Job 27:1; 29:1). In Ezekiel, the insightful saying can take on the form of a parable (see Ezek. 17:2; 24:3). The Book of Proverbs makes it clear that all of these sayings are exclusively the domain of the wise (1:6; 26:7, 9). They are intended to instruct us in the realities of life, the truth, and most importantly the fear of God (1:6, 7).

- 14 Wise people store up knowledge,
But <sup>o</sup>the mouth of the foolish is near destruction.
- 15 The <sup>p</sup>rich man's wealth is his strong
city;
The destruction of the poor is their poverty.
- 16 The labor of the righteous leads to <sup>q</sup>life,
The wages of the wicked to sin.
- 17 He who keeps instruction is in the way of life,
But he who refuses correction <sup>4</sup>goes astray.
- 18 Whoever <sup>r</sup>hides hatred has lying lips,
And <sup>s</sup>whoever spreads slander is a fool.
- 19 <sup>t</sup>In the multitude of words sin is not lacking,
But <sup>u</sup>he who restrains his lips is wise.
- 20 The tongue of the righteous is choice
silver;
The heart of the wicked is worth little.
- 21 The lips of the righteous feed many,
But fools die for lack of <sup>v</sup>wisdom.
- 22 <sup>w</sup>The blessing of the LORD makes one rich,
And He adds no sorrow with it.
- 23 <sup>x</sup>To do evil is like sport to a fool,
But a man of understanding has wisdom.

But <sup>c</sup>the years of the wicked will be shortened.
- 28 The hope of the righteous will be gladness,
But the <sup>d</sup>expectation of the wicked will perish.
- 29 The way of the LORD is strength for the upright,
But <sup>e</sup>destruction will come to the workers of iniquity.
- 30 <sup>f</sup>The righteous will never be removed,
But the wicked will not inhabit the 10:14, 15 To store up knowledge is a strong theme in the instruction section of chs. 1—9 (see 1:1–3; 3:1). This set of verses contrasts the wise person's pursuit of knowledge with the empty talk of a fool. Wealth is like a strong city. In biblical times only walled cities had any defense against enemy armies; likewise, a wealthy person is able to withstand the assaults of others.

10:16, 17 These verses present the doctrine of the two ways: the righteous is on the way of life, but the wicked wander from it. The phrase wages of the wicked is similar to Paul's expression in Rom. 6:23: "the wages of sin is death."

10:18–21 These verses tell of the dangers of speech, particularly lying and slander. The way to avoid these sins is to exercise restraint.

10:23, 24 The word translated sport usually means "joyous laughter" (see Job 8:21; Ps. 126:2). At times it means "hollow laughter" (14:13; Eccl. 7:3, 6). Here the proverb uses the word in a completely negative sense. For the fool, wickedness is only a game. He makes up the rules as he goes along; for him losing is only in getting caught. But a person who has understanding takes a longer-term perspective. In the end he gets his way while justice comes upon the wicked.

10:25 The short-lived nature of the wicked is contrasted with the stability of the righteous. As in Ps. 1:3, 4, where the righteous are compared to a tree and the wicked to chaff, so in this proverb the storm blows away the wicked but cannot dislodge the righteous. The everlasting foundation of the righteous is faith in God, much like the waters that nourish the tree of Ps. 1:3.

10:27 This verse contains the first instance of the phrase the fear of the LORD in chs. 10—22 (see 1:7, 29; 2:5; 8:13; 9:10). The tie of piety to long life and of wickedness to an early death is another common theme in Proverbs (see 3:1, 2).

10:28 hope . . . expectation: The righteous have something to look forward to; the wicked do not (v. 24).

10:29 Different people see the way of the LORD differently. Those who are innocent see it as a shelter from the storm and the heat of the day. Those who practice iniquity see it only as a source of terror. The viewer's perspective makes all the difference; the way of the Lord itself remains constant and true.

10:30 This proverb presents a confident hope in the ultimate survival of the righteous and the final judgment of the wicked. In our limited experience, we might see the wicked succeeding and the righteous only struggling to live. But the final judgment (see Ps. 73) will reverse their fortunes.

10:31, 32 These verses form another pair of sentences about true and false speech. They may be compared to vv. 11, 13, 20, 21 and James 3. This repetition with variation indicates the significance of truth and falsehood in both ancient Israel and in the modern world as well.

- 11 Dishonest<sup>a</sup> scales are an abomination to the LORD, But a<sup>2</sup> just weight is His delight.
- 2 When pride comes, then comes<sup>b</sup> shame; But with the humble is wisdom.
- 3 The integrity of the upright will guide<sup>c</sup> them, But the perversity of the unfaithful will destroy them.
- 4 Riches do not profit in the day of wrath, But<sup>e</sup> righteousness delivers from death.
- 5 The righteousness of the blameless will<sup>3</sup> direct his way aright, But the wicked will fall by his own<sup>f</sup> wickedness.
- 6 The righteousness of the upright will deliver them, But the unfaithful will be caught by their lust.
- 7 When a wicked man dies, his expectation will<sup>g</sup> perish, And the hope of the unjust perishes.
- 8<sup>h</sup> The righteous is delivered from trouble, And it comes to the wicked instead.
- 9 The hypocrite with his mouth destroys his neighbor, But through knowledge the righteous will be delivered.
- 10<sup>i</sup> When it goes well with the righteous, the city rejoices; And when the wicked perish, there is jubilation.
- 11 By the blessing of the upright the city is<sup>j</sup> exalted,

- But it is overthrown by the mouth of the wicked.
- 12 He who<sup>4</sup> is devoid of wisdom despises his neighbor, But a man of understanding holds his peace.
- 13<sup>k</sup> A talebearer reveals secrets, But he who is of a faithful spirit<sup>l</sup> conceals a matter.
- 14<sup>m</sup> Where there is no counsel, the people fall; But in the multitude of counselors there is safety.
- 15 He who is<sup>n</sup> surety<sup>5</sup> for a stranger will suffer, But one who hates<sup>o</sup> being surety is secure.
- 16 A gracious woman retains honor, But ruthless men retain riches.
- 17<sup>o</sup> The merciful man does good for his own soul, But he who is cruel troubles his own flesh.
- 18 The wicked man does deceptive work, But<sup>p</sup> he who sows righteousness will have a sure reward.
- 19 As righteousness leads to<sup>q</sup> life, So he who pursues evil pursues it to his own<sup>r</sup> death.
- 20 Those who are of a perverse heart are an abomination to the LORD, But the blameless in their ways are His delight.
- 21<sup>s</sup> Though they join<sup>7</sup> forces, the wicked will not go unpunished;

11:1 Dealing fairly with one another is an outgrowth of the command to love one's neighbor as oneself (see Lev. 19:18), which in turn is an outgrowth of the central command given to Israel, to love God alone (see Deut. 6:4-9). That is why false balances are an abomination to God, a term that refers to stomach-wrenching hatred.

11:2 Many proverbs contrast the arrogant with the humble, as this one does. The Hebrew word for pride comes from a root that means "to boil up"; it refers to a raging arrogance or insolence. The image pictures the presumptuous or arrogant behavior of the godless person. Such behavior always leads to shame.

11:3-6 These verses form a series of proverbs that contrast the results of righteousness and perversity in people's lives. As pride and humility are contrasted in v. 2, so integrity and perversity are contrasted in v. 3.

11:4 From time to time the proverbs speak of death as a time of reward and punishment. Riches cannot help with this. Only righteousness has meaning and power beyond the grave.

11:10, 11 Truly righteous people bring justice to all the inhabitants of a city, and the city experiences true peace—that is, shalom, meaning "things as they ought to be." Many psalm writers cried for vindication of the righteous and for a cessation of evil (see Ps. 69:22-28). For the fate of a city without any righteous persons in it, see the story of Sodom and Gomorrah in Gen. 18:22-33.

11:12 Patience and control are part of wisdom. A person who is devoid of wisdom, who "lacks heart" (see 10:13), despises his neighbor. But the understanding person knows enough to control his passion and to keep silence (see 17:28).

11:13 A faithful friend conceals delicate matters that an unfaithful person reveals. "Love covers a multitude of sins" (see 10:12; James 5:20; 1 Pet. 4:8).

11:14 In modern times as much as formerly, leaders of nations need adequate counsel. So do all individuals. We all need to seek advice from wise and trustworthy people.

11:15, 16 These two proverbs balance each other. The first warns against rashly giving surety or a pledge for a stranger. The second praises generosity; generosity begets honor. One of the greatest virtues is to be freed of possessiveness. The members of the early church gave freely to those in need (Acts 2:44, 45; 4:32-35).

11:19 Proverbs such as this remind us that the pursuit of righteousness is a matter of life and death.

11:21 The term join forces is literally "hand for hand." Collective opposition to God's purposes makes no sense at all (Ps. 2:1-4).

But <sup>t</sup>the posterity of the righteous will be delivered.

<sup>25</sup> <sup>w</sup>The generous soul will be made rich, <sup>x</sup>And he who waters will also be watered himself.

<sup>26</sup> The people will curse <sup>y</sup>him who withholds grain, But <sup>z</sup>blessing will be on the head of him who sells it.

12 Whoever loves instruction loves knowledge, But he who hates correction is stupid.

<sup>8</sup> A man will be commended according to his wisdom, <sup>g</sup>But he who is of a perverse heart will be despised.

11:22 A golden ring would be ludicrous on a pig's snout. To the ancient Israelites, pigs were unclean and repellent. The immoral person is compared to such an animal, no matter what the outward appearance might be.

11:23 The term desire is used in some of the proverbs in a negative sense (see 13:12, 19; 18:1; 19:22), but here it has a positive meaning. The righteous desire good.

11:24-26 These proverbs should shape our attitudes toward wealth: it should be shared. Stinginess may lead to poverty. Generosity has the opposite effect. Selfishness is foolish because it only creates enemies and dishonors God.

11:28 This proverb addresses the folly of trusting in riches. The second line can easily be misinterpreted to mean that righteousness always leads to success. The proverb actually addresses a person's attitude toward wealth. It is foolish to trust in riches instead of God.

11:30 As in 3:18, the image of the tree of life denotes the tree in the Garden of Eden (Gen. 2; 3). Righteousness and wisdom are ways of recovering the lost tree of life.

11:31 Here is a how much more proverb, one that argues from a premise to conclusion. Since the righteous will finally find their reward (see 2 Cor. 5:10), it follows that the wicked, who are defiant toward God and in conflict with His works, will certainly receive judgment.

12:1 The wise person knows that discipline and instruction will bring its own reward. Yet the person who hates a reprimand is stupid, literally "stupid as a cow."

12:2 He will condemn: John's Gospel speaks of one being condemned already because of evil deeds, and deliberately clinging to the darkness even though the light has come (see John 3:16-21).

12:3 Contrasts such as the one in this proverb speak of a person's ultimate end; otherwise they would be proven false by countless examples of wicked persons who flourish while the righteous suffer. In the end, the righteous will stand sure, as in the image of the tree in Ps. 1:3.

12:4 Excellent wife, or "noble woman," are the same Hebrew words used in the famous acrostic in 31:10-31. A husband whose wife is like the woman described in ch. 31 should rejoice in her, because her noble character brings him honor.

12:5, 6 Our thoughts do matter. At the very least, they must not be deceitful. A person's thoughts determine what he or she says and does. The words of wicked persons are like a deadly ambush.

- <sup>9</sup> h Better is the one who is <sup>2</sup>slighted but has a servant,

- <sup>20</sup> Deceit is in the heart of those who devise evil,
But counselors of peace have joy.
- <sup>21</sup> v No grave <sup>6</sup>trouble will overtake the righteous,
But the wicked shall be filled with evil.
- <sup>22</sup> w Lying lips are an abomination to the LORD,
But those who deal truthfully are His delight.
- <sup>23</sup> x A prudent man conceals knowledge,
But the heart of fools proclaims foolishness.
- <sup>24</sup> y The hand of the diligent will rule,
But the lazy man will be put to forced labor.
- <sup>25</sup> z Anxiety in the heart of man causes depression,
But <sup>a</sup>a good word makes it glad.
- <sup>26</sup> The righteous should choose his friends carefully,
For the way of the wicked leads them astray.
- <sup>27</sup> The lazy man does not roast what he took in hunting,
But diligence is man's precious possession.
- <sup>28</sup> In the way of righteousness is life,
And in its pathway there is no death.

13 A wise son heeds his father's instruction,

- <sup>2</sup> b A man shall eat well by the fruit of his mouth,

12:9 A better . . . than proverb, this verse contrasts a person who is a "nobody" but has a servant with a person who makes a great display but does not even have food on the table. Pretension and arrogance destroy those who indulge in them.

12:11 tills his land: Many proverbs contrast hard work with laziness. Wise people work hard while fools waste time.

12:12, 13 yields fruit . . . is ensnared: Wickedness hurts the wicked; righteousness helps the righteous (see v. 14). This is another way of saying "whatever a man sows, that he will also reap" (Gal. 6:7). The expression the root of the righteous also appears in v. 3.

12:16 at once: Careless words can make a fool out of us, so we are wise to think before we speak. King David showed such restraint (see 2 Sam. 16:5–12).

12:18, 19 Many proverbs praise people who speak carefully and truthfully. Speech reflects a person's character. The words of a righteous person are faithful and true (v. 17), and soothe the listener.

12:22, 23 An abomination is something that "nauseates" God (see 11:20). The term conveys extreme hatred. Thus it is better to remain silent than to have lying lips.

12:24 Anyone who wants to have a position of authority cannot dare to be lazy (see vv. 11, 14).

12:25 Anxiety loses some of its force in the face of a positive, encouraging word. Barnabas's encouragement of Paul is a great example of this (see Acts 4:36; 9:27; 11:2–30; Gal. 2:1).

12:26 Our friends help to determine who we will become (see 1 Cor. 15:33).

12:27 Lazy people do work, they just don't finish what they start. The cure for their laziness is diligence—to follow through to the end.

13:1 A wise son listens to instruction (see 10:1, 17) and is better off than the scoffer—the worst kind of fool (see Ps. 1:1). Some fools are naive and inexperienced, but open to suggestions; sometimes even those established in folly may rethink their position. But scoffers laugh at righteousness. Such people are impervious to rebuke.

But the soul of the unfaithful feeds on violence.
 3 <sup>c</sup> He who guards his mouth preserves his life,
 But he who opens wide his lips shall have destruction.
 4 <sup>d</sup> The soul of a lazy man desires, and has nothing;
 But the soul of the diligent shall be made rich.
 5 A righteous man hates lying,
 But a wicked man is loathsome and comes to shame.
 6 <sup>e</sup> Righteousness guards him whose way is blameless,
 But wickedness overthrows the sinner.
 7 <sup>f</sup> There is one who makes himself rich, yet has nothing;
 And one who makes himself poor, yet has great riches.
 8 The ransom of a man's life is his riches,
 But the poor does not hear rebuke.
 9 The light of the righteous rejoices,
 9 <sup>g</sup> But the lamp of the wicked will be put out.
 10 By pride comes nothing but <sup>h</sup> strife,
 But with the well-advised is wisdom.

 18 Poverty and shame will come to him who <sup>2</sup> disdains correction,
 But <sup>q</sup> he who regards a rebuke will be honored.
 19 A desire accomplished is sweet to the soul,
 But it is an abomination to fools to depart from evil.
 20 He who walks with wise men will be wise,

13:5 The person who hates lying does not merely feel bad about it; he avoids it like the plague.
13:6 In the proverbs, righteousness is portrayed as a friend and wickedness as an enemy (see 11:27). Wickedness hurts us but righteousness helps.
13:7 rich . . . nothing: The paradox of greed causing poverty, and of generosity causing wealth, is a recurring theme in Scripture (see 11:24; Matt. 6:19–21). The point is not how much money you have, but what you do with it.
13:9 For an ancient Israelite, an oil lamp would be the only source of light at night. Without it, a person had no way of seeing the path in front of him (see 20:20; 24:20).
13:10 The word pride (see 11:2) does not refer to self-esteem or to a positive mental attitude, but to arrogance and a refusal to glorify God. Such pride is self-serving and leads to conflict.
13:11 This proverb describes the natural long-term consequences of cheating. People who compromise their honesty to get rich merely postpone the inevitable need to earn their keep. The day comes when their cheating catches up with them, but by then their honest colleagues have become far better at obtaining wealth. Cheating doesn't work anymore, and the wealth of the dishonest is diminished.
13:12 The tree of life (see 11:30) symbolizes the achievement of a deeply felt desire. It is like coming back to the Garden of Eden.
13:13 will be rewarded: A person can either despise instruction or respond in reverence, understanding that the ultimate Giver of instruction is God. Correction is only for one's good.

13:14 fountain of life (see 10:11): In an arid land such as ancient Judah, a fountain provided water for oneself and for one's flocks. It was a necessity—a source of life. That is a very strong endorsement for the law of the wise. A fountain was also a picture for salvation (Is. 12:1–3).
13:15 Favor with God and other people—a good reputation—is highly desirable because it ensures that you won't be alone in life. It comes from good understanding. A good reputation was the first qualification listed by the apostles for deacons in the early church (Acts 6:3).
13:16 Many proverbs pit the fool against the prudent person.
13:17 A . . . messenger who acts wickedly will be discovered and his sentence will be harsh indeed. But a messenger who acts in faithfulness brings healing as he goes. In ancient times it was not unusual for a monarch to lash out against the bearer of bad news. This proverb is a lashing out against a wicked messenger.
13:19 Few things are as sweet as accomplishment. But the folly of the fool is so deeply entrenched that he becomes ill if he leaves his self-destructive path. The term used of his revulsion, abomination, is the same word used of God in other passages (see 11:1).
13:20 walks with: The selection of friends (see 12:26) is

But the companion of fools will be destroyed.

- 21 <sup>r</sup> Evil pursues sinners,
But to the righteous, good shall be repaid.
- 22 A good man leaves an inheritance to his children's children,
But <sup>s</sup> the wealth of the sinner is stored up for the righteous.
- 23 <sup>t</sup> Much food is in the <sup>3</sup> fallow ground of the poor,
And for lack of justice there is <sup>4</sup> waste.
- 24 <sup>u</sup> He who spares his rod hates his son,
But he who loves him disciplines him <sup>5</sup> promptly.
- 25 <sup>v</sup> The righteous eats to the satisfying of his soul,
But the stomach of the wicked shall be in want.

But the foolish pulls it down with her hands.

extremely important. Pressure from peers is much stronger than many people realize.

13:21 Evil is a sinner's enemy (see v. 6), not a friend; a pursuer, and not a companion.

13:22 In the Book of Proverbs, wealth is a topic with many themes. Wealth may come as a benefit of righteous living (v. 11; 10:22); but there is no guarantee of this (28:6). Wealth cannot make a person good (11:4), and in the end it matters less than God's favor anyway (11:28). A good man knows this and trusts in God to meet his needs; the sinner tries to acquire and keep wealth and in the end fails.

13:24 hates . . . loves: This is the first of several proverbs on parental discipline. A parent's loving discipline is modeled after God's loving correction (see 3:11, 12).

14:1 A wise woman builds her house; that is, she develops a peaceful setting for family nurture.

14:2 Fears the LORD contrasts starkly with despises Him. Love for uprightness will naturally coincide with love and respect for the most upright One of all, God Himself. Love for perversity will likewise result in hatred for Him. Fear of the Lord as the beginning of wisdom is the central theme of Proverbs (see 1:7).

14:3 rod of pride: This proverb addresses the dangers of foolish speech and the rewards of sensible speech. The words of the fool shape themselves into a rod that is ready for his enemies to use on him. This proverb calls to mind that many people are their own worst enemy, given enough rope, they prepare a noose for their own hanging.

14:4 clean: A farmer has to put up with some disorder in the barn if he wants the help of an ox. This is not an excuse to be slovenly, but an encouragement to work hard.

14:5 This proverb is a restatement of God's law: "You shall not bear false witness against your neighbor" (Ex. 20:16; Deut 5:20).

14:8 This proverb contrasts prudent and foolish people. Wise people know what they are doing and why they are doing it. They have wise reasons for what they do, based on a knowledge of their choices. Fools, on the other hand, deceive so often that they deceive themselves. They do not know where they are headed.

foolish (Heb. 'ivvelet) (14:1; 16:22; 17:12; 26:4, 5) Strong's #200: This Hebrew word signifies an absence of wisdom. Except for two occurrences in the Psalms, this term occurs only in Proverbs, where the foolishness of fools is frequently contrasted with the wisdom of the wise and prudent (13:16; 14:8, 18, 24). Foolishness characterizes the speech of fools and the reactions of the impulsive person (12:23; 14:17, 29; 15:2, 14; 18:13). Foolishness affects the lifestyle of a person, causing his or her heart to fret against God (15:23; 19:3). Indeed, foolishness is often identified with iniquity and sin (5:22, 23; 24:9; Ps. 38:4, 5). Although Proverbs does not hold out much hope for separating an adult fool from his foolishness, the rod of correction is identified as a remedy for children (22:15; 26:11; 27:22).

14:12 Only when it is too late does the deluded person discover that he is on the crowded highway to death. The implication is not that he was tricked, but that he relied too heavily on his own "wisdom" rather than turning in humility to God. a way . . . the way: Many proverbs put their message in terms of two ways—one that leads to life and another that leads to death (see 16:25).
14:15 A characteristic of the naive person is gullibility. A prudent person is careful.
14:16 The phrase fears and departs from evil suggests fear of God (see v. 2).
14:19 In an ancient walled city, the gate area would normally be the weakest section of the wall. The city engineers of ancient Canaan developed complex structures to fortify this point. Controlling the gate of a city meant controlling the city; submitting at the gate meant an inability to overcome its defenses. In the end, the wicked will submit at the gates of the righteous.
14:21 despises . . . sins: See Lev. 19:13, 17. Jesus identified the command to love others, and not hate them, as second only to loving God (see Matt. 22:39).

14:22 One of the most significant pairings of words of piety in the Bible is the phrase translated mercy and truth. Together the words mean "constant faithfulness" or "true loyalty." In the NT, the Greek equivalent of this phrase is translated "grace and truth" (John 1:14) and is used of the Savior Jesus. Those who plot evil know nothing of this characteristic.
14:26, 27 These proverbs interject the central idea of the Book of Proverbs—the fear of the LORD (see 14:2). The fear of God provides both protection and a fountain of life (see 13:14; 18:10), an image that recalls the Garden of Eden.
14:31 oppresses . . . honors: The theme of "as you treat people, so you treat God" is central to Scripture (Ex. 22:22–24; Matt. 25:31–46; 1 John 4:20).
14:32 Some of the proverbs describe deliverance from death itself (see 11:4). The teaching of life after death is not a major teaching in the OT, but neither is it altogether neglected.
14:34 Righteousness exalts a nation: Although each individual is responsible for his or her actions, the effects extend to the whole community.

15:1 Often it is not so much what we say but the way we say it that prompts such varied responses as acceptance and wrath. For Abigail's gentle words to David when he was angry, see 1 Sam. 25:12-34.

15:3 That the eyes of the LORD are in every place watching everything chills those who do evil and comforts those who submit to Him (see Eccl. 12:14).

15:4 The soft answer of v. 1 is now a soothing tongue, and the hurtful word of v. 1 is now crooked dealing. The former is like a tree of life, taking us back to Eden (see 3:18; 11:30; 13:12); the other breaks the spirit, recalling the expulsion from the Garden (Gen. 3:23, 24).

15:5 The truly wise person profits from instruction. The term for the prudent in the second part of this proverb means "to be shrewd." Shrewdness can be evil, but here it has the positive sense of "street smarts" (see 1:4).

15:6 One house is a blessing and the other is ruinous; the reason for this lies in how the house was acquired and how it is being used. The house of the righteous contains great treasure because it is founded on wisdom and a proper response to God. On the other hand, the wicked never gain enough to suit them, and lose what they have because of their deceptive ways.

15:7 People reveal who they are by what they say. The fool cannot help but speak foolishness.

15:8, 9 From time to time the proverbs touch on the subject of worship (see 16:6). Worship from those who are not contrite or humble is an abomination to God (see 11:20). From Gen. 4 to John 4 Scripture contrasts good and bad worship (see Is.

11:11-15). Verse 9 speaks of yet another abomination to the LORD—the course of life taken by the wicked.

15:10 This proverb promises harsh discipline for any person who forsakes the way of God. That is, discipline comes as a means of correction, not punishment. Only the person who hates correction—the one who stubbornly refuses to listen, time and time again—will die.

15:11 This is a "how much more" proverb (see 11:31), which impresses on the reader the clarity with which the Lord sees people's hearts. The Hebrew word sheol, translated Hell, in this proverb connotes the fear of the unknown (see 9:18). When used with the word for Destruction, sheol means "the mysterious realm of death," a dark and scary condition. Yet death is no mystery to the Lord. And if the mysterious realm of the dead is known to Him, then surely a person's heart is transparent to Him. Such arguments from the greater to the lesser appear in both Testaments.

15:12 The scoffer (see 14:6) is used as a foil or comparison in Proverbs to expose more sharply the character of the wise. Whereas the sluggard is a comic figure in Proverbs, the scoffer is a villain. He delights in scorning the things of God (1:22) and is incapable of responding to discipline (9:7), reproof (9:8), or rebuke (13:1). He cannot find wisdom (14:6) and should be avoided (see Ps. 1:1). His basic problem is displayed in his response to correction. He does not learn from it nor does he seek it. The scoffer is adamant in his folly.

15:14 The person with an understanding heart, another description of the wise, is never satisfied with what he or she knows. The pursuit of wisdom and knowledge are life-long occupations—never fully realized in this lifetime. But fools, not knowing the extent of their ignorance, continue to pursue folly.

15 All the days of the afflicted are evil, <sup>p</sup>But he who is of a merry heart has a continual feast.

16 <sup>q</sup>Better is a little with the fear of the
 LORD,
 Than great treasure with trouble.

17 <sup>r</sup>Better is a dinner of <sup>7</sup>herbs where love is,
 Than a fatted calf with hatred.

18 <sup>s</sup>A wrathful man stirs up strife,
 But he who is slow to anger allays contention.

31 The ear that hears the rebukes of life
 Will abide among the wise.

32 He who disdains instruction despises
 his own soul,

15:18 A wrathful person can stir up strife where there is none; but a person who has a slow fuse—who is slow to anger—soothes contention (see v. 1).
 15:20 despises his mother: This proverb is like the fifth commandment: “Honor your father and your mother” (see Ex. 20:12; Deut. 5:16). Honoring and listening to parents is a favorite theme of Solomon’s proverbs; this collection begins with the same exhortation (see 10:1).
 15:22 The greater the decision, the greater the need for advice. Even wise, capable decision-makers—whether common people or rulers—need counselors (see 13:10).
 15:23 Words are powerful: they can either build up or destroy. Solomon devoted many of his proverbs to the consequences of speech (see v. 4; 14:23). Just as foolish words can bring about a person’s own destruction (see 14:3), a wise word can bring joy to all who hear it. The apostle James wrote of the destructive power of words (in James 3:5, 6); the author of Hebrews also exhorted us to encourage one another (Heb. 10:24, 25).

 15:25 God will bring about justice in the end. To the haughty, God will give a dose of humility. But for the widow, a completely defenseless person in ancient times, God will provide protection. Scripture in many places describes God as a Protector of the defenseless (see Deut. 10:18; Ps. 68:5; 146:9; Jer. 49:11).
 15:26 Many proverbs focus on what God hates (see vv. 8, 9). Evil thoughts, for one, disgust Him. There is no such thing as “private thoughts.” We should pray with David that our words and the meditation of our hearts would be acceptable in God’s sight (see Ps. 19:14).
 15:31, 32 He who disdains instruction despises his own soul: The natural instinct for self-preservation is dangerous when it is time to listen to a necessary rebuke. For the relationship between discipline and wisdom, see 1:7.

banquet (Heb. mishteh) (15:15; Gen. 21:8; Esth. 1:3) Strong’s #4960: Notable OT banquets include that of Ahasuerus (Xerxes I), at which Vashti refused to allow herself to be displayed (Esth. 1) and that of Belshazzar, at which the gold and silver vessels stolen from the temple by Nebuchadnezzar were used and at which the handwriting appeared on the wall (Dan. 5). The NT speaks of the messianic banquet—a banquet at the end of this age—at which the patriarchs and all the righteous will be guests, but from which the wicked will be excluded (Matt. 8:11; Luke 13:29). The Book of Revelation concludes with all people invited to one or the other of the two banquets. At “the supper of the great God” (Rev. 19:17), the scavenger birds are invited to devour the defeated kings of the earth and their armies; at “the marriage supper of the Lamb” (Rev. 19:9), Christ will have fellowship with the faithful.

But he who heeds rebuke gets understanding.

15:33 Knowledge alone does not make a person wiser; the fear of the LORD must accompany it. The same is true of honor.

16:1, 2 These verses contrast human limitations with the sovereignty of God. Man can plan, dream, and hope, but the final outcome is from the LORD. Rather than “resign ourselves to fate,” we should trust in God. Our loving Lord is in control of our seemingly chaotic situations. Verse 2 elaborates on this theme. In addition to being sovereign, God is the final Judge. All the injustices of this world will be corrected some glorious day.

16:3 The verb commit...to is from a word meaning “to roll.” The idea is to “roll your cares onto the Lord.” Trusting the Lord with our decisions frees us from preoccupation with our problems (see 3:5, 6).

16:5 proud in heart: Pride has everything backwards. It takes credit away from the Giver who gives graciously and awards it to the receiver who takes without thanking. That is why God sees it as an abomination, a word that throughout Proverbs refers to God's revulsion (see 15:26).

16:6 In mercy and truth can also be translated “by genuine piety.” Atonement probably alludes to a sacrificial offering, but not apart from a contrite heart (as in Ps. 40:6–8). fear: Respect for God turns a person away from evil (see 3:7).

16:8 The Book of Proverbs often speaks of wealth as the reward of wisdom and virtue (see 14:11), but not always. Righteousness is the real treasure.

16:10 This verse begins a section that relates to kings (vv. 10–15). The word divination refers to judicial decisions. Because the nation rested in the king's hands, his first responsibility was to obey God (see King Josiah's reform of Israel, 2 Kin. 22; 23). Even the king had to submit to the dictates of justice.

16:11 Honest weights and scales matter to God because God is perfectly true. Falsehood and dishonesty do not merely cheat people, they also offend God.

16:15 life . . . his favor: Successfully courting a powerful person's favor is like seeing rain clouds in a dry land. The phrase about the light of the face in this proverb helps us understand Aaron's benediction in Num. 6:24–26.

16:17 A highway is a thoroughfare, a metaphor for the way a person lives habitually. An upright person's “highway,” or habit, is to depart from evil. He does not compromise; he consistently strives to do good.

16:19 the proud: Destructive pride brings down many winners and is contagious.

And whoever <sup>s</sup> trusts in the LORD, happy is he.

21 The wise in heart will be called prudent,

And adds learning to his lips.

32 <sup>y</sup> He who is slow to anger is better than the mighty,

33 The lot is cast into the lap,
But its every decision is from the LORD.

17 Better is a dry morsel with quietness,

2 A wise servant will rule over a son who causes shame,
And will share an inheritance among the brothers.

3 The refining pot is for silver and the furnace for gold,
But the LORD tests the hearts.

4 An evildoer gives heed to false lips;
A liar listens eagerly to a spiteful tongue.

16:21 This verse begins a small section of proverbs on the superiority of wisdom (vv. 21–24). Wisdom is never easily gained or quickly achieved; that is why a wise person increases learning.

16:22, 23 Those who possess understanding have access to a fountain of life that constantly renews itself and is available to everyone. The phrase wellspring of life is an image of salvation; water was essential for life in the arid regions of ancient Israel (see Ps. 36:8–10; Jer. 2:13). The wise know they are ignorant, so they keep on learning.

16:24 The Hebrew word for honeycomb is also used in Ps. 19:10, 11 with regard to the Word of God. The Israelites saw honey as a healthy food as well as a sweetener. Any comparison to it would connote positive, healthful effects.

16:25 Contrasts of God's way with the way of the wicked figure in the teaching of Jesus as well as the proverbs (Matt. 7:13, 14). This proverb likens the wicked to being on the wrong road. They think they are going the right way, but in the end it leads to death (see 14:12). Death refers to physical death (as in 1 Cor. 11:29, 30; see also Rom. 6:23; 8:13; James 1:15; 5:20).

16:27–29 These verses all begin in a similar way, describing three different types of wicked people. The word ungodly, or "scoundrel," means "a man of Belial"; this person is a muckraker who uses bad information for evil purposes; he destroys people on purpose. The perverse person starts fights between friends. The violent man uses his power of persuasion to recruit others to join in his attacks.

16:31 Old age becomes a crown of glory to those who walk the way of righteousness—one of the rewards of pursuing wisdom.

16:32 One of the most favored persons in the ancient Middle East was the military hero. Yet this proverb suggests that one who is slow to anger and who rules his spirit is a greater hero than a returning warrior. Controlling one's rage is more impressive than completing a daring exploit (see 14:29).

16:33 The use of lots in ancient Israel (see v. 10) could easily be confused with luck. But when a lot was cast as a means of determining God's will, the people knew it did not fall indiscriminately. God exercises sovereignty over human affairs (see 16:4).

17:1 The expression a dry morsel means "very little," especially in comparison to feasting. But the feasting in this verse is tainted by contention. Feasting could also be part of a sacrifice to God, but even such a feast could be ruined by angry disputes between believers.

17:2 Reversals of fortune could happen if the wise servant was sufficiently skillful and the son and his brothers were undeserving. Much of the Book of Genesis describes the rise of an unexpected younger son over his older brother (see Gen. 25:23–34).

17:3 The refining of silver and gold is an exacting process, involving skill and considerable heat and stress. The refining work of God on His people often requires stress too.

17:4 This proverb presents the evildoer and the liar as a parody of the wise. As the righteous person listens with care

5 <sup>d</sup> He who mocks the poor reproaches his Maker;
<sup>e</sup> He who is glad at calamity will not go unpunished.

6 <sup>f</sup> Children's children are the crown of old men,
 And the glory of children is their father.

7 Excellent speech is not becoming to a fool,
 Much less lying lips to a prince.

8 A present is a precious stone in the eyes of its possessor;
 Wherever he turns, he prospers.

9 <sup>g</sup> He who covers a transgression seeks love,
 But <sup>h</sup> he who repeats a matter separates friends.

10 <sup>i</sup> Rebuke is more effective for a wise man
 Than a hundred blows on a fool.

11 An evil man seeks only rebellion;
 Therefore a cruel messenger will be sent against him.

12 Let a man meet <sup>j</sup> a bear robbed of her cubs,
 Rather than a fool in his folly.

13 Whoever <sup>k</sup> rewards evil for good,
 Evil will not depart from his house.

14 The beginning of strife is like releasing water;
 Therefore <sup>l</sup> stop contention before a quarrel starts.

15 <sup>m</sup> He who justifies the wicked, and he who condemns the just,
 Both of them alike are an abomination to the LORD.

to the instruction of a teacher, so the wicked person listens with care to the ruinous speech of the unrighteous.
17:6 Only a grandmother or grandfather can appreciate this verse fully. Yet all of us can see its central point: Grandparents adore their grandchildren, and children adore their parents. It is this strong bond of family ties that keeps generations together.
17:7 It is a contradiction in terms for a fool to speak well or for a prince to be a liar. It is not becoming for such inappropriateness to exist.
17:12 Nothing in the woods matches the rage of a mother bear who has been separated from her cubs; yet there is nothing in life more dangerous than the fool in the midst of his folly.
17:15 abomination to the LORD (see 16:5): Since God is a God of justice, He detests those who pervert justice—both those who declare the innocent guilty and those who declare the guilty innocent.
17:17 This proverb lauds faithfulness. Unlike fickle friends

(see 14:20), a true friend is constant, and a real brother helps in times of stress.
17:18 Making a pledge for another person is not wrong, but this proverb does call for caution in such transactions (see 11:15). The one making the loan may lose his own independence.
17:21 The foolish child is one of the hardest realities to face (see 10:1). There is no heartache so grievous as the pain of realizing that one's child is a fool, obdurate to God, and useless in life.
17:23 Like false weights (see 16:11), skewed justice destroys a culture. A bribe is literally a "gift." In v. 8, the same Hebrew word is translated positively as present, but in this verse the meaning is negative because they purpose of the gift is to pervert justice.
17:24 Wisdom produces a satisfied life. The fool continues searching without finding any satisfaction.
17:26 Only a perverse population would punish the righteous.

20 <sup>i</sup> A man's stomach shall be satisfied from the fruit of his mouth;
From the produce of his lips he shall be filled.

Like several other proverbs, this one describes what is to be recognized as an outrage.

18:1 This proverb condemns any person who isolates himself from the community for selfish reasons. Such a recluse is so intolerant of anyone who disagrees with him that he finds fault with all wise judgment.

18:2 A compulsive talker never listens, only pausing to plan what he will say next. Every speech confirms what a fool he is.

18:4 wellspring of wisdom: This image is similar to the phrase "a fountain of life" (see 10:11; 13:14; 14:27; 16:22).

18:5 show partiality: Distortion of justice is all too common; many proverbs condemn it (see 17:23).

18:8 The words of a talebearer (see 16:28) are like delicious sweets. Although they are fun to eat, they ruin the person's health. Gossip is fun to listen to, but the stories damage the listener's inmost body, or soul.

18:9 The word slothful means a person who is "known to be slack." It refers to a lazy person (see 15:19). Destroyer means "lord of destruction."

18:10, 11 The phrase name of the LORD (v. 10) is a way of speaking of God's person. The righteous turn to God for security. Rich people, by contrast, tend to trust in their wealth (v. 11; Luke 12:13–21). safe: God's protection is a prominent theme in Scripture (see Ps. 91:1–4).

18:12 The Hebrew word for haughty, ordinarily negative, can also be used positively to mean courage and daring (see 2 Chr. 17:6). The path to honor, which the proud so covet, is humility.

18:14 This proverb affirms the value of coping skills. Sickness can be overcome, but there is no medicine for a broken spirit (see 15:13; 17:22; Is. 66:2).

18:18 Whenever both sides agree on the method of settling a dispute, that method is a means to peace. The casting of lots was a biblical pattern for assistance in decision-making (16:33). Behind the lots was the sovereign power of God.

18:20, 21 stomach . . . mouth: Inner satisfaction comes from true and good speech. Death and life: The words people say wield great power (see James 3:2).

- And he who speaks lies will not escape.
- 6 Many entreat the favor of the nobility,
And every man is a friend to one who gives gifts.
- 7 <sup>d</sup> All the brothers of the poor hate him;
How much more do his friends go <sup>e</sup> far from him!
He may pursue them with words, yet they <sup>f</sup> abandon him.
- 8 He who gets <sup>2</sup> wisdom loves his own soul;
He who keeps understanding <sup>f</sup> will find good.
- 9 A false witness will not go unpunished,
And he who speaks lies shall perish.
- 10 Luxury is not fitting for a fool,
Much less <sup>g</sup> for a servant to rule over princes.
- 11 <sup>h</sup> The discretion of a man makes him slow to anger, <sup>i</sup> And his glory is to overlook a transgression.
- 12 <sup>j</sup> The king's wrath is like the roaring of a lion,
But his favor is <sup>k</sup> like dew on the grass.

18:22 favor: Problems in marriage arise from breakdowns in communication or mutual respect, not from some flaw in marriage itself (see 12:4).

18:24 This is a difficult verse to translate because of confusion over an ambiguous Hebrew word translated here as be friendly. This translation takes it to mean “to make oneself pleasing” as in 1 Sam. 29:4. To have friends one must be friendly. But the word could also mean “to beat each other up” as in Is. 24:19. Then the verse could be translated, “Sometimes even friends destroy each other, but there is a Friend who loves more faithfully than a brother.”

19:1 This proverb, one of the “better than” proverbs (see 17:1, 10), presents a poor person in a more favorable light than a rich person (see 28:6). In this case, the poor person’s life is marked by integrity, whereas the successful person has gained his wealth through cheating and deception. The Book of Proverbs does not place a premium on health and wealth. It gives that honor to integrity (see 3:1–12)

erty on friendship. It does not describe how friends ought to behave, but how many friends actually do. Like a faithful spouse, a faithful friend is priceless (see 14:20).

19:7 The behavior of brothers and friends who abandon a friend because of poverty should be contrasted with the true friend in such texts as 17:17; 18:24.

19:8 Ultimately, to find good means to find the Lord in His Word (see 16:20).

19:10 The phrase is not fitting might also be rendered “is not a pretty sight” (see 17:7). For the wrong people to rule is an outrage.

19:11 discretion: Patience and restraint are virtues of wisdom (see 16:32); rashness and violent outbursts of rage are not.

19:12 The descriptions of a lion’s roar and dew on the grass are especially fitting when a monarch has all power. His rage may be violent and unpredictable, his pleasure gracious and restorative. A good king will display rage and spread favor for the right reasons.

friends (Heb. rea) (18:24; Judg. 7:13; 1 Sam. 15:28; Job 2:11) Strong’s #7453: This noun designates an associate, a person who is nearby or in contact with someone else. Most frequently, it signifies simply the second person in a dialogue (Gen. 11:3; Jon. 1:7). It can even refer to someone who becomes one’s adversary in a fight (Ex. 2:13; 21:14). Quite often this word is used in connection with various words for lovers and loved ones, including the people commonly associated with the term brethren (see Ps. 35:14; 122:8; Song 5:1, 16; Jer. 3:1; Hos. 3:1). The use of this word in the commandment to love one’s neighbor (Lev. 19:18) prompted a certain lawyer to ask Jesus who his neighbor was. Jesus responded with the parable of the Good Samaritan (Luke 10:29–37).

14 <sup>n</sup> Houses and riches are an inheritance from fathers,
 But <sup>o</sup> a prudent wife is from the LORD.

15 <sup>p</sup> Laziness casts one into a deep sleep,
 And an idle person will <sup>q</sup> suffer hunger.

16 <sup>r</sup> He who keeps the commandment keeps his soul,
 But he who <sup>4</sup> is careless of his ways will die.

17 <sup>s</sup> He who has pity on the poor lends to the LORD,
 And He will pay back what he has given.

18 <sup>t</sup> Chasten your son while there is hope,
 And do not set your heart <sup>5</sup> on his destruction.

19 A man of great wrath will suffer punishment;
 For if you rescue him, you will have to do it again.

21 There are many plans in a man's heart,

22 What is desired in a man is <sup>6</sup> kindness,
 And a poor man is better than a liar.

 Is <sup>a</sup> a son who causes shame and brings reproach.

27 Cease listening to instruction, my son,
 And you will stray from the words of knowledge.

28 A <sup>8</sup> disreputable witness scorns justice,

19:13, 14 Continual dripping speaks of constant dissension within a family. A prudent wife is a woman who demonstrates wisdom or skill. Finding the right spouse is a blessing from God (see 18:22).
19:15 The proverbs have no kind words for laziness, the habit of the sluggard (see 6:6, 9). The proverbs call for mercy and compassion on the poor and the weak, but only contempt for the lazy (see v. 17; 10:4, 5).
19:18 on his destruction: Refusal to discipline dooms a child's future (see 13:24).
19:21 A wise person commits his or her plans to the Lord (see 16:3). A person whose plans oppose the Lord (as in Ps. 2:1-3) may actually become God's enemy. But the person whose ways are from God will certainly succeed (see also 16:1, 9).
19:22 The poor person who has integrity has more honor than the successful person who has achieved his station or rank by deception (see v. 1). Kindness may also mean "beauty." Faithfulness is beautiful, whereas deception is a disfigurement of character (see 3:14; 31:18).

19:23 This proverb emphasizes the lifelong nature of genuine piety and the abundant rewards that it gives. The fear of the LORD is contrasted with all other pleasures (see 15:16, 33), because it alone keeps the believer innocent and provides lifelong satisfaction.
19:25 The simple person, the one who has yet to set his or her course in life, can learn by watching the scoffer suffer. The scoffer himself may not learn from his punishment, but anyone who is ready to learn surely can.
19:26, 27 The desire for a good son—or daughter—is the subject of several proverbs (see 10:1). A child who is abusive to his parents shames them and violates God's command (see 20:20; Ex. 20:12; Deut. 5:16). The juxtaposing of this proverb addressed to my son for the first time since chs. 1-9 with that of the abusive son in v. 26 is deliberate. As an abusive son is shameful, so an obedient son is faithful and successful.

fear (Heb. yir'ah) (9:10; 16:6; 19:23) Strong's #3374: This Hebrew word signifies awe in regarding what is unknown or potentially dangerous. Sometimes it refers to fear or terror inspired by danger or one's enemies (Ps. 56:4). More often, it means "reverence," particularly for God (19:23). The use of this word does not imply that one needs to be afraid of God, but it does demand the appropriate recognition and respect for God's fearsome qualities, such as His righteous wrath (see Ps 5:4-7). The fear of God—that is, the proper respect of God—compels us to abandon our evil ways (16:6) and teaches us wisdom (9:10). Perhaps somewhat ironically, fear of God leads to confidence in this life, for if we have submitted to the Almighty we do not have to fear any other power in this world. No one can harm us because the Almighty is our Protector (see 14:26, 27; see Heb. 13:6).

And <sup>b</sup>the mouth of the wicked devours iniquity.

<sup>c</sup>And beatings for the backs of fools.

Strong drink <sup>is</sup> a brawler,
And whoever is led astray by it is not wise.

<sup>2</sup> The <sup>1</sup>wrath of a king <sup>is</sup> like the roaring of a lion;
Whoever provokes him to anger sins
against his own life.

<sup>3</sup> <sup>b</sup>It is honorable for a man to stop striving,
Since any fool can start a quarrel.

man,
But afterward his mouth will be filled with gravel.

20:1 This chapter begins with a warning against the abuse of wine, or excessive drinking (see this theme more extensively in 23:29-35). A wise person takes the danger seriously. There is no wisdom in drunkenness, only brawling and confusion.

20:4 Because the lazy man (see 19:24) does not plow his field on time, he has nothing to harvest (see 10:5).

20:5 draw it out: The wise of ancient Israel knew something that modern counselors rediscover in their training and experience, that motivation for behavior is complex. A gifted counselor is able to draw out from a person genuine feelings and motivations, just as someone draws water from a deep well.

20:9 Who can say: This proverb is a rhetorical question. Everyone sins, a theme that Paul addresses at length in Rom. 3:10-23. Anyone who claims never to sin is a liar (see 1 John 1:8, 9). But those who confess their sin obtain forgiveness (see Rom. 4:7).

20:10 The repeated emphasis on crooked weights and diverse measures (see 11:1) reminds us that cheating is a chronic problem.

20:11 by his deeds: A pattern established early in life may continue to mark a person for his or her lifetime. Even at a very early age, a person's moral character may be revealed.

20:12 This proverb speaks of what the LORD has made. We can use both our ears and our eyes to learn about God's law (see Ps. 40:6; 119:18). They are physical means to getting the guidance we need. Contrast this verse with Moses' complaint of a stammering tongue and God's response (Ex. 4:10, 11).

20:13 Sleep is a gift from God that restores a person's energy and vitality. Yet sleep can also be a matter of excess and laziness. Hard work is necessary to make a living; laziness leads only to poverty (see 6:6, 9).

20:15 This verse is not a comment on the morality of wealth, but a statement about the comparative value of wisdom and money. Wisdom is simply worth more. Thus being poor and wise is more precious than being rich and foolish (see 19:1).

20:16 It is foolish to lend to a stranger without securing a pledge, or promise, of repayment (see 11:15). The Israelites were not allowed to exact such pledges from other Israelites (see Ex. 22:25-27).

20:17 afterward: The Scriptures do not say that there is no pleasure in sinning, only that the reward doesn't last (9:17, 18).

20:18 This proverb is a maxim that moves from the lesser to the greater (see 15:11). We should always think before we act, and serious matters like war require a maximum of forethought.

20:20 This proverb is about breaking the fifth commandment, “honor your father and your mother” (Ex. 20:12; Deut. 5:16). The term whoever curses is based on a word that means “to treat lightly, to regard as insignificant.” The statement His lamp will be put out in deep darkness is a symbol of eternal damnation.

20:21 at the beginning: Sometimes what seems to be sudden luck turns out to be a dismal turn of fortune. What seems too good to be true often is.

20:22 Because of our limited understanding and imperfection, we are not qualified to recompense evil. Instead we must commit our cause to God, whose vengeance is certain and perfectly just. God says “Vengeance is mine; I will repay” (see Matt. 5:38, 39; Rom. 12:17, 19; 1 Thess. 5:15; 1 Pet. 3:9).

20:24 Even a man with great strength does not fully control his steps, his life; his very breath is a gift from God. Since life itself is God’s gift, only a fool assumes he knows its full meaning.

20:25 Several proverbs warn against making rash promises about holy things, then withdrawing the promises later (see Eccl. 5:1-7). It is better never to vow than to vow and then change one’s mind.

20:26 This royal proverb (see v. 8) presents discipline as a merciful act. To punish wickedness is entirely appropriate. When the wicked are sifted out and punished with the severity that their crimes demand, all of society benefits. Verse 28 provides the balance to this principle. Ideally, the king in Israel mirrored God’s character.

20:29 Each stage of life has its own advantages. The young have their youth and vigor; the aged have their wisdom (see 16:31).

20:30 Suffering cleanses. No one wants to be hurt, but God can bring good out of any evil and make us better through hardship.

21:1 A person can look at a river and think that it is following a random pattern, but the water is following the direction of God’s hand. So is the king. This world’s apparent chaos is God’s work.

21:2 in his own eyes: A person’s own defense of his life, manner, or way may convince himself, but the final evaluation belongs to God (see 17:3).

21:3 The proverbs occasionally touch on the subject of worship (see 15:8; 16:6). This proverb affirms, as do Ps. 40:6-8; Mic. 6:8, and numerous other passages in the Bible, that righteous living is more important than sacrifice (see 1 Sam. 15:22).

21:4 haughty . . . proud: See 16:18. The second unit of the verse is difficult to translate. Some versions render the problematic Hebrew word for plowing as lamp.

21:5 Planning typically leads to plenty, and haste to poverty (see 20:21). It is not wrong to plan, but it is wrong to plan what the Lord has expressly forbidden (see also 16:1).

- <sup>24</sup> A proud and haughty man—
 “Scoffer” is his name;
 He acts with arrogant pride.

21:6 Some prosperity is good and some is bad. The difference lies in how one gets it. A lying tongue has a total return of zero.

21:8 The way: This antithetical proverb takes us back to the very beginning of the study of wisdom, the contrast between the righteous and the wicked (see chs. 1–9; Ps. 1).

21:9 Ancient Israelite roofs were flat and could be used as a deck or terrace. On occasion people would build a temporary shelter on a part of the roof. Here, the harried husband finds he prefers to live on the housetop rather than below with the nagging words of his wife.

21:10 Here is a person whose passion is evil; hence, he has no compassion for anyone. Wicked persons typically refuse to think of anyone but themselves.

21:11 The fool in this text is the worst sort, the scoffer (see 19:25); a person who is simple has enough sense to learn from seeing the scoffer punished. The wise always learn, the simple sometimes learn, but the scoffer is a lost cause.

21:13 cry himself: A person who is indifferent to people in need will find no one helping him when he calls out for help.

21:15 Justice is not a heavy obligation that weighs a person down. For the righteous, promoting justice is a joy. For the wicked there is no joy in justice, nor will there be joy in their final end (see 10:29).

21:16 The assembly of the dead: The term dead is a frightful one, meaning “shades” (see 9:18). Death in these verses may speak of physical death rather than spiritual death (as is the case in James 1).

21:20 This proverb contrasts the prosperity of the wise with the poverty of the fool (see 20:15). The key lies in the way they treat their possessions. Fools abuse or neglect their own property.

21:21 life, righteousness and honor: It is possible that these three ideas go together to mean “a more abundant life.” The pursuit of righteousness is its own reward. But added rewards are found in fullness of life, achieving righteousness, and receiving honor. All these things are gifts from the Lord (see 15:9).

21:23 This proverb has a pun on the word “to keep.” If a person guards or “keeps” his mouth, he will keep or preserve his soul. The converse of this is seen in the many troubles a person brings on himself by careless speech.

21:24 This proverb applies four different Hebrew words for arrogance to the scoffer (see v. 11). The first two words, proud and haughty, mean “profoundly arrogant” (see v. 4). The second two, arrogant and pride, mean “boundless arrogance.”

25 The <sup>p</sup> desire of the lazy man kills him,
 For his hands refuse to labor.
 26 He covets greedily all day long,
 But the righteous <sup>a</sup> gives and does not spare.
 27 <sup>r</sup> The sacrifice of the wicked is an abomination;
 How much more when he brings it with wicked intent!
 28 A false witness shall perish,
 But the man who hears him will speak endlessly.
 29 A wicked man hardens his face,
 But as for the upright, he <sup>b</sup> establishes his way.
 30 <sup>s</sup> There is no wisdom or understanding
 Or counsel against the LORD.
 31 The horse is prepared for the day of battle,
 But <sup>t</sup> deliverance is of the LORD.

22 A <sup>a</sup> good name is to be chosen rather than great riches,
 Loving favor rather than silver and gold.

2 The <sup>b</sup> rich and the poor have this in common,
 The <sup>c</sup> LORD is the maker of them all.
 3 A prudent man foresees evil and hides himself,

 8 He who sows iniquity will reap <sup>g</sup> sorrow,<sup>2</sup>
 And the rod of his anger will fail.
 9 <sup>h</sup> He who has a <sup>3</sup> generous eye will be <sup>i</sup> blessed,

 Yes, strife and reproach will cease.
 11 <sup>k</sup> He who loves purity of heart And has grace on his lips,

 12 The eyes of the LORD preserve knowledge,

22:25 The longing of the lazy man kills him; he is devoured by his own passions because he will not expend the energy to fulfill them. Verse 26 describes further the insatiable greed of the lazy person by contrasting it with the generosity of the righteous.
22:28 A large number of proverbs focus on the false witness (see 19:28). The problem with a false witness is that his lies pervert justice for others. Even if he lies only once, the lie may be circulated by others.
22:30 Usually the proverbs use the word wisdom positively. But in this verse the word is paired with conjurers' tricks. These tricks have no power over God, as Balaam the pagan prophet discovered in his encounter with the Lord on the plains of Moab (see Num. 22—24). True wisdom can be found only in God.
22:31 A soldier can do all within his ability to prepare for battle (see 20:18), but in the end no preparation can override God's power. Victory is in God's hands.
22:1 This proverb points out that a reputation has more value than possessions or wealth. A name cannot be replaced easily, not even with lots of money.
22:2 This sentence eloquently repeats the theme of riches (v. 1): God makes both the rich and the poor. This means that those who favor the rich over the poor (see James 2) have not only missed the point of creation, they have insulted the Creator (see 14:31)

22:3 The term prudent means "shrewd" (see 1:4 for a related word). There is no wisdom in being reckless.
22:4 The route to the good life—riches and honor and life (see 21:21 for a similar triad)—is humility (see Mic. 6:8) and the fear of God.
22:8 The idea of just retribution is significant (see 21:7). Jesus' teaching on justice reflects the idea in this verse. A person who lives by violence is likely to die violently; a person who lives wickedly should not be surprised if he falls victim to crime (see Matt. 26:52).
22:9 The words expressing the idea of generosity in this verse are "a good eye." A good eye observes the needs of others first. A bad eye sees only its own self-interest.
22:10 The scoffer (see 21:24) should be expelled from the community because his influence is harmful to everyone. The wise know that the scoffer is not a laughing matter, because he is laughing at holy things, at God Himself.
22:11 A person who is marked by purity of speech and heart becomes the confidant of a good king. Compare this proverb with Ps. 15, which describes a person who wants to become a friend of the Lord.
22:12 The eyes of the LORD (see 15:3; 21:2) are the final arbiters of knowledge and justice. The eyes of human beings are simply not trustworthy. When the king takes his position seriously, he also makes decisions that are proper and upright (see 20:8).

But He overthrows the words of the faithless.

- 13 <sup>l</sup>The lazy man says, “There is a lion outside!
I shall be slain in the streets!”
- 14 <sup>m</sup>The mouth of an immoral woman is a deep pit;
“He who is abhorred by the LORD will fall there.
- 15 Foolishness is bound up in the heart of a child;
<sup>o</sup>The rod of correction will drive it far from him.
- 16 He who oppresses the poor to increase his riches,
And he who gives to the rich, will surely come to poverty.

Sayings of the Wise

- 17 Incline your ear and hear the words of the wise,
And apply your heart to my knowledge;

Religious Education

The religious education of children was the parents' responsibility (Deut. 11:19; 32:46). No exceptions were made for parents who felt they were too busy to teach. Even when children came of age and married, the parents' responsibility did not end; they also had an important part in educating the grandchildren (Deut. 4:9). In fact, they often lived in the same house. The Israelite father was ultimately responsible for the education of the children, but mothers also played a crucial role, especially until a child reached the age of five. During those formative years she was expected to shape the future of her sons and daughters. Clearly, parents wanted to see the proverb come true: “Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it” (22:6). When a boy became old enough to work with his father, the father became his principal teacher, even though the mother continued to share in the teaching responsibility (1:8, 9; 6:20). If someone other than the father had to assume the responsibility of teaching a boy, then that person was considered his “father.”

- 23 <sup>s</sup> For the LORD will plead their cause,
And plunder the soul of those who plunder them.
- 24 Make no friendship with an angry man,
And with a <sup>t</sup> furious man do not go,
25 Lest you learn his ways
And set a snare for your soul.
- 26 <sup>u</sup> Do not be one of those who <sup>v</sup> shakes hands in a pledge,
One of those who is <sup>w</sup> surety for debts;
- 27 If you have nothing with which to pay,
Why should he take away your bed from under you?
- 28 <sup>y</sup> Do not remove the ancient <sup>y</sup> landmark
Which your fathers have set.

22:13 The proverbs about lazy people (see 19:15) provide comic relief by poking fun at how the lazy invent all sorts of excuses for avoiding work and risk. They will do anything to avoid doing anything.

22:14 This proverb takes us back to the immoral woman, or the “strange woman” (see 2:16). Her mouth is an open pit, destruction to anyone who falls there (see 9:18).

22:16 The last of the proverbs of Solomon in this collection deals with social justice. Ultimately, all human affairs are in God's hands, even though at times the wicked prosper. God made both the poor and the rich (v. 2) and He will justly determine their destinies (24:12).

22:17–24:22 The phrase the words of the wise marks a new section of the Book of Proverbs. The content changes at v. 17. Three elements distinguish this section: (1) the change from one-verse units to multiple-verse units, (2) section headings that are embedded in the text, and (3) the affinity of this section with ancient Egyptian wisdom texts, particularly the Instruction of Amen-em-opet.

22:17–21 Incline your ear: These introductory words call the reader to pay attention and to prepare to learn about and worship God. The advice emphasizes strongly that a person's trust must be in the LORD.

22:22, 23 Most violations of justice target poor and afflicted people because they are weak and defenseless. But anyone who does this makes an enemy of God, who will plead their cause.

22:24, 25 friendship with an angry man: Whereas the words of vv. 22, 23 are based on Hebrew faith, these ideas are derived from observation of human behavior and interaction. The Book of Proverbs includes both types of insight: revelation of truth about God, and observation of human experience (see 1 Cor. 15:33).

22:28 The ancient Israelites regarded respect for the posted landmark as more than a question of private property. They saw it as a basic part of civil life. People must feel a certain sense of public trust and fairness for society to function.

29 Do you see a man who <sup>8</sup> excels in his work?
He will stand before kings;
He will not stand before <sup>9</sup> unknown men.

23 When you sit down to eat with a ruler,
Consider carefully what is before you;
2 And put a knife to your throat
If you are a man given to appetite.
3 Do not desire his delicacies,

4 <sup>a</sup> Do not overwork to be rich;

He will plead their cause against you.
12 Apply your heart to instruction,

And your ears to words of knowledge.

13 <sup>g</sup> Do not withhold correction from a child,
For if you beat him with a rod, he will not die.
14 You shall beat him with a rod,
And deliver his soul from <sup>4</sup> hell.
15 My son, if your heart is wise,
My heart will rejoice—indeed, I myself;
16 Yes, my <sup>5</sup> inmost being will rejoice
When your lips speak right things.
17 <sup>h</sup> Do not let your heart envy sinners,
But <sup>i</sup> be zealous for the fear of the LORD all the day;
18 <sup>j</sup> For surely there is a <sup>6</sup> hereafter,
And your hope will not be cut off.
19 Hear, my son, and be wise;
And guide your heart in the way.
20 <sup>k</sup> Do not mix with winebibbers,
Or with gluttonous eaters of meat;
21 For the drunkard and the glutton will come to poverty,
And drowsiness will clothe a man with rags.
22 <sup>l</sup> Listen to your father who begot you,
And do not despise your mother when she is old.
23 <sup>m</sup> Buy the truth, and do not sell it,
Also wisdom and instruction and understanding.
24 <sup>n</sup> The father of the righteous will greatly rejoice,
And he who begets a wise child will delight in him.
25 Let your father and your mother be glad,
And let her who bore you rejoice.

23:1-3 A big part of the training of the courtier would be in proper manners at state dinners and formal occasions. The comment on a knife to your throat is prompted by two concerns: (1) rude behavior was to be avoided at all costs, and (2) too many royal dainties would likely make one ill.
23:4, 5 These verses call for moderation in work. do not overwork to be rich: Although the proverbs discourage laziness (see 22:13), they also discourage any overworking whose purpose is greater wealth.
23:10, 11 their Redeemer is mighty: The tendency of evil people in all ages is to take advantage of the helpless. But the destroyer of persons needs to know that the widow and the orphan have a Redeemer, a protector of family rights—His name is the living God.
23:12 The Hebrew word for instruction can also be translated “discipline.”
23:13, 14 he will not die . . . beat him: This language was designed to motivate overly permissive parents, who were afraid of damaging young children with any kind of discipline, or of making rules and enforcing them. There is no call here for abuse. Loving discipline does not destroy rebellious children; it does them a big favor.

23:17, 18 The first proverb here sharply contrasts the vain envy of sinners with the fear of the Lord, the expression of piety that the proverbs repeatedly encourage (see 1:7). The second gives the perspective that everyone needs: Present success—or lack of it—is not the final outcome. There will be a future state fundamentally different from this world. The word hereafter can also be rendered “glorious future” (see Num. 23:10).
23:19-21 The drunkard and the glutton have no self-control, and this fact plagues them. Hebrew culture gave a prominent place to eating and drinking, but it had little tolerance for drunkenness and gluttony.
23:24, 25 the father of the righteous: Joy comes to parents who see their children succeed. But when those parents have faith in the Lord, the greatest joy comes from seeing their children be faithful to Him.

26 My son, give me your heart,
 And let your eyes observe my ways.
 27 <sup>o</sup>For a harlot is a deep pit,

 31 Do not look on the wine when it is red,
 When it sparkles in the cup,
 When it <sup>u</sup>swirls around smoothly;
 32 At the last it bites like a serpent,
 And stings like a viper.
 33 Your eyes will see strange things,
 And your heart will utter perverse
 things.
 34 Yes, you will be like one who lies

 And their lips talk of troublemaking.

 7 <sup>d</sup>Wisdom is too lofty for a fool;
 He does not open his mouth in the 8 He who <sup>e</sup>plots to do evil

 Will be called a <sup>f</sup>schemer.
 9 The devising of foolishness is sin,

 15 Do not lie in wait, O wicked man, against the dwelling of the righteous;
 Do not plunder his resting place;
 16 <sup>l</sup>For a righteous man may fall seven times
 And rise again,

23:29–35 Who has woe: Along with Isaiah’s celebrated description of debauchery (Is. 19:11–15), this section is one of the sharpest attacks on drunkenness in the Bible (see vv. 19–21; 20:1). The satire is razor sharp and the imagery vivid.

24:1, 2 Do not be envious of evil men: Whereas 23:17, 18 tells about the future to discourage envy of the wicked, this set of verses simply points out how unworthy the wicked are of any admiration at all.

24:11 These verses speak with a certain confidence and understanding of life beyond the grave (23:17, 18). This verse is a prayer to God as death approaches.

24:12 according to his deeds: Jesus’ words about eternal rewards open and close the NT (compare Matt. 5:11, 12 with Rev. 22:12). Yet Jesus’ action on the cross will deliver those who believe in Him from any condemnation (see Rom. 5:18; Gal. 3:18; Rev. 22:17).

24:13, 14 Here is one of the associations in the Proverbs of honey and the honeycomb with wisdom (see 16:24). Wisdom and its pursuit, while rigorous, is good for the soul and can be pleasant.

24:15, 16 Ultimately the wicked will fall. The righteous can be assured of this not because they are strong, but because they have a Redeemer (see 23:10, 11).

17 <sup>a</sup> Do not rejoice when your enemy falls,
 And do not let your heart be glad when he stumbles;
 18 Lest the LORD see it, and <sup>3</sup> it displease Him,
 And He turn away His wrath from him.
 19 <sup>a</sup> Do not fret because of evildoers,
 Nor be envious of the wicked;
 20 For there will be no prospect for the evil man;
 The lamp of the wicked will be put out.
 21 My son, <sup>b</sup> fear the LORD and the king;
 Do not associate with those given to change;
 22 For their calamity will rise suddenly,
 And who knows the ruin those two can bring?

Further Sayings of the Wise

<sup>23</sup> These things also belong to the wise:

<sup>a</sup> It is not good to <sup>4</sup> show partiality in judgment.
 24 <sup>c</sup> He who says to the wicked, “You are righteous,”
 Him the people will curse;
 Nations will abhor him.
 25 But those who rebuke the wicked will have <sup>5</sup> delight,
 And a good blessing will come upon them.
 26 He who gives a right answer kisses the lips.
 27 <sup>c</sup> Prepare your outside work,
 Make it fit for yourself in the field;
 And afterward build your house.

 And by the vineyard of the man devoid of understanding;
 31 And there it was, <sup>w</sup> all overgrown with thorns;
 Its surface was covered with nettles;
 Its stone wall was broken down.
 32 When I saw it, I considered it well;
 I looked on it and received instruction:
 33 <sup>x</sup> A little sleep, a little slumber,
 A little folding of the hands to rest;
 34 <sup>y</sup> So shall your poverty come like <sup>6</sup> a prowler,
 And your need like <sup>7</sup> an armed man.

Further Wise Sayings of Solomon

25 These <sup>a</sup> also are proverbs of Solomon which the men of Hezekiah king of Judah copied:

2 <sup>b</sup> It is the glory of God to conceal a matter,
 But the glory of kings is to search out a matter.
 3 As the heavens for height and the earth for depth,
 So the heart of kings is unsearchable.
 4 <sup>c</sup> Take away the dross from silver,
 And it will go to the silversmith for jewelry.
 5 Take away the wicked from before the king,
 And his throne will be established in <sup>d</sup> righteousness.

24:21, 22 fear the LORD and the king: The Hebrew text breaks the phrasing: “Fear God, my son, and the king” (see also Rom. 13:1-7; 1 Pet. 2:17). This proverb relates most fully to the Davidic kings, who were God’s regents on earth; one way the ancient Israelites could show respect for God would be to respect the king. But the duty to honor civil authorities still applies to all people of all times (Rom. 13:1).
24:23-34 These things also belong to the wise is a sectional heading that corresponds to the one in 22:17. Verses 23-34 serve as an appendix to the preceding section (22:17-24:22).
24:23, 24 Israel’s basic concern with equity in judgment was not unique; but in Israel a concern for equity was tied to God’s character. Since God does not show partiality, neither should we.
24:28, 29 Verse 29 states the “Golden Rule” (Matt. 7:12) in terms of what we should not do. Jesus said this is our most important duty.

24:30-34 The lazy person is judged on the basis of the shambles of his field. From this sorry state of affairs the wise take a lesson. The only concern the lazy have is for a little sleep.
25:1 After the first collection of proverbs from Solomon (10:1-22:16) and proverbs from foreign sources (22:17-24:22; 24:23-34) comes a collection of proverbs attributed to Solomon, but which were not compiled until the time of King Hezekiah. The following observations can be made: (1) The wisdom tradition concerning Solomon was prodigious; (2) Israel’s interest in wisdom was particularly centered in times of relative peace and a vital royal court life in Jerusalem; (3) Hezekiah’s involvement in this activity was a mark of the strength of his rule and the sense he had of restoring Solomon’s glory.
25:4, 5 Silver is valuable only after the impurities have been removed. Similarly, wickedness needs to be removed from a king for his throne to be established rightly.

- 6 Do not exalt yourself in the presence of the king,

- 28 <sup>u</sup>Whoever has no rule over his own spirit
Is like a city broken down, without walls.

25:6, 7 Do not exalt yourself: Knowing your place is a recurring theme in the Bible. It is humiliating to be told to remove yourself from a seat of honor. Jesus spoke of the same need for deference (Luke 14:11). Whom your eyes have seen: This phrase reflects the custom in the ancient world of never looking directly in the eyes of a superior until told to do so (see Is. 6:5).

25:8–10 hastily to court: In our own litigious age, this group of verses has unusual relevance. Seek to deal with complaints outside the court on a private level or even with an arbiter.

25:16 found honey: Too much of even a good thing can cause illness and distress.

25:17 neighbor’s house: The issue is moderation. Too much “neighborliness” becomes an imposition.

25:19 An unfaithful man—annoying and undependable—cannot be trusted at all.

25:21, 22 The words of Jesus in Matt. 5:43–48 have direct ties to these verses. Coals of fire speaks of God’s judgment (see Ps. 120:4; 140:10); the idea is that an act of kindness to your enemy may cause him or her to feel ashamed. This is just one way to overcome evil with good (see Rom. 12:20).

25:27 much honey: Moderation in good things (see v. 16) goes with humility.

25:28 rule: Self-control is a key part of obedience to God (see Gal. 5:22, 23).

<sup>2</sup> Like a flitting sparrow, like a flying swallow,
 So <sup>b</sup> a curse without cause shall not alight.

<sup>3</sup> <sup>c</sup> A whip for the horse,
 A bridle for the donkey,

<sup>5</sup> <sup>d</sup> Answer a fool according to his folly,
 Lest he be wise in his own eyes.

 Is a proverb in the mouth of fools.

<sup>8</sup> Like one who binds a stone in a sling
 Is he who gives honor to a fool.

<sup>9</sup> Like a thorn that goes into the hand of a drunkard
 Is a proverb in the mouth of fools.

<sup>10</sup> <sup>e</sup> The great God who formed everything
 Gives the fool his hire and the transgressor his wages.

 There is more hope for a fool than for him.

 A fierce lion is in the <sup>2</sup> streets!"

<sup>14</sup> As a door turns on its hinges,
 So does the lazy man on his bed.

<sup>15</sup> The <sup>h</sup> lazy man buries his hand in the <sup>3</sup> bowl;
 It wears him to bring it back to his mouth.

<sup>16</sup> The lazy man is wiser in his own eyes
 Than seven men who can answer sensibly.

<sup>17</sup> He who passes by and meddles in a quarrel not his own
 Is like one who takes a dog by the ears.

<sup>18</sup> Like a madman who throws firebrands, arrows, and death,
<sup>19</sup> Is the man who deceives his neighbor,
 And says, <sup>i</sup> "I was only joking!"

<sup>20</sup> Where there is no wood, the fire goes out;
 And where there is no <sup>4</sup> talebearer, strife ceases.

<sup>21</sup> <sup>j</sup> As charcoal is to burning coals, and wood to fire,
 So is a contentious man to kindle strife.

<sup>22</sup> The words of a <sup>5</sup> talebearer are like <sup>6</sup> tasty trifles,
 And they go down into the <sup>7</sup> inmost body.

<sup>23</sup> Fervent lips with a wicked heart
 Are like earthenware covered with silver dross.

<sup>24</sup> He who hates, disguises it with his lips,
 And lays up deceit within himself;

26:1 snow in summer: A most unlikely happening in Israel. Rain in harvest is not only unusual, but disastrous, because rain at that time would cause the crops to rot.

26:3 rod for the fool's back: The fool has no internal motivation to do anything. He is no better than a brute beast whom someone else has to motivate.

26:4, 5 Some people have called the two proverbs here contradictory, but that is not necessary. The phrase according to his folly appears twice as a play on words with two shades of meaning. On the one hand, it means "avoid the temptation to stoop to his level"; that is, don't use his methods, lest you also be like him. On the other hand, it means "avoid the temptation to ignore him altogether"; that is, respond in some way, or else he will become wise in his own eyes and his folly will get worse.

26:11 dog . . . vomit: A fool does not learn from his mistakes. The apostle Peter cited this verse and applied it to false teachers (2 Pet. 2:22).

26:12 Being haughty is even worse than being a fool. Egotism is the epitome of folly (see 28:11).

26:13-15 These proverbs about the lazy man have a "can you top this" quality that provides comic relief; the lazy man is the object of many jokes in Scripture. This set of verses includes several (see 19:15). Each one belittles laziness and the many outrageous excuses people often use to justify it.

26:17 The problem with taking a dog by the ears is that the dog will not like it and probably bite. The same is true of getting involved in another's quarrel. It's an invasion of privacy.

26:20, 21 Fires do not burn without fuel; strife, or fighting, works the same way.

26:22 The slanderer looks upon his nasty words as tasty tidbits, delicious morsels of raw gossip. Many people have an insatiable hunger for malicious gossip.

26:23 The meaning of this proverb is not far from Jesus' remarks to His enemies that they were like whitewashed tombs (Matt. 23:27). No amount of painting on the outside changes the value of the rotten interior.

26:24-26 A person who hates says one thing but stores up anger within. He may find that his hatred hurts him, when in his life there is so much falsehood that no one believes him no matter how gracious and truthful he might be at times. revealed before the assembly: When we lament the unfairness of the prosperity of the wicked and contrast our own situation to theirs, we need to keep Ps. 73:17 in mind. Their end will more than compensate them for the evil they have done (see Rom. 6:23).

27:1 As Jesus did in His teaching (Matt. 6:25-34), the wise of ancient Israel warned about a concern for tomorrow that overshadows the needs of today.

27:6 Correction given in love by a friend is better than insincere acts of affection (see Ps. 141:5).

27:7 Those who are full do not appreciate what they have, while to those who are hungry anything tastes good.

27:8 from its nest: Straying from home can mean losing security and becoming open to new and powerful temptations (see the parable of the prodigal son, Luke 15).

27:11 This is the first my son proverb in this collection; it is very similar to those in the earlier parts of Proverbs (see chs. 1—9). A child who grows up wise confirms that the parents who taught him or her were themselves wise (see 10:1).

27:13 Normally a garment given in pledge was only a symbolic collateral and was returned immediately, but not if the one making the pledge was unreliable or a stranger (see 20:16).

27:17 iron sharpens iron: A famous proverb, this verse may also be translated as applying to the will: "Let iron sharpen iron, and so let a person sharpen his friend." The idea is that people grow from interaction with one another.

27:18 keeps the fig tree: This proverb speaks of faithfulness and reward. The word master may refer to God.

27:19 a man's heart: Thoughts reflect a person's true character.

20 <sup>k</sup> Hell<sup>5</sup> and <sup>6</sup> Destruction are never full;
 So <sup>l</sup> the eyes of man are never satisfied.

21 <sup>m</sup> The refining pot is for silver and the furnace for gold,
 And a man is valued by what others say of him.

22 <sup>n</sup> Though you grind a fool in a mortar with a pestle along with crushed grain,
 Yet his foolishness will not depart from him.

23 Be diligent to know the state of your <sup>o</sup> flocks,
 And attend to your herds;

24 For riches are not forever,
 Nor does a crown endure to all generations.

25 <sup>p</sup> When the hay is removed, and the tender grass shows itself,
 And the herbs of the mountains are gathered in,

26 The lambs will provide your clothing,
 And the goats the price of a field;

27 You shall have enough goats' milk for your food,
 For the food of your household,
 And the nourishment of your maidservants.

28 The <sup>a</sup> wicked flee when no one pursues,
 But the righteous are bold as a lion.

<sup>2</sup> Because of the transgression of a land, many are its princes;
 But by a man of understanding and knowledge
 Right will be prolonged.

5 <sup>e</sup> Evil men do not understand justice,
 But <sup>f</sup> those who seek the LORD understand all.

6 Better is the poor who walks in his integrity
 Than one perverse in his ways, though he be rich.

7 Whoever keeps the law is a discerning son,
 But a companion of gluttons shames his father.

8 One who increases his possessions by usury and extortion
 Gathers it for him who will pity the poor.

9 One who turns away his ear from hearing the law,
<sup>g</sup> Even his prayer is an abomination.

10 <sup>h</sup> Whoever causes the upright to go astray in an evil way,
 He himself will fall into his own pit;
<sup>i</sup> But the blameless will inherit good.

11 The rich man is wise in his own eyes,
 But the poor who has understanding searches him out.

12 When the righteous rejoice, there is great <sup>j</sup> glory;
 But when the wicked arise, men <sup>2</sup> hide themselves.

13 <sup>k</sup> He who covers his sins will not prosper,
 But whoever confesses and forsakes them will have mercy.

27:20 Hell and Destruction are used often in the Bible to describe the fearful aspect of death. They are like ravenous monsters. Compare this proverb with the image of Satan as a roaring lion (see 1 Pet. 5:8).
27:23–27 These verses affirm diligence and describe its practical rewards. The model is that of the farmer who cares for his flocks and herds; if he diligently cares for them, in time they will care for him.
28:1 The wicked flee when there is no cause (see Ps. 53:5) because of guilt and the fear of getting caught that goes with it.
28:4, 5 When a person abandons God's law, he or she loses all sense of right and praises the wicked (see Rom. 1:28–32). And since true justice is from God, the ungodly have trouble understanding it. This is why the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom (see 1:7).

28:6 The proverbs balance their words on poor and rich people; they do not assume that godliness leads to wealth or that wealthy people are necessarily godly. As this proverb points out, sometimes we must choose between doing good and getting rich.
28:7 To be a companion of gluttons (see 23:20, 21) is to break God's law. This is why Jesus' enemies charged Him with associating with gluttons: such accusations were attacks on His faithfulness to God (see Matt. 11:19).
28:8 Profit taken by usury is unjust. God will help the poor eventually, at their exploiters' expense.
28:10 causes the upright to go astray: These words resemble Jesus' warning against leading His disciples astray (Matt. 18:6). Paul vividly captures this kind of evil: "If anyone defiles the temple of God, God will destroy him" (see 1 Cor. 3:17).

- 6 By transgression an evil man is snared,
But the righteous sings and rejoices.

28:14 Happy is the man is a beatitude (see Ps. 1:1) about the person who is in awe of God. The person who never thinks of God faces calamity.

28:19 Tills his land is a call to hard work, a promise of reward, and a warning against frivolity or overindulgence in fun.

28:20 A faithful man succeeds. That is, faithfulness to God, not greed, determines success in life.

28:21 To exercise partiality (literally “to recognize faces”) means to judge on the basis of favors or bribes instead of what is right.

28:23 rebukes a man: Constructive criticism has more value than flattery, which aims only to win people’s affection.

28:24 robs his father: This proverb condemns breaking the fifth commandment, “Honor your father and your mother”

(Ex. 20:12). Respect for parents as a duty is a common theme in the Book of Proverbs.

28:25, 26 One of the main causes of strife is pride; trust in God leads to blessing. walks wisely: Security can only come by trusting God, not by relying on oneself.

29:1 The Hebrew phrase for often rebuked is “a man of rebukes.” The judgment on a person who stubbornly rejects God’s correction is swift and final.

29:2–4 The words righteous are in authority can also be translated “righteous are great.” People will always respond to good government and justice. Justice is not served by bribes, nor is good government established that way.

29:5, 6 Spreads a net: Lies entrap liars (see 10:8). Moreover, the evil one is trapped by his own actions. Both the liar and the

Vocational Training

Since Israel was an agricultural society, much of the practical wisdom handed down from father to son was about farming. This included lessons on preparing the soil for planting and cultivating the various crops, as well as harvesting and storing the bounty. Sons learned these skills by working alongside their fathers throughout their youth. They carefully observed their fathers planting, pruning, and harvesting. It was also the father's responsibility to teach his sons a trade or craft. For example, if the father was a potter, he taught that skill to his sons. While the boys were learning these skills, the girls learned baking, spinning, and weaving under the watchful eyes of their mothers (Ex. 35:25, 26; 2 Sam. 13:8). If there were no sons in the family, daughters might be required to learn the father's work (Gen. 29:6; Ex. 2:16). Such training was important, for "a child left to himself brings shame to his mother" (29:15).

- For though he understands, he will not respond.
- 20 Do you see a man hasty in his words?
<sup>p</sup> There is more hope for a fool than for him.
- 21 He who pampers his servant from childhood
Will have him as a son in the end.
- 22 <sup>q</sup> An angry man stirs up strife,
And a furious man abounds in transgression.
- 23 <sup>r</sup> A man's pride will bring him low,
But the humble in spirit will retain honor.
- 24 Whoever is a partner with a thief hates his own life;
<sup>s</sup> He <sup>5</sup> swears to tell the truth, but reveals nothing.
- 25 <sup>t</sup> The fear of man brings a snare, wicked are contrasted with the righteous, who run happily because they are innocent of any wrongdoing.
But whoever trusts in the LORD shall be <sup>6</sup> safe.

29:7 Righteous people are concerned for the poor and help them (see 22:22); the wicked do not even consider the needy.
29:13 God is responsible for giving life to both the poor man and the oppressor. Jesus attested that God causes rain to fall on the just and the unjust (Matt. 5:45).
29:15-17 The words rod and rebuke both speak of correction or discipline. An undisciplined child shames everyone, especially his or her parents (see v. 17). Verse 17 places the burden of correction on the parents. The word translated delight speaks of rich, delicious food (see Gen. 49:20).

29:18 where there is no revelation: The Hebrew word for revelation speaks of revelatory vision, a word from God. Without God's revelation of the Law, the people flounder. True happiness is discovered within the constraints of revelation, in the counsel of the Savior.
29:20 hasty in his words: Even a wise person may become foolish by speaking too quickly. It is better to be silent or to choose words carefully than to speak whatever first comes to mind.
29:23 See Ps. 147:6; God raises the humble and puts down the arrogant. Mary praised God for doing this marvelous thing (see Luke 1:46-55).

- 26 <sup>u</sup> Many seek the ruler's <sup>7</sup> favor,
But justice for man comes from the
LORD.
- 27 An unjust man is an abomination to
the righteous,
And he who is upright in the way is an abomination to the wicked.

29:26 God controls human affairs. Therefore it makes more sense to seek the Lord first before stooping to seek the favor of human rulers.

30:1 An entirely new section of the Book of Proverbs begins with the words of Agur. Like Lemuel (31:1-9), Agur was a non-Hebrew contributor to the Book of Proverbs. He came to faith in the God of Israel in a foreign land. We know nothing about his father Jakeh, but the word translated his utterance may be a place name. Ithiel and Ucal were probably Agur's pupils. Since the back-to-back repetition of the name Ithiel is unusual, some construe the Hebrew letters differently and translate the text "I have wearied myself, O God; I have wearied myself, O God, and am consumed." This would fit the context of the following verses.

30:2, 3 more stupid than any man: Agur means he was at a loss. Similarly, his denial of knowledge of the Holy One is a rhetorical flourish as well (as is seen by comparison with his words of vv. 5, 6). Agur was stating with dramatic irony that he could not explain the puzzle before him.

30:4 This verse gives the riddle that perplexed Agur. The questions are enigmatic. They culminate in What is His name, and What is His Son's name, if you know? At this point, the riddle has no answer. The OT would answer that "His name" is the Lord God, but did not have a name for His Son. This riddle was to remain unsolved until Jesus answered it for Nicodemus (see John 3:13). These verses form one of the most straightforward messianic texts in the Bible.

30:7-9 two things: This was all Agur needed.

30:10 This proverb is unusual in warning against slandering a servant. Slaves in ancient times were often regarded as less than a full person.

30:11-14 Agur wrote about a generation plagued by social ills such as lack of respect for parents, self-righteousness, greed, and selfishness. Ironically, such evils have plagued every generation, not just Agur's.

30:17 mocks his father: The lack of parental respect spoken of in v. 11 leads to this curse. The language is strong and violent, as is the punishment of the one who abuses his or her parents.

18 There are three things which are too wonderful for me,
 Yes, four which I do not understand:
 19 The way of an eagle in the air,
 The way of a serpent on a rock,
 The way of a ship in the <sup>4</sup>midst of the sea,
 And the way of a man with a virgin.
 20 This is the way of an adulterous woman:
 She eats and wipes her mouth,
 And says, “I have done no wickedness.”
 21 For three things the earth is perturbed,
 Yes, for four it cannot bear up:
 22 <sup>4</sup>For a servant when he reigns,
 A fool when he is filled with food,

The Words of King Lemuel’s Mother

31 The words of King Lemuel, the utterance which his mother taught him:

2 What, my son?
 And what, son of my womb?
 And what, <sup>4</sup>“son of my vows?”
 3 <sup>1</sup> Do not give your strength to women,
 Nor your ways <sup>2</sup>to that which destroys kings.
 4 <sup>4</sup> It is not for kings, O Lemuel,
It is not for kings to drink wine,
 Nor for princes intoxicating drink;
 5 <sup>6</sup> Lest they drink and forget the law,
 And pervert the justice of all <sup>1</sup>the afflicted.
 6 <sup>7</sup> Give strong drink to him who is perishing,
 And wine to those who are bitter of heart.
 7 Let him drink and forget his poverty,
 And remember his misery no more.
 8 <sup>8</sup> Open your mouth for the speechless,
 In the cause of all who are <sup>2</sup>appointed to die.
 9 Open your mouth, <sup>1</sup>judge righteously,

30:19 The term translated virgin could also read “young woman” in this context.

30:20 This verse contrasts with the way of v. 19; this way is awful whereas the former is wonderful. The adulterous woman regards her illicit sexual relations without remorse, as if she were finishing a plate of food.

30:21–23 Contrasting with the four wonderful things of vv. 18, 19 are four things that are grievous, an upsetting of order. Three are clear: the servant, the fool, and the maidservant are all in unexpected positions of power. The hateful woman describes the sorry lot of a woman whose husband hates her.

30:24–28 This numerical proverb speaks of four creatures that are small in size but amazing in behavior. Each of these small creatures has a behavioral trait from which wise people can learn.

30:32, 33 The proverbs of Agur conclude with warnings against boasting and troublemaking. The phrase put your hand on your mouth means “stop it.” The idea is if you are in the middle of making trouble and suddenly realize your foolishness, stop right then before things get worse.

31:1 This verse begins a new section of material from a non-Israelite source. Some have thought that the name Lemuel, meaning “Belonging to God,” is a pseudonym for Solomon, but this is only a guess.

31:2–5 Lemuel’s mother advised him not to give his strength to women. Often in the ancient world a king would amass a large harem or involve himself sexually with many women. The wisdom of Lemuel’s mother was that such behavior destroys rulers. She likewise advised him to avoid intoxicating drink altogether, so that he could always have a clear enough head to rule justly.

31:8, 9 for the speechless: The duty of a king in the ancient world was to defend the weak, to uphold the helpless. These ideals were rarely realized in that age or even in our own. But one day a King who is the Defender of the helpless will establish His righteous reign (see 23:10, 11).

And <sup>i</sup>plead the cause of the poor and needy.

The Virtuous Wife

<sup>j</sup>Who <sup>3</sup>can find a <sup>4</sup>virtuous wife?
 For her worth is far above rubies.
<sup>11</sup> The heart of her husband safely trusts her;
 So he will have no lack of gain.
<sup>12</sup> She does him good and not evil
 All the days of her life.
<sup>13</sup> She seeks wool and flax,
 And willingly works with her hands.
<sup>14</sup> She is like the merchant ships,
 She brings her food from afar.
<sup>15</sup> <sup>k</sup>She also rises while it is yet night,
 And <sup>l</sup>provides food for her household,
 And a portion for her maidservants.
<sup>16</sup> She considers a field and buys it;
 From <sup>5</sup>her profits she plants a vineyard.
<sup>17</sup> She girds herself with strength,
 And strengthens her arms.
<sup>18</sup> She perceives that her merchandise is good,
 And her lamp does not go out by night.
<sup>19</sup> She stretches out her hands to the distaff,
 And her hand holds the spindle.
<sup>20</sup> <sup>m</sup>She extends her hand to the poor,
 Yes, she reaches out her hands to the needy.

<sup>21</sup> She is not afraid of snow for her household,
 For all her household is clothed with scarlet.
<sup>22</sup> She makes tapestry for herself;
 Her clothing is fine linen and purple.
<sup>23</sup> <sup>n</sup> Her husband is known in the gates,
 When he sits among the elders of the land.
<sup>24</sup> She makes linen garments and sells them,
 And supplies sashes for the merchants.
<sup>25</sup> Strength and honor are her clothing;
 She shall rejoice in time to come.
<sup>26</sup> She opens her mouth with wisdom,
 And on her tongue is the law of kindness.
<sup>27</sup> She watches over the ways of her household,
 And does not eat the bread of idleness.
<sup>28</sup> Her children rise up and call her blessed;
 Her husband also, and he praises her:
<sup>29</sup> <sup>o</sup>“Many daughters have done well,
 But you excel them all.”
<sup>30</sup> Charm is deceitful and beauty is passing,
 But a woman who fears the LORD, she shall be praised.
<sup>31</sup> Give her of the fruit of her hands,
 And let her own works praise her in the gates.

31:10 Proverbs 31:10–31 is an acrostic poem; each verse begins with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet. Some have thought that it continues the teaching of King Lemuel's mother (vv. 1–9), but it may also be an independent, concluding unit. As the Book of Proverbs begins with the Prologue (1:1–7), which gives the goals of wisdom in general terms, so now it concludes with this Epilogue (vv. 10–31), which presents them in a case study. The opening words who can find position this woman as an ideal. The phrase a virtuous wife speaks of excellence, moral worth, ability, and nobility, not just marital fidelity (see also 12:4). Such a woman is the ideal of wisdom in action.

31:13–15 These verses emphasize both hard work and skill. The woman they describe does things she enjoys, finding her fulfillment in varied tasks. The words she... rises while it is yet night describe her concern for others; she gives of herself to care for her family and servants.

31:16, 17 She considers a field; that is, she buys and sells and builds her own resources. These words are remarkable in light of the many restrictions placed on women in the ancient world.

31:18, 19 her merchandise is good: One of the avenues the woman exploits is a “cottage industry” in which she acts independently.

31:20–22 The virtuous woman works not to get rich, but to give to the poor. She can be concerned for others because she has provided for her family.

31:23 The virtuous woman's husband has a position in the gates as an elder of the city; some of his status comes from his wife's reputation, not just his own.

31:24 Linen garments probably indicates clothing for women.

31:25 The virtuous woman's own clothing is far richer than linen or silk; she is dressed in strength and honor.

31:26 Any woman who opens her mouth with wisdom deserves praise, given all the information on the use and misuse of speech in the Book of Proverbs. A virtuous woman takes care to speak well (James 3:2).

31:28, 29 The virtuous woman is blessed by her family—by her children as well as her husband. The words of v. 29 are the blessing of her husband.

31:30, 31 Charm may be used for good or for evil; it is not necessarily bad. But its good use requires the fear of the Lord—the main theme of the Book of Proverbs.

The Book of Ecclesiastes

The Book of Ecclesiastes is one of the most misunderstood books in the Bible. Christians have tended either to ignore the message of the book, or to regard it as the testimony of a man living apart from God. This is unfortunate, for the book asks relevant, searching questions about the meaning of life, and it declares the utter futility of an existence without God. Like all Scripture, the Book of Ecclesiastes benefits and edifies God's people.

Negative descriptions such as “cynical,” “fatalistic,” or “existential” do not do the Book of Ecclesiastes justice. There is too much evidence of robust cheerfulness throughout its pages. “So I commended enjoyment” (8:15) is a recurrent theme that pervades the book; in fact, the Hebrew words for “gladness” and “being glad” appear seventeen times in Ecclesiastes. The underlying mood of the book is joy: finding pleasure in life despite the troubles that often plague it. Those who fear and worship God should experience this joy; they should rejoice in the gifts God has given them.

Author • The writer says that he was “the son of David, king in Jerusalem” (1:1, 12, 16), words that have led many to assume that the writer was Solomon. Evidence in the book itself points to Solomon: (1) the author had “more wisdom than all who were before” him (1:16; see 1 Kin. 3:12); (2) he gathered for himself “silver and gold and the special treasures of kings” (2:8; see 1 Kin. 10:11–23); (3) he “acquired male and female servants” in great numbers (2:7; see 1 Kin. 9:20–23); (4) he engaged in extensive building projects (2:4–6; see 1 Kin. 9:1–19); (5) he developed a great understanding of plants, birds, and natural phenomena (2:4–7; see 1 Kin. 4:33); (6) he declared, “there is not a just man on earth who does good and does not sin” (7:20; see 1 Kin. 8:46); and (7) “he pondered and sought out and set in order many proverbs” (12:9; see 1 Kin. 4:32).

Nevertheless, some scholars argue that Solomon is not the author. They point to two passages to make their case: 1:12 and 1:16. The past tense of the verb in 1:12: “I . . . was king over Israel in Jerusalem” may lead the reader to think that the author was no longer king when he wrote this work. But the verb can denote a state of action that began in the past and continues into the present. Hence 1:12 could be translated, “I have been [and am] king.” Also, the phrase in 1:16 suggests there were many kings before Solomon in Jerusalem. Since David was the first Hebrew king in Jerusalem, the argument goes, the writer must have lived many generations after the time of David. Yet we should recall that the history of Jerusalem can be traced to early Canaanite settlements. The kings of Jerusalem may well have included Melchizedek (Gen. 14:18), Adoni-Zedek (Josh. 10:1), and Abdi-Khepa (mentioned in the Amarna Letters) to name just a few. Therefore it can reasonably be asserted that Solomon is the author of this wonderful but unusual book.

Purpose • Solomon probably wrote this book toward the end of his life, after he had repented of idolatry and his pursuit of foreign wives. Thus the Book of Ecclesiastes is both a monument to Solomon's recommitment to the living God and a guide for others through the pitfalls and perils of life.

In fact, Solomon might have written this wisdom book as a tract for other nations. That would explain why he did not write about the Law, and why he used the divine title Elohim, meaning “Exalted God,” instead of the covenantal name Yahweh in the book (Ex. 3:14, 15). Solomon had entertained many dignitaries from other nations, including the queen of Sheba. The queen's questions concerning the basic meaning of life might have prompted him to write Ecclesiastes to teach the Gentiles about the living God and their need to worship only Him. Centuries before, Moses had called for this type of treatise to the pagan nations (Deut. 4:6–8). The nations that had heard of Israel’s success needed to know about the living and exalted God who had blessed Israel with wealth and wisdom.

Themes • Sometimes it is better to read the end of a book to understand better the direction in which the book is headed. This is certainly true of Ecclesiastes. The book should be interpreted in light of its conclusion: “Fear God and keep His commandments, for this is man’s all” (12:13). To fear God means to revere, worship, and serve God—to turn from evil and turn in awe to the living God. This was the attitude of Abraham (Gen. 22:12), Job (Job 1:1, 8, 9; 2:3), and the Egyptian midwives (Ex. 1:17, 21). It does not involve dread, but instead a proper respect for and obedience to our Creator. Why should we respect and obey God? The Book of Ecclesiastes answers this question in its concluding verse (12:14): God will judge everyone—both the righteous and the wicked. Life cannot be lived with abandon, as if God will not see or remember the deeds of the past. For on the final day, he will call forth all men and women to account for their actions. The admonition to fear God and the expectation of divine judgment are the two great themes that conclude the book and provide an interpretative framework for the rest of it (see 12:13, 14).

The journey of Solomon to his conclusion “to fear God” is founded on the human search for meaning in life. In 3:11, Solomon eloquently expresses humankind’s dilemma: God has placed eternity in our hearts. A search for true meaning in this life—in money or fame, for instance—will only leave us empty-handed, because our souls yearn for something that will last. Our frustration arises from a hunger to fellowship with our eternal Creator—the only One who can give meaning to our lives. In Ecclesiastes, Solomon takes us on a tour of all of life and concludes that all of it is vanity. Pleasures and riches lead merely to boredom and despair. Only a relationship with the One who created us and continues to care for us will truly satisfy. Troubles and uncertainty will continue to plague us, but even during these times we can find joy in a secure trust in our Father.

Christ in the Scriptures

Ecclesiastes is a candid commentary on the emptiness and inner perplexity that marks the life of one who is disconnected from his Creator. It’s a journal of honest doubts, hopes, and fears. Because all people have “eternity in their hearts” (3:11), there is a purpose for Jesus to disrobe Himself of His divine dignity and descend to our sinful planet. In that we bear God’s image, He desires to enter our world to provide the necessary remedy in order to maximize our eternal potential. As we peer into the looking glass and see the sad state of life lived apart from the Lord, we recognize that only in Jesus can ultimate satisfaction, wisdom, and joy be found.

The Vanity of Life

The words of the Preacher, the son of David, <sup>a</sup>king in Jerusalem.

- <sup>2</sup> “Vanity<sup>b</sup> <sup>1</sup>of vanities,” says the Preacher;
“Vanity of vanities, <sup>c</sup>all is vanity.”

And <sup>3</sup>hastens to the place where it arose.
- <sup>6</sup> <sup>g</sup>The wind goes toward the south,
And turns around to the north;

And there is nothing new under the sun.
- <sup>10</sup> Is there anything of which it may be said, “See, this is new?”

1:1 The title Preacher denotes a function or a profession. It literally means “one who assembles” or “one who gathers people together.” Thus the word refers to Solomon as a person who convened an assembly of the wise in order to explore in a formal manner the meaning of life. It might be better to transliterate the Hebrew word Qohelet rather than to translate it, for it seems to be Solomon’s pen name.

1:2 Vanity of vanities: This phrase translates the Hebrew superlative, familiar from such phrases as “song of songs” and “holy of holies.” Here it might express “the ultimate absurdity” or “utter emptiness.” This has led many to conclude that the Book of Ecclesiastes is a negative, cynical book that denies any meaning in life. Others have suggested that this book explains that life apart from God is “utter emptiness.” However, the book itself does not say this, for there is no qualifying phrase such as “except when one is related to God.” Instead, the book clearly says that life itself is “vanity of vanities.” The word vanity means “breath” or “vapor” and thus speaks of life as “quickly passing.” Wherever we read the word vanity in Ecclesiastes, we should think not of what is “meaningless,” but of what is “quickly passing” (v. 14; 6:12). This is one of the key terms in the Book of Ecclesiastes, for it is found 38 times there. The teaching of the Preacher is to realize that life is a fleeting thing that needs to be savored and enjoyed as a gift from God.

1:3 The senses of the term profit are: (1) “advantage” and (2) “adequate gain.” Here it refers to compensation or gains, usually in the commercial realm. The question is: What is left after all expenses are taken into account? labor: Both the noun and the verb carry negative connotations, referring to activities requiring exertion. under the sun: This phrase (also translated as “under heaven” in v. 13; 2:3; 3:1) describes life lived here on this earth, as God has been pleased to place us. In these two verses (vv. 2, 3), the Preacher has established one of his principal ideas: Life may seem pointless because it is quickly passing. It is the burden of the rest of his book to help the assembly of the wise understand how to truly value life because it does indeed pass so very quickly.

1:4 The term generation suggests both the human actors and the natural phenomena as well. With the verb passes away we have the first of a series of antitheses in Ecclesiastes. the earth abides forever: Only God is eternal and everlasting in the fullest sense. But compared to the lives of humankind, the earth abides with little change.

1:5–7 The sun . . . The wind . . . the rivers: These three elements of God’s creation are seen to be going about in their expected courses, with little change and little effect.

1:8 All things are full of labor: What is true of the sun, wind, and rivers (vv. 5–7) is also true of all other temporal things. The whole world is made up of what could be called “the restless ones.” The eye is not satisfied: Here a proverb is quoted describing insatiable appetite (4:8; 5:10; compare Prov. 27:20) in depicting the seeming pointlessness of the courses of natural phenomena.

1:10, 11 If it appears that something new does happen from time to time, it is only because people’s memories are short.

It has already been in ancient times before us.

- <sup>11</sup> There is <sup>k</sup>no remembrance of former things,
Nor will there be any remembrance of things that are to come
By those who will come after.

The Grief of Wisdom

<sup>12</sup>I, the Preacher, was king over Israel in Jerusalem. <sup>13</sup>And I set my heart to seek and <sup>l</sup>search out by wisdom concerning all that is done under heaven; <sup>m</sup>this burdensome task God has given to the sons of man, by which they may be <sup>5</sup>exercised. <sup>14</sup>I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and indeed, all is vanity and grasping for the wind.

- <sup>15</sup> What is crooked cannot be made straight,
And what is lacking cannot be numbered.

<sup>16</sup>I communed with my heart, saying, “Look, I have attained greatness, and have gained <sup>o</sup>more wisdom than all who were before me in Jerusalem. My

- <sup>18</sup> For <sup>q</sup>in much wisdom is much grief,
And he who increases knowledge increases sorrow.

The Vanity of Pleasure

<sup>4</sup>I made my works great, I built myself <sup>f</sup>houses, and planted myself vineyards. <sup>5</sup>I made myself gardens and orchards, and I planted all kinds of fruit trees in them. <sup>6</sup>I made myself water pools from which

1:12 I, the Preacher, was king: There is a shift from the third person of vv. 1, 2 to the first person here. The writer, or perhaps a later editor, returns to the third person in the epilogue, 12:9–14. This is most likely a reference to Solomon as the author of the book.

1:13 under heaven: This is a synonymous expression for “under the sun” (vv. 3, 9); it refers to life as it is lived by people on earth. God: Ecclesiastes does not use the divine title Yahweh, God’s covenantal name (Ex. 3:14, 15). Instead, the book uses the word Elohim for God 28 times, a word that stresses His sovereignty over all creation. The wisdom writers often use Elohim when they wish to speak of universal truth instead of truths that are peculiar to God’s covenantal relationship to Israel. sons of man: This is a way of speaking of human beings in a very general sense. may be exercised: This verb is used only in Ecclesiastes and means “to be occupied with” or “to be busy with”; it is associated with the noun task (see 3:10).

1:14 grasping for the wind: This phrase does not occur in the Hebrew Bible outside of Ecclesiastes. Seven of its nine occurrences (v. 14; 2:11, 17, 26; 4:4, 6; 6:9) follow “vanity” statements. The phrase explains the nature of life according to the Preacher. Life is real, but quickly passing; any attempt to seize it is as futile as grasping the wind.

1:15 Solomon is not claiming that there is no use trying to straighten out or change anything. Rather, he explains that no amount of investigating or using the resources of earth will ever straighten out all that is crooked, twisted, perverted, or turned upside down (7:13).

1:16 all who were before me in Jerusalem: This phrase does not rule out Solomon as the author of the book just because he was preceded in Jerusalem only by his father David. There were other kings including Melchizedek (Gen. 14:18) and Adoni-Zedek (Josh. 10:1). The city of Jerusalem had existed for hundreds of years before Solomon became its king.

1:17 It was not wisdom that Solomon judges absurd, but rather becoming “more wise” (2:15) and “overly wise” (7:16).

1:18 much wisdom is much grief: For all of wisdom’s other advantages, Solomon confesses that much wisdom and learning are the source of pain, chagrin, and sorrow. It is well known that the very process of learning is an expansion of the awareness of our ignorance. For mortals, an increase of wisdom may only increase pain (12:12).

2:1 The Preacher uses a literary device of conversing with himself as a way of describing his thought processes. mirth: A new test is proposed, following the test of wisdom. It is the test of “joy,” or “pleasure.”

2:2 Solomon labels the lighter side of pleasure and joy as sheer madness, but even the weightier aspects of laughter cause Solomon to ask if anything substantial is really achieved. As Solomon writes in Prov. 14:13, “Even in laughter the heart may sorrow, and the end of mirth may be grief.”

2:3 flesh with wine . . . heart with wisdom: Here the test is an attempt to balance excess on the one side with learning on the other.

2:4–6 I built myself houses: Solomon worked for 13 years building “the king’s house” (1 Kin. 9:10), then he built “the House of the Forest of Lebanon” (1 Kin. 10:17), and another house for his wife, Pharaoh’s daughter (1 Kin. 9:24). He also fortified the cities of Hazor, Megiddo, Gezer, Beth Horon, Baalath, and Tadmor (1 Kin. 9:15, 17, 18). vineyards . . . gardens and orchards: Solomon’s interest in the natural world (God’s creation) was prodigious (1 Kin. 4:33).

vanity (Heb. hebel) (1:14; 2:1, 11; 6:12; 7:15; Ps. 78:33; Is. 49:4) Strong’s #1892: This word basically means “vapor” or “breath,” such as the rapidly vanishing vapor of one’s warm breath in cool, crisp air. With this word, the Preacher described worldly pursuits—such as wealth, honor, fame, and various pleasures—as similar to desperately grasping at air (2:17). It is absurd and useless. Jeremiah used the same word to denounce idolatry as “worthless” (Jer. 18:15); and Job used it to bemoan the brevity of human life (Job 7:16). But the Preacher of Ecclesiastes used the word more than any other OT author. According to him, all of life is vanity unless one recognizes that everything is from the hand of God (2:24–26).

to <sup>3</sup>water the growing trees of the grove. <sup>7</sup>I acquired male and female servants, and had <sup>4</sup>servants born in my house. Yes, I had greater possessions of herds and flocks than all who were in Jerusalem before me. <sup>8</sup> I also gathered for myself silver and gold and the special treasures of kings and of the provinces. I acquired male and female singers, the delights of the sons of men, and <sup>5</sup>musical instruments of all kinds.

<sup>9h</sup> So I became great and <sup>6</sup>excelled <sup>i</sup>more than all who were before me in Jerusalem. Also my wisdom remained with me.

<sup>10</sup> Whatever my eyes desired I did not keep from them. I did not withhold my heart from any pleasure, For my heart rejoiced in all my labor; And <sup>j</sup>this was my <sup>7</sup>reward from all my labor.

The End of the Wise and the Fool

<sup>12</sup> Then I turned myself to consider wisdom <sup>4</sup>and madness and folly; For what can the man do who succeeds the king?—
Only what he has already <sup>m</sup>done.
<sup>13</sup> Then I saw that wisdom <sup>n</sup>excels folly
 As light excels darkness.
<sup>14</sup> <sup>o</sup>The wise man's eyes are in his head,
 But the fool walks in darkness. Yet I myself perceived
 That <sup>p</sup>the same event happens to them all.

<sup>15</sup> So I said in my heart,
 “As it happens to the fool,
 It also happens to me,
 And why was I then more wise?”
 Then I said in my heart,
 “This also is vanity.”
<sup>16</sup> For there is <sup>q</sup>no more remembrance of the wise than of the fool forever,
 Since all that now is will be forgotten in the days to come.
 And how does a wise man die?
 As the fool!

<sup>17</sup> Therefore I hated life because the work that was done under the sun was distressing to me, for all is vanity and grasping for the wind.

<sup>18</sup> Then I hated all my labor in which I had toiled under the sun, because <sup>r</sup>I must leave it to the man who will come after me. <sup>19</sup> And who knows whether he will be wise or a fool? Yet he will rule over all my labor in which I toiled and in which I have shown myself wise under the sun.

Solomon's Search for Satisfaction

Solomon drifted away from God during his lifetime, pursuing different ways to achieve satisfaction. Only after many years of futile searching did he finally remember the true source of peace: a proper relationship with God. Solomon wrote Ecclesiastes to pass on this truth. Satisfaction can be found only by fearing God and keeping His commandments (12:13).

Solomon sought fulfillment in:	The result was:
Wisdom (1:12–18) • Acquiring more knowledge	much grief and increased sorrow (1:18)
Pleasure (2:1–3) • Laughter and mirth	vanity (2:1)
Accomplishments (2:4–6) • Building projects • Agricultural endeavors • Engineering experiments	vanity (2:11)
Possessions (2:7–17) • Large numbers of servants • Herds of cattle • Wealth in silver and gold (1 Kin. 10) • Choirs and orchestras • Seven hundred wives (1 Kin. 11:3)	no profit under the sun (2:11) hatred of life (2:17)

2:7, 8 Maintaining the various buildings and gardens of the king must have demanded an extensive staff of servants. silver and gold: Solomon's riches were unsurpassed by the kings of the ancient world (1 Kin. 10:14–29). musical instruments: The meaning of the Hebrew term so translated has long been debated. An Egyptian letter found at Amarna contains this word in Akkadian as an explanation of an Egyptian word meaning “concubine.”

2:10 my eyes desired: Solomon had limitless ability to fulfill any and all of his desires. labor: One of the Preacher's favorite words occurs here for the third time. It appears in the book about 31 times.

2:11 At the end of his grand quest for possessions and experiences, Solomon concluded that it was vanity or “vapor,” a grasping for the wind. That is, even with all he had done and experienced, there was still a sense that nothing lasting or enduring had been achieved.

2:12 madness and folly: This topic was introduced briefly in 1:17. The two words together express a single concept, “senseless folly.”

2:13 There is a relative value of wisdom over folly, but both have their limitations (vv. 19, 21).

2:14 the same event: Some versions incorrectly render this Hebrew term which means “happening,” or “event” as the word fate. This is one of the Preacher's favorite words (vv. 14, 15; 3:19; 9:2, 3, 11). Here, the inevitable event is death. Both the wise and the foolish must die.

2:17 Such hatred of life is astonishing since the one who finds wisdom also finds life, according to Prov. 3:16; 8:35. But the Preacher's dissatisfaction was related to the quickly passing nature of everything (1:2), including even the good things; they were a grasping for the wind (1:14).

This also is vanity. <sup>20</sup>Therefore I turned my heart and despaired of all the labor in which I had toiled under the sun. <sup>21</sup>For there is a man whose labor is with wisdom, knowledge, and skill; yet he must leave his <sup>8</sup>heritage to a man who has not labored for it. This also is vanity and a great evil. <sup>22</sup>For what has man for all his labor, and for the striving of his heart with which he has toiled under the sun? <sup>23</sup>For all his days are <sup>1</sup>sorrowful, and his work burdensome; even in the night his heart takes no rest. This also is vanity.

<sup>24</sup>Nothing is better for a man than that he should eat and drink, and that his soul should enjoy good in his labor. This also, I saw, was from the hand of God. <sup>25</sup>For who can eat, or who can have enjoyment, <sup>9</sup>more than I? <sup>26</sup>For God gives <sup>v</sup>wisdom and knowledge and joy to a man who is good in His sight; but to the sinner He gives the work of gathering and collecting, that <sup>w</sup>he may give to him who is good before God. This also is vanity and grasping for the wind.

And a time of peace.

2:20 labor in which I had toiled: This could refer either to all the toil he had undertaken or, more probably, to the “earnings” he had gained.

2:21 The noun skill is found only in Ecclesiastes (v. 21; 4:4). It depicts one who is expert at a craft. great evil: The term evil often has a sense of moral evil; here, however, it may mean “calamity” or “ruin.” There is a sense of sadness that runs through this section. Nothing that we gain in this life can be carried on into the life to come.

2:24 This translation, with most interpreters, assumes that the comparative form—better—is to be supplied here, though it is missing in the Hebrew text; it is in agreement with later passages, see 3:12; 5:18; 8:15. The Preacher concludes that all good is located only in God. eat and drink . . . good in his labor: This repeated refrain marks one of the central affirmations of Ecclesiastes (vv. 24–26; 3:12, 13; 3:22; 5:18–20; 8:15; 9:7); in the midst of a world of trouble, a believer is able to seize the moment in joy from God. Only God supplies the key to the meaning of life. Without Him, genuine meaning, satisfaction, and enjoyment in life are ultimately elusive. from the hand of God: This figure of speech announces that even such mundane acts as eating, drinking, and earning a paycheck are gifts from God.

2:25 more than I: An alternative meaning of this phrase, “apart from God,” may be more appropriate in this context. Believers pray before their meals in order to affirm that God is the great Giver of all good gifts. They can enjoy the food on their plates only when they recognize that fact.

2:26 God gives: One of the words used most frequently in Ecclesiastes to describe God’s relationship to individuals is the verb “to give.” It appears 11 times with God as subject.

3:1–15 This poem speaks with eloquence of the role of time in the life of the believer. Some regard the Book of Ecclesiastes as describing life apart from God, but clearly this text describes life that is lived in relationship with God. Through these words, the Preacher is not teaching that everything has an opportune time according to which one should choose one action or the other. Rather, he teaches that all events are in the hand of God, who makes everything happen in the time He judges appropriate. Illustrating this comforting assertion, the Preacher turns to 14 pairs of opposites in vv. 2–8.

3:1 a season . . . A time: Both words are usually regarded as being specific points in time rather than a continuity of time. under heaven: That is, life “under the sun,” the sphere in which human life is lived.

3:2 born . . . die: The pairs of words in these verses are natural events in human life, and all are under the hand of the living God.

3:3 A time to kill: In the plan of God, there is a time for executing murderers (Gen. 9:6) and for going to war against enemies designated by God. A time to break down: There is a time for dismantling walls, stone buildings, or even nations (Is. 5:5; Jer. 18:7, 9).

3:4 weep . . . laugh: God’s plan includes both sorrows and joys. Believers do not mourn in the same way as unbelievers (1 Thess. 4:13), but we do mourn (Matt. 5:4). Dancing and leaping are natural ways of expressing laughter, pleasure, and joy in the presence of the Lord (Ex. 15:20; Ps. 149:2, 3; 150:4) and in times of personal happiness (Luke 15:25).

3:5 In times of peace, stones were cleared from the fields, allowing for cultivation. In wartime, the rocks were thrown on the fields to make them unusable (2 Kin. 3:19, 25). to embrace: In this context the words describe the sexual embrace.

3:6 to keep . . . to throw away: There is a period of life in which one wishes to accumulate things for enjoyment and memories; later in life, one needs to work out ways to dispose of what has been accumulated.

3:7 When bad news came, it was customary to rip one’s garments to show grief (2 Sam. 13:31). When the problem passed, it was just as well to sew the garment back together. silence . . . speak: See the two contrary ways of responding to a fool (Prov. 26:4, 5).

3:8 In this verse the first part names the positive love first,

The God-Given Task

<sup>9h</sup>What profit has the worker from that in which he labors? <sup>10i</sup>I have seen the God-given task with which the sons of men are to be occupied. <sup>11</sup>He has made everything beautiful in its time. Also He has put eternity in their hearts, except that <sup>j</sup>no one can find out the work that God does from beginning to end.

<sup>12</sup>I know that nothing is <sup>k</sup>better for them than to rejoice, and to do good in their lives, <sup>13</sup>and also that <sup>l</sup>every man should eat and drink and enjoy the good of all his labor—it is the gift of God.

<sup>14</sup> I know that whatever God does,
It shall be forever.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> <sup>a</sup> Job 35:9; Ps. 12:5; Eccl. 3:16; 5:8; Is. 5:7

And in the place of righteousness,
<sup>5</sup> Iniquity was there.

<sup>17</sup>I said in my heart,

<sup>18</sup>“God shall judge the righteous and the wicked,
For there is a time there for every <sup>6</sup>purpose and for every work.”

<sup>18</sup>I said in my heart, “Concerning the condition of the sons of men, God tests them, that they may see that they themselves are like animals.” <sup>19q</sup>For what happens to the sons of men also happens to animals; one thing befalls them: as one dies, so dies the other. Surely, they all have one breath; man has no advantage over animals, for all is vanity. <sup>20</sup>All go to one place: <sup>r</sup>all are from the dust, and all return to dust. <sup>21s</sup>Who <sup>7</sup>knows the spirit of the sons of men, which goes upward, and the spirit of the animal, which goes down to the earth? <sup>22t</sup>So I perceived that nothing is better than that a man should rejoice in his own works, for <sup>u</sup>that is his <sup>8</sup>heritage. <sup>v</sup>For who can bring him to see what will happen after him?

4 Then I returned and considered all the <sup>a</sup>oppression that is done under the sun:

then the negative hate. The second part uses the reverse order, negative then positive, to end with peace.

3:9 What profit: This is the same question posed in 1:3. The answer here is that all of life unfolds the appointment of God. All the toiling of man cannot change the times, circumstances, and control of events that God has reserved to Himself.

3:10 One of the words that is unique to the Book of Ecclesiastes, task may have a neutral connotation as here (see 5:3; 8:16) or a negative connotation (something burdensome, as in 1:13; 2:23; 26; 4:8; 5:14).

3:11 All of God’s creation is beautiful. The point is that God makes everything that way in its time. From the divine perspective, there is no ugliness in the events of our lives (3:1–8). Eternity in their hearts refers to a deep-seated, compulsive drive to transcend our mortality by knowing the meaning and destiny of the world. Because we are made in the image of God, we have an inborn inquisitiveness about eternal realities. We can find peace only when we come to know our eternal Creator. Even then, we know God only in part (1 Cor. 13:12). from beginning to end: All we see is the micro-moment of our own existence in the grand span of eternity. Thus the Scriptures call people to live in robust faith during times of trial and pain; in the grand scheme of things, God will make everything beautiful.

3:12, 13 nothing is better: As in 2:24, the advice of the Preacher is to seize the day in the joy of God. rejoice . . . enjoy: Biblical faith is a call for joy, even when we live in a wicked world and under terrible stress; this is because we find true joy in the living God.

3:14 God’s works have a durable quality to them. As Deut. 4:2; 12:32; Prov. 30:6 advise, nothing may be added and nothing taken away. should fear: The “fear” of God in wisdom literature refers to true piety, not terror (5:7; 12:13).

3:16, 17 The term judgment may also be translated “justice,” giving an even more striking contrast to these words. It was outrageous that in the very establishments where people should expect justice, they could find only wickedness. The Preacher warns the wicked judges that God, the final judge, will come, rectify all wrongdoing, and bring true justice. This theme is so prominent in the book that Solomon repeats it in the conclusion (12:14), and he raises it often in the course of his argument (9:1; 11:9).

3:18 tests them: The basic meaning of the verb is “to choose, select, purify, test.” Death is the great leveler of all persons. In that regard, humans are no different than animals.

3:19 one breath: The Hebrew expression might be translated “one spirit” or “one wind.” The phrase in this case describes breath as the sign and symbol of life (see 8:8; see also Gen. 6:17; 7:15, 22). In this, humanity and animals are alike (but see v. 21). advantage: This word appears only here in Ecclesiastes. It is also found in Prov. 14:23: “In all labor there is profit,” and in Prov. 21:5: “The plans of the diligent lead surely to plenty.”

3:20, 21 All go to one place: Both humans and beasts die and go to the grave. But this is not the end for human beings—they will face eternal life or death. The rhetorical question who knows occurs six times in the Hebrew Bible outside of Ecclesiastes (2 Sam. 12:22; Esth. 4:14; Ps. 90:11; Prov. 24:22; Joel 2:14; John. 3:9) and four times in Ecclesiastes (2:19; 3:21; 6:12; 8:1). People and animals differ; their bodies go back to the dust from which they came, but the human spirit is immortal.

3:22 better: As in v. 12 and 2:24, there is a blessing given to humankind in terms of ordinary pleasures. his heritage: The allotment that God has designated may include material possessions (2:21; 11:2) or the pleasures that come from them (2:10; 3:22; 5:17, 18; 9:9).

4:1 Here is another complaint that threatens the plan of God. So much pain can come to the downtrodden that they may even despair of life (1 Kin. 19:4; Job 3:3–10). Only when the

And look! The tears of the oppressed,

But they have no comforter—

<sup>1</sup> On the side of their oppressors there is power,

But they have no comforter.

<sup>2</sup> <sup>b</sup> Therefore I praised the dead who were already dead,

More than the living who are still alive.

<sup>3</sup> <sup>c</sup> Yet, better than both is he who has never existed,

Who has not seen the evil work that is done under the sun.

The Vanity of Selfish Toil

<sup>4</sup> Again, I saw that for all toil and every skillful work a man is envied by his neighbor. This also is vanity and grasping for the wind.

<sup>5</sup> <sup>d</sup> The fool folds his hands
And consumes his own flesh.

<sup>6</sup> <sup>e</sup> Better a handful with quietness Than both hands full, together with toil and grasping for the wind.

<sup>7</sup> Then I returned, and I saw vanity
under the sun:

<sup>8</sup> There is one alone, without <sup>2</sup> companion:

He has neither son nor brother.

Yet there is no end to all his labors,
Nor is his <sup>f</sup> eye satisfied with riches.

But <sup>g</sup> he never asks,

“For whom do I toil and deprive myself of <sup>h</sup> good?”

<sup>1</sup> <sup>a</sup> Ex. 3:5; Is. 1:12

The Value of a Friend

<sup>9</sup> Two are better than one,
Because they have a good reward for their labor.

<sup>10</sup> For if they fall, one will lift up his companion.

But woe to him who is alone when
he falls,

For he has no one to help him up.

<sup>11</sup> Again, if two lie down together, they will keep warm;

But how can one be warm alone?

<sup>12</sup> Though one may be overpowered by another, two can withstand him.

And a threefold cord is not quickly broken.

Popularity Passes Away

<sup>13</sup> Better a poor and wise youth Than an old and foolish king who will be admonished no more.

<sup>14</sup> For he comes out of prison to be
king,

Although <sup>4</sup> he was born poor in his kingdom.

<sup>15</sup> I saw all the living who walk under the sun;

They were with the second youth who stands in his place.

<sup>16</sup> There was no end of all the people
<sup>5</sup> over whom he was made
king;

Yet those who come afterward will not rejoice in him.

Surely this also is vanity and grasping for the wind.

Fear God, Keep Your Vows

5 Walk <sup>a</sup> prudently when you go to the house of God; and draw near to hear oppressed go into the house of God will they gain perspective for possible recovery (5:1-6; Ps. 73:17). they have no comforter: The absence of anyone to offer comfort only increases the pain and frustration.

4:2 I praised the dead: Being without a comforter is often worse than death itself.

4:3 he who has never existed: So powerfully wrong and so lonely is the suffering of the oppressed, that Solomon, with a good deal of poetic license similar to Job 3:3-10, argues that nonexistence could be preferred over existence.

4:4 a man is envied by his neighbor: To the previous obstacles to accepting that God's plan encompasses everything is now added a fourth: the envy and cruel competition found in the world.

4:5, 6 Two proverbs follow. The fool: There are numerous statements in the Book of Proverbs about the self-destructive nature of laziness. a handful: Moderation is preferred to overexertion. In place of the sometimes cruel competition of the marketplace, Solomon recommended: "Better is a little with righteousness, than vast revenues without justice" (Prov. 16:8).

4:7, 8 The problem of sadness and loneliness is another obstacle to accepting the fact that God has a plan that embraces everything. Consider the person who has no family, not even an heir to whom he can leave all for which he has worked so hard. In 4:1 there is "no comforter." In 4:4-6 there is no rest. In 4:8 there is no companion. grave misfortune: This literally refers to an evil or burdensome task (3:10).

4:9-12 Throughout this section there is an emphasis on the obvious benefits of companions. The intimacy and sharing of life brings relief for the problem of isolation and loneliness. A companion can offer assistance, comfort, and defense. threefold cord: The Preacher uses this proverbial saying to clinch his case about the value of friends.

4:13, 14 Before the Preacher lists the final obstacle (vv. 14-16) to believing in God's good plan, he first places the answer in proverbial form. Popularity, even in the form of royal power, is elusive. In one case, an old king had been born to the throne but becomes so foolish and senile that he cannot discern that his days for ruling are over. In another case, a young man, like Joseph, may rise from prison to take the throne (Gen. 41:14, 37-41).

4:16 those who come afterward: Even the young man who replaces his predecessor will share the old king's fate. Today's hero may become tomorrow's beggar.

5:1 Walk prudently: Literally, this phrase is "guard your feet" when you go to worship God. It means to behave yourself. The idea of righteous behavior is rephrased at the end of the rather <sup>b</sup> than to give the sacrifice of fools, for they do not know that they do evil.

The Vanity of Gain and Honor

<sup>9</sup> Moreover the profit of the land is for all; even the king is served from the field.

<sup>10</sup> He who loves silver will not be satisfied with silver; Nor he who loves abundance, with increase. This also is vanity.

<sup>11</sup> When goods increase, They increase who eat them; So what profit have the owners Except to see them with their eyes?

<sup>12</sup> The sleep of a laboring man is sweet, Whether he eats little or much; But the abundance of the rich will not permit him to sleep.

<sup>14</sup> But those riches perish through <sup>3</sup> misfortune; When he begets a son, there is nothing in his hand.

<sup>15</sup> <sup>o</sup> As he came from his mother's womb, naked shall he return, To go as he came; And he shall take nothing from his labor Which he may carry away in his hand.

<sup>16</sup> And this also is a severe evil— Just exactly as he came, so shall he go.

And <sup>p</sup> what profit has he <sup>q</sup> who has labored for the wind?

<sup>17</sup> All his days <sup>r</sup> he also eats in darkness, And he has much sorrow and sickness and anger.

section in the words: “But fear God” (5:7). to hear: As is common in the prophets, there is a warning to be circumspect about sacrifice. God has no pleasure in those who do all the right things for all the wrong reasons (Is. 1:10–15). the sacrifice of fools: As the prophet Samuel warned Saul, “Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to heed than the fat of rams” (1 Sam. 15:22).

5:2 God is in heaven . . . you on earth: The essential contrast between God's righteous might and our sinful mortality should cause us to revere the Almighty (see v. 7).

5:4, 5 One should not attempt to bribe God with a hasty vow. The first part of this verse is almost identical to Deut. 23:21. See the later example of the lie of Ananias and Sapphira (Acts 5:1–11).

5:6 A priest or prophet or one of God's angels is the messenger of God who would hear such excuses for unfulfilled vows (Hag. 1:13; Mal. 2:7).

5:7 To fear God, a central theme of the Book of Ecclesiastes, does not mean to be afraid of God (Ex. 20:2). It means to have reverence, awe, and wonder in response to His glory. For the wisdom writers (Job 1:1; Ps. 111:10; Prov. 1:7), “to fear God” means to respond to Him correctly, in true piety.

5:9 for all . . . king: All people live by God's grace in His provision for the earth.

5:10 not be satisfied: The topic of an insatiable appetite is addressed for the third time (1:8; 4:8). Desire always outruns possessions, no matter how vast acquisitions may grow.

5:12 There are few things so satisfying in life as sleep following a hard day's work; but the greedy rarely enjoy decent rest.

5:14 Misfortune literally refers to a “worthless task” (compare 3:10).

5:15 naked shall he return: The maxim that “you can't take it with you” is affirmed here (2:21).

5:16 labored for the wind: The wording is similar to “grasping for the wind” (1:14).

5:17 darkness . . . anger: The frugal lifestyle of the covetous prevents them from enjoying what they do have (contrast 2:24–26; 3:12, 13).

5:19 God has separated the gift of enjoying something from given him power to eat of it, to receive his <sup>5</sup> heritage and rejoice in his labor—this is the <sup>v</sup> gift of God. <sup>20</sup> For he will not dwell unduly on the days of his life, because God keeps him busy with the joy of his heart.

6 There<sup>a</sup> is an evil which I have seen under the sun, and it is common among men: <sup>2</sup> A man to whom God has given riches and wealth and honor, <sup>b</sup> so that he lacks nothing for himself of all he desires; <sup>c</sup> yet God does not give him power to eat of it, but a foreigner consumes it. This is vanity, and it is an evil <sup>1</sup> affliction.

<sup>8</sup> For what more has the wise man than the fool?

What does the poor man have,

Who knows how to walk before the living?

<sup>9</sup> Better is <sup>3</sup> the <sup>h</sup> sight of the eyes than the wandering of <sup>d</sup> desire. This also is vanity and grasping for the wind.

<sup>10</sup> Whatever one is, he has been named <sup>i</sup> already,

For it is known that he is man; <sup>j</sup> And he cannot contend with Him who is mightier than he.

<sup>11</sup> Since there are many things that increase vanity, How is man the better?

The Value of Practical Wisdom

7 <sup>a</sup> A good name is better than precious ointment, And the day of death than the day of one's <sup>b</sup> birth;

<sup>2</sup> Better to go to the house of mourning

Than to go to the house of feasting, For that is the end of all men; And the living will take it to <sup>c</sup> heart.

<sup>3</sup> <sup>1</sup> Sorrow is better than laughter, the gift of the object itself so that we might be driven back to the Giver.

5:20 keeps him busy: The literal meaning of the verb is debated, but it appears to be a form of the verb meaning “to answer.” God keeps a person occupied and delighted primarily with Himself and then with the gifts He gives. joy of his heart: The Preacher uses the word joy in two ways: (1) “enjoyment,” an internal sense of pleasure (2:10, 26; 4:16; 9:7; 10:19) and (2) “pleasure,” pleasurable actions (2:1, 2, 10; 7:4; 11:9).

6:2 God does not give him power: Prosperity without the divine gift of enjoyment amounts to nothing (5:19).

6:3 Sometimes the achievement of the greatest of goals becomes hollow when there is no decent end to life. stillborn child: Ordinarily a great sadness, the child who does not live is considered to be better off than the person who has lived poorly. If life is nothing more than a meaningless journey to death, then a stillborn is better off, for that child reaches the end of the worthless journey with less pain (vv. 4–6).

6:6 That one place is, as 3:20 argues, the grave. If a long life terminates in death with no prospect of anything else, will that life have been worthwhile? Long life without knowing God and without the power to enjoy it is indeed frustrating and useless.

6:7 The Hebrew word for soul can also be translated appetite. If it is meant to parallel the word mouth in the first line, then appetite may be appropriate in this context. Yet the translation soul fits well in the argument of the gift being kept separate from the power to enjoy the gift (5:10).

6:9 The meaning of this proverb is that it is better making do with what we can look on and enjoy than fantasizing about desirable things that are beyond our grasp.

6:10 Whatever happens has been already known, because to name something is to know it (1:9–11). All things are foreknown and foreordained by God.

6:12 like a shadow: This phrase is a confirmation of the meaning of the Hebrew word translated vanity. Life passes away quickly, like a vapor. what will happen after him: The implied answer is that only God knows what will happen to us after death. Rather than imply that nothing exists beyond the grave, this book teaches that each person's life will be reviewed by God after death.

7:1 A person's death may be better than the day of birth if the name of that person has merited a lasting reputation and influence.

7:2–4 These verses expand upon the idea of v. 1. We may learn more about the meaning of life in the house of mourning than in the house of feasting.

labor (Heb. 'ama) (2:11; 5:18; Ps. 105:44; Jer. 20:18) Strong's #5999: This noun means “toil,” or work for material gain (Ps. 127:1; Prov. 16:26), but it can also mean “trouble” or “sorrow” (see Job 3:10). The effort required for work and human achievement produces “sorrow” and “troubles” in the sense that it can never satisfy the deeper needs of the human soul (6:7). However, when believers recognize that their work is a gift from God, work can become a joy (5:18–20). Our work is part of God's plan to establish His eternal kingdom. In this sense, we can be assured that our faithful commitment to our work will have eternal consequences and reap eternal rewards (see 1 Cor. 3:8, 14; 15:58).

<sup>4</sup> The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning,
 But the heart of fools is in the house of mirth.
<sup>5</sup> It is better to <sup>3</sup>hear the rebuke of the wise
 Than for a man to hear the song of fools.
<sup>6</sup> <sup>f</sup>For like the <sup>4</sup>crackling of thorns under a pot,
 So is the laughter of the fool.
 This also is vanity.
<sup>7</sup> Surely oppression destroys a wise man's reason,
<sup>g</sup>And a bribe <sup>5</sup>debases the heart.
<sup>8</sup> The end of a thing is better than its beginning;
<sup>h</sup>The patient in spirit is better than the proud in spirit.
<sup>9</sup> <sup>i</sup>Do not hasten in your spirit to be angry,
 For anger rests in the bosom of fools.
<sup>10</sup> Do not say,
 “Why were the former days better than these?”
 For you do not inquire wisely concerning this.

 And profitable <sup>j</sup>to those who see the sun.
 But the <sup>7</sup>excellence of knowledge is that wisdom gives <sup>l</sup>life to those who have it.
<sup>13</sup> Consider the work of God;
 For <sup>m</sup>who can make straight what He has made crooked?
<sup>14</sup> <sup>n</sup>In the day of prosperity be joyful,
 But in the day of adversity consider:
 Surely God has appointed the one <sup>8</sup>as well as the other,
 So that man can find out nothing that will come after him.
<sup>15</sup> I have seen everything in my days of vanity:
<sup>o</sup>There is a just man who perishes in his righteousness,
 And there is a wicked man who prolongs life in his wickedness.
<sup>16</sup> <sup>p</sup>Do not be overly righteous,
<sup>q</sup>Nor be overly wise:
 Why should you destroy yourself?

7:5, 6 Burning thorns will provide quick flames, little heat, and a lot of noise, just like the sudden outbursts of laughter among fools; there is more noise than substance.

7:7 bribe: Another form of this maxim is found in Ex. 23:8; Deut. 16:19. See also Matt. 28:11–15; Luke 22:4–6.

7:10 The temptation to glorify the past at the expense of the present must be resisted. The pleasures or advantages of those days may be more imaginary than real.

7:11 Those who find wisdom find life, argues Solomon (Prov. 8:35). Wisdom is as good as an inheritance; in fact, wisdom is even more advantageous or profitable. who see the sun: This seems to be a variation on the more familiar phrase “under the sun.”

7:12 The word translated defense literally means “shade” or “shelter,” a kind of protection. The Hebrew word translated here as excellence is often rendered profit in Ecclesiastes.

7:13 The crooked that needs straightening (1:15) is the presence of afflictions and adversities in life. Both prosperity and adversity come from the hand of God. For prosperity give thanks, but in adversity reflect on the goodness and comprehensiveness of the plan of God.

7:14 find out nothing: If mortals do not come to know God and His plan, they will not be able to discern anything about life (3:11) or about what will happen after they are gone.

7:15 just man: There are inequities in life that will always be a mystery (3:16–4:3; see also 8:14).

7:16 Do not be overly righteous: Few verses in Ecclesiastes are more susceptible to incorrect interpretation than these (vv. 16–18). This is not the so-called golden mean that advises: “Don’t be too holy and don’t be too wicked; sin to a moderate degree.” The Preacher was warning instead about pseudo-religiosity and showy forms of worship. The Hebrew verb for

Wisdom Literature The Book of Ecclesiastes is an example of what is called wisdom literature. Common in the ancient Middle East, wisdom literature provided instructions for upright living. Such writing falls into two categories: proverbial wisdom, short, instructive sayings of the kind found in the Book of Proverbs, and speculation wisdom, consisting of dialogues or monologues that subtly disclose wisdom to readers. The Book of Job is an example of speculation wisdom in the form of dialogue; the Book of Ecclesiastes is an example of monologue.

The wisdom taught in these books is thoroughly practical. The wisdom literature of the Bible is more than pithy advice for day-to-day living; it provides a foundation and a way to know God Himself. The Book of Job explores the meaning of existence and a person’s relationship with God; Proverbs gives advice on topics ranging from parenting to money management; the Book of Ecclesiastes comes out of the hard lessons of Solomon’s life. Despite all his wisdom and possessions, Solomon made foolish choices. As an old man looking back on his life, he could not hide his regrets. So much of what Solomon had thought would bring him happiness—money, learning, and fame—crumbled before his eyes. Despite its apparent cynicism, the Book of Ecclesiastes is both a warning and an encouragement from a man who wanted others to avoid his mistakes. It shows that our efforts to live without God are meaningless. This realization is the beginning of true wisdom.

- Nor be foolish:

- <sup>28</sup> Which my soul still seeks but I cannot find:

- <sup>29</sup> Truly, this only I have found:
- <sup>c</sup> That God made man upright, But <sup>d</sup>they have sought out many schemes."

8 Who is like a wise man? And who knows the interpretation of a thing?

<sup>a</sup> A man's wisdom makes his face shine, And <sup>b</sup>the <sup>1</sup>sternness of his face is changed.

Obey Authorities for God's Sake

- <sup>4</sup> Where the word of a king is, there is power; And <sup>e</sup>who may say to him, "What are you doing?"
- <sup>5</sup> He who keeps his command will experience nothing harmful; And a wise man's heart <sup>2</sup>discerns both time and judgment,
- <sup>6</sup> Because <sup>f</sup>for every matter there is a time and judgment, Though the misery of man <sup>3</sup>increases greatly.

"be wise" may be rendered "think yourself wise," and to "be overly righteous" would mean "righteous in your own eyes" (see Prov. 3:7).

7:18 The this that Solomon refers to is the true wisdom that comes from the fear of God. The other is the folly of fools. fears God: True piety in reverence and awe is the best protection against either absurdity.

7:20 not a just man on earth: This language recalls Solomon's prayer when he dedicated the temple (1 Kin. 8:46; see also Ps. 14:2-4; 143:2).

7:21, 22 take to heart: At times you may find another doing to you the same harmful thing that you have done to someone else.

7:23 proved by wisdom: The verb means "to put to the test."

7:24 The theme of wisdom's inaccessibility also appears in Job 28. The answer to this search for wisdom is that God can find wisdom (see Job 28:23-28).

7:26 Wisdom literature is filled with warnings about the loose woman (see Prov. 7). However, this is balanced by the Preacher's praise for a spouse as a gift from God (9:9).

7:28 The truth that all persons are sinners is put in a deliberate exaggeration. Man and woman mean "a good man" and

"a good woman." In the Book of Proverbs, Solomon asked the same question: "Who can find a faithful man?" (Prov 20:6).

7:29 Even though God made everything beautiful (3:11) and made human beings upright (see Gen. 1:31), Solomon's search for the "sum" had failed. Yet humankind's search for wicked devices and intrigues had succeeded wonderfully.

8:1 The idiom "to cause one's face to shine" (see also the Levitical blessing of Num. 6:25) is an image of a person who is stable. Out of the depths of experience and understanding, that person is able to enjoy life and build up others.

8:2, 3 Subjects are obligated by an oath of allegiance to render their obedience to "the powers that be" (Rom. 13:1-5). not . . . stand for an evil thing: Even before a king, evil is to be resisted (Acts 5:29).

8:4, 5 What are you doing: This same question is asked of those who pretend to be able to rebuke God (Job 9:12; Dan. 4:32). The rhetorical question amounts to a firm denial of the king's power.

8:6 time and judgment: The phrase means an "appropriate time of judgment." God will judge everyone; every matter, including judgment, has its set time (12:14).

<sup>7</sup> <sup>g</sup>For he does not know what will happen;
 So who can tell him when it will occur?
<sup>8</sup> <sup>h</sup>No one has power over the spirit to retain the spirit,
 And no one has power in the day of death.
There is <sup>i</sup>no release from that war,
 And wickedness will not deliver those who are given to it.

<sup>9</sup> All this I have seen, and applied my heart to every work that is done under the sun: There is a time in which one man rules over another to his own hurt.

Death Comes to All

<sup>10</sup> Then I saw the wicked buried, who had come and gone from the place of holiness, and they were <sup>j</sup>forgotten <sup>k</sup>in the city where they had so done. This also is vanity. <sup>11</sup> <sup>k</sup>Because the sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil. <sup>12</sup> <sup>l</sup>Though a sinner does evil a hundred times, and his days are prolonged, yet I surely know that <sup>m</sup>it will be well with those who fear God, who fear before Him. <sup>13</sup> But it will not be well with the wicked; nor will he prolong his days, which are as a shadow, because he does not fear before God.

<sup>14</sup> There is a vanity which occurs on earth, that there are just men to whom it <sup>n</sup>happens according to the work of the wicked; again, there are wicked men to whom it happens according to the work of the <sup>o</sup>righteous. I said that this also is vanity.

sun than to eat, drink, and be merry; for this will remain with him in his labor all the days of his life which God gives him under the sun.

<sup>16</sup> When I applied my heart to know wisdom and to see the business that is done on earth, even though one sees no sleep day or night, <sup>17</sup> then I saw all the work of God, that <sup>a</sup>a man cannot find out the work that is done under the sun. For though a man labors to discover it, yet he will not find it; moreover, though a wise man attempts to know it, he will not be able to find it.

One event happens to the righteous and the wicked;
 To the <sup>2</sup> good, the clean, and the unclean;
 To him who sacrifices and him who does not sacrifice.
 As is the good, so is the sinner;
 He who takes an oath as he who fears an oath.

<sup>3</sup> This is an evil in all that is done under the sun: that one thing happens to all. Truly the hearts of the sons of men are full of evil; madness is in their hearts while they live, and after that they go to the dead. <sup>4</sup> But for him who is joined to all the living there is hope, for a living dog is better than a dead lion.

<sup>5</sup> For the living know that they will die;

8:8 Since the word spirit is paralleled by the “day of death,” the term spirit in this context means “life force” (3:19).

8:10 It was difficult to see the wicked receiving a funeral procession from the city to the cemetery while the righteous were forgotten.

8:11 sentence . . . is not executed: There are cases when God postpones punishment, letting the guilty person live longer.

8:12, 13 The sharp contrast of the righteous and the wicked in these verses is a hallmark of Hebrew wisdom literature (Ps. 1).

8:14 according . . . righteous: Although there seem to be some glaring inequities in this present life, we know that God is working out His good purposes (3:16–4:3; 7:15).

8:15 In contrast to the mad search for the meaning of all things is the contentment that a wise, loving God gives to those who will receive His gifts of enjoyment. Here is one of the central themes of Ecclesiastes. eat, drink, and be merry: The Preacher marks the end of the third major section of his book with this refrain. The wicked person (the fool) decides that the best thing to do is to “eat, drink, and be merry” with no thought given to the living God. But the righteous person (the wise) can enjoy life while thinking of God and His good gifts.

8:17 Solomon equates God’s work with the activity that takes place on earth. Therefore it should not be surprising that humans cannot fathom God’s activity (3:11; 7:25–29; 11:5–8). The Hebrew word translated attempts can also be translated claims or thinks in this context (see 2 Chr. 13:8 where the word is translated think).

9:1 In the hand of God means “in God’s control and possession.” love nor hatred: Sometimes in Hebrew two opposites together are a way of saying “everything.” Love and hate are best viewed as words for God’s favor and disfavor.

9:2 Some versions translate the word event as “fate” (see 2:14). However, there is no hint here of the power of fate as some people in antiquity believed. The word simply refers to an outcome determined by God.

9:4 In this verse, Solomon uses a proverb that says a living lowly creature is preferable to a dead exalted creature. The point is not that death is the absolute end of all things; instead, the point is that while there is life, there is hope of doing something to the glory of God.

9:5 This, again, is not a flat denial of any hope beyond the grave. The point of view is limited to what can be known strictly from a human point of view, “under the sun.” they have no more reward: The Preacher’s point appears to be the

So the sons of men are <sup>l</sup>snared in an evil time,
 When it falls suddenly upon them.

Wisdom Superior to Folly

<sup>16</sup> Then I said:

“Wisdom is better than <sup>n</sup> strength.
 Nevertheless <sup>o</sup> the poor man’s wisdom is despised,

And his words are not heard.
<sup>17</sup> Words of the wise, spoken quietly, should be heard

Rather than the shout of a ruler of fools.

<sup>18</sup> Wisdom is better than weapons of war;
 But <sup>v</sup> one sinner destroys much good.”

10 Dead <sup>1</sup>flies <sup>2</sup>putrefy the perfumer’s ointment,
 And cause it to give off a foul odor;
 So does a little folly to one respected for wisdom and honor.

<sup>2</sup> A wise man’s heart is at his right hand,

But a fool’s heart at his left.

<sup>3</sup> Even when a fool walks along the way,
 He lacks wisdom,

But <sup>c</sup> the dead know nothing,
 And they have no more reward,
 For <sup>d</sup> the memory of them is forgotten.

<sup>6</sup> Also their love, their hatred, and their envy have now perished;

Nevermore will they have a share
 In anything done under the sun.

<sup>7</sup> Go, <sup>e</sup> eat your bread with joy,
 And drink your wine with a merry heart;
 For God has already accepted your works.

<sup>8</sup> Let your garments always be white,
 And let your head lack no oil.

<sup>93</sup> Live joyfully with the wife whom you love all the days of your vain life which He has given you under the sun, all your days of vanity; <sup>f</sup> for that is your portion in life, and in the labor which you perform under the sun.

<sup>10g</sup> Whatever your hand finds to do, do it with your <sup>h</sup> might; for there is no work or device or knowledge or wisdom in the grave where you are going.

The race is not to the swift,
 Nor the battle to the strong,
 Nor bread to the wise,
 Nor riches to men of understanding,
 Nor favor to men of skill;
 But time and <sup>j</sup> chance happen to them all.

<sup>12</sup> For <sup>h</sup> man also does not know his time:

Like fish taken in a cruel net,
 Like birds caught in a snare, same as that in the Gospel of John: One must work while it is still day (that is, while one is still alive), for the night will come when no one can work (John 9:4).

9:7 God meant for all His gifts to be enjoyed. The image of bread and wine is frequently used in Scripture as a symbol of the fact that God gives comfort and cheer to people (Gen. 14:18; 1 Sam. 16:20; 25:18; Neh. 5:15; Lam. 2:12).

9:8 It was difficult in ancient times to keep white garments clean (see the analogy in Is. 1:18). White garments and ointments—oil—were symbols of joy and purity.

9:9 Marriage is the gift of God. “Marriage is honorable” and the marriage bed “undefiled,” instructed the writer of Hebrews (13:4). Marriage is to be cherished (Prov. 5:15-20) and unfaithfulness avoided (Prov. 5:1-14). vain life: That is, life that passes so quickly.

9:10 It is possible that the apostle Paul had this verse in mind when he wrote, “And whatever you do, do it heartily, as to the Lord and not to men” (Col. 3:23). no work . . . in the grave: This affirmation is not a denial of a personal future state after death. Yet in relation to this world, the possibilities of working and learning have ceased. If we plan to do anything to the glory of God in this world, we had better do it while we still have time (John 9:4).

9:11 We would like to think that the best always win, that the deserving are always rewarded. But our experience shows that these expectations are not always realized. not to the swift . . . strong . . . wise . . . men of understanding . . . men of skill: These five assets were enjoyed by individuals. But while some planned and counted on their assets, God in the end determined their lot. Who was speedier than Asahel (2 Sam. 2:22, 23), stronger than Samson (Judg. 16:19), wiser than Solomon (1 Kin. 11:1-25), more discerning than Ahithophel (2 Sam. 16:23; 17:5-14), or more learned than Moses (Ex. 2:11-15; Acts 7:22)? Yet each met his limit and was countered by God.

9:14-18 Here is a parable about how an unstoppable military operation against a small city was prevented by the wisdom of one poor, but wise man. The conclusion is that wisdom is preferable to strength, and should be heeded.

10:1 just as one fly can ruin a whole batch of ointment, so an ounce of folly will spoil a pound of wisdom.

10:2 In ancient thought, the right hand was the place of honor and favor, while the left hand was the reverse.

10:3 There are times when even a fool acts appropriately; yet he remains a fool.

- <sup>a</sup> And he shows everyone that he is a fool.
- <sup>4</sup> If the spirit of the ruler rises against you,
<sup>b</sup> Do not leave your post;
For <sup>c</sup>conciliation<sup>3</sup> pacifies great offenses.
- <sup>5</sup> There is an evil I have seen under the sun,
As an error proceeding from the ruler:
- <sup>6</sup> <sup>d</sup>Folly is set in <sup>e</sup>great dignity,
While the rich sit in a lowly place.
- <sup>7</sup> I have seen servants <sup>e</sup>on horses,
While princes walk on the ground like servants.
- <sup>8</sup> <sup>f</sup>He who digs a pit will fall into it,
And whoever breaks through a wall will be bitten by a serpent.
- <sup>9</sup> He who quarries stones may be hurt by them,
And he who splits wood may be endangered by it.
- <sup>10</sup> If the ax is dull,
And one does not sharpen the edge,
Then he must use more strength;
But wisdom <sup>5</sup>brings success.
- <sup>11</sup> A serpent may bite <sup>g</sup>when it is not charmed;
The <sup>6</sup>babbler is no different.
- <sup>12</sup> <sup>h</sup>The words of a wise man's mouth are gracious,
But <sup>i</sup>the lips of a fool shall swallow him up;
- <sup>13</sup> The words of his mouth begin with foolishness,
And the end of his talk is raving madness.

- <sup>14</sup> <sup>j</sup> A fool also multiplies words.
No man knows what is to be;
Who can tell him <sup>k</sup>what will be after him?
- <sup>15</sup> The labor of fools wearies them,
For they do not even know how to go to the city!

And your <sup>m</sup>princes feast at the proper time—
For strength and not for drunkenness!
- <sup>18</sup> Because of laziness the <sup>7</sup>building decays,
And <sup>n</sup>through idleness of hands the house leaks.
- <sup>19</sup> A feast is made for laughter,
And <sup>o</sup>wine makes merry;
But money answers everything.
- <sup>20</sup> <sup>p</sup>Do not curse the king, even in your thought;
Do not curse the rich, even in your bedroom;

And a bird in flight may tell the matter.

The Value of Diligence

11 Cast your bread <sup>a</sup>upon the waters,

10:4 conciliation pacifies: This proverb is similar to many ancient sayings that were used to train courtiers and diplomats.

10:6 folly . . . dignity: Things are simply not always what we think they ought to be (9:11); but God is still in control, and He works His good purposes through events we do not understand.

10:7 servants on horses: In the ancient Middle East, such a reversal of the normal roles of servant and master was felt to be an outrage against society.

10:10 The wise person will sharpen the ax. A person of limited training will have to work harder, as though with a dull ax, than someone wiser whose tools are in order.

10:11 a serpent may bite: Along with the preceding verses, the point made here is that an unused skill is wasted.

10:12, 13 It is the inability of the fool to choose his words carefully that will bring about his own destruction.

10:14 Who . . . after him: This rhetorical question about the fool's lack of knowledge about the future is one of the repeated themes of Ecclesiastes. The same question is asked in 3:22; 6:12; 8:7; in part in 9:12; and especially in the grand conclusion of 12:14.

10:15 go to the city: If fools are so untrustworthy in ordinary affairs, how can they be trusted when they express their opinion about the hereafter?

10:16 Pity those with leaders so young or inexperienced that they lose control over their areas of responsibility, or who spend their nights banqueting into the early morning.

10:17 Useful nobility expresses itself in a sense of responsibility and deference to social order. This verse is an argument for propriety. proper time: Here is Solomon's case for moderation and orderliness.

10:18 All forms of laziness bring houses and lives into disrepair.

10:19 money answers everything: Rather than being cynical or critical about wealth or the rich, this comment is to be taken in the context of the dissolute nobles (v. 16) and banqueters (v. 17). Wealth for them is only pleasure and a means of having fun.

10:20 a bird of the air: We should watch what we say, for we never know who is listening.

11:1 Cast your bread upon the waters: Verses 1–6 emphasize the element of risk and uncertainty in commercial and agricultural enterprises. Thus if the preceding proverbs in ch. 10 deal with royalty and leaders, these in vv. 1–6 deal with common people. Men and women must venture forth judiciously

Seek God in Early Life

- <sup>9</sup> Rejoice, O young man, in your youth,
 And let your heart cheer you in the days of your youth;
<sup>k</sup> Walk in the <sup>2</sup> ways of your heart,
 And <sup>3</sup> in the sight of your eyes;

12 Remember<sup>a</sup> now your Creator in the days of your youth,
 Before the <sup>1</sup> difficult days come,
 And the years draw near <sup>b</sup> when you say,

“I have no pleasure in them”:

- <sup>2</sup> While the sun and the light,
 The moon and the stars,
 Are not darkened,
 And the clouds do not return after the rain;
- <sup>3</sup> In the day when the keepers of the house tremble,
 And the strong men bow down;
 When the grinders cease because they are few,
 And those that look through the windows grow dim;
- <sup>4</sup> When the doors are shut in the streets,
 And the sound of grinding is low;

if they are ever to realize a gain, even though there is always a certain amount of risk.

11:2 seven, and also to eight: This urges us to be generous to as many as possible—and then some.

11:3 Regardless of which way a tree falls, someone is going to get the use of its wood, so stop worrying that it did not fall on your side (or even hoping that it will).

11:4 will not sow: The person who is so cautious that he must wait for the ideal time before he makes a move is doomed to fail.

11:5 Some works of God defy explanation. who makes everything: The concept of God as Creator in Ecclesiastes is not limited to 12:1. The inability of humans to know God's works apart from knowing Him is one of the themes of this book (3:11; 8:17; 9:12).

11:6 which will prosper: Do not hold back from getting involved. Let the success or failure of a task rest in the hand of God—but get to the task.

11:7 light is sweet: An affirmation of the joy of life, despite all the troubles that the book has presented.

11:8 remember the days of darkness: In appreciating the opportunities of life, we must think more seriously about death. This is contrasted with the joy of working while it is still light.

11:9 If Solomon was the author of this book and wrote it late in his life, then the point becomes even more clear. He was speaking to young people (see Prov. 1:8; 2:1; 3:1), encouraging them to learn the lessons that he had learned over the course of his extraordinary life. Walk in the ways of your heart: This verse is not an invitation to live sinfully in sensual pleasure (as Num. 15:39 describes). Instead, it urges young people to enjoy themselves completely while not forgetting that God will review the quality of their life (3:17; 12:14).

11:10 Tragically, youth does not last; it too passes like a vapor. We all seem to discover that “we get old too soon and smart too late.”

12:1–8 Most interpreters have argued that this poem is an allegory of old age. This is the view advocated here. Other views include: (1) a description of a winter's day as a metaphor of old age; (2) a description of people's reaction to a fearful thunderstorm; (3) the figure of a ruined house representing the failure of human efforts; and (4) the decay of a house representing death and human frailty.

12:2 The person is losing his sight.

12:3 Verses 3–6 list the bodily infirmities that increasingly hinder an older person from serving God. If the house stands for the aging body, then the keepers are the arms and hands. strong men bow down: The legs are bent in feebleness and the knees cannot be depended on for support. grinders cease: The teeth, now fewer than before, cannot chew the food as well as they once did. those that look through the windows grow dim: The eyes begin to lose their sight.

12:4 doors are shut in the streets: Just as the jaws of Leviathan are called the “doors of his face” (Job 41:14), so the lips

The Whole Duty of Man

<sup>9</sup> And moreover, because the Preacher was wise, he still taught the people knowledge; yes, he pondered and sought out and <sup>j</sup> set <sup>3</sup> in order many proverbs.

<sup>10</sup> The Preacher sought to find <sup>4</sup> acceptable words; and what was written was upright—words of truth. <sup>11</sup> The words of the wise are like goads, and the words of <sup>5</sup> scholars are like well-driven nails, given by one Shepherd. <sup>12</sup> And further, my son, be admonished by these. Of making many books there is no end, and <sup>k</sup> much study is wearisome to the flesh.

<sup>13</sup> Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter:

<sup>l</sup> Fear God and keep His commandments,
 For this is man’s all.

<sup>14</sup> For <sup>m</sup> God will bring every work into judgment,
 Including every secret thing,
 Whether good or evil.

and jaws are possibly intended here. sound of grinding is low: A depiction of toothless old age when eating only soft foods makes little or no noise. daughters of music are brought low: The ability to hear—and thus the ability to make and enjoy music—waned.

12:5 afraid of height: Things that used to be a regular part of life now become threatening. almond tree blossoms: Hair turns white. grasshopper is a burden: This may refer to the halting step of the elderly as they hobble along on their canes. desire fails: This is generally understood as a reference to a vanishing sexual desire. Then comes death: eternal home.

12:6 Some suggest that silver cord refers to the spinal cord. golden bowl is broken: This may refer to the brain. pitcher shattered at the fountain: One suggestion is that this is a failing heart. wheel broken at the well: The system of veins and arteries radiating out from the heart might have appeared to the ancients like the spokes on a wheel. An alternative explanation of this verse is that each of the four images represents death. That is, there is no physical representation intended in these images as in those of vv. 3–5. Instead, this verse describes the destruction of four significant objects—a demonstration of the finality of this life.

12:7 dust will return: These words refer clearly to the universal fate of the descendants of Adam and Eve. spirit will return: This is a clear allusion to Gen. 2:7. The term spirit is the same used in earlier passages (3:19, 21; 8:8).

12:8 The refrain of vanity—the brevity of life—is here repeated. It is possible that the book originally ended with these words.

12:9 Early on in his book, the Preacher speaks of his pursuit of wisdom (1:12–2:26). It is possible that he speaks of himself here in the third person (as in 1:1, 2). Probably it was an editor under the guiding hand of God who wrote these evaluations of Solomon, much as Joshua or some other editor wrote an evaluation of Moses under the influence of God’s Spirit (Deut. 34). pondered . . . sought out . . . set in order: The three verbs that describe Solomon’s activity may also be translated “weighed . . . examined . . . and arranged.”

12:10 The Preacher devotes special care to write acceptable words—pleasant words, words of grace—and words of truth. The truth referred to here is the truth from God.

12:11 Just as an ox goad prods an animal in the right direction, so will the words of this book when they are properly understood. well-driven nails: The nails, or “pegs,” referred to here are the same as in 2 Chr. 3:9; Jer. 10:4. These are hooks in tents where families hung the clothes and pots needed for everyday life. Here they refer to mental hooks giving stability and perspective to life. by one Shepherd: Kings were typically compared to shepherds, and Solomon is claiming that the source of his ideas is God, the Shepherd of Israel (Ps. 80:1).

12:12 Many other books may weary their readers. Careful study of Ecclesiastes will have the opposite effect as it instructs, warns, and admonishes its readers.

12:13 To fear God is one of the major themes of this book and of wisdom literature in the OT. To fear God is to respond to Him in awe, reverence, and wonder, to serve Him in purity of action, and to shun evil and any worship of anything else in His universe. keep His commandments: The commandments of the Law are in view here. Jesus summed them up as to “love the LORD your God” and “your neighbor as yourself” (Matt. 22:34–40). man’s all: We are whole or complete only when we fear God and obey His commandments. What profit is there in living? If we follow what this book has said, we will have a relationship with God and find life in Him.

12:14 judgment: This same teaching is echoed by the apostle Paul in 2 Cor. 5:10. Death is not the end. All of life will be reviewed by our righteous Lord (see at 3:17). Life must be lived through faith with the values of the eternal God in view.

The Song of Solomon

The Song of Solomon is a moving love story between a young country girl and King Solomon. In delicate poetry, the lovers express intense passion and deep longing for each other. The young girl compares her love for her husband to the anticipation of a frantic search, while Solomon likens his bride's beauty to picturesque gardens and delicious fruit. Yet even in this eloquent expression of the passion between a bride and bridegroom, there is an exhortation to remain sexually pure before marriage (2:7). In this way, the book celebrates human sexuality within the context of marriage.

The book has not always been understood in this way. Jewish scholars around the time of the birth of Christ interpreted the book allegorically, stating that it describes the love of God for Israel. Similarly, some Christians have taught that the book speaks of the mystical relationship of the Lord Jesus Christ and His bride, the church.

However, one does not need to get into allegorical meanings to understand this book. The Song of Solomon celebrates the beauty and intimacy of married love in a narrative poem. It teaches that a lasting marriage requires dedication, commitment, and strong loyalty between husband and wife. The Song also presents an idealized picture of how human love can be expressed under God's blessing. This is a very important issue. Some critics have claimed that Christianity's standards for marriage ignore or undervalue sexual relationships. But the Song of Solomon refutes this. It reiterates the biblical admonition against sex outside of marriage, but it also affirms that God not only approves of, but also encourages, sexual pleasure within marriage.

Author • The author of the Song of Solomon is Solomon, the son of David and the third king of Israel. He is named as the author and his name appears seven times in the book (1:1, 5; 3:7, 9, 11; 8:11, 12). Even so, some have argued that the references to Solomon may be only a stylistic device and the author may have been from a later period. The arguments for this are inconclusive. But the fact that Solomon was known for his wisdom and poetry (see 1 Kin. 4:29–34) partially substantiates his authorship of this book.

Literary Form • Perhaps nowhere in the Bible is the literary culture of the Middle East more apparent than in this book. The genre or literary form of the Song of Solomon is unique in the Bible. It is a lyric idyll, a type of love song. As in the case of the Book of Job, the Song of Solomon reveals its treasures to the patient reader who approaches the book on its own terms, searching for and meditating on its meaning. The form of the lyric idyll displays two features. The first is that speeches and events do not necessarily follow in chronological order. At times the story line remains suspended while the audience views scenes from earlier or yet untold incidents.

A second feature of the lyric idyll is the use of the chorus. In addition to the two characters that carry the story line—the Shulamite and King Solomon, a group of women interrupt certain scenes with brief musical speeches or warnings. Solomon uses the chorus to make transitions from one scene to another, as well as to add emphasis to important themes.

Historical Background • The Song of Solomon retells the romance between King Solomon, the richest king ever to rule Israel, and his beloved bride, who came from a small village in the region of Galilee. Solomon owned vineyards all over the nation. One was close to Baal Hamon in the northernmost part of Galilee near the foothills of the mountains of Lebanon. On one of his visits to this vineyard, Solomon met a young woman. Strangely we never learn her name. She is called simply the Shulamite. For some time he pursued her and made periodic visits to her country home to see her. Finally, he proposed. The Shulamite gave much thought to whether she really loved Solomon and could be happy in the palace of a king. Finally she accepted.

Theology • If the Bible is the book about God, then one may well ask what a narrative about human sexuality has to do with theology. This is an even more potent question when one observes that God is never mentioned in the entire text (except possibly in 8:6) nor are there any references to prayer, worship, or piety. In this respect it bears similarities to the Book of Esther, which also does not mention God. Nevertheless, Esther is a story of the redemption of God’s people and includes episodes of prayer, fasting, and thanksgiving. Such themes are notably absent from Solomon’s poetic story, making it unique among the books of the Bible.

To resolve this difficulty, it is important to remember that the Bible not only describes who God is and what God does, it also tells us what God desires for His people. The Song of Solomon provides an example of how God created male and female to live in happiness and fulfillment. People are created as sexual beings. It would be wrong to suggest that the full experience of our humanity is impossible apart from sexual union in marriage, since this would disqualify the widowed, divorced, and the celibate—including our Savior who was celibate. At the same time, God ordained marriage from the beginning of creation: Man and woman were to become one flesh (Gen. 2:25).

Because of its emphasis on human love, this book presents an extraordinary variety of expressions for love, perhaps the richest selection in all Hebrew Scripture. But within this celebration of love, the book condemns unchaste relations outside of marriage—and in particular, sexual experimentation before marriage. Indeed, this book may contain the Bible’s strongest argument for chastity before marriage. Ironically because of its explicit language, ancient and modern Jewish sages forbade men to read the book before they were 30 (and presumably kept women from reading it at all). We cannot ignore the sexual content of the book, but we can appreciate the context in which it is placed—a godly marriage. The Song of Solomon is necessary reading not only for the married, but for young people who want to understand God’s design for marriage.

Christ in the Scriptures

Just as some of the psalms have a contemporary application as well as a future-oriented one, so the entire Song of Solomon has three levels of fulfillment. The encounters and affectionate exchanges between Solomon and his bride are passionate poetry documenting human love. But the king also illustrates God’s love for the people of God over whom he rules. And Solomon’s ornamental language also prefigures the delight and joy Jesus has for His Bride and His unconditional commitment to His church. In the NT, the followers of Jesus are seen as the personified object of His love (2 Cor. 11:2; Eph. 5:23–25; Rev. 19:7–9; 21:9).

1:1 Like the superlative expressions “holy of holies” or “king of kings,” song of songs means “the loveliest of songs.” which is Solomon’s: There are two principal speakers in this book, the woman (the Shulamite) and the man (Solomon). Even though Solomon wrote this book, interestingly enough the point of view presented is largely that of his bride.

1:2 This prologue to the book forms the emotional setting for all that follows. love: The Hebrew noun used here means sexual love, as it clearly does in Ezek. 16:8 (also Prov. 7:18; Ezek. 23:17). This is the Hebrew word that most approximates the Greek word eros. In the Song of Solomon, this plural word (a mark of intensity) speaks of divinely blessed lovemaking (used also in v. 4; 4:10; 7:12; compare 5:1).

1:3 ointments: It was customary in biblical times to rub the body with fragrant ointments (oils) after a bath in preparation for a festive occasion (Ruth 3:3). Your name: The Shulamite speaks of her beloved’s reputation as akin to a lovely aroma; he was an object of desire to young women everywhere. The term virgins is the same word used at Is. 7:14. The word means women of marriageable age (they are the same as the “daughters of Jerusalem” in v. 5). love: Here the common Hebrew verb meaning “to love” is used of romantic feelings (as in Gen. 24:67); in other passages this verb means to choose someone (an act of the will; see Deut. 6:5). Thus this Hebrew verb shares some, but not all, of the meanings of the Greek verb agapao.

1:4 The complexity of the interchanges in this book are illustrated in this verse. The headings help sort out the speakers.

The king: This is Solomon; yet aside from the title (v. 1), he is not identified by name as a protagonist until 3:7, 9, 11 (his name in v. 5 is part of a descriptive phrase). chambers: This means the bridal chamber. The verse ends with the thoughts of the young woman as she gazes at her lover: Rightly do they love you employs the verb for love found in v. 3, indicating romantic feelings.

1:5 The Shulamite compares her dark coloring, acquired from long hours working in the vineyards (v. 6) with the lighter complexion of the city maidens. The point here is her class and station in life. Unlike the young women of the court in Jerusalem who had been raised in comfort and conditions of ease, this woman had worked as a field hand under the blazing sun. but lovely: She knows that her beauty is not diminished by her more rugged manner of living. Her groom assures her that this is truly the case (v. 8). The rare term lovely is used to describe physical beauty in this book (see v. 10; 2:14; 4:3; 6:4; compare the word in v. 8); in the Psalms this word speaks of the beauty of true worship to the living God (Ps. 33:1; 147:1). O daughters of Jerusalem: These are women who serve as the attendants of the bride. These women also serve as the chorus in the book. They are the same as the “virgins” of v. 3.

1:6 Her own vineyard refers to her appearance. Unlike the beautiful women of the royal court, the Shulamite had not had the lifestyle or the resources to take much time for her appearance. Still, it was she who swept away the king’s heart. The Shulamite uses the word vineyard again with a different twist in 8:12.

My mother's sons were angry with me;
They made me the keeper of the vineyards,
But my own <sup>f</sup>vineyard I have not kept.

(TO HER BELOVED)

<sup>7</sup> Tell me, O you whom I love,
Where you feed your flock,
Where you make it rest at noon.
For why should I be as one who <sup>6</sup>veils herself
By the flocks of your companions?

THE BELOVED

1:7 you whom I love: A more literal rendering might be, “whom my soul (my inner being) loves.” Here the young woman mentally addresses Solomon, her husband. She pictures him as the shepherd of Israel. one who veils herself: Solomon, as king, was busy with affairs of state. The young bride does not want to veil herself as a prostitute would in order to get his attention, nor does she want to be left alone. She desires to be his true companion.

1:8 If you do not know . . . feed your little goats: It would be better if she returned to the borders of Lebanon and the life of the farm rather than live alone and anxious in Solomon's palace. The point of this verse is that one should always count the cost of marriage to a particular person before the marriage. O fairest among women: The term fairest is the usual Hebrew word for “beautiful.”

1:9 Here is yet another term for love in the book, the rarer word meaning “dear companion” (compare at vv. 2, 3). my filly: In Solomon's time the horse was the companion of kings. Solomon loved horses, particularly those from Egypt. Eventually he had a stable of 12,000 horses with 1,400 chariots (1 Kin. 10:26).

1:11 ornaments: These are kind words from the women of the court (see 1:4). Their kindness is remarkable, since each of these women may have hoped to be chosen by the king (as v. 3 indicates).

1:12 his table: That is, the setting of the wedding banquet.

1:13, 14 This verse refers to an oriental custom for a woman to wear a small bag of myrrh, a perfumed ointment, around her neck at night. All the next day a lovely fragrance would linger about her. The young woman says that beginning that night, it would be her husband who would lie with her. my beloved: Here the noun beloved is related to the word translated “love” in v. 2, referring to sexual love. En Gedi: David, Solomon's father, had found refreshment and protection from the vindictive king Saul in this oasis on the eastern shore of the Dead Sea (1 Sam. 24).

1:15 Behold, you are fair: The word fair means “beautiful” (as in v. 8). my love: This term is used for the first time in the book; it means “dear friend.” dove's eyes: The idea is purity, innocence and beauty (see 4:1; 5:12; compare 2:14; 5:2).

1:16 The word handsome used here is the masculine counterpart of the term translated “fair” in v. 15.

Places Named in the Song of Solomon

From the peaks of Lebanon to the streets of Jerusalem (4:8; 6:4), the love story in the Song of Solomon takes place in a variety of settings. The lovers speak of, and to, each other with several word pictures, including “the rose of Sharon” (2:1), “the lily of the valleys” (2:1), and “the vineyards of En Gedi” (1:14).

Yes, pleasant!
Also our <sup>2</sup>bed is green.

<sup>17</sup> The beams of our houses are cedar,
And our rafters of fir.

2 I am the rose of Sharon,
And the lily of the valleys.

THE BELOVED

The Beloved's Request

THE SHULAMITE

<sup>8</sup> The voice of my beloved!
Behold, he comes

Leaping upon the mountains,
Skipping upon the hills.

<sup>9</sup> <sup>d</sup> My beloved is like a gazelle or a young stag.

Behold, he stands behind our wall;
He is looking through the windows,
Gazing through the lattice.

<sup>10</sup> My beloved spoke, and said to me:
“Rise up, my love, my fair one,
And come away.

<sup>11</sup> For lo, the winter is past,
The rain is over and gone.

<sup>12</sup> The flowers appear on the earth;
The time of singing has come,
And the voice of the turtledove
Is heard in our land.

<sup>13</sup> The fig tree puts forth her green figs,
And the vines with the tender grapes

Give a good smell.

Rise up, my love, my fair one,
And come away!

<sup>14</sup> “O my <sup>e</sup>dove, in the clefts of the rock,
In the secret places of the cliff,
Let me see your <sup>3</sup>face,
<sup>f</sup>Let me hear your voice;
For your voice is sweet,
And your face is lovely.”

1:17 beams of our houses are cedar: Houses may mean “grand house” or “mansion.” As the Shulamite lies on their wedding bed (v. 16), she observes the marvelous cedar beams above her head. The opulence of Solomon’s personal and public buildings in Jerusalem is well documented (1 Kin. 7:1–12).

2:2 Solomon takes the young bride’s words (v. 1) comparing herself to a simple flower and assures her that, beside her, the fancy women of the city are but thorns.

2:3 The apple tree and the raisin cakes (v. 5) are symbols for sexual passion in ancient love songs.

2:4 the banqueting house: The literal meaning of the phrase is “the house of wine,” used because of the role that wine plays not only in feasting, but especially in weddings in biblical cultures (1:2). In the Bible, wine is a symbol of joy (see Ps. 104:15) and the drinking of wine is associated with joyful occasions. his banner: This may be the same term as used in Num. 1:52, meaning “standard” or “flag.” Even today, Jewish weddings take place under a “banner” or covering. love: This is the first use in the book of the common noun for love related to the verb in v. 3. This noun corresponds somewhat to the well-known Greek noun agape, which refers to a self-sacrificial love for others (1 Cor. 13).

2:5, 6 These verses describe the joy of sexual expression between a husband and wife. raisins . . . apples: Ancient symbols of sexual passion (see v. 3). lovesick: These are the words of one overwhelmed with love.

2:7 Here the Shulamite speaks to her attendants in their virginity and entreats them (I charge you) to maintain their sexual purity until marriage (see 3:5; 8:4). By the gazelles . . . does: She beseeches the young women by all things that are beautiful. love: This is the noun used in v. 4, demonstrating that this word may also be used of sexual passion. The association of this charge with the description of sexual intimacy in v. 6 suggests that the warning is against awakening such desires before it pleases—that is, at the proper and appropriate time within the bounds of marriage. While the Book of Proverbs frequently exhorts young men to live in sexual purity (see Prov. 7), the Song of Solomon frequently addresses its warnings to young women.

2:8, 9 leaping . . . skipping: This is the young bride’s imaginative way of recalling the joy she experienced at her husband’s arrival. The same is true of her words for him: gazelle . . . stag, animals that symbolize virility. windows . . . lattice: That is, Solomon was looking at her through an opening in the wall.

2:10 my love: A term of endearment meaning “my dear friend” (see 1:15). my fair one: Solomon describes his bride as “beautiful” (see 1:8, 15).

2:11–13 the winter is past: By this Solomon means that the time of joy has come; it is the summer of their love. Solomon may have come at a time of great beauty in the fields and forests where the young woman lived; he uses the beauty of creation to describe the ripeness of time for their love.

2:14 Solomon’s great find in this young woman is occasioned in part by her shy charm. in the clefts: Solomon speaks of the Shulamite using a figure of speech describing her isolated home in the mountains.

A Troubled Night

THE SHULAMITE

3 By <sup>a</sup> night on my bed I sought the one I love;
I sought him, but I did not find him.
2 "I will rise now," I said,
"And go about the city;
In the streets and in the squares
I will seek the one I love."
I sought him, but I did not find him.
3 <sup>b</sup> The watchmen who go about the city found me;
I said,
"Have you seen the one I love?"
4 Scarcely had I passed by them,
When I found the one I love.
I held him and would not let him go,
Until I had brought him to the <sup>c</sup> house of my mother,

And into the <sup>1</sup> chamber of her who conceived me.

5 <sup>4</sup> I <sup>2</sup> charge you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
By the gazelles or by the does of the field,
Do not stir up nor awaken love
Until it pleases.

The Coming of Solomon

THE SHULAMITE

6 <sup>e</sup> Who is this coming out of the wilderness
Like pillars of smoke, Perfumed with myrrh and frankincense,
With all the merchant's fragrant powders?
7 Behold, it is Solomon's couch,
With sixty valiant men around it,
Of the valiant of Israel.
8 They all hold swords,
Being expert in war.
Every man has his sword on his thigh
Because of fear in the night.
9 Of the wood of Lebanon
Solomon the King
Made himself a <sup>3</sup> palanquin:
10 He made its pillars of silver,
Its support of gold,
Its seat of purple,
Its interior paved with love
By the daughters of Jerusalem.
11 Go forth, O daughters of Zion,

2:15 The Shulamite's brothers called on Solomon to catch them the foxes. Many times they had seen little foxes creep into the vineyards they tended and destroy the roots by gnawing on them. The vine of the budding love of the couple was tender and needed to be protected from these "little foxes," which symbolize the problems of life that may gnaw away at a relationship.

2:16 My beloved is mine, and I am his: The expression describes the mutual intimacy that a married couple experiences. Both belong to each other (see 6:3; compare 7:10).

2:17 Until the day breaks: Here the woman wishes the king to leave for the night. The book is pervaded with the sense of doing what is right at the appropriate time. Here, she wishes him to flee like a gazelle. Later, she will want him to rush to her like one (8:14).

3:1 on my bed: This is a dream that took place before they were married. The young woman was becoming concerned about what she would be getting into in this royal marriage.

3:2, 3 Her frantic search for her beloved is initially unsuccessful. Twice in these verses she describes him as the one I love. In each case, the wording is "the one whom my soul (or my inner being) loves."

3:4 At last she finds him, using the same phrasing (the one I love) of vv. 2, 3. In her dream she takes him to her mother's house. That is, the worry of his absence is intolerable to her; she wants him to move back with her to her familiar home and lifestyle.

3:5 Do not stir up: Again there is a strong warning against premarital sex. People should not allow sexual passion to stir before they have gotten to know each other in other ways (2:8-17), until they have worked out the problems of their relationship (the "little foxes," see 2:15-17), and until they have counted the costs of marriage (3:1-4).

3:6 Who is this coming: Contrast the bold, royal journey here with the earlier, playful approach in 2:8. pillars of smoke: This is language reminiscent of a divine visitation (see Ex. 19:18).

Perfumed: The precious ointments here are marks of luxury and royalty; later, on the woman, these elements would be symbols of love (4:6).

3:7, 8 The couch was a sedan chair with poles projecting from the front and back so that a person could be carried by several bearers (vv. 9, 10). The Shulamite was being carried to the wedding and to her groom on Solomon's own couch. valiant men: The term describes war heroes, as v. 8 explains. fear: That is, these warriors were prepared for any threat.

3:9, 10 Apparently Solomon had ordered this couch (vv. 7, 8) to be designed and built especially for the wedding. To the Shulamite, the couch's rich ornamentation of silver and gold is less significant than the fact that the couch represents Solomon's love and care for her (2:4).

3:11 O daughters of Zion: These are the Daughters of Jerusalem (see 1:5). And see: For a wedding to be recognized in ancient Israel, it had to be a public event. Such a day has always been regarded as a day of gladness (Ps. 19:5). the crown:

And see King Solomon with the crown
With which his mother crowned him
On the day of his wedding,
The day of the gladness of his heart.

The Bridegroom Praises the Bride

THE BELOVED

- 4 Behold, <sup>a</sup>you are fair, my love!
Behold, you are fair!
You have dove's eyes behind your veil.
Your hair is like a <sup>b</sup>flock of goats,
Going down from Mount Gilead.
- <sup>2</sup> Your teeth are like a flock of shorn sheep
Which have come up from the washing,
Every one of which bears twins,
And none is <sup>1</sup>barren among them.
- <sup>3</sup> Your lips are like a strand of scarlet,
And your mouth is lovely.
- <sup>d</sup> Your temples behind your veil
Are like a piece of pomegranate.
- <sup>4</sup> Your neck is like the tower of David,
Built <sup>f</sup>for an armory,
On which hang a thousand <sup>2</sup>bucklers,
All shields of mighty men.
- <sup>5</sup> Your two breasts are like two fawns,
Twins of a gazelle,
Which feed among the lilies.
- <sup>6</sup> <sup>h</sup>Until the day breaks
And the shadows flee away,
I will go my way to the mountain of myrrh
And to the hill of frankincense.
- <sup>7</sup> <sup>i</sup>You are all fair, my love,
And there is no spot in you.
- <sup>8</sup> Come with me from Lebanon, my spouse,

And streams from Lebanon.

Solomon's royal symbol was appropriately worn at this wedding.

4:1 Solomon lavishly praises his bride's great beauty. He uses verbal symbols of loveliness to paint a picture of the breathtaking charm of the Shulamite. Dove's eyes (2:14) are a picture of purity, innocence, and beauty (as in 1:15). The bride's veil would have covered the rest of her face, leaving only her beautiful eyes to be seen (see at 2:14; see also 5:7). The king compared the movement of her flowing hair to the graceful movement of a flock of goats in their descent down from Mount Gilead.

4:2–5 The king rhapsodizes on the perfection of his bride's teeth, her lips and facial features, her neck, and at last her breasts. Scarlet (v. 3) describes luxuriance and beauty; the pomegranate speaks of sweetness; the term lovely is the same rare word used first in 1:5. The tower of David (v. 4) pictures strength and grace; the fawns (v. 5) have exquisite loveliness.

4:6 Until the day breaks: The couple's first night together was a precious time (see 8:14). the mountain of myrrh . . . the hill of frankincense: These playful names again give us a glimpse into their passionate love for each other (see 1:13, 14; 2:6).

4:7 fair: The king has used this term for beauty before (v. 1).

However, the difference here is in the word all. Now he rhapsodizes on how perfect his bride is; every part of her is attractive.

4:8 These words demonstrate Solomon's sensitivity to his new bride's emotions at this point. He calls her mind back from thoughts afar off. He says, "Come back with me." His use of the word spouse for the first time is appropriate here on their wedding bed. See also vv. 9, 10, 11, 12; 5:1.

4:9 My sister, my spouse: This strange pairing of words was based on the idea that in marriage a couple became "related." The woman was dignified as a member of the king's family.

4:10 your love . . . your love: That is, erotic love.

4:11 lips . . . Honey and milk: The sweetness of his bride's kisses are like food to him (see 5:1; compare 1:2).

4:12 spring . . . fountain: Solomon evokes thoughts of refreshment and delight. His use of the words enclosed . . . shut up . . . sealed indicate, in a poetic manner, his wife's virginity on their wedding night. This was the treasure she brought to him, and which she adjured the other young women in the court to maintain for their wedding nights as well (2:7).

4:13–15 pleasant fruits: These verses expand the images of the garden and the fountain for sexual love from v. 12.

THE SHULAMITE

2 I sleep, but my heart is awake;
It is the voice of my beloved!
<sup>e</sup> He knocks, saying,
 “Open for me, my sister, <sup>1</sup> my love,
 My dove, my perfect one;
 For my head is covered with dew,
 My <sup>2</sup> locks with the drops of the night.”
 3 I have taken off my robe;
 How can I put it on again?
 I have washed my feet;
 How can I <sup>3</sup> defile them?
 4 My beloved put his hand
 By the <sup>4</sup> latch of the door,
 And my heart yearned for him.
 5 I arose to open for my beloved,
 And my hands dripped with myrrh,
 My fingers with liquid myrrh,
 On the handles of the lock.

6 I opened for my beloved,
 But my beloved had turned away and
 was gone.
 My <sup>5</sup> heart leaped up when he spoke.
<sup>f</sup> I sought him, but I could not find
 him;
 I called him, but he gave me no
 answer.
 7 <sup>g</sup> The watchmen who went about the city found me.
 They struck me, they wounded me;
 The keepers of the walls
 Took my veil away from me.
 8 I charge you, O daughters of
 Jerusalem,
 If you find my beloved,
 That you tell him I am lovesick!

THE DAUGHTERS OF JERUSALEM

9 What is your beloved
 More than another beloved,
<sup>h</sup> O fairest among women?
 What is your beloved
 More than another beloved,
 That you so <sup>6</sup> charge us?

THE SHULAMITE

10 My beloved is white and ruddy,
<sup>7</sup> Chief among ten thousand.
 11 His head is like the finest gold;
 His locks are wavy,
 And black as a raven.
 12 <sup>i</sup> His eyes are like doves
 By the rivers of waters,
 Washed with milk,
 And <sup>8</sup> fitly set.
 13 His cheeks are like a bed of spices,
 Banks of scented herbs.
 His lips are lilies,
 Dripping liquid myrrh.
 14 His hands are rods of gold
 Set with beryl.
 His body is carved ivory
 Inlaid with sapphires.
 15 His legs are pillars of marble

4:16 The bride is now ready to accept her lover for the first time to her garden. She calls on the wind to blow through. That is, she is ready to make love to her husband for the first time.

5:1 drunk my wine: This verse is a necessary part of the preceding chapter. At the conclusion of their lovemaking, the groom speaks of his complete satisfaction in his beautiful bride.

5:2–7 I sleep: These words begin a section (vv. 2–8) that most likely is another dream sequence (see 3:1–5). The bride dreams that her lover is coming to her, but she has already washed, removed her robe, and gotten into bed (v. 3). She finally goes to the door to let him in, but he is gone. Her sorrow at this drives her into the city to search for him. The watchmen find her and are hostile toward her.

5:8, 9 The bride asks the daughters of Jerusalem to help her in her search. But they question what is so special about the one for whom she seeks.

5:10–16 The bride responds to the question of v. 9 with a poem extolling the handsomeness of her husband, beginning with his ruddy complexion and ending with the sweetness of his mouth.

beloved (Heb. dod) (4:16; 1 Sam. 14:50; Prov. 7:18; Is. 5:1) Strong's #1730: In Hebrew love poetry, dod is a term of endearment used for a male loved one, usually translated beloved (Is. 5:1). The writer of the Song of Solomon uses this word 32 times. The name David is derived from dod and carries the same sense, meaning “Beloved One.” When dod is used in narrative, it means “uncle” or another close male relative (1 Sam. 14:50).

Set on bases of fine gold.
His countenance is like Lebanon,
Excellent as the cedars.

16 His mouth is most sweet,
Yes, he is altogether lovely.

And this is my friend,
O daughters of Jerusalem!

6:1 The chorus members now join in the search. In the dream sequence, we suspect that the chorus is well aware of his location. It is only the bride who needs to discover his whereabouts.

6:2 his garden . . . his flock: This is a change of language from 4:12–16. On their wedding night, the bride presented herself to Solomon as his garden. But he has another “garden” to tend as well, and it is one in which he also takes great pleasure. This is the “garden” of his work, his responsibility as the king of Israel. The flock is the people; the lilies represent the produce of the land. This realization leads to the strong affirmation in the next verse that the husband and wife belong to each other. Another use of the word garden occurs in 6:11.

6:3 I am my beloved’s, and my beloved is mine: These words are an inversion of the words of 2:16; compare also 7:10. He feeds his flock among the lilies: With these words the bride comes to terms with the reality that, as much as she and the king are in love, he still has other responsibilities and so does she. His work as king makes him the shepherd of his people, yet his love for her does not necessarily diminish because of his devotion to his work.

6:4 beautiful . . . Lovely: The first is the word usually translated “fair” (1:8, 15; 4:1); the second is the rarer word for beauty used first in 1:5. Tirzah . . . Jerusalem: Solomon idealizes the beauty of these cities, even as people speak of beautiful cities in our own day. army with banners: From a distance, there is a kind of beauty in the sight of an army, especially for a king.

6:8, 9 sixty . . . eighty: This use of numbers is a rhetorical device to emphasize that the bride alone is Solomon’s love. praised: Here is a use of this verb in a context other than the worship of God.

6:10 morning . . . moon . . . sun: The king’s rapture at the very thought of his wife lifts his soul to the heavens.

6:11 Here the term garden refers to the Shulamite’s homeland.

6:13 The chorus calls the bride back from her daydreams and reminds her that she is Solomon’s queen. Shulamite: The term is not a name but a title. It may mean “a woman from the village of Shulam.” However, the hometown of the woman is usually thought to be Shunem. Her title sounds very much like the Hebrew pronunciation for the name Solomon. Both words are related to the Hebrew word for peace (shalom). the dance of the two camps: In Hebrew, the word is Mahanaim, the town where David fled as a fugitive from Absalom (2 Sam. 17:24). The woman offers to dance before her beloved so that he might enjoy her beauty in lovely motion.

THE BELOVED

- 7 How beautiful are your feet in sandals,
<sup>a</sup>O prince's daughter!
 The curves of your thighs are like jewels,
 The work of the hands of a skillful workman.
- 2 Your navel is a rounded goblet;
 It lacks no <sup>1</sup>blended beverage.
 Your waist is a heap of wheat
 Set about with lilies.
- 3 <sup>b</sup>Your two breasts are like two fawns,
 Twins of a gazelle.
- 4 <sup>c</sup>Your neck is like an ivory tower,
 Your eyes like the pools in Heshbon
 By the gate of Bath Rabbim.
 Your nose is like the tower of Lebanon
 Which looks toward Damascus.
- 5 Your head crowns you like Mount Carmel,
 And the hair of your head is like purple;
 A king is held captive by your tresses.
- 6 How fair and how pleasant you are,
 O love, with your delights!
 7 This stature of yours is like a palm tree,
 And your breasts like its clusters.
- 8 I said, "I will go up to the palm tree,
 I will take hold of its branches."
 Let now your breasts be like clusters of the vine,
 The fragrance of your <sup>2</sup>breath like apples,
- 9 And the roof of your mouth like the best wine.

THE SHULAMITE

- The wine goes down smoothly for my beloved,*
<sup>3</sup>Moving gently the <sup>4</sup>lips of sleepers.
 10 <sup>d</sup>I am my beloved's,
 And <sup>e</sup>his desire is toward me.

 Let us go forth to the field;
 Let us lodge in the villages.
- 12 Let us get up early to the vineyards;
 Let us <sup>f</sup>see if the vine has budded,
Whether the grape blossoms are open,
 And the pomegranates are in bloom.
 There I will give you my love.
- 13 The <sup>g</sup>mandrakes give off a fragrance,
 And at our gates <sup>h</sup>are pleasant fruits,
 All manner, new and old,
 Which I have laid up for you, my beloved.
- 8 Oh, that you were like my brother,
 Who nursed at my mother's breasts!
 If I should find you outside,
 I would kiss you;
 I would not be despised.
- 2 I would lead you and bring you
 Into the <sup>a</sup>house of my mother,
 She who used to instruct me.
 I would cause you to drink of <sup>b</sup>spiced wine,
 Of the juice of my pomegranate.

 And his right hand embraces me.
- 4 <sup>d</sup>I charge you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
 Do not stir up nor awaken love
 Until it pleases.

A RELATIVE

- 5 <sup>e</sup>Who is this coming up from the wilderness,
 Leaning upon her beloved?

I awakened you under the apple tree.
 There your mother brought you forth;

7:1 Solomon rhapsodizes on the beauty of his bride. In the eyes of love, one's lover has a beauty that transcends what others might see. prince's daughter: Although of common birth (1:2), the Shulamite has regal beauty. The curves of your thighs: The Hebrew wording suggests not only her form but the fluid motion of her dance (6:13).

7:6 This verse summarizes the king's joy in her beauty. fair: This term (here a verb) for beauty is used often in the book (see 1:8, 15). love: Here he uses the common noun for love as in 2:4.

7:7, 8 palm tree: This is a sexual image that has its basis in the pollination of palm trees. To fertilize a female palm tree, the gardener climbs the male tree and takes some of its flowers. Then he climbs the female tree and ties the pollen-bearing flowers among its branches.

7:10 desire: This word is used only three times in the Bible. Here it clearly means "sexual longing."

7:12 She was familiar with all the environs, but especially the vineyards (see 1:6; compare 8:12). my love: This refers to a sexual embrace; see 1:2 where the same word is used.

7:13 From early times, mandrakes were associated with fertility (Gen. 30:14).

8:1, 2 like my brother: The love of the bride for her beloved was so intense that she wished that she had known him dearly his entire life.

8:2 spiced wine: The wines of the ancient world were often flavored with aromatic spices on special occasions (Prov. 9:2).

8:3, 4 left . . . right: The repetition of 2:6, 7 punctuates both the joy of sexual intimacy within marriage and the warnings against sexual activity before marriage.

8:5 The king takes his bride back to her home country for a visit. The apple tree symbolizes the place where the Shulamite had been awakened sexually and where her mother had given birth to her.

There she who bore you brought you forth.

THE SHULAMITE TO HER BELOVED

<sup>6</sup> <sup>j</sup>Set me as a seal upon your heart,
As a seal upon your arm;

THE BELOVED

<sup>13</sup> You who dwell in the gardens,
The companions listen for your voice—
<sup>h</sup>Let me hear it!

THE SHULAMITE

<sup>14</sup> <sup>i</sup>Make <sup>4</sup>haste, my beloved,
And <sup>m</sup>be like a gazelle
Or a young stag
On the mountains of spices.

8:6 A seal is a symbol of possession or ownership. The Shulamite wants the king to feel a total ownership of her in his heart. She is committed only to him; and she wants him to be completely committed to her. As long as she resides in his heart, she feels secure. She knows that love deeply rooted in a heart commitment is intense—strong as death—and passionate—like flames of fire.

8:7 quench . . . despised: The point of this powerful verse is that true love cannot be destroyed, and neither can it be purchased.

8:8 The Shulamite came from a fatherless home where she had been raised by her mother and brothers (1:6). They alternated between protective concern for her and anger with her. But in her growing up, her brothers had protected her.

8:9 If . . . a wall: By this the brothers meant that they would praise her for virtue and strength during puberty. if . . . a door: However, if she were loose, like a swinging door, they would have to protect her from herself and from untoward advances by young men.

8:10 The woman explains that she has been virtuous in her youth—a wall—and she will remain faithful in her adulthood—towers. In this way she discovers peace. How unexpected to find this rich Hebrew word used here of sexual completion.

8:11, 12 Solomon owned many vineyards, some in areas remote from Jerusalem. Baal Hamon ("Lord of Hamon") was a site near Shunem, the town near where the Shulamite may have been raised. Solomon's vineyard had been entrusted to the Shulamite's brothers, as had the Shulamite. After caring for this vineyard, the brothers earned one thousand shekels profit. But they also cared for and protected the king's other "vineyard," the Shulamite. Now, she requests that her brothers be rewarded with two hundred shekels profit. My own vineyard: This phrase takes us back to 1:6 where the Shulamite makes a play on words with vineyard. Here she sees that vineyard of old (see 7:12), but indicates that she now has another "vineyard" to tend—her dear husband.

8:13 The companions: This may be a reference to the woman's friends living nearby.

8:14 Make haste: During the period of courtship, the young woman had asked her suitor to run away like a gazelle . . . stag, lest they become entangled with passion too soon. Now, in their married love, she wishes he would rush to her (see 4:6). the mountains of spices: That is, she wants him to return to her loving embrace (see 1:13; 4:6).

The Book of Isaiah

Isaiah was a man with a mission. The Lord had shown him a glimpse of His glorious throne and placed a call on his life. As a prophet, he spoke God’s words. For the most part, these were words of confrontation, exhortation, and warning—words that made him extremely unpopular. But even when he faced opposition Isaiah continued to stand up for the truth. The Lord had called him to warn the people of their headlong rush into disaster. The Book of Isaiah records these prophetic words of warning, but it also records Isaiah’s words of promise and hope. One day, a Messiah would come who would save, comfort, and bless His people.

Author • Isaiah the son of Amoz has traditionally been identified as the author of the entire book that bears his name (1:1). However, since the rise of historical criticism in the late nineteenth century, debate has surrounded the authorship of Isaiah. The Book of Isaiah addresses three different historical time periods, and some critical scholars have concluded that there were three different authors for the book. Because chapters 1—39 address Israel when it was confronting Assyrian invasions during the second half of the eighth century B.C., most scholars have agreed that these chapters were composed by Isaiah the son of Amoz, the so-called Proto-Isaiah (or “First Isaiah”). But chapters 40—55 speak to the discouraged exiles in Babylon in the first half of the sixth century B.C., two centuries after the prophet Isaiah lived. For this reason, some have assumed an anonymous author called Deutero-Isaiah (or “Second Isaiah”) for these chapters. The rest of the book, chapters 55—66, addresses the controversies that surrounded the postexilic community in the second half of the sixth century B.C. Thus this last section has been identified as the work of either Deutero-Isaiah or another anonymous author called Trito-Isaiah (or “Third Isaiah”). The basis for this elaborate analysis of the Book of Isaiah is the assumption that a Hebrew prophet could only address his contemporaries and not distant generations. According to these critics, a prediction of a future event, such as Isaiah’s prophetic naming of Cyrus two hundred years before that ruler came to power (44:28; 45:1), is simply impossible.

Contrary to the critics’ assumption, a prophet would commonly ask one generation to participate in the future events of another generation. Moses spoke this way when he addressed the new generation of Israelites at Moab as though they had participated in the events at Mt. Sinai (Deut. 5:3); yet none of Moses’ audience, with the exception of Joshua and Caleb, had actually been there (Deut. 1:35–38). Isaiah, who began his career in 740 B.C. and ended it around 681 B.C., also used this technique. He commanded the Israelites to “go forth from Babylon” (48:20) many generations before the Exile in 586 B.C. and the return in 538 B.C. This was a miraculous prophecy of the Israelites’ return from Babylon, a prophecy that would sustain the faith and hope of the exiles, such as Ezra and Nehemiah.

The internal evidence of the Book of Isaiah points to one author, the prophet Isaiah. Unlike books that have multiple authors, such as the books of Psalms and Proverbs, no editorial notices in the Book of Isaiah indicate a change of author (2:1; 13:1). Moreover there are numerous linguistic similarities throughout the book, such as the use of relatively rare titles for God, “the Holy One of Israel” and “the LORD of Hosts.” Variations in style between chapters 1—39 and chapters 40—66 may be due to differences in subject matter, changed perspectives, and perhaps even the prophet’s growing maturity. The New Testament confirms the view that Isaiah authored the entire book. The apostle John attributed prophecies from 53:1 as well as from 6:9, 10 to the prophet Isaiah (John 12:38–41). Thus there is no convincing reason to discount Isaiah’s authorship of the entire book.

Interpretation • Understanding Hebrew prophetic literature involves recognizing and interpreting parallelism. The Hebrews used parallelism in poetry and prophecy as a literary technique to emphasize a particular thought. Here is an example: “The ox knows its owner / and the donkey its master’s crib; / but Israel does not know, / My people do not consider” (1:3). In the first part of this verse, both the ox and the donkey intuitively know the objects that they depend on, the owner (provider) as well as the “master’s crib” (provision). The second part of the verse contrasts the intuition of animals with the behavior of the Israelites. Israel does not know “its Owner,” and even though they are God’s “people,” they “do not consider” God’s provision. Thus the second half of the verse creates the analogy in parallel with the first half.

Prophetic poetry uses colorful images that point to further meanings. Unlike prose, which addresses historical realities more directly, poetry draws its readers and listeners into spiritual realities with the use of evocative language. Thus in 42:15, the images of “mountains and hills” represent all sorts of obstacles—both physical and spiritual—to the exiles’ return to Jerusalem. The promise that the Lord would “dry up” these obstacles means that He would eliminate all impediments to the exiles’ return, just as He had dried up the Red Sea for the Israelites long before. Similarly in 41:18, that the Lord would “open rivers” and make “the dry land springs of water” means that He would miraculously provide for the returning exiles in the same way He had provided water from a rock (Ex. 17:1–6).

Another major element in understanding prophetic literature is recognizing that the prophecies themselves and their arrangement often lack chronological perspective or have multiple fulfillments. For example, the same prophecy may speak of both Jesus’ First and Second Comings (63:1, 2). Likewise, one prophecy may speak of both the virgin birth of Jesus as well as the birth of Isaiah’s son during Pekah’s invasion. Moreover, an oracle about the servant Cyrus, the Persian emperor of the sixth century B.C. (41:1–29), may stand next to a prophecy concerning the Servant Jesus (42:1–9). Ultimately, the interpretations of Jesus and the New Testament authors provide a guide for interpreting Old Testament prophecies.

Audience • As a prophet, Isaiah spoke to three historical epochs. In chapters 1–39, he delivered his message of condemnation to the eighth-century Israelites, pronouncing judgment on their immoral and idolatrous lifestyles. This judgment came quickly, for during Isaiah’s ministry, Tiglath-Pileser III (745–727 B.C.) set out to extend Assyria’s rule into the west, and in doing so put pressure on Israel and Judah. In 722 B.C. another Assyrian king, Sargon II, conquered the northern kingdom. Only the nation of Judah was left. But Isaiah predicted that even Judah would fall—as much later it did, in 586 B.C.

In chapters 40–55, Isaiah comforted the future generation of weary exiles—the Jews who thought that God had forgotten them (40:27). In a brilliant series of prophecies, Isaiah presented the case that Israel’s captivity was not due to the superiority of Babylon’s idols, but to the disciplining rod of Israel’s Lord (42:23–25). He predicted the exiles’ return and encouraged them to rouse themselves (52:1–10), to flee Babylon (48:20, 21), and to entrust their future to the Almighty (41:14–20).

Finally in the third section (chs. 56–66), Isaiah exhorted the Jews who had returned to the land. This was the period before the temple was rebuilt (58:12; 61:4; 64:10) or perhaps while it was being rebuilt (66:1). Isaiah encouraged these Jews to put away greed (56:9–11), self-indulgence (56:12), idolatry (57:3–10), cynicism (57:11–13), and hypocritical self-righteousness (58:1–5). But he also predicted that the community would be split between true and false worshipers (see chs. 65; 66). The complete restoration of Israel was still to come (49:8–26). The promised Messiah would appear in the future (61:1–3). Then Gentiles would join Israel’s godly remnant to become the “servants” of the Lord (56:3; 65:1, 15, 16) in a new nation (65:1; 66:8). The ultimate triumph of good over evil would have to await the new heaven and the new earth (65:17–19).

Christ in the Scriptures

Following are some of Isaiah’s Christological prophecies and their New Testament fulfillments: Isaiah 9:6 is fulfilled in Luke 2:11 and Ephesians 2:14–18; Isaiah 50:6 plays out with unbelievable precision in Matthew 26:67; 27:26, 30. Isaiah 61:1, 2 is nothing less than the personal mission Jesus verbalizes and embraces when He reads the scroll at the synagogue in Nazareth, as recorded in Luke 4:17–19.

Of particular importance is Isaiah’s description of the five aspects of Jesus’ saving work on our behalf. They appear in the five stanzas of Isaiah 52:13–53:12. There we read of Jesus’ wholehearted sacrifice, His perfect character, His atonement that results in peace with God, His payment that results in our forgiveness, and His death that nullifies the effects of sin. Isaiah refers to Jesus’ earthly ministry and His crucifixion as well as His eventual return to earth as the reigning King.

The Wickedness of Judah

<sup>2</sup> ‘Hear, O heavens, and give ear, O earth!

For the LORD has spoken:

“I have nourished and brought up children,

And they have rebelled against Me;

<sup>3</sup> <sup>d</sup>The ox knows its owner
And the donkey its master’s <sup>l</sup>crib;
But Israel <sup>c</sup>does not know,
My people do not <sup>2</sup>consider.”

<sup>4</sup> Alas, sinful nation,
A people <sup>3</sup>laden with iniquity,
<sup>f</sup>A <sup>a</sup>brood of evildoers,
Children who are corrupters!
They have forsaken the LORD,
They have provoked to anger
The Holy One of Israel,
They have turned away backward.

1:1 God mediated His message through the godly Isaiah to Judah, the people of the southern kingdom—specifically to their magistrates, priests, and prophets in Jerusalem. The nation of Israel had been divided into two parts: Judah (the southern kingdom) and Israel (the northern kingdom). While Isaiah’s message was primarily for the southern kingdom, it was also for the northern kingdom—the entire nation was heading down a path of sin and idolatry that would end in destruction. Thus in this book, the word Israel sometimes refers to both the southern and the northern kingdoms. Isaiah lived to see the nation of Assyria take the northern kingdom into captivity in 722 B.C. Therefore this record of Isaiah’s visions contains the revelations that God graciously gave during the reigns of Uzziah (792–740 B.C.), Jotham (752–736 B.C.), Ahaz (736–720 B.C.), and Hezekiah (729–699 B.C.). Because God never changes, this revelation is still relevant for His people today.

1:2, 3 The indictment against Judah has two parts: (1) Isaiah summons heaven and earth as witnesses to the trial (v. 2); (2) the Lord, as Plaintiff, indicts Judah, here called Israel (vv. 2, 3).

1:2 God’s relationship with His people is personal; He likens Judah to ungrateful children (63:8; Ex. 4:22; Hos. 11:1). The Hebrew term translated rebelled means “to refuse to submit to someone’s authority and rule” (63:10; 66:24).

1:3 Even an ox and a donkey recognize the owner who feeds them, so they do not rebel against him. But Israel, God’s own children whom He “nourished and brought up” (v. 2), had rebelled against Him. Judah’s rebellion was incomprehensible and inexcusable.

1:4 sinful nation: Despite God’s divine parenting, the people had turned to sin (5:1–7). The Holy One of Israel is Isaiah’s favorite title for God. The Lord is holy because He is profoundly different from all of humanity (40:25). He alone is the Creator (45:11, 12) exalted in heaven (6:1–3) and without sin (6:4–7). He alone is the righteous Judge (v. 20) and the Protector of the faithful (10:20; 43:3). Yet the phrase of Israel describes the Holy One as sustaining a relationship with His people (Ps. 40:1).

1:5–8 Isaiah first compares the nation’s affliction to a badly wounded soldier (vv. 5, 6) and then describes its land as ravaged by war (vv. 7, 8).

1:5 Isaiah answers his own indignant question, Why should you be stricken again? The people would only revolt more and more. More preaching would only make their hearts hard (6:9, 10). In 53:4–6 Isaiah reveals God’s gracious response to their hard hearts: the Lord will strike His Servant instead of sinners (53:4–6). Such love can win over even the toughest rebel (Rom. 5:8).

1:6 From foot to head means everyone and everything. Judah’s wounds were not closed, bound up (bandaged), or soothed, because the people had refused to repent.

1:8 Daughter of Zion is a beautiful personification of Jerusalem (37:22; 60:14). Actually, the of in this phrase is somewhat misleading. “Daughter of Zion” seems to indicate that Zion has a daughter. In fact, Zion is the daughter—the daughter of the Lord. Booth and hut refer to lean-to shelters used by farmers and watchmen during the harvest.

1:9–17 This invitation to repent falls into three parts: (1) Isaiah’s appeal to the rebellious rulers and people of Jerusalem to hear the Lord’s instruction (vv. 9, 10); (2) the Lord’s scathing indictment and rejection of the people’s external, formalistic worship (vv. 11–17); (3) the Lord’s invitation to the people to repent and do justice in order to save themselves from death (vv. 18–20).

1:9 The title LORD of hosts describes God as ruler over all powers in heaven and earth through His command of His angelic armies. The title is a favorite of Isaiah, for it speaks of God’s holiness and sovereignty. Judah’s survival was not ultimately due to an enemy’s weakness but to God’s power. Though God punished His sinful people, He always preserved a remnant (6:13; 10:20; 11:16) because He was faithful to keep His promise to Abraham (Gen. 22:16–18; Ex. 34:6, 7; Mic. 7:19, 20; Rom. 9:29; 11:5). The word remnant basically means “survivor” (Num. 21:35; Josh. 8:22). Sodom and Gomorrah were regarded as the epitome of sinfulness; to say that Jerusalem had become like those cities was a scathing condemnation (Rev. 11:8). Elsewhere these words are used as symbols of God’s final judgment upon sinners (see Amos 4:11; Matt. 10:15; 2 Pet. 2:6).

History in Isaiah

Isaiah delivered God's message to the people of Judah and served as adviser during the reigns of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah between approximately 740 and 700 B.C. His prophetic activity focused around three major crises in Judah's history. First, in 734 B.C., Rezin, king of Syria, and Pekah, king of Israel, joined forces against Assyria. They wanted King Ahaz of Judah to join them. Isaiah counseled Judah not to join the coalition (ch. 7). Second, between 714 and 711 B.C., the ruler of the Philistine city of Ashdod led the Philistines to revolt against Assyria. Isaiah bitterly opposed any participation on the part of Judah in this rebellion (20:1-6). Third, in 701 B.C., King Hezekiah of Judah revolted against Sennacherib (705-681 B.C.), king of Assyria, who came to Judah and besieged Jerusalem. As in every crisis, Isaiah counseled faith in the Lord.

The Degenerate City

- 21 <sup>ag</sup> How the faithful city has become a <sup>ah</sup> harlot!
It was full of justice;

1:10-15 God desired sacrifices, but not from people who disobeyed Him and mistreated others, even if the sacrifice presented was the best. “To obey is better than sacrifice,” said the early prophet Samuel (1 Sam. 15:22, 23). Later prophets agreed (Hos. 6:6; Amos 4:4; Mic. 6:6-8), and so did the Lord Jesus (Matt. 23:23). God judges not only our outwardly pious acts, but more importantly the attitude of our hearts (1 Cor. 4:5).

1:13-15 Here is an itemized condemnation of the people's sacred seasons, New Moons (Num. 28:11-15), Sabbaths (Ex. 31:14-17), and appointed feasts (Ex. 23:14-17). These feasts are condemned as futile because the people did not celebrate them out of love for God.

1:14 God sarcastically refers to the feasts as your rather than “My” New Moons because the people had changed the spirit of God's ceremonial laws from love of Him to manipulation of Him.

1:15 God did not look with favor on the fervent spread out . . . hands of those who oppressed others, and He would not hear their many accompanying prayers (James 4:1-6).

1:16-20 The invitation to repent has two parts: (1) The people must wash themselves by seeking justice, by rebuking the oppressor, and defending the fatherless (James 1:27). (2) God Himself would wash the people if they were willing and obe- dient to meet this condition. As the righteous Judge, God both reproves the wicked and defends the innocent (11:4).

1:18 Reason together means “to come to a legal decision.” There is no call for a compromise here; the people were to come to an agreement with God concerning the enormous gravity of their sin. God was not declaring His people innocent of wickedness, but He was prepared to pardon their sins if they would repent and turn to Him. God offers us that same forgiveness through Jesus. Says the LORD: The verb form suggests a repeated offering of grace. Scarlet recalls the picture of “hands . . . full of blood” (v. 15). God's grace and power can make such bloodstains as white as snow (Rom. 3:21-26).

1:19, 20 There was another side to God's offer. If the sinful people did not repent, instead of the promise that they shall eat the good of the land (3:10) stood the threat that they shall be devoured by the sword. The promise and threat were certain because the LORD had spoken them. Here the verb has spoken indicates finality (contrast the verb says in v. 18). While God had graciously extended His offer of mercy over a significant period of time, this was the only offer God made. They could not “cut another deal” with Him (40:5; 55:11).

1:21-31 In these verses, God announced His intent to purify Israel. This announcement falls into two parts: (1) a prophecy

Righteousness lodged in it,
 But now <sup>b</sup>murderers.
 22 <sup>c</sup>Your silver has become dross,
 Your wine mixed with water.
 23 <sup>d</sup>Your princes are rebellious,
 And <sup>e</sup>companions of thieves;
<sup>f</sup>Everyone loves bribes,
 And follows after rewards.
 They <sup>g</sup>do not defend the fatherless,
 Nor does the cause of the widow come before them.

24 Therefore the Lord says,
 The LORD of hosts, the Mighty One
 of Israel,
 “Ah, <sup>h</sup>I will <sup>3</sup>rid Myself of My adversaries,
 And <sup>4</sup>take vengeance on My enemies.

25 I will turn My hand against you,
 And <sup>i</sup>thoroughly <sup>5</sup>purge away your dross,
 And take away all your alloy.

26 I will restore your judges <sup>7</sup>as at the first,
 And your counselors as at the beginning.
 Afterward <sup>k</sup>you shall be called the city of righteousness, the faithful
 city.”

27 Zion shall be redeemed with justice,
 And her <sup>6</sup>penitents with righteousness.

28 The <sup>l</sup>destruction of transgressors and of sinners shall be together,
 And those who forsake the LORD
 shall be consumed.

2 The word that Isaiah the son of Amoz saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem.

2 Now <sup>a</sup>it shall come to pass <sup>b</sup>in the

<sup>c</sup>That the mountain of the LORD's house
 Shall be established on the top of the mountains,
 And shall be exalted above the hills;
 And all nations shall flow to it.

3 Many people shall come and say, <sup>d</sup>“Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the LORD,
 To the house of the God of Jacob;
 He will teach us His ways,
 And we shall walk in His paths.”
 “For out of Zion shall go forth the

 And the word of the LORD from of judgment (vv. 21–26); (2) an elaboration of God's sentence (vv. 27–31). God's purpose for Judah was not final destruction, but purification from social injustice (vv. 25, 26) and redemption from idolatry (vv. 27–31). Idolatry and injustice are inseparable. When people turn from trusting the fair and loving God, they will start oppressing the poor and helpless (Jer. 23:13, 14; Hos. 4:1–14; Amos 2:6–8).

1:22, 23 The debased silver and wine refer to Jerusalem's unjust rulers.

1:25 God's hand had effectively delivered Israel from Egypt. Now that same hand was against the people in judgment.

1:26 God's goal for Jerusalem was that it would become a city of righteousness, a city where the Lord would be faithfully worshipped.

1:27 The Hebrew word for redeemed means “ransomed” or “freed someone from another's ownership through the payment of a price.” Zion's penitents, those who turned their back on idolatry and injustice, would find freedom from sin and judgment.

1:29 Idolaters shall be ashamed because the terebinth, a sacred tree, and the gardens, sacred groves for fertility rites or the worship of spirits, would fail to save them in the time of judgment (65:3).

1:30, 31 Terebinth represents both the sacred trees (v. 29) and the strong, dominating rulers of Israel. The work of it is perhaps a reference to the injustice of Israel's tyrants (v. 23), which was the opposite of the Lord's righteous work (5:12).

no one shall quench: God will rid His creation of the proud through His gracious, purifying judgment.

2:1–5 Isaiah's prophecy about Zion's exaltation falls into three parts: (1) an introduction locating the vision “in the latter days” (v. 2); (2) a vision of Zion established as the chief mountain (vv. 3, 4); (3) a conclusion exhorting Judah to obey the law until the vision is fulfilled (v. 5).

2:2 Some have interpreted the phrase in the latter days as pointing to the new epoch initiated by the saving work of Christ and the coming of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost (see Acts 2:17). According to this interpretation, this prophecy will be completely fulfilled in the Second Coming of the Messiah (1 Cor. 15:28). Others interpret this passage as referring to conditions in Christ's future kingdom. See the fuller development of this theme in Mic. 4:1–4. Just as the LORD's house (the temple) was a type of the heavenly sanctuary (Heb. 9:24), so presumably the mountain (Mt. Zion) was a copy of a heavenly reality (Heb. 9:23, 24; 12:22–24). In the coming kingdom, the city of Jerusalem and its glorious temple will again become prominent. The false gods of pagans had sacred mountains with temples; to raise the Lord's house to the top of the mountains, or “as the chief mountain,” is to establish Him among the nations as the only true God.

2:3 By quoting the people's words, let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, Isaiah vividly depicts their regenerated hearts, since the unregenerate do not seek God (see Rom. 3:11).

4 He shall judge between the nations,
And rebuke many people;
They shall beat their swords into plowshares,
And their spears into pruning
<sup>1</sup>hooks;
Nation shall not lift up sword against nation,
Neither shall they learn war
anymore.

And the LORD alone shall be exalted
<sup>n</sup>in that day.

12 For the day of the LORD of hosts
Shall come upon everything proud and lofty,
Upon everything lifted up—
And it shall be brought low—

13 Upon all <sup>o</sup>the cedars of Lebanon that are high and lifted up,
And upon all the oaks of Bashan;

2:4 Plowshares probably means “hoes.” One glorious day there will be an end to all weapons, an end to all warfare. This will be possible only because of the reign of the Prince of Peace (9:6), the Savior King whose name is Jesus.

2:5 Isaiah includes himself with the godly remnant and encourages them: let us walk. Even though they could not see the glorious future of Zion, they continued to place their faith in God’s promises and obey His law. Light is a metaphor for God’s law, which illuminates the path that leads to everlasting life (Ps. 119:105).

2:6–9 The condemnation of Judah for misplaced confidence is in three parts and in the form of a prayer: (1) a judicial sentence (v. 6); (2) a condemnation of Judah’s misplaced confidence in witchcraft, pagan alliances, money, weapons, and idolatry (vv. 6–9); (3) a concluding prayer that God should not forgive the people for substituting faith in the works of their own hands for faith in Him (v. 9). The Law prohibited the king from accumulating money, weapons, and alliances, in order to keep him dependent on God (Deut. 17:16, 17).

2:6 The exhortation to the house of Jacob was necessary (v. 5), for God had handed it over to destruction. You have forsaken was a present, but not a permanent, condition for the Israelites. To renounce eastern ways and soothsayers, the customs of Mesopotamia, was a hallmark of genuine faith in the God of Israel (Deut. 18:10). They are pleased could be translated “they clasp hands,” suggesting political alliances with foreigners. See 2 Kin. 16:7 for Ahaz’s dependence on the Lord for salvation.

2:8 The work of their own hands refers to man-made idols in particular.

2:9 Each man humbles himself before things that are themselves debased—idols. Wanting God to uphold moral order, yet intimately knowing God’s gracious character, Isaiah implored Him not to forgive those who had turned to idols.

2:10–22 Isaiah predicted that in the day of the Lord, the Lord alone would be exalted. The oracle is in three parts: (1) an introductory command to the proud to hide themselves from the terror of the Lord (vv. 10, 11); (2) a prediction that in the day of the Lord every pretension would be humbled (vv. 12–18); (3) a concluding command to the righteous to separate themselves from the proud (v. 22).

2:10 Dust symbolizes the abject humility of the defeated (47:1; Gen. 3:14; Ps 44:25). The subject among the Israelites would grovel in the dust before the righteous Lord.

2:11 Lofty looks are the outer manifestation of proud hearts. The refrain the LORD alone shall be exalted highlights the theme of this prophecy and describes the coming, glorious revelation of the risen and exalted Savior King. In that day the Savior will be exalted above all other proud contenders.

2:12 Lifted up is translated “exalted” in v. 2. Any rival to God’s exaltation will be dwarfed. The day of the LORD is any time when the Lord of Hosts is victorious (1:9). The day of the Lord has two sides: (1) the night of God’s judgment and (2) the daylight of His salvation after judgment. Isaiah used the term to describe either or both aspects.

2:13–15 The cedars of Lebanon and the high mountains—the exalted things of creation—as well as the high tower and the fortified wall—the exalted things made by humanity—will be humbled so that the arrogant can see the greatness of God.

light (Heb. ’or) (2:5; 9:2; 58:8; Eccl. 2:13; 11:7) Strong’s #216: This word refers to literal or symbolic light. The Hebrew word often denotes daylight or daybreak (Judg. 16:2; Neh. 8:3), but it can also be symbolic of life and deliverance (Job 33:28, 30; Ps. 27:1; 36:9; 49:19; Mic. 7:8, 9). In the Bible, light is frequently associated with true knowledge and understanding (42:6; 49:6; 51:4; Job 12:25), and even gladness, good fortune, and goodness (Job 30:26; Ps. 97:11). The Bible describes light as the clothing of God—a vivid picture of His honor, majesty, splendor, and glory (Ps. 104:2; Hab. 3:3, 4). A proper lifestyle is characterized by walking in God’s light (2:5; Ps. 119:105; Prov. 4:18; 6:20–23).

To provoke the eyes of His glory.

2:16 The ships of Tarshish were large oceangoing vessels—prized objects which the arrogant made and considered to be more important than God.

2:18 The term idols means “worthless things.”

2:19 holes . . . caves: People will scurry like frightened animals with no place to hide (Matt. 24:16). Terror refers to the dread of the wicked at the sight of God (Ps. 14:5).

2:22 Sever yourselves: Since God will reject proud idolaters, it follows that the faithful should also reject them. How ludicrous to trust in transitory, impermanent man, whose breath is in his nostrils, instead of in the One who gives everyone breath.

3:1–9 This judgment against Jerusalem and Judah is in two parts: (1) a judicial sentence against anarchy (vv. 1–7); (2) an accusation of arrogance (vv. 8, 9).

3:1 For links this oracle with the previous exhortation to sever a relationship with an arrogant man (2:22). God takes away Judah’s leaders through the sword and exile. No historical reference is given because the truth is universal (see 2 Kin. 25:18–21).

3:2, 3 Judah’s administration was organized around warriors—mighty man, man of war, captain of fifty; sages—judge, elder, honorable man, counselor; religious mediums—prophet, diviner, enchanter; and craftsmen—artisan.

3:4 Because of the Lord’s judgment on Judah, the shrewd, ungodly leaders would be replaced by children and babes, meaning inexperienced and incompetent leaders.

3:5 For every one to be oppressed by another describes a state of anarchy. In such an upside-down world, child is against elder, the base against the honorable. In His judgment, the Lord has given over the wicked to their own evil ways.

3:6, 7 During this period of deprivation, society would be so deprived of leadership and possessions that people would qualify for leadership merely by having clothing.

3:8 For links the accusation (vv. 8, 9) to the judicial sentence (vv. 1–7).

<sup>9</sup> The look on their countenance witnesses against them,
And they declare their sin as <sup>f</sup>Sodom;
They do not hide it.
Woe to their soul!
For they have brought evil upon themselves.

<sup>10</sup> “Say to the righteous <sup>g</sup>that it shall be well with them,

For the reward of his hands shall be <sup>8</sup>given him.

<sup>12</sup> As for My people, children are their oppressors,
And women rule over them.
O My people! <sup>j</sup>Those who lead you <sup>9</sup>cause you to err,
And destroy the way of your paths.”

Oppression and Luxury Condemned

<sup>13</sup> The LORD stands up <sup>k</sup>to <sup>l</sup>plead,
And stands to judge the people.

<sup>14</sup> The LORD will enter into judgment
With the elders of His people
And His princes:

“For you have <sup>2</sup>eaten up <sup>l</sup>the vineyard;
The plunder of the poor is in your houses.

<sup>15</sup> What do you mean by <sup>m</sup>crushing My people
And grinding the faces of the poor?”
Says the Lord God of hosts.

<sup>16</sup> Moreover the LORD says:

“Because the daughters of Zion are haughty,
And walk with <sup>3</sup>outstretched necks
And <sup>4</sup>wanton eyes,
Walking and <sup>5</sup>mincing as they go,

<sup>17</sup> Making a jingling with their feet,
Therefore the Lord will strike with “a scab

The crown of the head of the daughters of Zion,
And the LORD will <sup>o</sup>uncover their secret parts.”

<sup>18</sup> In that day the Lord will take away the finery:

The jingling anklets, the <sup>6</sup>scarves,
and the <sup>7</sup> crescents;

<sup>19</sup> The pendants, the bracelets, and the veils;

<sup>20</sup> The headdresses, the leg ornaments,
and the headbands;

The perfume boxes, the charms,
and the rings;

<sup>21</sup> The nose jewels,
the festal apparel, and the mantles;

The outer garments, the purses,
and the mirrors;

<sup>22</sup> The fine linen, the turbans, and the robes.

<sup>24</sup> And so it shall be:

Instead of a sweet smell there will be a stench;

Instead of a sash, a rope;
Instead of well-set hair, <sup>9</sup>baldness;

Instead of a rich robe, a girding of sackcloth;

And <sup>7</sup>branding instead of beauty.

<sup>25</sup> Your men shall fall by the sword,
And your <sup>8</sup>mighty in the war.

<sup>26</sup> <sup>r</sup> Her gates shall lament and mourn,
And she being desolate <sup>s</sup>shall sit on the ground.

4 And <sup>a</sup>in that day seven women shall take hold of one man, saying,

3:8, 9 The people’s tongue and look betray their arrogance against God.

3:9 Considered a horribly sinful city (1:9), Sodom had been destroyed by God (Gen. 19). Yet Judeans were parading their defiance against God just like the Sodomites.

3:10-15 This oracle against Judah’s leaders is in three parts: (1) an affirmation that God repays good and evil (vv. 10, 11); (2) an accusation that Israel’s leaders were leading people astray (v. 12); (3) a divine lawsuit against the leaders for exploiting their subjects (vv. 13-15; see 1:23).

3:10 eat the fruit: Compare this idea with 1:19.

3:12 The lamenting words My people (see v. 15) are reminiscent of David’s pain over his erring son Absalom (2 Sam. 18:33).

3:13 to plead: This is a judicial term meaning to plead a case (Mic. 6:1).

3:14 The vineyard represents the nation (5:1-7), used here as a term parallel to the poor. The leaders had taken advantage of the weak in order to plunder them (v. 15).

3:15 Lord God of hosts: See the similar usage in 1:9.

3:16-4:1 This oracle against the vain women of Judah has three parts: (1) an accusation that the women were “haughty” and would be humbled (vv. 16, 17); (2) a list of the pretentious trappings to be done away with (vv. 18-23); (3) a depiction of Jerusalem’s desolation (3:24-4:1).

3:16 The plural daughters of Zion suggests the women of the city as well as a personification of Jerusalem (see 1:8). Mincing probably means “childlike steps.” The prophet shows his scorn for pretense and flagrant display.

3:17 The term secret parts and its parallel head may mean “forehead.”

3:24-26 Rope . . . baldness . . . sackcloth refer to the conditions of the people who are going into exile. Your men refers to the men of Jerusalem. The gates of Zion mourn because its inhabitants have gone into exile for their sins.

4:1 in that day: This phrase connects this verse with the preceding unit (3:16-26). The once-proud women of Jerusalem (3:16-23) would have to beg a man to father their children and take away their reproach—the fact that they have no children. Most of the men of Jerusalem would have died in the process of defending the city (3:25).

“We will <sup>b</sup>eat our own food and wear our own apparel;
Only let us be called by your name,
To take away <sup>c</sup>our reproach.”

The Renewal of Zion

<sup>2</sup> In that day <sup>d</sup>the Branch of the LORD shall be beautiful and glorious;
And the fruit of the earth shall be excellent and appealing
For those of Israel who have escaped.

<sup>4</sup> When <sup>g</sup>the Lord has washed away the filth of the daughters of Zion, and purged the <sup>1</sup>blood of Jerusalem from her midst, by the spirit of judgment and by the spirit of burning, <sup>5</sup>then the LORD will create above every dwelling place of Mount Zion, and above her assemblies, <sup>h</sup>a cloud and smoke by day and <sup>i</sup>the shining of a flaming fire by night. For over all the glory there will be a <sup>2</sup>covering. <sup>6</sup>And there will be a tabernacle for shade in the daytime from the heat, <sup>j</sup>for a place of refuge, and for a shelter from storm and rain.

God's Disappointing Vineyard

And also <sup>2</sup>made a winepress in it;

<sup>b</sup>So He expected it to bring forth good grapes,
But it brought forth wild grapes.

<sup>3</sup> “And now, O inhabitants of Jerusalem and men of Judah, <sup>c</sup>Judge, please, between Me and My vineyard.

<sup>4</sup> What more could have been done to My vineyard
That I have not done <sup>d</sup>it?
Why then, when I expected it to bring forth good grapes,
Did it bring forth wild grapes?

<sup>5</sup> And now, please let Me tell you what I will do to My vineyard:
<sup>e</sup>I will take away its hedge, and it shall be burned;
And break down its wall, and it shall be trampled down.

<sup>6</sup> I will lay it <sup>f</sup>waste;
It shall not be pruned or <sup>3</sup>dug,
But there shall come up briars and <sup>g</sup>thorns.

I will also command the clouds
That they rain no rain on it.”

4:2-6 The prophecy of Zion's restoration has three parts: (1) the Branch of the Lord will be glorious (v. 2); (2) the remnant will be sanctified (vv. 3, 4); (3) the Lord will provide a protective covering over Mt. Zion (vv. 5, 6).

4:2 In that day speaks of the future revelation of the glory of the Lord on the earth (2:2-4). The Branch of the LORD has the double sense of the earth yielding its fruit and of Christ yielding spiritual fruit (1:1-5; Jer. 23:5; Zech. 3:8; John 15:1-8). Because Christ humbled Himself, He will be crowned with glory (49:7; 52:13; 53:12; Phil. 2:9-11). beautiful and glorious: Together the words indicate “dazzling beauty.” The reign of Jesus the King of Creation will be marked by plenty. The earth will be released from its curse, producing all that God intended it to produce in the beginning (Ps. 65).

4:3 recorded: The record of births in Jerusalem (Ps. 87:5, 6) may be related to the heavenly “book” (Ex. 32:32; Ps. 69:28; Dan. 7:10; Rev. 20:12).

4:4 Spirit could mean wind (the hot searing wind of fire), the human spirit, or the Holy Spirit. All three may be intended (11:2; 30:1; 42:1; 48:16; 59:21; 61:1; Luke 3:22). The spirit of judgment . . . burning means “a fiery judgment.” Through the processes of a purging fire, which outwardly consumes the faithless and inwardly purifies the faithful, God will produce a holy city.

4:5 Create is something only God can do; the word also suggests a divine “refashioning.” Cloud and smoke recalls God's protective presence at the Red Sea (Ex. 13:20-22), on the tabernacle (Ex. 40:34-38), and in the wilderness (Num. 9:15-23). Here the phrase symbolizes His protective covering over the restored and sanctified Mt. Zion. The glory of Mt. Zion in the messianic age will be bestowed by God Himself (40:5; 60:2; John 17:10, 22, 24).

4:6 Over the cloud and smoke on each dwelling will be the overshadowing tabernacle, symbolizing God's protection of and communion with His people (Ps. 91:1; Rev. 21:3).

5:1-7 Isaiah's “Song of the Vineyard” is in three parts: (1) an introduction to the allegory (vv. 1, 2); (2) an accusation and sentence (vv. 3-6); (3) an interpretation of the allegory (v. 7; see Ps. 80:8-16).

5:1-3 Judah is likened to a vineyard that has every advantage. Its failure to produce justifies God's judgment (1:2, 3). Well-beloved . . . my Beloved: Isaiah speaks of the Lord in endearing terms.

5:2 The Lord, the true Vinedresser, had done everything possible to make the soil ready to grow fine grapes. The term wild grapes means “stinking things” (v. 4). This result was as unexpected as were the rebellious children of 1:2-4.

5:3 My vineyard: The pronoun indicates God's love and pride over His possession—the nation of Israel. All the more reason for God's disappointment in its infertility.

5:4 What more could have been done: When there is a failure in human relationships, we usually expect that both parties bear part of the responsibility. When it comes to the failed relationship between God and His people, the blame falls solely on the people. The Lord did everything He could—from instructing His people to giving them the Promised Land.

5:5 Please let Me tell you may be translated more forcefully as “Now I will tell you.” God was not asking for permission; He was warning His people.

5:6 Briars and thorns symbolize the anarchy described in 3:4, 5, that will overtake the land after the Exile. clouds: As God had promised in His covenant with Israel on Mt. Sinai, sufficient rainfall would come to the people who were faithful to His commands, but the rain would be withheld if the people were rebellious (Deut. 28:12, 23, 24).

- 7 For the vineyard of the LORD of hosts

And the men of Judah are His

He looked for justice, but behold, oppression;
For righteousness, but behold, <sup>4</sup> a cry

Grapes and Vineyards

Grapes grew plentifully in Palestine and the Hebrews devoted much time to their vineyards. The planting, pruning, and cropping of grapevines was hard work that many people considered to be menial (2 Kin. 25:12). Yet the hill country of Judah offered grapevines a perfect climate. Walled vineyards and watchtowers came to symbolize the land of Judah.

To prepare a hillside for planting a vineyard, a farmer had to clear rocks from the ground and build stone hedges to hold the soil. The vines were planted in rows eight to ten feet apart. By forbidding farmers to gather grapes for the first three years (Lev. 19:23), Mosaic Law guaranteed that the vines would be well-tended in their formative years. After clusters began to form again, pruners cut off twigs having no fruit. Wine was squeezed in September, and the Hebrews celebrated this occasion.

Nor consider the operation of His hands.

- 13 <sup>n</sup> Therefore my people have gone into captivity,
Because they have no <sup>o</sup>knowledge;
Their honorable men are famished,
And their multitude dried up with thirst.
14 Therefore Sheol has enlarged itself
And opened its mouth beyond measure;
Their glory and their multitude and
their pomp,
And he who is jubilant, shall descend into it.
15 People shall be brought down,

5:7 justice . . . oppression: These words have similar sounds in Hebrew, as do the words righteousness and cry for help. Choosing similar sounding words is a common technique of Hebrew poetry.

5:8-30 This prophecy consists of six accusations or “woes” that specify the sins of “the wild grapes” (vv. 2, 4) and the nature of their acts of oppression: greed (v. 8), debauchery (vv. 11, 12), cynical unbelief (vv. 18, 19), perversion (v. 20), arrogance (v. 21), and injustice (vv. 22, 23). To these sins are added prophecies of judgment: desolation (vv. 9, 10), captivity or death for the pompous leaders (vv. 13, 14), and humiliation for all (v. 15). The conquering army is depicted in vv. 26-30.

5:8 Till . . . land: The greedy land barons aimed to control all of the choice land of Israel. God gave the fields, which “shall not be sold permanently, for the land is Mine” (Lev. 25:23) as a patrimony to all His people (Num. 27:7-11). Deprived of these ancestral lands, Israel’s citizens had become day laborers or slaves on what had formerly been their family inheritance.

5:9, 10 While invaders could destroy the mansions, only God could bring the drought implied in this verse. Yet both were judgments from His hand.

5:9 without inhabitant: This phrase is also found in 6:11.

5:10 One bath is about six gallons. A homer is about six bushels. One ephah is one-tenth of a homer. The produce of the land would be extremely meager in the time of divine judgment.

5:11, 12 Greed (v. 8) is closely connected with indulgent, ego-centric living.

5:11 This verse is a strong condemnation of the abuse of intoxicating drink (beer) and wine (v. 22). For a contrasting example of wine used in a positive context of the enjoyment of God’s salvation, see 55:1.

5:12 The harp and the strings: For a similar idea, see Ps. 33:2. Music was played in ancient Israel both in the worship of the Lord and in times of feasting. Wine was also a part of feasting in biblical times (Prov. 9:2; John 2:10). Here their feasts means “their drinking parties.” do not regard . . . consider: The people were oblivious to the reality of the work of God in their midst (Ps. 10:4). The work of the LORD includes justice, entailing punishing the tyrants and saving the oppressed (vv. 24, 25).

5:13 have gone into captivity: Although the verb is in the past tense, here it refers to something still in the future—the Judeans had not yet gone into captivity. Knowledge refers to a personal involvement with someone or something. thirst: The judgment matches the crime of indulging in alcoholic beverages (see vv. 11, 12).

5:14 Sheol is the poetic word for “grave,” which is here compared to a gaping jaw that devours the elite rich and the common masses alike. Sheol is portrayed as a monster in Proverbs (Prov. 1:12; 27:20).

5:15, 16 For the exaltation of the Lord alone, see 2:9, 11, 17. The judgment of the wicked is one demonstration of His exaltation.

5:15 the eyes of the lofty: Proud people get little respect from God (Ps. 147:6).

And the eyes of the lofty shall be humbled.
 16 But the LORD of hosts shall be <sup>q</sup>exalted in judgment, And God who is holy shall be hallowed in righteousness.
 17 Then the lambs shall feed in their pasture, And in the waste places of <sup>r</sup>the <sup>9</sup>fat ones strangers shall eat.
 18 Woe to those who <sup>1</sup>draw iniquity with cords of <sup>2</sup>vanity, And sin as if with a cart rope;
 19 <sup>s</sup>That say, “Let Him make speed and hasten His work, That we may see it;
 And let the counsel of the Holy One of Israel draw near and come, That we may know it.”
 20 Woe to those who call evil good, and good evil; Who put darkness for light, and light for darkness; Who put bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter!
 21 Woe to those who are <sup>t</sup>wise in their own eyes, And prudent in their own sight!
 22 Woe to men mighty at drinking wine, Woe to men valiant for mixing intoxicating drink,
 23 Who <sup>u</sup>justify the wicked for a bribe, And take away justice from the righteous man!
 24 Therefore, <sup>v</sup>as the <sup>3</sup>fire devours the stubble, And the flame consumes the chaff, So <sup>w</sup>their root will be as rotteness, And their blossom will ascend like dust;

5:17 What were formerly mansions surrounded with lush vineyards would become waste places, where lambs and fat ones, those prepared for sacrifice, feed.

5:18, 19 Those who mocked Isaiah's proclamation of the day of the Lord were not simply "falling" into sin; rather, they labored to draw iniquity along, as on a cart.

5:20 call evil good: Those who pervert God's evaluation of what is good by calling evil good are heading down a dangerous path—one that leads to judgment.

5:21 At the root of the moral, social, and theological corruption denounced in this prophecy is being wise in one's own eyes—an insensitive, arrogant egotism.

5:22 mighty at drinking wine: See v. 11 on the abuse of wine. The intoxicating drink was probably beer.

5:23 bribe: The perversion of justice by bribery is a serious evil that undermines society.

5:24 As the vineyard yielding only sour grapes is finally judged, so the wicked will finally be cut off without hope.

5:25 The hills—that seem most permanent—trembled, even as the sea "fled" before the anger of the Lord (see Ps. 114:3, 7). Their carcasses is a grisly image of the defeated foes of God (34:3; 66:24). The Lord's anger is not turned away even after the horrible judgments of vv. 24, 25. His hand: Often in Scripture, "the hand of God" is a symbol of His grace and salvation (Ex. 15:6). How tragic that the same hand is stretched out to punish His people.

5:26 The Assyrian army, which included many mercenaries (Mic. 4:11-13), literally "trampled down" (v. 5) the pleasant land of Israel. whistle: The Lord would control this army of judgment, for He would give them their signal to invade (see 7:18).

5:27-29 The preparations of the Assyrian army were complete; the soldiers were thoroughly ready for war (see 40:30, 31).

5:30 The clouds symbolize judgment.

And the light is darkened by the clouds.

Isaiah Called to Be a Prophet

6 In the year that <sup>a</sup>King Uzziah died, I <sup>b</sup>saw the Lord sitting on a throne, high and lifted up, and the train of His robe filled the temple. <sup>2</sup>Above it stood seraphim; each one had six wings: with two he covered his face, <sup>c</sup>with two he covered his feet, and with two he flew. <sup>3</sup>And one cried to another and said:

<sup>d</sup>“Holy, holy, holy is the LORD of hosts;
“The whole earth is full of His glory!”

<sup>4</sup>And the posts of the door were shaken by the voice of him who cried out, and the house was filled with smoke.

<sup>5</sup>So I said:

“Woe is me, for I am <sup>i</sup>undone!
Because I am a man of <sup>f</sup>unclean lips,

<sup>6</sup> Then one of the seraphim flew to me, having in his hand a live coal which he had taken with the tongs from <sup>g</sup>the altar. <sup>7</sup> And he <sup>h</sup> touched my mouth with it, and said:

“Behold, this has touched your
lips;
Your iniquity is taken away,
And your sin <sup>2</sup>purged.”

<sup>8</sup> Also I heard the voice of the Lord, saying:

“Whom shall I send,
And who will go for <sup>i</sup>Us?”

6:1–13 Isaiah’s call to be a prophet of God consists of five sections: (1) the historical setting (v. 1); (2) Isaiah’s stunning vision of God (vv. 2–4); (3) his new insight into himself (v. 5); (4) his call (vv. 6–8); (5) his commission (vv. 9–13).

6:1 King Uzziah died in 740 B.C., signaling the end of an age. This good king (2 Chr. 26:1–15) would be eventually replaced by wicked Ahaz (7:1); the relative prosperity of the first half of the eighth century would be replaced by the Syro-Ephraimite wars and the Assyrian campaigns into Israel. The throne where the Lord is seated, high and exalted, represents His eternal, sovereign, and universal rule. He is high above all other kings, but at the same time He is concerned about the welfare of His people. Temple means “palace”—the Lord’s throne on earth with its counterpart in heaven.

6:2 The behavior of the seraphim contrasts strongly with the pride of Uzziah (2 Chr. 26:16). All human pride is mocked by the behavior of these angels. They know that in the presence of God there is no room for pomp, no reason for pride.

6:3 Holy, holy, holy: To say the word holy twice in Hebrew is to describe someone as “most holy.” To say the word holy three times intensifies the idea to the highest level. In other words, the holiness of God is indescribable in human language. To be holy means to be different, distant, or transcendent. Thus the song of the seraphim is a constant refrain that the transcendence of God is indescribable. Although the Lord is totally different from us—He is perfect—in His mercy He still reaches down to take care of us. The whole earth is full of His glory: The Hebrew word order is, “The fullness of all the earth is His glory.” We know that the glory of God transcends the universe (Ps. 113:4–6); yet in order to balance the expression of the transcendence of God in the first half of this verse, the words of the second half emphasize God’s closeness to His creation—His involvement with the earth and its people.

6:4 If even the doorposts of the heavenly temple shook in response to God’s holiness, how much more will the whole earth (v. 3) shake when the Lord visits it (Matt. 24:29, 30).

6:5 Confronted with this vision of the Lord, Isaiah realized that he was under judgment—that he was undone. He must have thought that he had come to the end of his life. I am a man of unclean lips: Isaiah knew that he was a sinner. He realized that his lips were the only ones not giving God praise in that setting. a people: Isaiah’s plight is the plight of every person. No one, in his or her present state, is capable of standing before the Holy One (Ps. 24:3). the King, the LORD of hosts: After contemplating the death of Uzziah (v. 1), Isaiah had seen the King who will never die.

6:6 The live coal . . . from the altar symbolizes both the purification of blood and the fire of the Spirit that enabled the prophet to speak. From that point on, his words would be light to his hearers and power to those who would listen. The fact that a coal from the altar was used reminds us that ultimately all sin is forgiven because of a sacrifice. The sacrifices on the temple altar point to the ultimate sacrifice of the Savior Jesus. God sovereignly and graciously forgave Isaiah’s sin.

6:7 Isaiah had a personal Day of Atonement before the Lord (Lev. 23:26–32). taken away: This word alludes to the Israelite practice of symbolically placing the sins of the people on a scapegoat and driving that goat into the wilderness (see Lev. 16). The Hebrew word translated purged means “covered” and is the same word that is translated atonement. The word refers to the process of killing an animal and sprinkling the blood on the altar for atonement.

6:8 At times, the prophets would be invited to participate in the heavenly court (see 1 Kin. 22:19–22; Jer. 23:18, 22). Here the Lord uses the pronoun Us to mean Himself and His angels (see Gen. 3:22; 11:7). Send me: In ancient Middle Eastern religions only divine beings are sent as messengers of the gods. Yet the God of Scripture uses human beings as a matter of course. Only at certain times does He use angels in a direct way to reveal His will to humankind. Isaiah’s willingness proceeded from a grateful heart; he wanted to serve the God who had forgiven him (v. 7).

seraphim (Heb. saraphim) (6:2, 6) Strong’s #8314: This noun is probably related to the verb saraph, which means “to burn with fire.” These angelic creatures belong to the heavenly host and are only mentioned twice in Scripture—both times in ch. 6. Apparently these beings conduct the worship of God in heaven and are different from the cherubim, who are described in Rev. 4:6–8 as surrounding God’s throne instead of standing above it, as described here (6:2). The relation of their name to burning may be due to their flaming appearance (similar to the fiery serpents of Num. 21:6; Deut. 8:15). But their name probably relates to their role in purification. Fire is a symbol for purity; appropriately one of these fiery beings purified Isaiah’s lips with a live coal (6:6).

Then I said, “Here am I! Send me.”

<sup>9</sup> And He said, “Go, and <sup>j</sup> tell this people:

‘Keep on hearing, but do not understand;
Keep on seeing, but do not perceive.’

<sup>10</sup> “Make <sup>k</sup> the heart of this people dull,
And their ears heavy,
And shut their eyes;
<sup>l</sup> Lest they see with their eyes,
And hear with their ears,
And understand with their heart,
And return and be healed.”

<sup>11</sup> Then I said, “Lord, how long?”
And He answered:

<sup>m</sup> “Until the cities are laid waste and without inhabitant,
The houses are without a man,
The land is utterly desolate,

Isaiah Sent to King Ahaz

7 Now it came to pass in the days of <sup>a</sup> Ahaz the son of Jotham, the son of Uzziah, king of Judah, that Rezin king of Syria and Pekah the son of Remaliah, king of Israel, went up to Jerusalem to make war against <sup>b</sup> it, but could not <sup>l</sup> prevail against it. <sup>2</sup> And it was told to the house of David, saying, “Syria’s forces are <sup>2</sup> deployed in Ephraim.” So his heart and the heart of his people were moved as the trees of the woods are moved with the wind.

Nor shall it come to pass.

6:9, 10 Paradoxically, Isaiah’s preaching to the religious and arrogant people who keep on hearing was destined to make . . . their ears heavy (42:20). Only the humble would understand the Lord’s message. The more the prophet would proclaim the word of God, the less response he would get from the people. This was a call to a very discouraging ministry. In truth, the call of God is for faithfulness to Him, to His word, and to the call itself.

6:11 Understandably, Isaiah’s third expression to the Lord (compare vv. 5, 8) was one of incredulity. He wondered how long the people would continue to be unresponsive to his words of truth from God.

6:11, 12 The answer was grim. waste . . . desolate: These words describe the coming judgment of God on Judah that would lead to the nation’s captivity under the Babylonians. Removed men . . . forsaken places describe the desolation that would follow the conquest by Babylon.

6:13 But . . . consuming: After the coming Babylonian invasion, the part of the land and the people who remained would be scorched again (5:25). This describes the return from the Exile and the subsequent troubles of Judah in the land. A tenth is one of Isaiah’s expressions for the “remnant”; it is only a small percentage of the Israelites. From Israel’s blasted stump, God would produce a holy seed (11:1), for He cannot deny the nation He has chosen (2 Tim. 2:13). An immediate fulfillment of this prophecy occurred in Isaiah’s time: King Hezekiah repented and showed himself to be part of the holy seed (see ch. 38). Ultimately, the holy seed would issue in the Beautiful Branch (11:1). This is the promise of the Savior Jesus.

7:1–12:6 This major section of Isaiah contains a series of prophecies related specifically to the Syro-Ephraimite wars—the invasion of Judah by Rezin and Pekah. These prophecies aimed to call Judah back to faith in God.

7:1 This is an editorial heading to 7:2–12:6 (see 2 Kin. 16:5). The Book of Isaiah was written over the period of the prophet’s lifetime; but chs. 7–12 were set in the context of the Syro-Ephraimite wars. Syria is the later name for the ancient nation of Aram.

7:2–8:10 This section consists of five prophecies (7:2–9, 10–17, 18–25; 8:1–4, 5–10) predicting both Judah’s deliverance from the kings of Syria and Israel and its devastation (short of annihilation) at the hand of the Assyrian king.

7:2 The phrase house of David is a substitute term for the king of Judah, Ahaz. This phrase recalls the Lord’s eternal covenant with David in which He promised to give to His servant an eternal seed, throne, and kingdom (see 2 Sam. 7:16; Ps. 89:19–37). The word Ephraim represents the northern kingdom, Israel. The heart of the nation was moved because Syria had defeated Ahaz earlier (2 Chr. 28:5).

7:3 Shear-Jashub means “A Remnant Will Return.” The name of Isaiah’s son spoke of a coming Exile and then the salvation of the remaining faithful. All this would occur long after Isaiah’s lifetime. Ahaz was probably standing at the aqueduct at the time of this encounter, seeking to secure Jerusalem’s supply of water in case of the siege (2 Chr. 32:30).

7:4 God contemptuously dismissed the arrogant kings of Israel and Syria. What Ahaz greatly feared, God considered merely stubs of smoking firebrands drawn from a bonfire. The son of Remaliah is Pekah, king of Israel (see v. 1).

7:5, 6 The plotting of Syria and Ephraim was no secret to God, who made it known to His servant Isaiah. Tabel means “Good for Nothing.” Syria and Israel wanted to place an incompetent puppet king over Judah.

7:7, 8 It shall not stand: The plans of humankind are futile when they oppose the will of God. Within sixty-five years

The Immanuel Prophecy

<sup>10</sup> Moreover the LORD spoke again to Ahaz, saying, <sup>11g</sup> “Ask a sign for yourself from the LORD your God; <sup>8</sup> ask it either in the depth or in the height above.”

<sup>12</sup> But Ahaz said, “I will not ask, nor will I test the LORD!”

<sup>13</sup> Then he said, “Hear now, O house of David! Is it a small thing for you to weary men, but will you weary my God also?”

<sup>14</sup> Therefore the Lord Himself will give you a sign: <sup>h</sup> Behold, the virgin shall conceive and bear <sup>i</sup> a Son, and shall call His name <sup>j</sup> Immanuel. <sup>9</sup> <sup>15</sup> Curds and honey
He shall eat, that He may know to refuse the evil and choose the good. <sup>16k</sup> For before the Child shall know to refuse the suggests that one must believe that God will fulfill His promises even beyond the time of one's own death.

7:9 You is plural. The prophet was speaking to the royal family and the nation. Believe and established are a play on the same Hebrew word from which we get our word amen. Believing entails having knowledge of God's Word, accepting that it is true, and placing our trust in the Lord to help us keep it. Believing the Lord is the key to receiving His promises (John 14:1).

7:10 While Isaiah's prophecy was principally addressed to King Ahaz, it was directed to others in v. 13.

7:11 The sign pertains to the prediction in vv. 7–9, the demise of the power of Samaria. In the depth or in the height indicates that Ahaz could ask for any sign he wished.

7:12 not ask . . . test: In the mouth of the wicked Ahaz, these arrogant words rang hollow.

7:13 The pronoun you is plural here (see also v. 14). Thus in this verse, Isaiah is speaking to the entire royal line of David. weary: God responded to Ahaz in indignation. This petty and arrogant king dared to refuse the Lord; he would not trust in God even when his enemies surrounded him (see v. 12).

7:14 Again you is plural here. Isaiah turns from the king whom he has dismissed in judgment and addresses all who are present. The sign is for many. The word Lord speaks of the sovereignty of God, of His great control over all His creation. The pronoun Himself adds an absolute certainty to the impending sign. The Hebrew word rendered virgin means “a young woman of marriageable age.” But the word also connotes the idea of virginity, for the Septuagint, the Greek translation of the Hebrew Bible made in the second century B.C., translates the Hebrew word with a Greek word that specifically means “virgin.”

7:15 Curds and honey contrast with “bread and wine” from cultivated lands and symbolically represent the Judean's simple diet after the Assyrian invasion. Thus the Child, similar to Isaiah's son Shear-jashub (see v. 3), would be identified with the remnant.

7:16 For before: Similar prophecies were spoken of the Child's birth and Isaiah's other son Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz (8:3): Israel and Syria would be destroyed before this child and Isaiah's son would reach maturity (see 8:4 where Syria is referred to as Damascus and Israel as Samaria).

Immanuel “Behold, the virgin shall conceive and bear a Son, and shall call His name Immanuel.” During the Christmas season, this verse becomes a part of our common vocabulary (7:14). Most Christmas pageants recite the verse, and pastors explain the meaning of Immanuel, “God with Us.” How the prophecy was fulfilled in the birth of Christ is recorded in the Gospel of Matthew (Matt. 1:23). But there are still questions that surround this prophecy. For instance, how could the birth of Jesus be a sign to Ahaz?

Sometimes unraveling biblical prophecy can be difficult. This is one of those cases; Christians have interpreted this prophecy in several different ways. Some have thought the anonymous “virgin” may refer to a royal mother—more specifically Ahaz's wife. Thus the child would be Hezekiah, Ahaz's successor. Hezekiah would be a sign to Ahaz that God was in control: The Lord was with Ahaz; He would save Judah from the enemies that surrounded Ahaz, enabling his son to inherit the throne (Is. 7:1–3). Yet the reference to the child eating “curds and honey” was a prediction of Assyria's eventual domination of Judah.

Others have identified Isaiah's wife, “the prophetess” of 8:3, as the “virgin.” She was a young woman of marriageable age, another meaning of the Hebrew word translated virgin. The child in this case would be Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz. According to this view, the child's two names, Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz meaning “Speed the Spoil, Hasten the Booty,” and Immanuel meaning “God with Us,” symbolize judgment and salvation. In fact, Isaiah himself described his children as “signs” to the nation (see 8:18), and he delivered a similar prophecy for this son (compare 7:16 with 8:4).

Some cite the parallel between the prophecy that a “virgin shall conceive” and Jesus' miraculous birth as evidence that this prophecy was fulfilled only in Jesus. Mary was the virgin mother; and the birth of Jesus was the sign of God's salvation. His name would be Immanuel, “God with Us,” because Jesus was the Son of God and He lived among us (Matt. 1:23). According to this view, Isaiah's prophecy had no fulfillment prior to Jesus' birth (Matt. 1:18–25).

It is not uncommon for biblical prophecies to have one level of fulfillment in the immediate future, and a final fulfillment many years later in the person and work of the Savior, Jesus. Thus the pregnancy of Isaiah's new wife and the birth of her son (Is. 8:3) could have been a sign to King Ahaz. However, this would have been a fulfillment, not the fulfillment. The prophecy was completely fulfilled in the coming of God's only Son to the earth. He is the only Child who can truly be called Wonderful, Counselor, and Prince of Peace (see 9:6).

<sup>23</sup> It shall happen in that day, That wherever there could be a thousand vines Worth a thousand shekels of silver, <sup>s</sup>It will be for briars and thorns.

<sup>24</sup> With arrows and bows men will come there, Because all the land will become briars and thorns.

<sup>25</sup> And to any hill which could be dug with the hoe, You will not go there for fear of briars and thorns; But it will become a range for oxen And a place for sheep to roam.

Assyria Will Invade the Land

8 Moreover the LORD said to me, “Take a large scroll, and <sup>a</sup>write on it with a man’s pen concerning <sup>1</sup>Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz. <sup>2</sup>And I will take for Myself faithful witnesses to record, <sup>b</sup>Uriah the priest and Zechariah the son of Jeberechiah.”

7:18 The invading hordes are likened to swarming insects—the fly and the bee—blanketing Judah, a condition fulfilled in the Assyrian invasions.

7:20 shave . . . the hair: This was a symbol of humiliation. Hired refers to Ahaz’s foolish idea of paying Assyria to save him from the alliance of Syria and Israel.

7:21, 22 in that day: This phrase can indicate times of trouble as here, or periods of blessing (as in 2:2). A young cow and two sheep out of what used to be a large herd indicates impoverishment in the time of trouble. The land would be so depopulated and impoverished that the limited fare of curds and honey (v. 15) would look like an abundance.

7:23–25 vines . . . thorns: The productivity of the land would be greatly reduced in the period of God’s judgment. The repetition of briars and thorns in vv. 23–25 is emphatic; in other words, the land would no longer be cultivated.

8:1 large scroll: This message from the Lord was intended to be read and pondered by many people.

8:2 Just as the wicked Ahaz was forced to be a party to the sign regarding the birth of Immanuel (see 7:10–17), Uriah, an apostate priest (2 Kin. 16:10–16), and Zechariah, presumably a false prophet (not to be confused with the prophet who wrote the Book of Zechariah), were forced to witness to this prophecy.

The Region of the Dead Sea Scrolls

In 1947 a shepherd looking for a stray goat in a cave near Qumran stumbled upon some clay jars containing ancient scrolls. Although these scrolls were all from the first century A.D. or before, the hot and dry climate of the Dead Sea region had preserved them remarkably well. One of the most significant scrolls in the discovery was a complete copy of the Book of Isaiah. Its contents amply confirm the authenticity of later manuscripts. Later searches of the Dead Sea region led to discoveries of scrolls containing the Minor Prophets, near En Gedi, and other biblical fragments in the Murabba'at caves.

<sup>3</sup>Then I went to the prophetess, and she conceived and bore a son. Then the LORD said to me, “Call his name Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz; <sup>4</sup>for before the child <sup>2</sup>shall have knowledge to cry ‘My father’ and ‘My mother;’ <sup>d</sup>the riches of Damascus and the <sup>3</sup>spoil of Samaria will be taken away before the king of Assyria.”

<sup>5</sup>The LORD also spoke to me again, saying:

- <sup>6</sup> “Inasmuch as these people refused
The waters of <sup>c</sup>Shiloah that flow softly,
And rejoice <sup>f</sup>in Rezin and in Remaliah’s son;
<sup>7</sup> Now therefore, behold, the Lord brings up over them
The waters of <sup>d</sup>the River, strong and mighty—
The king of Assyria and all his glory;
He will <sup>5</sup>go up over all his channels
And go over all his banks.
<sup>8</sup> He will pass through Judah,
He will overflow and pass over,
<sup>g</sup>He will reach up to the neck;
And the stretching out of his wings
Will <sup>6</sup>fill the breadth of Your land,

Fear God, Heed His Word

<sup>11</sup>For the LORD spoke thus to me with <sup>9</sup>a strong hand, and instructed me that I should not walk in the way of this people, saying:

- <sup>12</sup> “Do not say, ‘A conspiracy,’
Concerning all that this people call a conspiracy,
Nor be afraid of their <sup>1</sup>threats, nor be <sup>2</sup>troubled.
<sup>13</sup> The LORD of hosts, Him you shall hallow;
Let Him be your fear,
And let Him be your dread.
<sup>14</sup> <sup>m</sup>He will be as a <sup>3</sup>sanctuary,
But <sup>n</sup>a stone of stumbling and a rock of <sup>4</sup>offense
To both the houses of Israel,
As a trap and a snare to the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

8:3 Isaiah’s wife was a prophetess in her own right. It is possible that this was a new wife, following the death of the mother of Shear-Jashub (7:3).

8:4 spoil of Samaria . . . king of Assyria: This is a specific prediction of the fall of Samaria to the Assyrians in 722 B.C. This prophecy has to have been written shortly before that time, as the fulfillment would come before the new child would be able to speak.

8:5 The LORD also spoke to me again: This phrase introduces a new prophetic section and reminds the reader of the source of the prophetic images in the Book of Isaiah.

8:6 These people is “this people” in Hebrew, the same construction as in v. 11. The gentle waters of Shiloah picture the sustaining presence of the Lord; He had quietly supplied the Israelites their needs, such as pure water. Shiloah may have been a little stream that flowed through an aqueduct (7:3) to carry the water from the spring Gihon on Jerusalem’s east side (2 Chr. 32:30) to the Pool of Siloam (Neh. 3:15) in the lower or southern end of the city. rejoice: The Judeans rejoiced because they thought they were going to defeat the kings of Israel and Syria through Ahaz’s strategy of hiring the armies of Assyria. They looked for the salvation that a mere king could offer instead of appealing to the King of kings for protection.

8:7, 8 The River refers to the Euphrates, but also conveys the image of pagan gods. neck: Assyria would devastate Judah, but not completely annihilate it (ch. 37). wings: In the middle of v. 8 the image of Assyria as mighty waters changes to the image of a bird of prey. Isaiah bestows the name of the promised Child, Immanuel (7:14), on Judah, because it would be preserved only because God was with that nation (see v. 10).

8:9 Far countries refers to the many nations that made up

Assyria’s international army (5:26; 7:18). Gird yourselves . . . be broken: The nations would do the will of God, but in turn would be destroyed.

8:10 It will not stand: The Lord would defeat the purposes of Judah’s enemies; all their counsels would come to nothing. This promise concludes the prophecies of 7:1–8:10. The Child whose name would mean God is with us (v. 8; 7:14), was a sign not only of the destruction of Syria and Israel (7:17), but of all of God’s enemies, including Assyria.

8:11–9:1 After an introductory summary (v. 11), this prophecy consists of two cycles: (1) Judah is commanded to trust in the Lord or perish, a command reinforced by Isaiah and his children, who serve as signs to Judah (vv. 12–18). (2) Judah is commanded to walk in the light of Isaiah’s prophecies or be thrown into utter darkness (8:19–9:1).

8:11 Strong hand signifies a powerful sense of the Lord’s inspiration (Ezek. 1:3).

8:12 Do not say: The commands in vv. 12, 13, 15, 19 are in the plural. Perhaps Isaiah’s adversaries were labeling his rejection of an alliance with Assyria a conspiracy.

8:13 Hallow means to treat as holy. Your fear indicates a sense of reverence, awe, and wonder. Your dread indicates fright and terror. If the people want to be frightened, they should be frightened of God. If they want to respond to God correctly, they should treat His name with awe and fear Him (Ex. 20:20).

8:14 God is a sanctuary for believers, but a stone of stumbling for unbelievers (Ps. 118:22; Luke 20:17, 18; Rom. 9:33; 1 Pet. 2:6–8). Both the houses designates both the northern and the southern kingdom, that is, both Israel and Judah.

8:15 stumble . . . broken: The wicked will not prevail for long (v. 10).

They shall fall and be broken,
Be snared and <sup>5</sup> taken.”

- <sup>16</sup> Bind up the testimony,
Seal the law among my disciples.
<sup>17</sup> And I will wait on the LORD,
Who <sup>16</sup> hides His face from the house of Jacob;
And I <sup>17</sup> will hope in Him.
<sup>18</sup> Here am I and the children whom the LORD has given me!

If they do not speak according to this word, it is because <sup>20</sup> there <sup>20</sup> is no light in them.

<sup>21</sup> They will pass through it hard-pressed and hungry; and it shall happen, when they are hungry, that they will be enraged and <sup>21</sup> curse <sup>21</sup> their king and their God, and look upward. <sup>22</sup> Then they will look to the earth, and see trouble and darkness, gloom of anguish; and they will be driven into darkness.

8:16 Testimony refers to a legal transaction. Law refers to God's instruction revealed through Isaiah. Isaiah's disciples put his prophecies in the form of a legal transaction probably to prove their authenticity when they were fulfilled (see vv. 1, 2; compare Jer. 28:9; 32:12–14).

8:17 wait . . . hope: These words indicate a confident expectation that God would meet the needs of His people and deliver them from disaster (40:31; Ps. 40:1). Ultimately, the hope of Isaiah would be fulfilled in the Savior Jesus (Heb. 2:12, 13).

8:18 children: Isaiah, whose name speaks of the salvation of God, and his two sons, whose names speak of the impending judgment of God, were signs and wonders in Israel—that is, they were symbols (20:3). Mount Zion: The place of the holy temple was a mirror of God's dwelling in the highest heaven.

8:19 In the fertility religions of Canaan mediums and wizards would deliver divine revelations. who whisper and mutter: But the best one could get from these perverted “prophets” was garbled muttering. Seek the dead indicates that the people were involved in necromancy, the practice of conjuring up the spirits of the dead in order to influence events (29:4; 65:4).

8:21 They refers to the wicked who refuse to revere God (v. 13). It refers perhaps to the implied darkness of v. 20. curse: For similar usage, see Ex. 22:28; Lev. 24:15, 16.

8:22 The prophets commonly used the imagery of darkness to indicate judgment (5:30). The synonyms for darkness in this verse describe not only moral and spiritual blight, but also the invasion of Assyria that took away liberty and brought foreign oppression.

9:1 Nevertheless the gloom: This line completes the thought of 8:22 and promises a dramatic change to come. That change would be the explosion of light found in the Good News: Jesus can free us from the darkness that comes from our sin (see Eph. 5:8). The ancient tribal allotments of Zebulun and Naphtali (Josh. 19:10–16, 32–39), which included Galilee, were the first to feel the brunt of the Assyrian invasions (2 Kin. 15:29). The three phrases at the end of the verse—the way of the sea, beyond the Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles or “nations”—indicate administrative districts of the Assyrian conqueror Tiglath-Pileser III as a result of the three campaigns he waged in the west around 733 B.C.

9:2–7 This seventh prophecy in the context of the Syro-Ephraimite war is climactic: An ideal monarch will come who will bring an end to war and usher in universal peace. The light that will replace the darkness of Assyrian oppression will be a Child, God incarnate (7:14). His four compounded throne names (v. 6) depict His divine-human nature as well as His universal program of salvation.

9:2 Have seen: The future event is described by the prophet, under the impulse of the Spirit, as having already occurred. Light stands for God's blessings, presence, and revelation (2:5), that is incarnate in Jesus (58:8; 59:9; 60:1, 2, 19, 20; John 8:12). Shadow of death means “deep darkness” (compare 60:2; Ps. 23:4). Here this Hebrew word complements the more commonly used word for darkness.

9:3 joy of harvest . . . divide the spoil: The agricultural society knows no greater joy than that of harvest. A soldier knows no greater joy than that of a finished battle when his side has won, he is still alive, and there is now booty to divide. Contrast the joy of harvest in this verse with the lack of joy at harvest in 16:10.

9:4 yoke . . . staff . . . rod: These three images of oppression emphasize the suffering of the people during the period of foreign domination. The pronoun his refers to Assyria, which boasted of the heavy yokes it imposed on its captive peoples (10:27). The day of Midian refers to the defeat of Midian (10:26; Judg. 6–8).

9:5 warrior's sandal: Assyrian armies were marked by the noise of the marching of many feet. Garments rolled in blood

 Unto us a <sup>i</sup> Son is given;
 And <sup>j</sup> the government will be upon
 His shoulder.
 And His name will be called
<sup>k</sup> Wonderful, Counselor, <sup>l</sup> Mighty God, Everlasting Father, <sup>m</sup> Prince of Peace.

<sup>7</sup> Of the increase of His government

The Punishment of Samaria

<sup>8</sup> The Lord sent a word against <sup>p</sup> Jacob,
 And it has fallen on Israel.

For all this His anger is not turned

 But His hand is <sup>q</sup> stretched out still.

<sup>13</sup> For the people do not turn to Him

 Nor do they seek the LORD of hosts.

 Nor have mercy on their fatherless

 And every mouth speaks <sup>t</sup> folly.

<sup>18</sup> For wickedness <sup>u</sup> burns as the fire;
 It shall devour the briars and thorns, from past battles was a deliberate scare tactic to frighten enemies in an impending battle. All of these emblems of warfare were to be burned in the coming day of the reign of the divine Child (v. 6).

9:6 Born speaks of the Child’s humanity and given of His deity. Wonderful, Counselor is one name, meaning “wonderful divine Counselor” (11:1–5). Mighty God indicates that the Lord is a powerful Warrior (10:21). Everlasting Father describes a King and Father who provides for and protects His people forever (40:9–11; Matt. 11:27–30). Thus the word Father is used here of the Savior’s role as an ideal king. Prince of Peace is the climactic title (2:4; 11:6–9; 53:5; Luke 2:14; Rom. 5:1). The Child is the true Prince—the one who has the right to reign and who will usher in peace. The four double names combine aspects of Jesus’ deity and His humanity. Together, these four double names assert the dual nature of the Savior: He is God become man.

9:7 Of the increase may be translated “to Him will increase.” Government and peace may be rephrased as “peaceful reign.” The risen Lord Jesus brings His rule of peace to the believer’s heart in the present age. Moreover, He will establish the kingdom of God which will be His reign of peace. The fact that this coming Child will occupy the throne of David forever fulfills God’s promise to David (2 Sam. 7:8–16; Ps. 89:19–37; Luke 1:32, 33).

9:8–10:4 This passage contains a judgment against the northern kingdom: the Lord will destroy it and its capital Samaria. The accusations and judicial sentences in this section indicate that the Lord is both Judge and Punisher (9:11, 14, 19; 10:4).

9:10 Bricks refers to the mud brick walls common in ancient Israel. The people were planning to make their buildings more grandiose, not taking into account the fact that the Lord was about to destroy the buildings completely because of His judgment on their sins.

9:11 The adversaries refers to the Assyrians who were used by the Lord to punish the northern kingdom.

9:12 The Syrians were to the east of Israel and the Philistines to the west.

9:13 Turn indicates repentance and a desire for restoration.

9:14 Head and tail is a figure of speech for all leaders.

9:16 cause them to err: For a similar usage, see 3:12.

9:17 Young men . . . widows denotes every person. Everyone had turned from the faithful worship of God. All of Israel had been contaminated with evil, hypocrisy, and foolishness (see 1 Cor. 5:6 for an exhortation not to let wickedness corrupt the church).

9:18, 19 The fire of wickedness is matched by the fire of the wrath of the Lord.

9:18 Wickedness refers both to the sin itself and to its destructive consequences.

And kindle in the thickets of the forest;
They shall mount up like rising smoke.

19 Through the wrath of the LORD of hosts

<sup>19</sup>The land is burned up,
And the people shall be as fuel for the fire;

<sup>20</sup>No man shall spare his brother.

20 And he shall <sup>6</sup>snatch on the right hand

And be hungry;
He shall devour on the left hand

<sup>3</sup>And not be satisfied;

<sup>9</sup>Every man shall eat the flesh of his own arm.

21 Manasseh shall devour Ephraim, and Ephraim Manasseh;
Together they shall be <sup>2</sup>against Judah.

<sup>4</sup>For all this His anger is not turned away,

But His hand is stretched out still.

10 “Woe to those who <sup>a</sup>decree unrighteous decrees,

6 I will send him against <sup>h</sup>an ungodly nation,

And against the people of My wrath I will <sup>1</sup>give him charge,

To seize the spoil, to take the prey,
And to tread them down like the mire of the streets.

7 <sup>j</sup>Yet he does not mean so,
Nor does his heart think so;

But it is in his heart to destroy,
And cut off not a few nations.

8 <sup>k</sup>For he says,
‘Are not my princes altogether kings?’

9 Is not <sup>1</sup>Calno <sup>m</sup>like Carchemish?
Is not Hamath like Arpad?

Is not Samaria <sup>n</sup>like Damascus?

10 As my hand has found the kingdoms of the idols,

Whose carved images excelled those of Jerusalem and Samaria,

11 As I have done to Samaria and her idols,

Shall I not do also to Jerusalem and her idols?”

9:19, 20 No man shall spare his brother refers to anarchy (3:4, 5). right hand . . . left hand: These figures of speech indicate an insatiable hunger and the consequent ruin that would occur in the day of judgment.

9:21 Manasseh fought Ephraim (see Judg. 12:4); then together they fought Judah (but see 11:13).

10:1 Woe is a chilling word when spoken by God (5:8–23; 10:5; 18:1); here the Lord condemns the leaders who write laws that perpetuate evil in the community.

10:2 The needy are regularly seen in Scripture as those to whom the righteous should show true piety. When godly people reach out to help those who cannot help themselves, they display pure, biblical religion (James 1:27). Conversely, the mark of the ungodly can be seen in their oppressive actions against people who cannot help themselves. They set themselves up for the sure judgment of God (v. 3).

10:3 From afar refers to Assyria. To whom: The wicked could not turn to God, for they had refused to do so before and had ignored God’s warnings (see 8:6).

10:4 Prisoners refers to the Israelites being led away into exile.

10:5–34 This salvation oracle has two major sections: (1) Assyria’s doom (vv. 5–19); (2) the remnant’s salvation (vv. 20–34).

10:5 And . . . indignation may also be translated “even the staff in My indignant hand.” rod of My anger: Though God sovereignly uses sinners as instruments of His will (7:17; 13:5), they will be held accountable for their own wickedness. Thus God shows that He is just in all His ways (Hab. 1—3).

10:6 The ungodly nation is Judah (vv. 11, 12).

10:7 in his heart: The purpose of the arrogant Assyrians was to continue their path of uninterrupted conquest. But God had different plans for them (see v. 12).

10:9 Calno . . . Damascus: This is a list of cities that had already fallen to the Assyrians.

10:10, 11 idols . . . images: The Assyrians had conquered the nations who had false gods; surely, they believed, they would also have an easy time against Jerusalem and her idols. Although only the living God was to be worshiped by the Israelites, they had repeatedly broken that command (Ex. 20:4–6; Judg. 2:19).

10:12 The fruit is the king’s speech cited in vv. 13, 14. arrogant heart . . . haughty looks: For a similar idea, see 2:11; 3:9; 9:9.

arrogant heart of the king of Assyria, and the glory of his haughty looks.”

<sup>13</sup> <sup>d</sup>For he says:

“By the strength of my hand I have done it,
And by my wisdom, for I am prudent;
Also I have removed the boundaries of the people,
And have robbed their treasures;
So I have put down the inhabitants like a <sup>3</sup>valiant man.

<sup>14</sup> <sup>r</sup>My hand has found like a nest the riches of the people,
And as one gathers eggs that are left, I have gathered all the earth;
And there was no one who moved his wing,
Nor opened his mouth with even a peep.”

<sup>15</sup> Shall <sup>s</sup>the ax boast itself against him who chops with it?
Or shall the saw exalt itself against him who saws with it?
As if a rod could wield itself against those who lift it up,
Or as if a staff could lift up, as if it were not wood!

<sup>16</sup> Therefore the Lord, the <sup>4</sup>Lord of hosts,
Will send leanness among his fat ones;
And under his glory
He will kindle a burning
Like the burning of a fire.

<sup>17</sup> So the Light of Israel will be for a fire,
And his Holy One for a flame;

The Returning Remnant of Israel

<sup>20</sup> And it shall come to pass in that day

That the remnant of Israel,
And such as have escaped of the house of Jacob,

<sup>v</sup> Will never again depend on him who <sup>5</sup>defeated them,

But will depend on the LORD, the Holy One of Israel, in truth.

<sup>21</sup> The remnant will return, the remnant of Jacob,

To the <sup>w</sup>Mighty God.

<sup>22</sup> <sup>x</sup> For though your people, O Israel, be as the sand of the sea,

<sup>y</sup> A remnant of them will return;
The destruction decreed shall overflow with righteousness.

<sup>23</sup> <sup>z</sup> For the Lord God of hosts
Will make a determined end
In the midst of all the land.

10:13 By the strength of my hand: The wicked are quick to take credit for their successes. The righteous correctly give praise to God for their accomplishments.

10:15 An implement in the hand of its user has no reason for boasting; Assyria was merely a tool in the hand of God. It had no reason to boast.

10:16 leanness . . . burning: These words describe the coming judgment of the Assyrians, who had become fat because of their acts of conquest.

10:17, 18 The Light of Israel is a wonderful title for God (see 9:2; 58:8; 60:1, 19, 20). The Lord Jesus is described as a “Light” of Israel as well (see John 1:1–13). His thorns . . . his forest refers to all persons and possessions in the Assyrian Empire. What people count as honorable or despicable will mean little before God’s burning judgment.

10:20 The remnant is the portion of Abraham’s offspring that God preserved. The Hebrew word used here for remnant is different from the words used in 1:9; 6:13. depend: Finally there will be a people whose trust will be unchangeably in the Lord.

10:22 as the sand . . . A remnant: Most of the people of the northern kingdom were carried off into captivity. But some Israelites made their way to Judah and became part of the southern kingdom. These people and their descendants would act as a remnant by preserving the names of the northern tribes among the people of God.

10:24 Lord God of hosts: For a similar usage, see 1:9. O My people: The language here expresses the loving care of the Lord for His people. They need not fear the armies of the Assyrians.

hosts (Heb. tseba’ot) (10:16; Gen. 2:1; Ps. 103:21; 148:2) Strong’s #6635: This word comes from a verb meaning “to fight” or “to serve.” Angels are said to be hosts because they serve God (1 Kin. 22:19; Ps. 103:20, 21; compare Luke 2:13). The heavens are under the command of God and render Him worship, thus they are also called host (45:12; Neh. 9:6; Ps. 33:6). The term also commonly refers to combat troops (2 Kin. 5:1; 1 Chr. 7:11, 40). “The armies of the LORD” is an expression used once for the children of Israel, and twice for God’s army of angels (Ex. 12:41; Josh. 5:14, 15). Of the nearly five hundred uses of this word, almost three hundred are in an expression such as “the LORD of hosts” (1 Sam. 17:45), a title describing God’s power. On two occasions, the NT writers transliterated this Hebrew title as “the Lord of Sabaoth” to describe the awesome might of God (see Rom. 9:29; James 5:4).

<sup>27</sup> It shall come to pass in that day
That his burden will be taken away from your shoulder,
And his yoke from your neck,
And the yoke will be destroyed
because of <sup>g</sup> the anointing oil.

The Reign of Jesse's Offspring

11 There <sup>a</sup> shall come forth a <sup>1</sup> Rod from the <sup>2</sup> stem of <sup>b</sup> Jesse,
And <sup>c</sup> a Branch shall <sup>3</sup> grow out of his roots.

And He shall not judge by the sight of His eyes,
Nor decide by the hearing of His

<sup>4</sup> But <sup>e</sup> with righteousness He shall judge the poor,
And decide with equity for the meek
of the earth;
He shall <sup>f</sup> strike the earth with the rod of His mouth,

10:25 a very little while: From the viewpoint of eternity, the period of trial is exceedingly brief.

10:26 On the sea refers to God's great triumph over Pharaoh at the Exodus (Ex. 14; 15).

10:27 in that day: For a similar idea, see 2:12. The meaning of anointing oil here is uncertain. If it means “fat,” the image may be of a strong, fattened ox breaking its yoke.

10:28–32 These verses depict Isaiah's vision of the king of Assyria's relentless march south over difficult terrain from Aiath—that is, Ai. Ai was ten miles north of Jerusalem on a point overlooking the city.

10:28, 29 The cities as listed in these verses are closer and closer to the capital at Jerusalem. Each town conquered was another step toward the impending defeat of the holy city.

10:30, 31 Lift up your voice: The language turns to that of panic. The actions are those of a frightened people facing defeat and disaster.

10:32 daughter of Zion: The army was near Jerusalem itself. The pronoun he refers to Assyria, the enemy.

10:33, 34 The bough is the king of Assyria and the thickets are his army. The point is that God will bring judgment on the instruments He used to judge Israel.

11:1–9 This celebrated salvation oracle about the King of Peace (4:2; 7:14; 9:6) consists of three sections: (1) His endowment (vv. 1, 2); (2) His righteous rule (vv. 3–5); (3) His kingdom of peace (vv. 6–9).

11:1 A Rod from the stem of Jesse (see 1 Sam. 16:10–13) represents the new and greater David. As David inaugurated a kingdom of righteousness and peace, the new David, the “rod” or “root” from David's line (53:2), will establish an incomparably greater kingdom. The words Rod and Branch are messianic terms. They are figurative words for the great descendant of the household of David, the Seed of the woman promised in Gen. 3:15, Jesus Christ Himself (see Matt. 1:17).

11:2 Spirit: As in the case of David (1 Sam. 16:13), the Messiah would be empowered by the Holy Spirit (4:4; 42:1; 48:16; 59:21; 61:1; Luke 3:22), the Agent for establishing God's kingdom (Gen. 1:1, 2; Judg. 3:10; 6:34; 1 Sam. 10:6). The first readers of the Hebrew Scriptures likely thought that the term Spirit was just another way of speaking of God with awe or wonder. In the NT, we learn that the term refers to the third Person of the Trinity (see Matt. 28:19). Solomon prayed for wisdom and understanding (1 Kin. 3:9), the administrative skill to govern the people according to the principles of righteousness and justice (Deut. 1:15–17). The Messiah will embody all this; He will be the ideal King (33:6). The Holy Spirit's counsel is not advice, but authoritative plans and decisions. the fear of the LORD: The Messiah would demonstrate in all His life the correct response to God: He would honor and obey Him (Ex. 20:20). The people of God in all ages are under orders to respond to Him with reverential awe (Lev. 19:14; Prov. 19:23).

11:3 Delight refers to the sense of smell. There may be an allusion to the incense burned at a coronation ceremony. Whereas “fear of God” usually means a standard of moral conduct known and accepted by humankind in general, the fear of the LORD in this case may refer to the standard of moral conduct known through special revelation and accepted by the faithful.

11:4 In this context, judge does not mean to bring people to account, but to act on their behalf. As the judge of His people,

And with the breath of His lips He shall slay the wicked.

5 Righteousness shall be the belt of His loins,
And faithfulness the belt of His waist.

6 “The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb,
The leopard shall lie down with the young goat,
The calf and the young lion and the fatling together;
And a little child shall lead them.

7 The cow and the bear shall graze;
Their young ones shall lie down together;
And the lion shall eat straw like the ox.

8 The nursing child shall play by the cobra’s hole,
And the weaned child shall put his hand in the viper’s den.

9 <sup>h</sup>They shall not hurt nor destroy in all My holy mountain,
For <sup>i</sup>the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the LORD
As the waters cover the sea.

10 “And <sup>j</sup>in that day <sup>k</sup>there shall be a Root of Jesse,
Who shall stand as a <sup>l</sup>banner to the people;
For the <sup>m</sup>Gentiles shall seek Him,
And His resting place shall be glorious.”

15 The LORD <sup>o</sup>will utterly <sup>o</sup>destroy the tongue of the Sea of Egypt;
With His mighty wind He will shake His fist over <sup>o</sup>the River,

God sentences the wicked and offers protection and defense for the innocent and oppressed. rod of His mouth: The Messiah will conquer by His speech (49:2; Heb. 4:12; Rev. 19:15).

11:6–9 This picture of cruel beasts miraculously regenerated with a new nature that makes them protect their natural prey portrays a reign of peace and security. This can only be realized in the return of the Messiah to establish the kingdom of God (65:17–25). In God’s peaceful kingdom, carnivores will become herbivores; natural enemies will become companions; and little children will play safely near the dwellings of formerly venomous snakes.

11:6 a little child shall lead them: In the coming kingdom, a youngster will be able to lead formerly wild animals. This is a way of emphasizing the end of terror, fright, and danger in the coming kingdom.

11:9 In ancient times, the knowledge of the LORD was limited and spotty; there is coming a glorious age in which there will be no limit to access to divine truth. As the waters cover the sea means “thoroughly.” God will make Himself known throughout the earth.

11:10 in that day: This verse forms a single prophetic vision. The exalted Root of Jesse will attract the Gentiles to His resting place (2:3). This is a prophecy of the coming of people of all nations to the knowledge of God. Thus in the OT, the Lord expresses His concern for the salvation of other nations (see Gen. 12:1–3). World mission was not a new idea with the Great Commission (Matt. 28:18–20). Banner is a rallying symbol. Jesus the Messiah is the banner for the gathering of peoples from all over the earth.

11:11–16 This prophecy concerning the second Exodus (51:9–11) consists of the regathering of the exiles (vv. 11, 12), their unity in opposition to God’s enemies (vv. 13, 14), and an allusion to the first Exodus to show how much greater is the second one (vv. 15, 16).

11:11 The second time may refer to the remnant coming back to the land in 538 B.C., in contrast to the first Exodus from Egypt. Beyond that, it could also refer to the remnant’s coming to Christ in the present age (Rom. 11:5), or to its future return to Christ (Rom. 11:11–27). From Assyria . . . and the islands of the sea indicates the whole earth (v. 12).

11:12 the four corners of the earth: This figurative expression is similar to the words of Acts 1:8: “to the end of the earth.” The Messiah will gather disciples from all over the world.

11:13 Ephraim . . . Judah: Not only will God destroy the enemies of the Israelites and Judeans, but He will also remove their ancient enmities (9:20, 21).

11:14 upon the shoulder: The image is that of a bird of prey attacking another bird. The Philistines, Edom, Moab, and Ammon, Israel’s traditional enemies, may represent the adversaries of the Messiah’s kingdom (see Mic. 5:6 for a similar use of the word Assyria).

11:15 Mighty wind is an allusion to Ex. 14:21–27. The River refers to the Euphrates. dryshod: As God had provided a dry passage across the Red Sea in the first Exodus, so in the second Exodus He would remove any physical barrier that would hinder the return of His people.

And strike it in the seven streams,
And make men cross over <sup>1</sup> dryshod.

- <sup>16</sup> <sup>s</sup> There will be a highway for the remnant of His people
Who will be left from Assyria,
<sup>1</sup> As it was for Israel
In the day that he came up from the land of Egypt.

A Hymn of Praise

12 And <sup>a</sup> in that day you will say:

- “O LORD, I will praise You;
Though You were angry with me,
Your anger is turned away, and You comfort me.
<sup>2</sup> Behold, God is my salvation,
I will trust and not be afraid;

11:16 A highway symbolizes the certainty of the return, for no obstacles would hinder the Lord's returning exiles (35:8–10; 40:3, 4; 57:14; 62:10). In the day: The reference here is to the first Exodus (v. 11).

12:1–6 This hymn of praise for God's salvation by the restored remnant after the second Exodus (11:12–16) resembles Moses and Miriam's hymn of praise after the first Exodus from Egypt (Ex. 15).

12:1 in that day: For a similar idea, see 2:12. The first you is singular, representing the remnant as an individual. angry: The anger of God had caused the people to be dispersed among the nations (5:25; 9:12); His grace would lead to their regathering.

12:2 God is my salvation: This psalm of redemption is based on the first psalm of redemption in Exodus (Ex. 15:2; Ps. 118:14). YAH, the LORD, by its repetition, emphasizes that Israel's covenant-keeping God—and not the nations—brings salvation (26:4). My strength and song may be rephrased as “my strong song” or “my song of strength” (Ex. 15:2).

12:3 You in vv. 3–5 is plural. The Hebrew poets often associate the concept of water with salvation (Ex. 17:1–7). In an arid land, the provision of wells and springs was regarded as a divine gift (55:1).

12:4 As in the Psalms, this hymn uses several terms for the praise of God. Praise means “to give public acknowledgment” or “to declare aloud in public.” Call upon His name may be rephrased as “proclaim in His name.” Declare means “to make known.” Make mention means “to cause to remember.” Each of these verbs designates public, vocal acknowledgment of the wonders and works of God. among the peoples: Like Ps. 117, this is a poem of international evangelism.

12:5 Sing to the LORD: The principal audience of sacred songs is God Himself (Ps. 33:1). excellent things: In Ex. 15:1, the root of this term is translated “triumphed gloriously.” all the earth: This emphasis fits the same line of thought found in Ps. 19:1.

12:6 Cry out and shout may be rephrased as “shout aloud in great joy.” Inhabitant of Zion refers to the people who returned from captivity in Babylon.

13:1—27:13 The Book of Isaiah takes a major turn at 13:1. The focus in this extended section is first on the Lord's judgments against the nations (chs. 13—23): Babylon and Assyria (13:1—14:27), Philistia (14:28–32), Moab (15:1—16:14), Damascus (17:1–14), Ethiopia (18:1–7), Egypt (19:1—20:6), Babylon (21:1–10), Edom (21:11, 12), Arabia (21:13–17), Jerusalem (22:1–25), and Tyre (23:1–18). This prophecy of judgment is followed by an end-time prophecy that is sometimes called “the little apocalypse of Isaiah” (chs. 24—27).

13:1—14:27 The oracle against Babylon consists of seven sections: (1) the assembly of the army of the Lord of Hosts (13:1–5); (2) the announcement of the day of the Lord (13:6–18); (3) the annihilation of Babylon (13:19–22); (4) the salvation of Israel (14:1, 2); (5) Israel's mocking dirge for the king of Babylon (14:3–21); (6) the destruction of Babylon (14:22, 23); (7) the destruction of Assyria (14:24–27).

13:1 The word burden comes from the root meaning “to lift up” or “to bear.” It is as though the prophet were heavily laden with a message from God that he must deliver due to its sheer weight (Nah. 1:1; Hab. 1:1). Babylon was the crown jewel of the Assyrian empire. This oracle may refer to its destruction around 689 B.C. when Sennacherib quelled a rebellion there. Yet the Lord's overthrow of Babylon, “the glory of kingdoms” (v. 19), symbolizes His triumph over the world (v. 11). Babylon is the epitome of religion and culture in the ancient Middle East. Thus the oracle is indirectly against all nations, especially Assyria (14:24–27). Peter uses the term Babylon symbolically in the NT (1 Pet. 5:13) as does John (Rev. 14:8; 18:2, 10–21) to refer to any enemy of God's kingdom.

13:3, 4 Sanctified ones refers to the victorious armies of the earth who rejoice, wittingly or unwittingly, in the Lord's exaltation (45:1–7; Joel 2:11). Many people represent all nations, who will be instruments in God's hands for judging sinful nations, though they themselves are sinners.

The Festivals of Babylon

The Babylonians observed moon festivals on fixed days of the month: the first, seventh, fifteenth, and twenty-eighth. In addition, they had special “seventh” days—the seventh, fourteenth, twenty-first, and twenty-eighth of each month. They did not work at all on the fifteenth day of the month because they believed there was no chance for good fortune on that day.

The greatest festival in Babylon was the akitu (the New Year Feast). The Babylonians celebrated akitu in March and April. They spent the first four days making prayers to Marduk, the chief god of Babylon. In the evening of the fourth day they recited the creation story (the Enuma Elish). On the fifth day, the king appeared before Marduk’s statue and declared his innocence from faults and his fulfillment of his obligations. On the ninth and tenth days they held a banquet. On the eleventh day soothsayers divined the destinies of the coming year.

13:5 Far country . . . end of heaven refers to the whole earth (11:11, 12). His weapons of indignation: The nations are the tools God will use to vent His wrath against Babylon.

13:6 The day of the LORD refers to a time of unusual activity of God in the lives of people, for judgment or for mercy. At hand is also translated near. The basic idea of the term is not that of approaching a fixed date, but that the day of the Lord is about to burst into one’s world. The day of the Lord is imminent—able to happen at any time—not because people have almost reached it as a destination, but because it may burst in upon people without further warning. The title the Almighty is the Hebrew name Shaddai (Ex. 6:3; Ps. 91:1).

13:7, 8 limp . . . melt . . . afraid: These images describe the depth of the people’s fear. a woman in childbirth: This is a familiar image of stress in the poetry of the Bible.

13:11 iniquity . . . arrogance . . . proud . . . haughtiness . . . terrible: The common element is pride, which brings the nations down (2:6–22).

13:12 mortal: The Hebrew word speaks of the inherent weakness of humanity (Ps. 8:4).

13:13 heavens . . . earth: The shaking of the cosmos, including the sun, moon, and stars—which were worshipped by the pagans—symbolizes the overthrow of all that unbelieving humans exalt as rivals to God (2:12–18).

13:15, 16 Everyone . . . children . . . houses . . . wives: In the ancient Middle East, the brutality of war extended to everyone, regardless of age, gender, or station.

13:17 The Medes, who lived in what is today northwest Iran, were fierce enemies of the Israelites. Significant for dating this prophecy is the fact that Persia, which conquered the Medes in 550 B.C. and in conjunction with the Medes conquered Babylon in 539 B.C., is not mentioned. silver . . . gold: The point is that the Medes will not be bought off with bribes.

Mercy on Jacob

Fall of the King of Babylon

<sup>3</sup> It shall come to pass in the day the LORD gives you rest from your sorrow, and from your fear and the hard bondage in which you were made to serve, <sup>4</sup> that you <sup>f</sup> will take up this proverb against the king of Babylon, and say:

- “How the oppressor has ceased,
The <sup>g</sup> golden <sup>i</sup> city ceased!
- 5 The LORD has broken <sup>h</sup> the staff of the wicked,
The scepter of the rulers;
6 He who struck the people in wrath with a continual stroke,
He who ruled the nations in anger,
Is persecuted and no one hinders.
7 The whole earth is at rest and quiet;
They break forth into singing.
8 <sup>i</sup> Indeed the cypress trees rejoice over you,
And the cedars of Lebanon,
Saying, ‘Since you <sup>2</sup> were cut down,
No woodsman has come up against us.’
- 9 “Hell <sup>j</sup> from beneath is excited about you,
To meet you at your coming;
It stirs up the dead for you,
All the chief ones of the earth;
It has raised up from their thrones
All the kings of the nations.
10 They all shall <sup>k</sup> speak and say to you:

13:19 In 4:2, the same Hebrew word translated glory here is translated “beautiful” to describe the Branch of the Lord. The ascriptions of beauty to Babylon are not exaggerations; the city of Babylon at its zenith must have been spellbinding.

13:20 It will never be inhabited: The fulfillment of this prophecy should not be sought in a specific event, but in the general principle that the kingdoms of this world would not endure. Places that once were fabled for their great structures will become so desolate that even desert peoples would not pitch tents there.

13:21, 22 The language of these verses is that of the ancient Middle Eastern curse. The animals named in these verses ominously represent that which is unclean, unholy, uncivilized, and unsettled (34:14, 15; Rev. 18:2). The godly people of ancient Israel would have no associations with such animals.

14:1 Still may also be translated “again,” in which case it refers to the second Exodus, the return of the remnant from Babylonian captivity (see 11:15, 16). choose: The Lord will make His choice in Israel. Strangers will join the returning Israelites as they did in the first Exodus (Ex. 12:38). But in this case, the strangers will be loyal adherents of the Lord.

14:2 people will take them: For the development of this idea, see Ezra 1:1-8. captive: For the development of this theme, see Eph. 4:8.

14:3 Hard bondage is an allusion to the first Exodus (ch. 12). Rest recalls the freedom from Egyptian servitude (Deut. 5:12-15).

14:4 the king of Babylon: No particular king of Babylon is indicated (13:1). Proverb refers to a highly figurative poem. oppressor: This is the same term used in 9:4 of an unnamed Assyrian tyrant.

14:5, 6 The staff and the scepter were symbols of authority and power in the ancient Middle East (9:4). struck: The Babylonian kings had paraded their tyranny in order to intimidate any who dared to oppose them. But now the Lord in judgment was breaking their instruments of oppression.

14:7, 8 At rest and quiet may be rephrased as “utterly quiet.” This is the security that comes after the tyrant is dead. cypress trees rejoice: The trees are personified, describing the joy of the formerly oppressed people (35:1; 44:23; 55:12).

No woodsman: The trees would no longer be cut down to construct machines of war.

14:9-11 excited: The commotion in hell when the king of Babylon arrives contrasts sharply with the rest on earth when he is gone. The Hebrew word for the dead is similar in connotation to our word ghost: it speaks of the dead in a frightening manner (see Prov. 9:18). The defeated subjects of the Babylonian tyrants are pictured as sitting on thrones, while the king is given a blanket of worms.

The Fall of Lucifer

- <sup>12</sup> “How<sup>1</sup> you are fallen from heaven,
 O <sup>4</sup>Lucifer, son of the morning!
How you are cut down to the ground,
 You who weakened the nations!

<sup>m</sup>“I will ascend into heaven,

<sup>n</sup> I will exalt my throne above the stars of God;

I will also sit on the <sup>9</sup>mount of the congregation

# On the farthest sides of the north;

<sup>14</sup> I will ascend above the heights of the clouds,

 To the <sup>5</sup>lowest depths of the Pit.

<sup>16</sup> “Those who see you will gaze at you,
And consider you, saying:

‘Is this the man who made the earth tremble,

14:12 Fallen from heaven is a figure of speech meaning cast down from an exalted political position. Jesus said, “And you, Capernaum, who are exalted to heaven, will be brought down to Hades” (Luke 10:15), and apparently with the same meaning, “I saw Satan fall like lightning from heaven” (Luke 10:18). The name for Lucifer in Hebrew literally means “Day Star,” or the planet Venus. The poetic language of this verse describes the aspiration of this brightest star to climb to the zenith of the heavens and its extinction before the rising sun. This is an apt summary of the failed goal of the king of Babylon (v. 4) who wanted to grasp universal and eternal domination. Tertullian, Milton, and others have linked this passage to the career of Satan on the basis of Luke 10:18, but the text does not specifically make this connection.

14:13 above the stars of God: The description is of a star that wanted to be grander than other stars. In this highly poetic language, Isaiah describes a king whose longing for glory was unlimited. Mount of the congregation is an allusion to a mythological mountain where the heavenly deities were thought to assemble. Farthest sides of the north probably refers to Mt. Casius in northern Syria, the mountain believed by the Canaanites to be the realm of the gods (Ps. 48:1, 2).

14:14 I will be like the Most High is the most outrageous of the arrogant desires of this Assyrian or Babylonian king. He wanted to surpass the Most High, a term for the Lord that is often used in connection with the nations of the world (see Ps. 87:5; 91:1, 9; 92:1).

14:15 Sheol: See the reference to hell in v. 9. The word lowest depths renders the same Hebrew word translated “farthest sides” (in v. 13). This is an example of comic justice for this king who wished to ascend to the heights of the gods and even the Most High Himself. The Pit is a synonym for Sheol often used together with it (see Jon. 2:2, 6).

14:16 man . . . tremble: Isaiah compares this king to the One who can truly shake the earth (see 13:13).

Son of the Morning The reference to “Lucifer, son of the morning” is most certainly to Satan himself. The real issue of interpretation in this passage is whether Satan is to be viewed literally as the referent of the prophecy in these verses, or whether he is to be viewed as the power behind the throne of the Babylonian king. In either case, we are given a clear picture of the certain destruction that always follows pride.

It seems most likely that Isaiah is using the fall of Satan, which is an assumed fact, to illustrate the fall of the Babylonian king (who is simply a prototype and not necessarily a specific such as Belshazzar). Tertullian seems to have been the first to interpret this passage as referring to the fall of Satan (cf. Luke 10:18). Since the fall of Satan is actually yet future (see Rev. 9:1), it would seem that the prophet is again speaking in the present tense with the sure assurance of the future fulfillment of his prediction. He sees the rise of Babylon to a point of prominence that it had not yet achieved in his own day, yet beyond that he sees the demise of this same nation. He views her kings as attempting to ascend into heaven by the divine claims that they would make for themselves and their kingdom; then he pictures them as falling from heaven just as certainly as Lucifer himself shall one day fall under the judgment of God. Therefore, it is not inappropriate to understand the words of verses 13 and 14 as the attitude of Satan himself. Five times the personal pronoun “I” is used to emphasize the selfish determination of both Satan and Satan-empowered men to replace God Himself as the rightful ruler of this world.

The name Lucifer is actually the Roman designation for the morning star. The Hebrew (helēl) means “the bright one.” This reference illustrates the fact that the morning star speedily disappears before the far greater splendor of the rising sun. Hence, though Satan may appear as an “angel of light” (2 Cor. 11:14), he shall be banished to outer darkness by the coming of the Son of God. Certainly, such claims were parallel to and inspired by the ultimate claim of Satan himself! He, too, will be brought down to hell in the final judgment of God (see Rev. 20:10).

In the meantime, the king of Babylon will no longer be a threat to the nations of the earth. Instead of fearing him, they shall cast him out like an abominable branch. The tragedy of national judgment is that it falls upon every generation, including the children. For those who rise up in defiance against God, there is nothing ahead for them but disaster, because “I will rise up against them” is the promise of the Lord (Is. 14:22). He will cut off Babylon. Thus it is that this once mighty nation which caused the kings of the earth to tremble is now but a dusty reminder of a bygone kingdom of another era.

Assyria Destroyed

- 24 The LORD of hosts has sworn, saying,
 "Surely, as I have thought, so it shall come to pass,
 And as I have purposed, so it shall <sup>25</sup>stand:
 25 That I will break the <sup>26</sup>Assyrian in My land,
 And on My mountains tread him underfoot.
 Then <sup>27</sup>his yoke shall be removed from the yoke,
 And his burden removed from their shoulders.
 26 This is the <sup>28</sup>purpose that is purposed against the whole earth,
 And this is the hand that is stretched out over all the nations.
 27 For the LORD of hosts has <sup>29</sup>purposed, And who will annul it?
 His hand is stretched out,
 And who will turn it back?"

Philistia Destroyed

- <sup>30</sup>This is the <sup>31</sup>burden which came in the year that <sup>32</sup>King Ahaz died.
 29 "Do not rejoice, all you of Philistia,
 'Because the rod that struck you is broken;
 For out of the serpent's roots will come forth a viper,
<sup>33</sup>And its offspring will be a fiery flying serpent.
 30 The firstborn of the poor will feed,
 And the needy will lie down in safety;
 I will kill your roots with famine,
 And it will slay your remnant.
 31 Wail, O gate! Cry, O city!
 All you of Philistia are dissolved;
 For smoke will come from the north,
 And no one will be alone in his <sup>34</sup>appointed times."
 32 What will they answer the messengers of the nation?"

14:17 The house of his prisoners refers to exile. Unlike Cyrus, who sent the exiles home, the king of Babylon kept them captive.

14:19 out of your grave: The ancients believed that a proper burial was exceedingly important. The king's memory would be trampled by the people whom he abused in life. abominable branch: Contrast this with the Beautiful Branch, the Messiah (11:1). This is an "anti-Messiah" figure.

14:20 The brood . . . shall never be named: This evil king's posterity will not be remembered.

14:22 I will rise: The Lord Himself is behind the destruction of this arrogant king (v. 5).

14:23 porcupine . . . marshes: The former beautiful city of Babylon (13:19) would become a wild, inhospitable place.

14:25 My land . . . My mountains: The Lord asserts His sovereignty. yoke . . . his burden: In 9:4, these same terms are used of the Assyrian menace.

14:28–32 After an introduction (v. 28), the oracle against Philistia falls roughly into two cycles: (1) the annihilation of the Philistines and the preservation of God's poor and needy (vv. 29, 30); (2) the destruction of Philistine cities and the founding of Zion (vv. 31, 32).

14:28 King Ahaz died in 720 B.C.

14:29 Rod is probably a metaphor for the Assyrian king (10:5). its offspring will be . . . serpent: More trouble would come upon Philistia; it would have nothing for which to rejoice.

14:30 Like Babylon (v. 22)—but unlike Israel—Philistia would have no future, because it would have no remnant.

14:31 The gate of a walled city was its weakest point. When the gate fell, the city could be taken. The Assyrian army would come from the north. No one will be alone speaks of the close ranks of the Assyrian army.

14:32 founded Zion: The destruction of Philistia would leave no refuge for the Philistines. The only place they could go

That <sup>a</sup>the LORD has founded Zion, And <sup>b</sup>the poor of His people shall take refuge in it.

Proclamation Against Moab

15 The <sup>a</sup>burden <sup>1</sup> against Moab.

Because in the night <sup>b</sup>Ar of <sup>c</sup>Moab is laid waste
And destroyed,
Because in the night Kir of Moab is laid waste
And destroyed,
<sup>2</sup> He has gone up to the <sup>2</sup>temple and Dibon,
To the high places to weep.
Moab will wail over Nebo and over Medeba;
<sup>a</sup>On all their heads will be baldness,
And every beard cut off.
<sup>3</sup> In their streets they will clothe themselves with sackcloth;
On the tops of their houses
And in their streets
Everyone will wail, <sup>e</sup>weeping bitterly.

Moab

Moab was a son of Lot by incest (Gen. 19:30–38). Moab was annexed by the Amorite kingdom shortly before the Israelite conquest of Canaan (Num. 21:17–29). After the Israelites defeated the Amorites, Balak, king of the Moabites, joined with the Midianites in hiring the prophet-magician Balaam to curse Israel (Num. 22:1–20). Balaam's mission failed, but when the Israelites camped in Moab, the women of Moab enticed the Israelites into a form of idolatry that involved ritual sexual immorality. This resulted in God's judgment against Israel (Num. 25:1–9).

The Assyrians conquered Moab about 735 B.C., and invading Arabs conquered it about 650 B.C. The prophet Isaiah lamented over Moab's defeat (Is. 15; 16), and Jeremiah predicted Moab's destruction at the end of the seventh century B.C. (Jer. 48). When Jerusalem was destroyed by the Babylonians in 586 B.C., some of the Jews fled to Moab to escape being taken into captivity (Jer. 40:11, 12).

Moab Destroyed

16 Send <sup>a</sup>the lamb to the ruler of the land,
<sup>b</sup>From <sup>1</sup>Sela to the wilderness,
To the mount of the daughter of Zion.
<sup>2</sup> For it shall be as a <sup>c</sup>wandering bird thrown out of the nest;

to be saved would be Jerusalem, the city built by God. That would be the place to which the poor of all nations could come, becoming God's people (Ps. 87).

15:1–16:14 The oracle against Moab has five parts: (1) an editorial superscript (15:1); (2) the sudden, devastating destruction of Moab (15:2–9); (3) a plea from Moab for shelter in Zion (16:1–5); (4) a reflection contrasting Moab's former pride with its fallen state (16:6–12); (5) a postscript (16:13, 14).

15:1 For the origin of the people of Moab, see the story of Lot and his daughters in Gen. 19:30–38 (see also Num. 22–25; Deut. 1:5). burden: For similar phrasing, see 13:1. Ar and Kir were cities of Moab (16:7, 11; Deut. 2:9; 2 Kin. 3:25).

15:2 He refers collectively to Moab. High places were sites of pagan worship (16:12). weep . . . wail: This refers to the mourning over the destruction of the cities of Moab. Baldness and having one's beard cut off were aspects of mourning rituals.

15:3 Sackcloth and weeping were part of Middle Eastern mourning rites (Gen. 23:2; 37:34; 2 Sam. 1:11, 12).

15:4 Heshbon, Elealeh, and Jahaz were cities in Moab. armed soldiers: The weeping would extend even to hardened fighting men.

15:5 My heart refers to Isaiah, who felt sympathy for Moab (16:9–11). Zoar was a southwestern border city of Moab on the south end of the Dead Sea. The Ascent of Luhith is also mentioned by Jeremiah in his lament over Moab (Jer. 48:5).

15:6 The waters and green grass of the oasis could not survive the numerous refugees.

15:9 The term Dimon sounds like blood in Hebrew. Lions: Fleeing from one tragedy after another in their flight southward, the refugees turn to Judah in the west for asylum (16:1–5). As would be the case with Israel (1:9; 6:13; 10:20; 11:16)—but not with Assyria (14:22) and Philistia (14:30)—a remnant would survive in Moab.

16:2 Wandering bird is a sad description of the hopeless condition of the daughters of Moab, the women of the nation.

So shall be the daughters of Moab at the fords of the <sup>d</sup> Arnon.

- 3 “Take counsel, execute judgment;
Make your shadow like the night in the middle of the day;
Hide the outcasts,
Do not betray him who escapes.
4 Let My outcasts dwell with you,
O Moab;
Be a shelter to them from the face of the <sup>2</sup> spoiler.
For the extortioner is at an end,
Devastation ceases,
The oppressors are consumed out of
the land.
5 In mercy <sup>e</sup> the throne will be established;
And One will sit on it in truth, in

Moab—
He is very proud—
Of his haughtiness and his pride and his wrath;
<sup>i</sup> But his <sup>3</sup> lies shall not be so.
7 Therefore Moab shall <sup>j</sup> wail for Moab;
Everyone shall wail.
For the foundations <sup>k</sup> of Kir Hareseth
you shall mourn;
Surely they are stricken.

Proclamation Against Syria and Israel

17 The <sup>a</sup>burden <sup>1</sup> against Damascus.

- “Behold, Damascus will cease from being a city,
And it will be a ruinous heap.
2 <sup>2</sup> The cities of <sup>b</sup> Aroer are forsaken;

16:3 Take counsel may also be translated “make plans.” Moab would find salvation in the shadow of Zion (2:2–4).

16:4, 5 Moab’s salvation ultimately lies in the coming One, Jesus the Messiah, whose throne will be established (9:1–7; 11:1–5; Amos 9:11, 12; Acts 15:16, 17).

16:6 Pride is a regular target of the Lord’s judgment (2:5–22; 13:11).

16:7 Kir Hareseth is another name for Kir (15:1).

16:8 Vine is a figure of speech for Moab (compare Israel’s description as a vine in 5:1–7). Sea may refer to the Dead Sea because it is the nearest large body of water to Moab.

16:9 Heshbon and Elealeh were among the principal settlements in ancient Moab (15:4).

16:10 Contrast the lack of gladness in this verse with the ecstatic joy of 9:3.

16:11 Kir Heres is an alternative spelling for Kir Hareseth (v. 7) or Kir (15:1). Isaiah the prophet expresses his determination to one day rejoice over Moab. This is a promise of its future restoration.

16:12 high place . . . sanctuary: As long as the people worshiped false gods, they would be doomed to pain, judgment, and recurring trouble (15:2).

16:13, 14 A former prophecy against Moab (see 15:1) would be realized within three years, perhaps referring to the quelling of a rebellion against Sargon in 715 B.C. However, a remnant would remain (15:9). Moab had far more hope for salvation than did either Babylon or Philistia.

17:1–18:7 The oracle against Damascus falls into seven parts: (1) an editorial superscription (17:1); (2) the desolate ruin of Damascus (17:2, 3); (3) the ruin of Israel, which is left only a remnant (17:4–6); (4) the anticipation that in the future, people will trust Israel’s God (17:7, 8); (5) the accusation that Damascus replaced God with pagan deities (17:9–11); (6) a proclamation of doom upon the nations “who plunder us” (17:12–14); (7) a prediction that a powerful nation will bring tribute to the Lord (18:1–7).

17:1, 2 burden: For similar phrasing, see 13:1. cities . . . flocks: Where people once lived, conditions would be suitable only for flocks (14:23).

They will be for flocks
Which lie down, and <sup>c</sup>no one will make them afraid.

<sup>3</sup> <sup>d</sup>The fortress also will cease from Ephraim,
The kingdom from Damascus,
And the remnant of Syria;
They will be as the glory of the children of Israel,”
Says the LORD of hosts.

<sup>4</sup> “In that day it shall come to pass
That the glory of Jacob will <sup>3</sup>wane,
And <sup>e</sup>the fatness of his flesh grow lean.

<sup>5</sup> <sup>f</sup>It shall be as when the harvester gathers the grain,
And reaps the heads with his arm;
It shall be as he who gathers heads of grain
In the Valley of Rephaim.

<sup>6</sup> <sup>g</sup>Yet gleaning grapes will be left in it,
Like the shaking of an olive tree,
Two or three olives at the top of the uppermost bough,
Four or five in its most fruitful branches,”
Says the LORD God of Israel.

<sup>7</sup> In that day a man will <sup>h</sup>look to his Maker,
And his eyes will have respect for the Holy One of Israel.

<sup>8</sup> He will not look to the altars,
The work of his hands;
He will not respect what his <sup>i</sup>fingers have made,
Nor the <sup>4</sup>wooden images nor the incense altars.

<sup>9</sup> In that day his strong cities will be as a forsaken <sup>5</sup>bough
And <sup>6</sup>an uppermost branch,
Which they left because of the children of Israel;
And there will be desolation.

Damascus

Damascus is the oldest continually-inhabited city in the world and capital of Syria (7:8), located northeast of the Sea of Galilee. The Bible first mentions the city as the hometown of Eliezer, Abraham's servant (Gen. 15:2). Damascus was situated on the border of the desert at the intersection of three major caravan routes. Major roads extended from the city to the southwest into Canaan and Egypt, straight south to Edom and the Red Sea, and east to Babylonia. Because of its ideal location, the city became a trade center.

The Assyrian King Tiglath-Pileser conquered Syria, overthrowing the Aramean dynasty and destroying Damascus (732 B.C.), just as the prophets Amos and Isaiah had prophesied (Is. 17:1; Amos 1:4, 5). This marked the end of Syria as an independent nation. The city of Damascus was also reduced to a fraction of its former glory.

17:3 Fortress may refer to Samaria, the capital city. Ephraim designates northern Israel. Since Damascus, the capital of Syria, was allied with Ephraim, the oracle of God's judgment was against both nations.

17:4 In that day: For a similar phrase, see 2:12.

17:5 harvests: The nation of Syria would be “harvested” of its people. The word Rephaim is the Hebrew word for “shades” or “ghosts.” Thus the Valley of Rephaim is the Valley of Death.

17:6 A remnant would be left (10:20) even though it would be pitifully small.

17:7 The verb translated look means “to look with interest” or “to look with favor.” Holy One: For a similar idea, see 6:3.

17:8 Altars refers to pagan worship. work of his hands: For similar wording, see 2:8; 31:7. Asherah was represented by wooden images (27:9), which were part of the sexual cults of Baal worship among the Canaanite peoples.

17:9 In that day: For a similar phrase, see 2:11. His strong cities (contrast the “Rock” in v. 10) will become as fragile as a little branch.

17:10 You refers to the northern kingdom. forgotten: For background, see Deut. 8:11–20. The people had committed the very sin that God warned them not to: they had forgotten the God who had saved them from slavery. The language recalls the first Exodus; the Lord is called the God of your salvation and the Rock (compare Ex. 15:2; Deut. 32:4).

17:11 Make your plant to grow may allude to the ancient practice of force-blooming potted plants and allowing them to die. Pagans believed that this reenactment of the life cycle would secure fertile fields. But even after performing this rite, the harvest would be in ruin. Just as the choice vines of the Lord's vineyard disappointed Him (5:1–7), so His errant people would find their harvest hopes shattered.

17:12 Many people refers to the nations that plunder Israel (v. 14). Seas and mighty waters speak of chaos and death (8:7; Ps. 46:3).

17:13 Chaff, which lacks life, value, and stability, was threshed and winnowed on windy mountains or hilltops. When God judges the unrelenting, roaring seas—the nations that

But God will <sup>l</sup>rebuke them and they will flee far away,
And <sup>m</sup>be chased like the chaff of the mountains before the wind,
Like a rolling thing before the whirlwind.

- <sup>14</sup> Then behold, at eventide, trouble!
And before the morning, he is no more.
This is the portion of those who plunder us,
And the lot of those who rob us.

Proclamation Against Ethiopia

- 18 Woe <sup>a</sup> to the land shadowed with buzzing wings,
Which is beyond the rivers of <sup>1</sup>Ethiopia,
<sup>2</sup> Which sends ambassadors by sea,
Even in vessels of reed on the waters, saying,
“Go, swift messengers, to a nation tall and smooth of skin,
To a people terrible from their beginning onward,
A nation powerful and treading down,
Whose land the rivers divide.”
<sup>3</sup> All inhabitants of the world and dwellers on the earth:
<sup>b</sup> When he lifts up a banner on the mountains, you see it;
And when he blows a trumpet, you hear it.
<sup>4</sup> For so the LORD said to me,
“I will take My rest,
And I will <sup>2</sup>look from My dwelling place
Like clear heat in sunshine,
Like a cloud of dew in the heat of harvest.”

Proclamation Against Egypt

19 The <sup>a</sup>burden <sup>1</sup> against Egypt.

- Behold, the LORD <sup>b</sup>rides on a swift cloud,
And will come into Egypt;
<sup>c</sup>The idols of Egypt will <sup>2</sup>totter at His presence,
And the heart of Egypt will melt in its midst.
<sup>2</sup> “I will <sup>d</sup>set Egyptians against Egyptians;
Everyone will fight against his brother,
And everyone against his neighbor,
City against city, kingdom against kingdom.

plundered God’s people—they will become mere tumbleweed rolling before the whirlwind of God’s judgment.

17:14 Sennacherib’s army would be destroyed between eventide and morning (37:36–38). us: Isaiah identifies himself with his plundered people.

18:1 Ethiopia, called Cush in the Bible, was at the southern end of Isaiah’s world. A Cushite dynasty took over Egypt in 715 B.C. and probably sent ambassadors to Jerusalem. Cush may have been a Hebrew term for black African peoples (Num. 12:1; Ps. 87:4).

18:2 Sea may refer to the Nile River, from which small rivers branched. Tall and smooth (v. 7) probably designates the peoples along the entire stretch of the Nile River. Perhaps the term smooth refers to the ancient Egyptian custom of shaving the whole body.

18:3 banner: For the use of this word to refer to salvation instead of judgment, see 11:10, 12.

18:4, 5 The figure of God working in rest speaks of His indescribable power and unlimited sovereignty. God is steady in His work. His judgment will be felt like clear heat in sunshine. This is another example of a bad harvest (17:10, 11).

18:6 God’s judgment will be so extensive that the carcasses of His victims will be devoured in the summer and winter.

18:7 the place of the name: Note how closely the Lord identifies with Mt. Zion. This was the one place for the true worship of God.

19:1—20:6 The oracle against Egypt falls into three parts after the historical superscription (19:1): (1) the collapse of Egypt before the Lord (19:2–15); (2) the salvation of Egypt in the Lord (19:16–25); (3) a specific historic fulfillment of the collapse of Egypt at the time of Sargon (20:1–6).

19:1 the LORD rides on a swift cloud: For similar imagery, see Ps. 18:10, 68:4; Matt. 26:64.

19:2 The political anarchy of Egyptians against Egyptians has religious roots; their many gods failed them.

3 The spirit of Egypt will fail in its midst;
I will destroy their counsel,
And they will <sup>e</sup>consult the idols and the charmers,
The mediums and the sorcerers.
4 And the Egyptians I will give <sup>f</sup>Into the hand of a cruel master,
And a fierce king will rule over them,”
Says the Lord, the LORD of hosts.
5 <sup>g</sup>The waters will fail from the sea,
And the river will be wasted and dried up.
6 The rivers will turn foul;
The brooks <sup>h</sup>of defense will be emptied and dried up;
The reeds and rushes will wither.
7 The papyrus reeds by <sup>3</sup>the River, by the mouth of the River,
And everything sown by the River,
Will wither, be driven away, and be no more.
8 The fishermen also will mourn;
All those will lament who cast hooks into the River,
And they will languish who spread nets on the waters.
9 Moreover those who work in <sup>i</sup>fine flax
And those who weave fine fabric will be ashamed;
10 And its foundations will be broken.
All who make wages will be troubled of soul.
11 Surely the princes of <sup>j</sup>Zoan are fools;
Pharaoh’s wise counselors give foolish counsel.

They have also <sup>5</sup>deluded Egypt,
Those who are the <sup>6</sup>mainstay of its tribes.

<sup>16</sup>In that day Egypt will <sup>q</sup>be like women, and will be afraid and fear because of the waving of the hand of the LORD of hosts, <sup>r</sup>which He waves over it. <sup>17</sup>And the land of Judah will be a terror to Egypt; everyone who makes mention of it will be afraid in himself, because of the counsel of the LORD of hosts which He has <sup>s</sup>determined against it.

Egypt, Assyria, and Israel Blessed

<sup>18</sup>In that day five cities in the land of Egypt will <sup>t</sup>speak the language of Canaan and <sup>u</sup>swear by the LORD of hosts; one will be called the City of <sup>v</sup>Destruction.

<sup>19</sup>In that day <sup>v</sup>there will be an altar to the LORD in the midst of the land of Egypt, and a pillar to the <sup>w</sup>LORD at its border. <sup>20</sup>And <sup>x</sup>it will be for a sign and for a witness to the LORD of hosts in the land of Egypt; for they will cry to the LORD because of the oppressors, and He will send them a <sup>y</sup>Savior and a Mighty One, and He will deliver them. <sup>21</sup>Then the LORD will be known to Egypt, and the Egyptians will <sup>z</sup>know the LORD in that day, and <sup>a</sup>will

19:3 The spirit of Egypt: The principal key for understanding the world of ancient Egypt is the concept of ma'at, an Egyptian word for “order.” When God brought Moses to confront Pharaoh (Ex. 5–14), it was ma'at that was under attack. God would attack the Egyptians in the future as He had in the past.

19:4 Cruel master may be an allusion to Pharaoh’s tyranny against Israel (Ex. 6:9).

19:5–10 The disruption of the waters and all that is related to them marks God’s attack on the nation.

19:10 The foundations and those who make wages together may be a figure for the whole economic spectrum, from wealthy managers to day laborers.

19:11 Zoan was the capital of Egypt at this time. Son here refers to a member of a guild. Egypt was famous for its wise men (1 Kin. 4:30), who, as disciples, learned the wisdom of ancient kings.

19:12 Where are your wise men: The Lord taunts those who consider themselves wise and learned. True knowledge comes from the fear of the Lord (Prov. 1:7). For a similar idea, see 1 Cor. 1:20.

19:13 Noph or Memphis was Egypt’s ancient capital.

19:18 Five cities will speak the language of Canaan and swear by—take an oath of allegiance to—the LORD of hosts (1:9). These new habits spring from the miracle of regeneration—a radical transformation of their nature. With the words City of Destruction, Jewish scribes were probably belittling the “City of the Sun,” known by its Greek name Heliopolis, by deliberately changing the word meaning “sun” to the word meaning “destruction.” This is similar to the deliberate change of the name of Ahab’s wife to the name Jezebel (see 1 Kin. 16:31).

19:19 Altar and pillar may allude to the patriarchs Abraham and Jacob respectively (Gen. 12:8; 28:22).

19:21 The Egyptians will know probably alludes to Israel’s experience in the Exodus (Ex. 6:7; 7:5).

make sacrifice and offering; yes, they will make a vow to the LORD and perform it. <sup>22</sup> And the LORD will strike Egypt, He will strike and <sup>b</sup>heal it; they will return to the LORD, and He will be entreated by them and heal them.

<sup>23</sup> In that day <sup>c</sup>there will be a highway from Egypt to Assyria, and the Assyrian will come into Egypt and the Egyptian into Assyria, and the Egyptians will <sup>d</sup>serve with the Assyrians.

<sup>24</sup> In that day Israel will be one of three with Egypt and Assyria—a blessing in the midst of the land, <sup>25</sup> whom the LORD of hosts shall bless, saying, “Blessed is Egypt My people, and Assyria <sup>e</sup>the work of My hands, and Israel My inheritance.”

The Sign Against Egypt and Ethiopia

<sup>3</sup>Then the LORD said, “Just as My servant Isaiah has walked naked and barefoot three years <sup>d</sup>for a sign and a wonder against Egypt and Ethiopia, <sup>4</sup>so shall the <sup>e</sup>king of Assyria lead away the Egyptians as prisoners and the Ethiopians as captives, young and old, naked and barefoot, <sup>f</sup>with their buttocks uncovered, to the shame of Egypt. <sup>5g</sup>Then they shall be afraid and ashamed of Ethiopia their “Pangs have taken hold of me, like the pangs of a woman in labor.

 I was dismayed when I saw it.

<sup>5</sup> <sup>g</sup>Prepare the table,

 Arise, you princes,
 Anoint the shield!

19:23 A highway signifies the removal of alienation and separation (11:16). Historically, Egypt and Assyria were enemies.

19:25 My people and the work of My hands, titles for Israel (10:24; 60:21), are applied here to the converted Gentiles, symbolized by Egypt and Assyria (56:7; 65:1).

20:1 Tartan was one of the three chief officers of the Assyrian Empire (2 Kin. 18:17).

20:2, 3 Isaiah replaced wearing sackcloth, the garb of spiritual mourning, with walking naked and barefoot, signs of being exiled into captivity. servant: For a similar usage, see 41:8. Three years means “involving three years;” a minimum of 14 months. a sign and a wonder: For a similar usage, see 8:18.

20:4 Esarhaddon, king of Assyria, conquered Egypt and fulfilled this prophecy in 671 B.C.

20:5, 6 They and this territory probably refer to the nations bordering the eastern shore of the Mediterranean Sea, who looked to Egypt to save them from Assyria. This would include Judah.

21:1-10 The oracle against Babylon, after an enigmatic super-scription (v. 1), consists of a dreamlike vision of Babylon’s fall (vv. 2-9) and its significance to Judah (v. 10).

21:1 Wilderness means “desert.” The phrase Wilderness of the Sea may be a sarcastic parody of Babylon, whose southern region on the Persian Gulf was called the “Land of the Sea.”

21:2 Elam, a major part of Persia, and Media were allied in 700 B.C. Perhaps as part of the Assyrian army (5:26) they helped bring about the fall of Babylon in 689 B.C., since they certainly did so in 539 B.C. (11:11; 13:17). Its sighing may refer to the sighing Babylon inflicted on others, or to its own sighing under Assyrian oppression.

21:3 Perhaps Isaiah was distressed by the report of Babylon’s fall because it meant that Babylon could not save Judah from the Assyrians.

21:4 Although Isaiah longed for the fall of Babylon, he feared its consequences to Judah.

21:5 Having summoned Babylon’s princes to eat and drink, Isaiah summoned them again to anoint the shield in preparation for battle (Dan. 5).

blessing (Heb. berakah) (19:24; 65:8; Deut. 11:27; 33:1) Strong’s #1293: The significant Hebrew word translated blessing expresses several ideas, namely to fill with potency, to make fruitful, or to secure victory. In the present passage, the word alludes to God’s promise to bless all nations through Abraham’s descendants (Gen. 12:3). When people offer a blessing, they wish well or offer a prayer on behalf of themselves or someone else (Gen. 49; Deut. 33:1). Old Testament patriarchs are often remembered for the blessing they gave to their children. When God gives a blessing He gives it to those who faithfully follow Him (Deut. 11:27), providing them with salvation (Ps. 3:8), life (Ps. 133:3), and success (2 Sam. 7:29).

6 For thus has the Lord said to me:

 horsemen,
 A chariot of donkeys, and a chariot
 of camels,
 And he listened earnestly with great care.

 I stand continually on the <sup>h</sup> watchtower in the daytime;
 I have sat at my post every night.
 9 And look, here comes a chariot of men with a pair of horsemen!”
 Then he answered and said,
 “<sup>14</sup> Babylon is fallen, is fallen!

Isaiah: A Bible in Miniature?

The Book of Isaiah has been described as the Bible in miniature, for it exhibits remarkable similarities to the Bible as a whole—in both its structure and its message.

The Book of Isaiah	The Bible
• 66 chapters	• 66 books
• Two sections: chs. 1—39 and chs. 40—66	• Two parts: 39 Old Testament books and 27 New Testament books
• Stress in chs. 1—39 is on God’s righteousness, holiness, and justice.	• Stress in 39 Old Testament books is on God’s righteousness, holiness, and justice.
• Emphasis in chs. 40—66 is on God’s glory, compassion, and grace.	• Emphasis in 27 New Testament books is on God’s glory, compassion, and grace.
• Chapters 1—39 depict Israel’s need for restoration.	• The Old Testament depicts humanity’s need for salvation.
• Chapters 40—66 predict God’s future provision of salvation in the Servant.	• The New Testament describes God’s provision of salvation in the Messiah.
• Isaiah begins with a description of Israel’s rebellion and ends with predictions of restoration.	• The Bible begins with a description of humanity’s rebellion and ends with a depiction of salvation in Jesus Christ.
• Message: A holy God will gain glory by judging sin and restoring His people.	• Message: A holy God will gain glory by judging sin and saving those who call on the name of His Son Jesus.

21:6 Lord here means “Master.” The watchman is probably Isaiah.

21:7 A chariot of donkeys probably means “donkey riders” and a chariot of camels probably means “camel riders.” The Persian army used donkeys and camels.

21:8 in the daytime . . . every night suggests “continually”—a display of Isaiah’s faithfulness to His calling.

21:10 My threshing is a metaphor for the punishment coming on Judah.

21:11, 12 This brief oracle against Dumah, an oasis in northern Arabia, consists of an editorial superscription (v. 11), a question by sleepless Edom to Isaiah about how much of the night is left (v. 11), and Isaiah’s enigmatic response that night accompanies the new day (v. 12).

21:11 Dumah was located at the intersection of the east-west trade route between Babylon and Edom and the north-south route between Palmyra and Edom. Dumah played a vital military and economic role in the relationship between Mesopotamia and Edom, and its fate greatly affected Edom. Seir is Edom (34:5–17; Gen. 32:3). Watchman refers to the night patrol who kept watch on the city. The metaphor refers to the prophet Isaiah, who as a guard on the walls could see the dawn—the light of salvation—in the east before others. What of the night may be rephrased as: “What is left of the night?”

21:12 and also the night: Dumah’s future was grim. Relief from Assyrian domination would be followed quickly by Babylonian domination.

21:13–17 The oracle against Arabia, after the superscription (v. 13), has three parts: (1) an address by Isaiah to Teman to provide for Arabian refugees fleeing from battle (vv. 13–15); (2) an address by the Lord to Isaiah confirming and elaborating upon Arabia’s defeat (vv. 16, 17); (3) an epilogue guaranteeing the prophecy (v. 17).

21:13 Dedanites may be the refugees described in v. 15. Dedan was about 90 miles southeast of Tema (v. 14).

- 14 O inhabitants of the land of Tema,
Bring water to him who is thirsty;
With their bread they met him who fled.
- 15 For they fled from the swords, from
the drawn sword,
From the bent bow, and from the distress of war.

16 For thus the LORD has said to me:
“Within a year, <sup>16</sup> according to the year of a hired man, all the glory of <sup>9</sup> Kedar will fail; <sup>17</sup> and the remainder of the number of archers, the mighty men of the people of Kedar, will be diminished; for the LORD
God of Israel has spoken it.”

Proclamation Against Jerusalem

They are captured by the archers.
All who are found in you are bound

But you did not look to its Maker,
Nor did you have respect for Him who fashioned it long ago.
- 12 And in that day the Lord God of hosts
<sup>l</sup> Called for weeping and for mourning,
<sup>m</sup> For baldness and for girding with sackcloth.
- 13 But instead, joy and gladness,

21:14 Tema was about two hundred miles southeast of Dumah (v. 11).

21:15 The drawn swords are those of the Assyrians and Babylonians.

21:16 Kedar was a relatively fertile region in the northwestern part of the Arabian desert in which Dedan and Tema were located (60:7). Its refugees would be driven deeper into the desert.

22:1–25 After the superscription (v. 1), the oracle against Jerusalem consists of five parts: (1) a contrast between Jerusalem’s blind revelry and Isaiah’s appalling vision of its selfish rulers having fled the city, leaving it to be plundered (vv. 1–4); (2) Isaiah’s detailed vision of the city’s fall (vv. 5–8); (3) Isaiah’s indictment of Jerusalem for its misplaced confidence in its defenses instead of in the Lord (vv. 8–11); (4) Isaiah’s indictment for its response of merrymaking instead of repenting (vv. 12, 13); (5) a final vision confirming that this last apostasy sealed Jerusalem’s doom (v. 14). The vision is followed by an example of Jerusalem’s blindness in Shebna, the city’s steward (vv. 15–19), whose weakness is contrasted with the ability of his successor Eliakim (vv. 20–25).

22:1 burden: For similar phrasing, see 13:1. Valley of Vision sarcastically describes Jerusalem. Mount Zion is ironically personified in its valleys from which it could see nothing. Instead of partying on housetops, the ailing city should have been in its prayer closets.

22:2, 3 In the prophet’s vision, the rulers are not slain with the sword while heroically defending the city, but are captured while fleeing to save their own skins (2 Kin. 25:4–6).

22:4 daughter of my people: For a similar reference, see 1:8.

22:6, 7 Kir is Elam. The Elamites may have been part of the Assyrian army (5:26). gate: The same army that plundered Babylon (21:2) will arrive at Jerusalem’s gates.

22:8 The House of the Forest is the nation’s armory (39:2).

22:9–11 The defense of the city depended upon the availability of water within its walls. Hezekiah addressed this need by digging a tunnel beneath the city, connecting the lower pool in Jerusalem’s southwestern valley with the old pool, the source of water in the eastern valley.

22:12, 13 Called for weeping and for mourning . . . But instead, joy and gladness: God demanded repentance and renewal; the people instead turned to pleasure and parties. eat and drink: At times, this is a proper response to adversity (Eccl. 2:24; 3:13); but to use food, drink, and sensual pleasures as a means of shielding oneself from righteousness before the Lord is disastrous (Luke 17:26–29).

Eating meat and <sup>n</sup>drinking wine:

“Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow

by the LORD of hosts, “Surely for this iniquity there <sup>q</sup> will be no atonement for you,
Even to your death,” says the Lord
GOD of hosts.

The Judgment on Shebna

<sup>15</sup> Thus says the Lord God of hosts:

“Go, proceed to this steward,
To <sup>r</sup> Shebna, who is over the house,
and say:

- <sup>16</sup> “What have you here, and whom have

- <sup>17</sup> Indeed, the LORD will throw you away violently,
O mighty man,
<sup>t</sup> And will surely seize you.

- <sup>18</sup> He will surely turn violently and toss
you like a ball
Into a large country;

Proclamation Against Tyre

23 The <sup>a</sup>burden <sup>1</sup> against Tyre.

Wail, you ships of Tarshish!
For it is laid waste,

22:15 Steward refers to a high government official who was responsible for caring for the king and his dominion.

22:16 Here refers to Silwan, on the eastern side of the Kidron valley, overlooking the City of David. By hewing himself a sepulcher on high, Shebna rivaled the king (2 Chr. 16:14), to whom he should have been a father (v. 21).

22:17 throw you away: An impressive grave is no defense against God.

22:18, 19 The large country refers to Assyria. drive you out: Shebna was demoted to a secretary by the time of the Assyrian siege (36:3, 22).

22:20 Eliakim was an official whom God would honor in place of the arrogant Shebna (v. 15).

22:21 The pronoun your refers to Shebna (v. 15). The word father suggests the self-sacrificing love of Eliakim for citizens of Jerusalem.

22:22 The steward had the key that gave him an audience with the king (Matt. 16:19; Rev. 3:7).

22:23 A peg suggests one who is firmly in place, a reliable person (but see 22:25). Glorious throne suggests that Eliakim will bring honor to the memory of his father’s house in contrast to the shame Shebna had brought to his master (see v. 18).

22:24 All vessels is a metaphor for all of the inhabitants, both the influential and the insignificant.

22:25 the peg that is fastened in the secure place: The reference here appears to be Eliakim (v. 20). Even the noble Eliakim could not sustain the burden of government. Only Immanuel could do that (9:6, 7).

23:1-18 The oracle against Tyre consists of two main parts (following the superscription in v. 1): the fall of Tyre (vv. 1-14) and the restoration of it (vv. 15-18). As in ch. 13, the language is stylized, general, and symbolic, not historically specific.

23:1 burden: For similar phrasing, see 13:1. Tyre was besieged several times over a period of about four hundred years before it was finally laid waste by Alexander the Great in 332 B.C. Cyprus had close commercial ties with Tyre (Ezek. 27:6), as did Solomon (1 Kin. 5:1, 8-11). The pronoun it refers to the report that Tyre had fallen.

burden (Heb. massa') (23:1; 2 Kin. 9:25; Jer. 23:33) Strong’s #4853: This noun is a derivative of the verb nasa' which means “to lift up” or “to carry away.” Massa' refers to something that is taken or carried such as a present, tribute, or message. It is also translated oracle (Jer. 23:33) when God uses His prophets to convey judgment against someone or some nation. Isaiah frequently used this term in what are commonly known as the “oracles against the nations,” where he spoke of God’s judgment on different kingdoms (13:1; 15:1; 17:1; 19:1; 21:1, 11). Translating the word as burden emphasizes that Isaiah carried and delivered God’s indictments against the nations.

 Whose merchants are princes,
 Whose traders are the honorable of the earth?

<sup>9</sup> The LORD of hosts has <sup>f</sup>purposed it,

<sup>12</sup> And He said, “You will rejoice no more,
 O you oppressed virgin daughter of Sidon.
 Arise, <sup>i</sup>cross over to Cyprus;

<sup>15</sup> Now it shall come to pass in that day that Tyre will be forgotten seventy years, according to the days of one king. At the end of seventy years it will happen to Tyre as in the song of the harlot:

<sup>16</sup> “Take a harp, go about the city,
 You forgotten harlot;
 Make sweet melody, sing many songs,
 That you may be remembered.”

<sup>17</sup> And it shall be, at the end of seventy years, that the LORD will deal with Tyre. She will return to her hire, and <sup>m</sup>commit fornication with all the kingdoms of the world on the face of the earth. <sup>18</sup>Her gain and her pay <sup>n</sup>will be set apart for the

23:3, 4 Shihor, a synonym for Egypt (see Jer. 2:18), brought its coveted grain to Phoenicia, bringing revenue to Tyre, the marketplace for the nations. Sidon, the other prominent city along with Tyre, depended on the Mediterranean sea for its livelihood, which is personified here as a bereft father.

23:5 Egypt would be in agony because its profitable trading partner was gone.

23:6, 7 Tarshish is Tartessus in Spain and represents the most distant place to the ancient Israelites (2:16). Whose feet . . . to dwell is a personification of Tyre's colonies. Tyre's large merchant fleet traversed the Mediterranean Sea. Their colonies were sprinkled throughout the Mediterranean world in support of their shipping empire.

23:8 crowning: Tyre crowned its trading merchants with wealth and prestige.

23:9 dishonor the pride: For a similar idea, see 2:12–19.

23:12 Oppressed suggests “crushed” in war. virgin daughter of Sidon: It is possible that this phrase is used as a parody.

Jerusalem is the Lord's daughter; Tyre is merely a pretender.

23:13 Since the Chaldeans had not escaped the siege towers of the Assyrians who raised up or laid bare the foundations of Babylon's palaces, neither would Tyre.

23:15 Seventy years symbolizes a full measure of time, a lifetime.

23:16 The forgotten harlot who, in her old age, sings songs to be remembered is a metaphor for the restoration of Tyre.

23:17 Will deal is a translation of the Hebrew verb “to visit.” Although the verb can express God's merciful visitation on His people, here the verb is used to express God's judgment (24:21). Commit fornication is a metaphor for Tyre's forming economic alliances with anyone that enriched her, regardless of ethics.

23:18 Tyre's pay would be set apart, or “regarded as holy,” for the LORD (18:7; 60:5–11). This was not a violation of Deut. 23:18, which forbade bringing a harlot's pay to the temple. Tyre's destruction was part of the Lord's war against the

Impending Judgment on the Earth

- 24 Behold, the LORD makes the earth empty and makes it waste, Distorts its surface And scatters abroad its inhabitants. And it shall be:
- As with the people, so with the <sup>a</sup>priest; As with the servant, so with his master; As with the maid, so with her mistress;
- <sup>b</sup>As with the buyer, so with the seller; As with the lender, so with the borrower; As with the creditor, so with the debtor.
- <sup>3</sup>The land shall be entirely emptied and utterly plundered, For the LORD has spoken this word.
- <sup>4</sup>The earth mourns and fades away, The world languishes and fades away; The <sup>c</sup>haughty <sup>1</sup> people of the earth languish.
- <sup>5</sup><sup>d</sup>The earth is also defiled under its inhabitants, Because they have <sup>e</sup>transgressed the laws, Changed the ordinance, Broken the <sup>f</sup>everlasting covenant.
- <sup>6</sup>Therefore <sup>g</sup>the curse has devoured the earth, And those who dwell in it are <sup>2</sup>desolate.

Therefore the inhabitants of the earth are <sup>h</sup>burned, And few men are left.

- <sup>7</sup> <sup>i</sup>The new wine fails, the vine languishes, All the merry-hearted sigh.
- <sup>8</sup> The mirth <sup>j</sup>of the tambourine ceases, The noise of the jubilant ends, The joy of the harp ceases.
- <sup>9</sup> They shall not drink wine with a song; Strong drink is bitter to those who drink it.
- <sup>10</sup> The city of confusion is broken down; Every house is shut up, so that none may go in.
- <sup>11</sup> There is a cry for wine in the streets, All joy is darkened, The mirth of the land is gone.
- <sup>12</sup> In the city desolation is left, And the gate is stricken with destruction.
- <sup>13</sup> When it shall be thus in the midst of the land among the people, <sup>k</sup>It shall be like the shaking of an olive tree, Like the gleaning of grapes when the vintage is done.
- <sup>14</sup> They shall lift up their voice, they shall sing; For the majesty of the LORD They shall cry aloud from the sea.
- <sup>15</sup> Therefore <sup>l</sup>glorify the LORD in the dawning light, <sup>m</sup>The name of the LORD God of Israel in the coastlands of the sea.
- <sup>16</sup> From the ends of the earth we have heard songs: “Glory to the righteous!” But I said, <sup>3</sup>“I am ruined, ruined!

unrighteous. The spoils would belong to Him as the Victor (Deut. 2:35; Josh. 6:17, 19).

24:1–27:13 The section describing the Lord’s “burdens” against particular nations (chs. 13–23) is now placed in a larger framework that depicts God’s triumph over the entire earth for His elect. Chapter 24 focuses on God’s overthrow of the corrupted earth; ch. 25 focuses on the responsive praise to His actions. Chapters 26 and 27 focus on God’s efforts for His people.

24:1–23 Chapter 24 consists of five stanzas: (1) the desolation of the earth because of sin (vv. 1–6); (2) the end of revelry in the city (vv. 7–13); (3) glory to God, but grief over the earth (vv. 14–16); (4) the hopelessness of flight, for the whole earth shakes (vv. 17–20); (5) the vision of God reigning on Mt. Zion over the cosmos (vv. 21–23).

24:1 Scatters is an allusion to Gen. 11:9. The Lord had scattered the inhabitants of the earth in the past at the tower of Babel; He would do so again.

24:2 As . . . debtor: Wealth and power will make no difference. Both will suffer for wickedness before God.

24:4 The earth mourns: For a similar idea, see Rom. 8:22.

24:5 laws . . . ordinance . . . everlasting covenant: The usual language concerning a breach of the covenant is applied more generally to the wicked nations. Perhaps these words speak of that innate sense of right and wrong—the conscience—that God has given to all humankind, but which everyone violates (Rom. 1:18–32; compare Acts 24:16).

24:6 Left may also be translated “remnant” (10:20, 21).

24:7 New wine is simply a synonym of the standard word for wine.

24:8 Mirth and joy represent the same Hebrew word.

24:10 Confusion is translated “without form” in Gen. 1:2.

24:11 cry for wine: For a similar image, see Zeph. 1:13.

24:13 shaking . . . gleaning: People in desperation continue to seek for a single olive or for grapes.

24:14 They refers to those who love God’s law and who have suffered for righteousness.

24:15 dawning light . . . the sea: The imagery suggests the east (the dawn) and west (the Mediterranean Sea). From east to west, everyone should give the Lord the praise that is due to Him.

24:16 But I said: The prophet could not join the oppressed’s hymn of praise because he saw the awful treachery that would precede the rejoicing (33:1; Dan. 7:28; 8:27).

- Woe to me!
 "The treacherous dealers have dealt treacherously, Indeed, the treacherous dealers have dealt very treacherously."
- <sup>17</sup> Fear and the pit and the snare
 Are upon you, O inhabitant of the earth.
- <sup>18</sup> And it shall be
 That he who flees from the noise of the fear
 Shall fall into the pit,
 And he who comes up from the midst of the pit
 Shall be <sup>a</sup> caught in the snare;
 For <sup>b</sup> the windows from on high are open,
 And <sup>c</sup> the foundations of the earth are shaken.
- <sup>19</sup> The earth is violently broken,
 The earth is split open,
 The earth is shaken exceedingly.
- <sup>20</sup> The earth shall <sup>s</sup> reel <sup>s</sup> to and fro like a drunkard,
 And shall totter like a hut;
 Its transgression shall be heavy upon it,
 And it will fall, and not rise again.
- <sup>21</sup> It shall come to pass in that day
 That the LORD will punish on high the host of exalted ones,
 And on the earth <sup>t</sup> the kings of the earth.
- <sup>22</sup> They will be gathered together,
 As prisoners are gathered in the <sup>6</sup> pit,
 And will be shut up in the prison;
 After many days they will be punished.
- <sup>23</sup> Then the <sup>u</sup> moon will be disgraced

Praise to God

- 25 O LORD, You are my God.
 "I will exalt You,
 I will praise Your name,
<sup>b</sup> For You have done wonderful things;
 "Your counsels of old are faithfulness and truth.
- <sup>2</sup> For You have made <sup>d</sup> a city a ruin,
 A fortified city a ruin,
 A palace of foreigners to be a city no more;
 It will never be rebuilt.
- <sup>3</sup> Therefore the strong people will glorify You;
 The city of the <sup>1</sup> terrible nations will fear You.
- <sup>4</sup> For You have been a strength to the poor,
 A strength to the needy in his distress,
<sup>f</sup> A refuge from the storm,
 A shade from the heat;
 For the blast of the terrible ones is as a storm against the wall.
- <sup>5</sup> You will reduce the noise of aliens,
 As heat in a dry place;
 As heat in the shadow of a cloud,
 The song of the terrible ones will be <sup>2</sup> diminished.
- <sup>6</sup> And in <sup>g</sup> this mountain
<sup>h</sup> The LORD of hosts will make for <sup>i</sup> all people
 A feast of <sup>3</sup> choice pieces,
 A feast of <sup>4</sup> wines on the lees,
 Of fat things full of marrow,
 Of well-refined wines on the lees.
- <sup>7</sup> And He will destroy on this mountain
 The surface of the covering cast over all people,
 And <sup>j</sup> the veil that is spread over all nations.
- <sup>8</sup> He will <sup>k</sup> swallow up death forever,
 And the Lord God will <sup>l</sup> wipe away tears from all faces;

24:17, 18 Windows may be an allusion to the Flood (Gen. 7:11). In the OT the word means "openings."

24:21 The Hebrew word to punish means "to visit" (23:17). The host of stars (Jer. 33:22) is identified with fallen angels (Matt. 24:29; Rev. 12:4, 9).

24:22 prisoners: For a similar idea see 2 Pet. 2:4.

24:23 His elders may be a reference to angelic beings who attend God's majesty.

25:1-12 This poem celebrating God's destruction of the sinful earth falls into three parts: (1) a hymn of praise by Isaiah (vv. 1-5); (2) the Lord's feast on Mt. Zion celebrating His destruction of death (vv. 6-8); (3) a hymn of praise by the congregation (vv. 9-12).

25:1 Wonderful things refers to the wonders only God can do. Faithfulness and truth may be rephrased as "absolute truth."

25:2 Any proud city is in view here (24:10). never be rebuilt: For a similar idea, see 24:20.

25:3 The terrible nations are those addressed in chs. 13-23.

The pairing of glorify (24:15) and fear speaks of the absolute submission to God of all people (Phil. 2:10).

25:4 The repetition of the word strength and the use of the terms refuge (57:13) and shade is similar to the listing of terms for protection in Ps. 91:1-3.

25:5 The use of the term terrible ones, or nations, three times in vv. 3-5 emphasizes divine judgment on the nations represented.

25:6 mountain: For a similar usage, see 2:2. A feast of wines on the lees refers to the best wine. Fat things full of marrow refers to the choicest food. The feast is similar to the one prepared by Wisdom in Prov. 9:1-6.

25:7 The surface of the covering and veil refer to a "shroud." This is a promise of the end of death (v. 8).

25:8 Death is often pictured as an "enlarged mouth" by the poets of the Bible. Paradoxically, the Lord will swallow up death. Lord is the title meaning Sovereign or Master; the word God represents the divine name Yahweh, ordinarily

The rebuke of His people
He will take away from all the earth;
For the LORD has spoken.

9 And it will be said in that day:
“Behold, this is our God;
<sup>m</sup>We have waited for Him, and He will save us.
This is the LORD;
We have waited for Him;
<sup>n</sup>We will be glad and rejoice in His salvation.”

10 For on this mountain the hand of the LORD will rest,
And <sup>o</sup>Moab shall be trampled down
under Him,
As straw is trampled down for the refuse heap.
11 And He will spread out His hands in their midst
As a swimmer reaches out to swim,
And He will bring down their <sup>p</sup>pride Together with the trickery of their hands.
12 The <sup>q</sup>fortress of the high fort of your walls
He will bring down, lay low,
And bring to the ground, down to the dust.

A Song of Salvation

26 In <sup>a</sup>that day this song will be sung in the land of Judah:

“We have a strong city;
<sup>b</sup>God will appoint salvation for walls and bulwarks.
<sup>c</sup>Open the gates,
That the righteous nation which <sup>1</sup>keeps the truth may enter in.

Whose mind is stayed on You,
Because he trusts in You.

translated Lord. wipe away tears: This promise is given anew in Rev. 7:17; 21:4. the LORD has spoken: The promises are as sure as the eternal character of God (1:20).
25:9 Note the change from “my God” (v. 1) to our God. This verse is the faithful’s song of praise. Be glad and rejoice may be rephrased as “be exceedingly happy.” Salvation is deliverance from constraint, whether it is falling into a pit (Ps. 40:2) or the constraint of sin and death.
25:10 Moab symbolizes the proud. for the refuse heap: This phrase refers to water mixed with dung—a very unpleasant image.
25:12 He will bring down: This will be the work of the Lord.
26:1—27:1 This poem consists of three sections: (1) a pilgrim’s song celebrating the city of God (26:1–6); (2) a song of trust in God (26:7–19); (3) an encouraging promise that God will punish evil (26:20–27:1).
26:1 In that day: For a similar phrase, see 2:12. The pilgrim’s strong city presumably is Mt. Zion (2:2; 60:14).

26:2 Open the gates is the language of a pilgrim song (Ps. 118:19, 20).
26:3 The Hebrew expression translated perfect peace is literally “peace, peace”; compare the word holy in 6:3. Immanuel will inaugurate this superior kind of peace (9:6; 11:6–9).
26:4 Trust means “to commit oneself fully to.” YAH, the LORD is an emphatic designation of God (see 12:2).
26:5, 6 Line after line asserts the destruction of the lofty city (v. 1) by the power of God.
26:7 uprightness; O Most Upright: The relative uprightness of the righteous is put into the context of the absolute uprightness of the Holy One.
26:8 waited: For a similar idea, see 40:31 (compare Ps. 40:1).
26:9 in the night . . . early: The prophet describes his relentless search for God.
26:10 The wicked show contempt for God’s grace (Rom. 2:4).
Majesty is translated “excellent things” in 12:5.
26:11 Your hand: The works of God are ignored by the wicked

(5:12). The fire of may also be translated "the fire upon."
26:12 True peace comes only from the Lord (26:3; John 14:27).

26:13 Other masters included rulers of Egypt in the past, rulers of Assyria in the present, and rulers of Babylon in the future. Make mention of Your name refers to God's character as learned through past experience.

26:14 They are dead: The prophet saw the future demise of the enemies of God's people. In contrast to the faithful (v. 19), these people will not rise.

26:15 You have increased the nation: The repetition of this expression emphasizes both its certainty and its magnitude.

26:16 The pronoun they refers to the faithful nation.

26:17, 18 a woman with child: A woman can endure labor pains for the sake of the joy that follows. The faithful remnant of Isaiah's time endured oppression, but brought forth wind, a metaphor for meaningless labor.

26:19 Isaiah, addressing his faithful peers, assures them that their dead will rise in resurrection (Job 19:26; Dan. 12:2). Dew is a picture of new life and blessing (Ps. 133:3; Hos. 14:5).

26:20 My people refers to the faithful, righteous remnant. Their sufferings under the Assyrian tyrants were but for a little moment, and were not worthy to be compared to the eternal joy that would follow (26:19; 54:7; Ps. 30:5; 2 Cor. 4:17).

26:21 Comes can also be translated "is about to come." When the earth discloses the blood of the poor and needy that it has swallowed from the hands of ruthless tyrants, it will bear testimony against those evil people; the Lord will avenge them (Gen. 4:10).

27:1 Punish links this verse with 26:21; this verse is the climax of the preceding section. As in the case of the serpent Lotan in the Ugaritic myths, Leviathan was a mythological, dragon-like deity who symbolized chaos and who battled unsuccessfully against God (see Job 3:8; 41:1; Ps. 74:14). serpent . . . reptile: Isaiah borrows the imagery of this battle myth to teach that God will triumph over all who oppose Him. in the sea: See Ps. 93 for a development of this theme.

27:2-13 This prophecy is a song about the Lord's restoration of His vineyard, Israel (vv. 2-6); a contrast of the Lord's discipline of Israel (vv. 7-9) with His annihilation of its oppressors (vv. 10, 11); and a promise that the Lord will regather the exiles to Mt. Zion (vv. 12, 13).

27:2 The vineyard is Israel (5:7; 27:6). Red wine contrasts with "wild grapes" (5:2). This was God's intention for His people—He wanted them to produce, as it were, delectable wine.

27:3 I . . . keep it contrasts with "I will lay it waste" (5:6). Water it every moment contrasts with "no rain on it" (5:6). Lest any hurt it contrasts with "I will take away its hedge" (5:5). This passage is a complete reversal of the judgment recorded in ch. 5.

I keep it night and day.
 4 Fury is not in Me.
 Who would set <sup>f</sup>briers and thorns
 Against Me in battle?
 I would go through them,
 I would burn them together.
 5 Or let him take hold <sup>g</sup> of My strength,
That he may <sup>h</sup> make peace with Me;
And he shall make peace with Me.”
 6 Those who come He shall cause <sup>i</sup> to take root in Jacob;
 Israel shall blossom and bud,
 And fill the face of the world with fruit.
 7 <sup>J</sup> Has He struck <sup>2</sup> Israel as He struck those who struck him?
 Or has He been slain according to the slaughter of those who were slain by Him?
 8 <sup>k</sup> In measure, by sending it away,
 You contended with it.
<sup>l</sup> He removes it by His rough wind

 When he makes all the stones of the strong one,

<sup>w</sup> Like a tempest of hail and a destroying storm,
 Like a flood of mighty waters
 overflowing,
 Who will bring them down to the earth with His hand.

27:4 Fury is not in Me contrasts with “For all this His anger is not turned away” (5:25). Who would set briers and thorns contrasts with “there shall come up briers and thorns” (5:6).

27:5 peace: For a development of this theme, see 9:6; 11:1-16; 26:3.

27:6 Those who come refers to the regathered exiles (v. 13).

27:7 Has He: The two questions that begin with these words expect a negative answer. struck Israel: The Lord struck the nations fatally (14:22, 30), but not Israel (10:24-26).

27:8 Sending it away refers to the Exile (v. 13).

27:9 iniquity . . . covered: See 40:2 for another statement that Israel’s punishment atoned for its guilt. Wooden images: For a similar usage, see 17:8.

27:10 the fortified city will be desolate: For a similar idea, see 25:2, 10-12; 26:5, 6.

27:12 Thresh refers to harvesting a crop by flailing, such as beating an olive tree. the River to the Brook of Egypt: These geographical references mark out Israel’s ideal homeland—from the Euphrates to the Wadi el-Arish (Gen. 15:18).

27:13 The great trumpet is a figure of speech for assembling troops (Ex. 19:16, 19; 1 Sam. 13:3; 2 Sam. 6:15; Matt. 24:31; 1 Cor. 15:52; 1 Thess. 4:16).

28:1-35:10 This section consists of six woes (28:1; 29:1, 15; 30:1; 31:1; 33:1), including woes to future rulers (28:1-29:24); woes for accepting foolish counsel (30:1-31:9), with an appendix promising salvation in God the King (32:1-20); and woes against Assyria, which give promise of Zion’s future glory (33:1-35:10).

28:1-29 The woe oracle against the northern kingdom’s rulers (vv. 1-13) was to serve as an example to Judah’s rulers (vv. 14-29). Note the word therefore in v. 14.

28:1 The crown of pride refers to Samaria. drunkards: The biblical writers regularly condemn the abuse of wine, drunkenness, and debauchery (5:11, 12). Ephraim: This name sometimes refers to all of Israel (see 7:2-9).

28:2 The strong one refers to Assyria, which is likened to hail that strips a plant of its leaves and mighty waters that sweep away the stalks (8:7, 8; 17:12, 13).

Will be trampled underfoot;
<sup>4</sup> And the glorious beauty is a fading flower
Which is at the head of the <sup>2</sup>verdant valley,
Like the first fruit before the summer,
Which an observer sees;
He eats it up while it is still in his hand.

<sup>5</sup> In that day the LORD of hosts will be
For a crown of glory and a diadem of beauty
To the remnant of His people,
<sup>6</sup> For a spirit of justice to him who sits in judgment,
And for strength to those who turn back the battle at the gate.

<sup>7</sup> But they also <sup>b</sup>have erred through wine,
And through intoxicating drink are out of the way;
<sup>c</sup>The priest and the prophet have erred through intoxicating drink,
They are swallowed up by wine,
They are out of the way through intoxicating drink;
They err in vision, they stumble in judgment.

<sup>8</sup> For all tables are full of vomit and filth;
No place is clean.

<sup>9</sup> “Whom <sup>d</sup> will he teach knowledge?
And whom will he make to understand the message?
Those just weaned from milk?
Those just drawn from the breasts?”
<sup>10</sup> <sup>e</sup>For precept must be upon precept, precept upon precept,
Line upon line, line upon line,
Here a little, there a little.”

<sup>11</sup> For with <sup>f</sup>stammering lips and another tongue
He will speak to this people, <sup>12</sup> To whom He said, “This is the <sup>g</sup>rest with which
You may cause the weary to rest,”
And, “This is the refreshing”;
Yet they would not hear.

<sup>13</sup> But the word of the LORD was to them,
“Precept upon precept, precept upon precept,
Line upon line, line upon line,
Here a little, there a little,”
That they might go and fall backward, and be broken
And snared and caught.

<sup>14</sup> Therefore hear the word of the LORD,
you scornful men,
Who rule this people who are in Jerusalem,
<sup>15</sup> Because you have said, “We have made a covenant with death,
And with Sheol we are in agreement.
When the overflowing scourge passes through,
It will not come to us,
<sup>h</sup>For we have made lies our refuge,
And under falsehood we have hidden ourselves.”

A Cornerstone in Zion

<sup>16</sup>Therefore thus says the Lord God:

“Behold, I lay in Zion <sup>i</sup>a stone for a foundation,
A tried stone, a precious cornerstone,
a sure foundation;
Whoever believes will not act hastily.
<sup>17</sup> Also I will make justice the measuring line,
And righteousness the plummet;
The hail will sweep away the refuge of lies,

28:3 crown of pride: This phrase is repeated from v. 1.

28:5 In that day: For a similar phrase, see 2:12. The true crown of glory (29:17–24; 30:18–33; 32:1–33:24) stands in contrast to the false one (vv. 1–4). remnant: For similar references, see 1:9; 10:19–23.

28:6 The spirit of justice will prevail in the messianic age (11:1–5; 42:1–4).

28:7 They also refers to the religious leaders, the priest and the prophet.

28:9, 10 Will he teach was spoken by the hardened leaders against Isaiah.

28:9 A child was weaned between the ages of three and five, the time for elementary moral education, which is described in v. 10.

28:11 the stammering lips were those of the Assyrians, who would become the teachers of Israel because of Israel's own failed leadership (33:19).

28:12 In place of the rest that comes from faith, Israel's oppressors would teach with a rod.

28:13 The word of the LORD would take the shape of discipline in the form of foreigners with stammering lips teaching their morals to Israel, who should have learned from God.

28:14 Scornful men are worse than “fools”; beyond choosing what is bad, they despise what is good (Ps. 1:1).

28:15 covenant with death . . . lies . . . falsehood: These phrases are probably Isaiah's way of describing the people's covenant with Egypt. Overflowing scourge is likely the prophet's way of describing the Assyrian reprisals (10:26; 28:2). The scorners have sarcastically thrown Isaiah's warnings back in his face.

28:16, 17 Therefore: In response to the people's scoffing, the Lord God promises to establish His future kingdom on the sure foundation of justice and faith. I lay refers to the future, “I will lay.” The apostles identified the stone for a foundation

CHAPTER 29

1 <sup>a</sup> Ezek. 24:6, 9
 2 Sam. 5:9
<sup>1</sup> Jerusalem, lit.
 Lion of God

- 25 When he has leveled its surface,
 Does he not sow the black cummin
 And scatter the cummin,
 Plant the wheat in rows,
 The barley in the appointed place,
 And the <sup>5</sup>spelt in its place?
- 26 For He instructs him in right judgment,
 His God teaches him.
- 27 For the black cummin is not threshed with a threshing sledge,
 Nor is a cartwheel rolled over the cummin;
 But the black cummin is beaten out with a stick,
 And the cummin with a rod.
- 28 Bread flour must be ground;
 Therefore he does not thresh it forever,
 Break it with his cartwheel,
 Or crush it with his horsemen.
- 29 This also comes from the LORD of hosts,
<sup>n</sup> Who is wonderful in counsel and excellent in <sup>6</sup>guidance.

Woe to Jerusalem

- 29 “Woe <sup>a</sup> to <sup>1</sup> Ariel, to Ariel, the city <sup>b</sup>where David dwelt!
 Add year to year;
 Let feasts come around.
- 2 Yet I will distress Ariel;
 There shall be heaviness and sorrow,
 And it shall be to Me as Ariel.
- 3 I will encamp against you all around,
 I will lay siege against you with a mound,
 And I will raise siegeworks against you.
- 4 You shall be brought down,
 You shall speak out of the ground;
 Your speech shall be low, out of the dust;

as Jesus Christ (1 Pet. 2:4–6). hail . . . waters: For similar descriptions, see v. 2.

28:19 As often as: The Assyrian army trampled through Israel many times.

28:20 The too-short bed and the too-narrow covering give a false promise of security and comfort, an apt figure for the people’s ill-advised, obstinate alliance with Egypt.

28:21 At Mount Perazim, God broke forth like a mighty flood (2 Sam. 5:20; 1 Chr. 14:11; compare vv. 2, 15, 17, 18). In the Valley of Gibeon, He brought forth hail (Josh. 10:10, 11; compare vv. 2, 17). God’s judgment on Israel was unusual, or “alien,” in that He rarely struck out in wrath against His own sinful people. The Hebrew Scripture is not a record of the wrath of God, but of His long patience toward His erring people, whom He still desires to call “My people” (Ex. 6:2–8).

28:22 Mockers comes from the same Hebrew root as “scornful men” in v. 14. Lord God of hosts: For a similar usage, see 1:9. upon the whole earth: For a similar idea, see 24:1–23.

28:27, 28 A threshing sledge would have been too large a tool for such a finely ground product as cummin.

28:29 wonderful in counsel: For a similar idea, see 9:6. The wisdom that the farmer uses in vv. 24–28 to tend his crops comes from God, the source of all good counsel.

29:1–14 The second woe is against Jerusalem for its hypocritical religion—specifically its empty worship (vv. 1–8) and its blind prophets (vv. 9–14).

29:1 Ariel probably means “altar hearth” (Ezek. 43:15, 16). The destruction and bloodshed in Jerusalem would make the city appear like an altar. The repetition of the term Ariel indicates the Lord’s sorrow over the sorry state to which His city had fallen. where David dwelt: David made Jerusalem his capital and planned the temple that Solomon would later build in that city. These words show God’s continuing love for His servant David, the prototype of the coming King Jesus. Add year to year is a sarcastic reference to repetitious, empty ritual (1:10–17).

29:2 Heaviness and sorrow may be rephrased as “grievous sorrow.”

29:3 Siege refers to the Assyrian siege of the city in 701 B.C.

29:4 Voice . . . like a medium’s refers to the forbidden,

Your voice shall be like a medium's,
 out of the ground;
 And your speech shall whisper out of
 the dust.

- <sup>5</sup> “Moreover the multitude of your <sup>d</sup>foes
 Shall be like fine dust,
 And the multitude of the terrible ones
 Like <sup>e</sup>chaff that passes away;
 Yes, it shall be <sup>f</sup>in an instant, suddenly.
- <sup>6</sup> <sup>g</sup>You will be punished by the LORD of
 hosts
 With thunder and <sup>h</sup>earthquake and great noise,
 With storm and tempest
 And the flame of devouring fire.
- <sup>7</sup> <sup>i</sup>The multitude of all the nations who fight against <sup>2</sup>Ariel, Even all who fight against her and her fortress,
 And distress her,
 Shall be <sup>j</sup>as a dream of a night vision.
- <sup>8</sup> <sup>k</sup>It shall even be as when a hungry man dreams,
 And look—he eats;
 But he awakes, and his soul is still empty;
 Or as when a thirsty man dreams,
 And look—he drinks;
 But he awakes, and indeed he is faint,
 And his soul still craves:
 So the multitude of all the nations shall be,
 Who fight against Mount Zion.”

- <sup>11</sup> The whole vision has become to you

<sup>12</sup> Then the book is delivered to one who <sup>4</sup>is illiterate, saying, “Read this,

<sup>13</sup> Therefore the Lord said:
- <sup>14</sup> “Inasmuch as these people draw near deceptive “voices” for which the medium supposedly served as a channel. The strong voice of the city of Jerusalem would become merely a whisper (8:19).

29:6 Punished is literally “visited,” a word sometimes used for bringing salvation. thunder and earthquake and great noise . . . storm and tempest . . . fire: The Lord’s coming to His people is described using the imagery of the elements that accompanied Him at Sinai (Ex. 19:16–19) and when He fought for Israel (19:1; 30:27; Judg. 5:4, 5; Ps. 18:7–15; Hab. 3:3–7).

29:7 all the nations: For a similar usage, see 5:26. Ariel: The term is also used in v. 1 for the city of Jerusalem. As a dream means “quickly passing,” almost “unreal.”

29:9, 10 Pause . . . Blind: Whereas the religious leaders of Israel were physically drunk (28:7), those of Jerusalem stagger not from intoxicating drinks, but from ignorance of the Lord and His ways. Deep sleep is from a word used also of Adam’s sleep (Gen. 2:21), a supernatural stupor. prophets . . . seers: The visions that God had given were not appreciated or obeyed.

29:11, 12 The literate represent the religious leaders who found Isaiah’s prophecies sealed due to their own spiritual blindness (Rev. 5:1). The illiterate represent the common people.

29:13 The people’s mouths and lips spoke the right things, but their inner nature was far from God.

29:14 God’s marvelous work includes both judgment on the proud and salvation for the lowly (vv. 17–24). wisdom . . . shall perish: For a similar idea, see 1 Cor. 1:18–31.

29:15–24 The third woe oracle, directed against Israel’s unbelieving counselors, consists of an accusation that the counselors had turned the religious world upside down by seeking to manipulate God rather than submitting to Him (vv. 15, 16), and the promise that God would turn the counselor’s social world upside down by deflating the pretentious and elevating the lowly (vv. 17–24).

29:15 The word counsel refers to making alliances instead of running to God for assistance.

29:16 potter . . . clay: For a similar idea, see 45:9.

Or shall the thing formed say of him who formed it,
 “He has no understanding?”

Future Recovery of Wisdom

17 Is it not yet a very little while Till <sup>2</sup>Lebanon shall be turned into a fruitful field,
 And the fruitful field be esteemed as a forest?
 18 <sup>a</sup>In that day the deaf shall hear the words of the book,
 And the eyes of the blind shall see out of obscurity and out of darkness.
 19 <sup>b</sup>The humble also shall increase their
 joy in the LORD,
 And <sup>c</sup>the poor among men shall rejoice
 In the Holy One of Israel.
 20 For the <sup>5</sup>terrible one is brought to nothing,
<sup>d</sup>The scornful one is consumed,

 7 <sup>j</sup>For the Egyptians shall help in vain and to no purpose.

29:17 Lebanon is a symbol of the earth’s might (2:13; 10:34; 33:9). Fruitful field, or “garden,” is the opposite of Lebanon, a forest.
 29:18 Those who were once deaf and blind to the words of the book will miraculously understand it (vv. 9–12).
 29:19 poor: For a similar usage, see 61:1.
 29:20 terrible one: For similar references, see 13:11; 25:3, 4; 49:24. scornful: For a similar reference, see 28:14.
 29:21 By a word refers to false testimony. Lay a snare may include the miscarriage of justice through legal technicalities. By empty words refers to winning a case through lies or clever arguments.
 29:22 redeemed Abraham: For additional information, see Acts 7:2–4. Jacob shall not now be ashamed: Based on God’s covenant with the patriarchs, the Lord gave a renewed promise of deliverance and blessing to the Israelites.
 29:23 My hands: God Himself will bring about the redemption of His people. Holy One of Jacob refers to the One whom Jacob regarded as holy; it is a variant of the expression “Holy One of Israel.”
 30:1–33 In the previous chapter, Isaiah denounces those who seek human support, instead of depending on the Lord. In chs. 30 and 31, Isaiah addresses the specific folly of depending on Egypt. This woe oracle consists of a condemnation of dependence on Egypt (vv. 1–17) and a promise that the Lord will save Israel and destroy Assyria (vv. 18–33).

 30:1 This is the fourth woe in 28:1–35:10. The rebellious children are Hezekiah’s advisers. To the sin of injustice they add the sin of devising plans independently of God. My Spirit is another way of speaking of God (11:2).
 30:2 the shadow of Egypt: The contrast, of course, would be trusting in the “shadow of the Almighty” (Ps. 91:1).
 30:3 Shame refers to deep humiliation.
 30:4 His ambassadors may be the people from Judah who went from Zoan (19:11–13) in the Delta to Hanes, some 50 miles south of Cairo.
 30:5 Shame and reproach speak of an intolerable humiliation.
 30:6 The burden against the beasts was due to the fact that they vainly carried Judah’s gifts through the wilderness to Egypt (vv. 7–11).
 30:7 Rahab, which literally means “Storm” or “Arrogant,” was a dragon from pagan mythology who was pictured as resisting

- <sup>8</sup> Now go, <sup>k</sup> write it before them on a tablet,

 Forever and ever:
<sup>9</sup> That <sup>l</sup> this is a rebellious people,
 Lying children,
 Children who will not hear the law of the LORD;
<sup>10 m</sup> Who say to the seers, “Do not see,”
 And to the prophets, “Do not prophesy to us right things;
 ”Speak to us smooth things, prophesy deceits.
<sup>11</sup> Get out of the way,
 Turn aside from the path,
 Cause the Holy One of Israel
 To cease from before us.”

<sup>12</sup> Therefore thus says the Holy One of Israel:

- “Because you <sup>o</sup> despise this word,
 And trust in oppression and perversity,
 And rely on them,
<sup>13</sup> Therefore this iniquity shall be to you
 ”Like a breach ready to fall,
 A bulge in a high wall,
 Whose breaking <sup>q</sup> comes suddenly, in an instant.
<sup>14</sup> And <sup>r</sup> He shall break it like the breaking of the potter’s vessel,
 Which is broken in pieces;
 He shall not spare.
 So there shall not be found among its fragments
<sup>4</sup> A shard to take fire from the hearth,
 Or to take water from the cistern.”

 In quietness and confidence shall be your strength.”
 “But you would not,
<sup>16</sup> And you said, “No, for we will flee on horses”—

 And, “We will ride on swift horses”—
 Therefore those who pursue you shall be swift!

 At the threat of five you shall flee,

God Will Be Gracious

- <sup>18</sup> Therefore the LORD will wait, that He may be <sup>v</sup> gracious to you;
 And therefore He will be exalted,
 that He may have mercy on you.
 For the LORD is a God of justice;
 ”Blessed are all those who <sup>x</sup> wait for Him.
<sup>19</sup> For the people <sup>y</sup> shall dwell in Zion at Jerusalem;
 You shall <sup>z</sup> weep no more.
 He will be very gracious to you at the sound of your cry;
 When He hears it, He will <sup>a</sup> answer you.
<sup>20</sup> And though the Lord gives you
<sup>b</sup> The bread of adversity and the water of <sup>6</sup> affliction,
 Yet <sup>c</sup> your teachers will not be moved into a corner anymore,
 But your eyes shall see your teachers.

creation. Both Rahab and Leviathan are symbolic of the forces of evil in the universe that God will destroy (51:9).

30:9 That can mean “because.” Law refers to the prophet’s instruction, which is from the Lord Himself (see v. 15).

30:10 Do not see: For a similar usage, see Mic. 2:6.

30:11 To cease: This was the most flagrant of the people’s wicked words.

30:12 To not choose to obey the Lord is to reject Him, even to despise His message. trust in oppression: For a similar idea, see 1:15–17; 29:20, 21.

30:13, 14 A bulge in a high wall and the breaking of the potter’s vessel signify that judgment would come suddenly and completely. A shard is a piece of broken pottery.

30:15 Returning entails repentance. rest: For a similar idea, see 28:12. Quietness and confidence may be rephrased as “utter trust.” Trusting in God’s strength instead of our own is the only way we can find true rest.

30:16 Instead of trusting in the Lord, the people were depending on Egypt for horses and chariots to defend the land (31:1).

30:17 One thousand shall flee: The point is that the nation will be utterly routed (Deut. 32:30).

30:18 God’s justice demands that the Assyrian oppressors be punished (Judg. 2:16). God’s gracious character and His mercy are balanced; they interact with His justice and the fact that He will be exalted.

30:19 You shall weep no more: A similar promise is given in 25:8. the sound of your cry: For a similar idea, see Judg. 2:18.

30:20 bread of adversity: The Lord was giving the Israelites meager rations as though they were in prison (1 Kin. 22:27). But after judgment the Lord would provide salvation: Israel’s eyes would see (29:24). Teachers probably refers to the prophets (v. 10).

30:21 Walk in it contrasts with “turn aside” in v. 11. The people

“This is the way, walk in it,” Whenever you <sup>d</sup>turn to the right hand
Or whenever you turn to the left.
<sup>22</sup> <sup>e</sup>You will also defile the covering of your images of silver,
And the ornament of your molded images of gold.
You will throw them away as an unclean thing;
<sup>f</sup>You will say to them, “Get away!”

<sup>23</sup> <sup>g</sup>Then He will give the rain for your seed
With which you sow the ground,
And bread of the increase of the
earth;
It will be <sup>7</sup>fat and plentiful.
In that day your cattle will feed
In large pastures.

<sup>24</sup> Likewise the oxen and the young donkeys that work the ground
Will eat cured fodder,
Which has been winnowed with the shovel and fan.

<sup>25</sup> There will be <sup>h</sup>on every high mountain
And on every high hill
Rivers and streams of waters,
In the day of the <sup>i</sup>great slaughter,
When the towers fall.

<sup>26</sup> Moreover <sup>j</sup>the light of the moon will be as the light of the sun,
And the light of the sun will be sevenfold,
As the light of seven days,
In the day that the LORD binds up the bruise of His people
And heals the stroke of their wound.

<sup>29</sup> You shall have a song

had been living in such a way that they were oblivious to their spiritual teachers (v. 20); now they would be taught by the Spirit of the living God.

30:22 Defile means “to desecrate by destruction” (2 Kin. 23:4–14). Unclean thing refers to something soiled by menstruation; the idea is to get rid of it.

30:23, 24 The promises that were part of the original Mosaic covenant were in force again. rain: Blessing would extend from field to flock (Deut. 28:11, 12).

30:25, 26 on every high mountain . . . light of the sun will be sevenfold: These phrases emphasize the magnitude of the coming salvation. waters: The coming of ample rainfall and strong streams are associated with the blessing that comes from trust in God (32:2; 41:17, 18). When the towers fall is associated with the collapse of human pride (2:12–17).

30:27 The name of the LORD refers to His character, as memorialized in His saving acts throughout history. Comes refers to the Lord’s coming in a storm (29:6).

30:28 His breath describes the sound of the Lord’s voice as a roaring, overflowing river. neck: For a similar image, see 8:8.

30:29 song . . . in the night: In times of festivals, singing would extend long into the evening. The Mighty One literally means “Rock” (Ps. 144:1).

30:30, 31 Here God’s voice is compared to the thunder (Ps. 29:3, 4; contrast v. 28). descent of His arm: The strong arm of God had delivered the Israelites from Egypt; now His arm would descend in judgment (see Ex. 6:6). Assyria: Only here in this section is the enemy nation mentioned by name.

30:32 tambourines: For additional references to this instrument, see Ex. 15:20; 1 Sam. 18:6. And in battles: These were soldier-musicians; they were to be ready to fight or to play music as the occasion demanded.

30:33 Tophet, located south of Jerusalem, was the place where the valleys of Hinnom and Kidron met. It was probably a deep, wide pit containing a bonfire of blazing wood, where children had at times been burned to death as offerings to pagan deities (2 Kin. 23:10; Jer. 7:31, 32; 19:6, 11–14). The area has filled in significantly through the centuries. Brimstone is a reminder of the fiery destruction of Sodom (34:9, 10; Gen. 19:24).

The Folly of Not Trusting God

31 Woe to those <sup>a</sup>who go down to Egypt for help,
 And <sup>b</sup>rely on horses,
 Who trust in chariots because they are many,
 And in horsemen because they are very strong,
 But who do not look to the Holy One
 of Israel,
<sup>c</sup>Nor seek the LORD!
<sup>2</sup> Yet He also is wise and will bring disaster,
 And <sup>d</sup>will not <sup>i</sup>call back His words,
 But will arise against the house of evildoers,
 And against the help of those who work iniquity.
<sup>3</sup> Now the Egyptians are men, and not God;
 And their horses are flesh, and not spirit.
 When the LORD stretches out His
 hand,
 Both he who helps will fall,
 And he who is helped will fall down;
 They all will perish <sup>e</sup>together.

God Will Deliver Jerusalem

<sup>4</sup>For thus the LORD has spoken to me:
<sup>f</sup>As a lion roars,
 And a young lion over his prey (When a multitude of shepherds is summoned against him,
 He will not be afraid of their voice
 Nor be disturbed by their noise),
 So the LORD of hosts will come down
 To fight for Mount Zion and for its hill.
<sup>5</sup> Like birds flying about,

<sup>1 a</sup> Ps. 45:1
<sup>3 c</sup> Is. 29:18; 35:5

So will the LORD of hosts defend Jerusalem.
 Defending, He will also deliver it;
 Passing over, He will preserve it.<sup>9</sup>

 And a sword not of mankind shall <sup>l</sup>devour him.
 But he shall flee from the sword,
 And his young men shall become forced labor.
<sup>9 m</sup>He shall cross over to his stronghold for fear,
 And his princes shall be afraid of the banner,”
 Says the LORD,
 Whose fire is in Zion
 And whose furnace is in Jerusalem.

A Reign of Righteousness

32 Behold, <sup>a</sup>a king will reign in righteousness,
 And princes will rule with justice.
<sup>2</sup> A man will be as a hiding place from the wind,
 And <sup>b</sup>a <sup>i</sup>cover from the tempest,
 As rivers of water in a dry place,
 As the shadow of a great rock in a weary land.
<sup>3</sup> <sup>c</sup>The eyes of those who see will not be dim,
 And the ears of those who hear will listen.

31:1-9 The fifth woe oracle reaffirms the fourth oracle (30:1-33); it too was addressed to those who replaced faith in the Lord with reliance on Egypt. This oracle consists of a condemnation of dependence on Egypt (vv. 1-3), and a promise that the Lord will save Mt. Zion (vv. 4, 5) and destroy Assyria (vv. 6-9).

31:1 Woe to those who go down to Egypt: For a similar idea, see 30:2. Look means “to look with interest” or “to look with respect.” Seek the LORD here entails consulting His prophets for direction (29:9, 10; 30:1).

31:2, 3 The house of evildoers refers to Judah. Their help refers to Egypt. Both Egypt and Judah will perish together.

31:4, 5 Lion connotes the LORD of hosts (1:9) and His resolve to fight the enemy. The multitude of shepherds refers to the Assyrian officers. Mount Zion and hill are synonyms. Birds flying about pictures the Lord’s passionate commitment to defend Jerusalem. Passing over is a technical term used for the destroying angel who “passed over” Israel in destroying the Egyptians and defending Israel (Ex. 12:13, 23).

31:6, 7 revolted: For an explanation of the rebellion, see 30:1. throw away: For a similar idea, see 30:22. your own hands have made: For similar wording, see 2:8; 17:8.

31:8 Not of man refers to the death angel that destroyed Sennacherib’s vaunted army (37:36).

31:9 A banner was a rallying point for a battle. The princes would be too dispirited to rally for the cause. fire: For similar imagery, see 10:17, 18; 30:27, 30, 33.

32:1-20 The fifth woe (ch. 31) concludes with a prophecy about leadership (vv. 1-8) and its effects (vv. 9-20). Paradoxically, generous leaders (vv. 1-5) produce abundance and permanent security (vv. 16-20), whereas the miserly (vv. 6, 7) produce false security and desolation (vv. 9-14).

32:1 The prophecy concerning this king is fulfilled in the Lord Jesus Christ (7:14; 9:1-7; 11:1-5; 28:16; John 10:11, 16). The princes are His “undershepherds” (1 Pet. 5:2-4).

32:2 The four similes for the future King’s protection and provision of His people contrast with Israel’s present incompetent leadership (28:7; 29:9, 10; 30:1, 2; 31:1, 2).

32:3, 4 Clear eyes and listening ears are figures for the future sensible leadership, in contrast to the present senseless, foolish leadership. The people’s eyes and ears would also be opened (6:9, 10; 29:18, 24; 35:5; 42:7); similarly, they would have a heart that is understanding and a tongue that speaks plainly.

- 4 Also the heart of the <sup>2</sup>rash will <sup>d</sup>understand knowledge,
And the tongue of the stammerers will be ready to speak plainly.
- 5 The foolish person will no longer be called <sup>3</sup>generous,
Nor the miser said to be bountiful;
6 For the foolish person will speak
foolishness,
And his heart will work <sup>e</sup>iniquity:
To practice ungodliness,
To utter error against the LORD,
To keep the hungry unsatisfied,
And he will cause the drink of the thirsty to fail.
- 7 Also the schemes of the schemer are
evil;
He devises wicked plans
To destroy the poor with <sup>f</sup>lying words,
Even when the needy speaks justice.
- 8 But a <sup>4</sup>generous man devises generous things,
And by generosity he shall stand.

Consequences of Complacency

- 9 Rise up, you women <sup>g</sup>who are at ease,
Hear my voice;
You complacent daughters,
Give ear to my speech.

1 <sup>a</sup> Is. 21:2;
Hab. 2:8

- For the pleasant fields, for the fruitful vine.
- 13 <sup>h</sup> On the land of my people will come up thorns and briers,
Yes, on all the happy homes in <sup>i</sup>the joyous city;
- 14 <sup>j</sup> Because the palaces will be forsaken,
The bustling city will be deserted.
The forts and towers will become lairs forever,
A joy of wild donkeys, a pasture of flocks—
- 15 Until <sup>k</sup>the Spirit is poured upon us from on high,
And <sup>l</sup>the wilderness becomes a
fruitful field,
And the fruitful field is counted as a forest.

The Peace of God's Reign

- 16 Then justice will dwell in the wilderness,
And righteousness remain in the fruitful field.
- 17 <sup>m</sup> The work of righteousness will be peace,
And the effect of righteousness,
quietness and assurance forever.

habitation,
In secure dwellings, and in quiet

And the city is brought low in humiliation.
- 20 Blessed are you who sow beside all waters,
Who send out freely the feet of <sup>q</sup>the ox and the donkey.

A Prayer in Deep Distress

- 33 Woe to a who plunder, though you have not been
plundered;

32:6, 7 The contrast between the way the noble and foolish speak comes from the person's heart (v. 4). If a person meditates on evil, that person will speak and act treacherously. destroy the poor with lying words: For a similar idea see 29:20, 21.

32:9 The term complacent is used three times of these women (vv. 9, 10, 12); it is derived from the verb meaning "to trust." Thus the word can also be rendered as "assured" and "secure" (see also vv. 17, 19). Although the wicked erroneously relied on Egypt for their security (see 31:1), the righteous placed their trust in the Lord and obtained true security.

32:11, 12 Mourning women in the ancient Middle East removed their clothing and wore sackcloth around their waists (Gen. 37:34).

32:13, 14 thorns and briers: For similar usage, see 5:6; 7:23. palaces . . . pasture: These images speak of the complete ruin of Jerusalem in the day of God's judgment.

32:15 The new age depends on the creative work of the Spirit (11:2; 42:1; 61:1; Ezek. 36:26, 27; Joel 2:28, 29) who originates on high, in God's dwelling (33:5). This is in contrast to going "down to Egypt" (31:1).

32:16 fruitful field: This is a reversal of the judgment predicted in 29:17.

32:17, 18 The Hebrew words translated assurance and secure are related to the Hebrew word translated "complacent" in v. 9.

32:19 Hail may refer to Assyria (28:2).

33:1-24 The sixth woe differs from the others in that it is addressed to Assyria, not to Judah. By focusing exclusively on Assyria's defeat and Judah's salvation, the prophecy magnifies Judah's exalted King (vv. 3, 5, 10). This woe oracle consists of an introduction of the main themes of the oracle (vv. 1-6); an emphasis on Judah's need for salvation and the Lord's provision of that need (vv. 7-13), and its spiritual impact on

Impending Judgment on Zion

- <sup>10</sup> “Now<sup>k</sup> I will rise,” says the LORD;
 “Now I will be exalted,
 Now I will lift Myself up.”
- <sup>11</sup> <sup>l</sup> You shall conceive chaff,
 You shall bring forth stubble;
 Your breath, as fire, shall devour you.
- <sup>12</sup> And the people shall be like the burnings of lime;
<sup>m</sup>Like thorns cut up they shall be burned in the fire.
- <sup>13</sup> Hear, “you who are afar off, what I have done;
 And you who are near, acknowledge My might.”
- <sup>14</sup> The sinners in Zion are afraid;
 Fearfulness has seized the hypocrites:
 “Who among us shall dwell with the devouring <sup>o</sup>fire?
 Who among us shall dwell with everlasting burnings?”
- <sup>15</sup> He who <sup>n</sup>walks righteously and speaks uprightly,
 He who despises the gain of oppressions,
 Who gestures with his hands,
 refusing bribes,
 Who stops his ears from hearing of bloodshed,
 And <sup>o</sup>shuts his eyes from seeing evil:
<sup>16</sup> He will dwell on <sup>q</sup>high;
 His place of defense will be the fortress of rocks;

sinners (vv. 14–16); and a conclusion showing the majestic King in His beauty (vv. 17–24).

33:1 You refers to Assyria, who treacherously (21:2; 24:16) broke its treaties (2 Kin. 18:13–37).

33:2 be gracious: For a similar idea, see 30:18. The besieged remnant, including Isaiah, had waited for the Lord in prayer (37:14–20) and in confident expectation (40:31). salvation: For a similar reference to God as the only place to find salvation, see 12:2.

33:3 When You lift Yourself up speaks of an exaltation of the heavenly King (vv. 5, 10) as He rises to demonstrate His glory and vindicate His justice. Scattered is an allusion to Moses’ song of praise (see Num. 10:35).

33:4 The plunder of God’s war with His enemies belongs to the Lord, the true Victor (23:18; 34:2). It will be gathered as swiftly and completely as the caterpillar and locusts can strip a field, since the Lord’s judgment will come quickly without warning (1 Thess. 5:2).

33:5 exalted . . . on high: This chapter presents the “rising glory” of the Savior King over His people, defending them against Assyria and all others. Justice and righteousness may be rephrased as “true justice.”

33:6 Wisdom and knowledge . . . fear of the LORD: The Messiah’s characteristics (11:2) will also characterize His city.

33:7, 8 Valiant ones may sarcastically refer to three officials of Judah who conferred with the Assyrians (36:3, 22). Judah’s ambassadors wept bitterly because Assyria took their gifts, but continued to besiege Jerusalem (v. 1). With the treaty between Assyria and Judah broken, the highways were not safe.

33:9 Sharon was on the western coastal plain. Bashan was on the east side of the Jordan.

33:10 Now . . . Now . . . Now: The King is about to assert His authority (vv. 5, 16).

33:11 You refers to Assyria (v. 1). chaff . . . stubble . . . fire: The grandeur of Assyria would be consumed quickly.

33:12 The burnings of lime—all that is left from burning lime is dust—and thorns . . . in the fire indicate the thoroughness and swiftness of Assyria’s destruction (27:4).

33:13 Hear: For a similar call for all to acknowledge the Lord as Sovereign, see 34:1.

33:14 Who among us shall dwell: This is the language of a pilgrimage psalm (see Ps. 15:1; 24:3). burnings: For a description of God as a consuming fire, see Deut. 4:24; 9:3; Heb. 12:29.

33:15, 16 walks righteously: For a similar description of the person who can approach the Holy One, see Ps. 1:1, 2; 15:2; Gal. 5:22–25; Eph. 5:1, 2. Who stops . . . shuts: These words do not advocate ignoring social evil, but refusing to take part in

Bread will be given him,
His water will be sure.

The Land of the Majestic King

<sup>17</sup> Your eyes will see the King in His <sup>r</sup>beauty;
They will see the land that is very far off.
<sup>18</sup> Your heart will meditate on terror:
“Where is the scribe?
Where is he who weighs?
Where is he who counts the towers?”
<sup>19</sup> <sup>v</sup>You will not see a fierce people, “A people of obscure speech, beyond perception,
Of a <sup>s</sup>stammering tongue that you cannot understand.
<sup>20</sup> <sup>v</sup>Look upon Zion, the city of our appointed feasts;
Your eyes will see <sup>w</sup>Jerusalem, a quiet
home,
A tabernacle that will not be taken down;
<sup>x</sup>Not one of <sup>y</sup>its stakes will ever be removed,
Nor will any of its cords be broken.
<sup>21</sup> But there the majestic LORD will be for us
A place of broad rivers and streams,
In which no <sup>6</sup>galley with oars will sail,
Nor majestic ships pass by <sup>22</sup> (For the LORD is our <sup>z</sup>Judge,
The LORD is our <sup>a</sup>Lawgiver,
<sup>b</sup>The LORD is our King;
He will save us);

Judgment on the Nations

34 Come <sup>a</sup>near, you nations, to hear;
And heed, you people!
<sup>b</sup>Let the earth hear, and all that is in it,
The world and all things that come forth from it.
<sup>2</sup> For the indignation of the LORD is against all nations,
And His fury against all their armies;
He has utterly destroyed them,
He has given them over to the <sup>c</sup>slaughter.
<sup>3</sup> Also their slain shall be thrown out;
<sup>d</sup>Their stench shall rise from their corpses,
And the mountains shall be melted
with their blood.
<sup>4</sup> <sup>e</sup>All the host of heaven shall be dissolved,
And the heavens shall be rolled up
like a scroll;
<sup>f</sup>All their host shall fall down
As the leaf falls from the vine,
And as <sup>g</sup>fruit falling from a fig tree.
<sup>5</sup> “For <sup>h</sup>My sword shall be bathed in heaven;
Indeed it <sup>i</sup>shall come down on Edom,
And on the people of My curse, for judgment.
<sup>6</sup> The <sup>j</sup>sword of the LORD is filled with blood,
It is made <sup>l</sup>overflowing with fatness,

it. On high refers to God’s dwelling (v. 5)—the place the righteous will go to live with God forever.
33:17 The King is the Lord (v. 22). The land of the Lord’s dominion will stretch very far off (26:15).
33:18 The scribe . . . who weighs refers to those who took the tribute (2 Kin. 18:14).
33:19 stammering tongue: For a similar idea concerning Israel’s enemies, see Deut. 28:49.
33:20 The feasts were celebrated from the heart (30:29), and not perfunctorily (29:1). Not be taken down implies that the Exile is over. Judah’s immediate salvation merges with its ultimate deliverance.
33:21 Judah would be protected figuratively by broad rivers, like those at Tyre (23:1-3) and Thebes (Nah. 3:8). However, no intimidating ship would be on the rivers, because God Himself would defend Judah.
33:22 Note that the Lawgiver is associated with other acts of mercy (Deut. 6:1-3; John 1:14-18); the giving of the Law was God’s way to point out the correct path for the Israelites to follow. This was merely another expression of His mercy.
33:24 Sickness and sin will be removed in the coming kingdom of the glorious Savior.

34:1—35:10 Two prophecies form an appendix to the sixth woe (ch. 33): (1) the fertile land of the plundering nations will be transformed into a desert (ch. 34); (2) the desert will be transformed into fertile land (ch. 35).
34:1 nations: For a similar reference, see 5:26. Let the earth hear: For similar calls for all the world to listen to Isaiah’s prophecy, see 1:2; 33:13.
34:2 Indignation is a strong term used to describe the wrath of God. Destroyed means “to devote to destruction.” Because the Lord had defeated His enemy, the spoils were to be devoted totally to Him by burning them (23:18).
34:3 The blood of the slain would be so great that it would create mudslides.
34:4 The host of heaven here refers to pagan deities (24:21; 2 Kin. 17:16). be dissolved: See the similar language of 13:10, 13. heavens . . . rolled up like a scroll: The old cosmos will give way to the new (51:6; Matt. 24:29; Rev. 6:13, 14; 21:1).
34:5 The Lord’s avenging sword moves from demolishing the pantheon of heaven (v. 4) to Edom (63:1) in particular. Curse comes from the same root translated “destroyed” in v. 2. Edom is “devoted to destruction.”
34:6 Blood and slaughter link Edom’s destruction with that

- With the blood of lambs and goats,
With the fat of the kidneys of rams.
For <sup>h</sup>the LORD has a sacrifice in Bozrah,
And a great slaughter in the land of Edom.
- <sup>7</sup> The wild oxen shall come down with
them,
And the young bulls with the mighty
bulls;
Their land shall be soaked with
blood,
And their dust <sup>2</sup>saturated with fatness.”
- <sup>8</sup> For it is the day of the LORD’s <sup>1</sup>vengeance,
The year of recompense for the cause of Zion.
- <sup>9</sup> <sup>m</sup>Its streams shall be turned into pitch,
And its dust into brimstone;
Its land shall become burning pitch.
- <sup>10</sup> It shall not be quenched night or day;
<sup>n</sup>Its smoke shall ascend forever.
<sup>o</sup>From generation to generation it shall lie waste;
No one shall pass through it forever
and ever.
- <sup>11</sup> <sup>p</sup>But the <sup>3</sup>pelican and the <sup>4</sup>porcupine shall possess it,
Also the owl and the raven shall
dwell in it.
And <sup>q</sup>He shall stretch out over it
The line of confusion and the stones of emptiness.
- <sup>12</sup> They shall call its nobles to the kingdom,
But none shall be there, and all its princes shall be nothing.

of the nations (vv. 2, 3). Sin must be atoned for by sacrifice, either of the sinner himself as here (Ezek. 33:10), or by the substitutionary sacrifice of Christ (52:13–15).

34:7 Oxen and bulls may represent Edom’s troops or leaders.

34:8 vengeance: The Lord secures His sovereignty and keeps His community whole by saving His wronged subjects and punishing their guilty oppressors.

34:9 Brimstone and burning pitch may be allusions to Sodom and Gomorrah (30:33; see Gen. 19:24; Ezek. 38:22).

34:11 The pelican, porcupine, owl, and raven are all unclean creatures of remote, uninhabited places (see Deut. 14:14–17). In the day of God’s judgment, Edom would become a wasteland. The Hebrew words translated confusion and emptiness are translated “without form and void” in Gen. 1:2. Edom will be returned to chaos.

34:12 There will be no nobles or princes in the desert.

34:13–15 For a similar description of these unclean desert creatures, see 13:21, 22.

34:16 The book of the LORD may refer to the prophecy found in vv. 1–15.

34:17 As God gave Israel the Promised Land by lot in the sacred assembly (Josh. 18:10), so in His judgment He divided Edom among the unclean animals.

35:1 wilderness . . . desert: The Spirit of God will make the earth fruitful again (32:15). rejoice: The joy of the elements of creation is a reflection of the joy of God’s people at the arrival of His salvation (14:7, 8; 44:23; 55:12).

35:2 glory of Lebanon . . . Sharon: This is a reversal of the judgment of 33:9. The glory of the LORD would be seen in the return of the captives from Babylon (40:5).

35:3 Strengthen the weak hands: This phrase is cited in Heb. 12:12 (see also Josh. 1:6, 7, 9, 18). We can reassure ourselves

Sennacherib Boasts Against the LORD

36 Now it came to pass in the fourtenth year of King Hezekiah that Sennacherib king of Assyria came up against all the fortified cities of Judah and took them. <sup>2</sup>Then the king of Assyria sent the <sup>1</sup>Rabshakeh with a great army from Lachish to King Hezekiah at Jerusalem. And he stood by the aqueduct from the upper pool, on the highway to the Fuller’s Field. <sup>3</sup>And <sup>b</sup>Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, who was over the household, <sup>c</sup>Shebna the scribe, and Joah the son of Asaph, the recorder, came out to him.

<sup>4</sup>Then the Rabshakeh said to them, “Say now to Hezekiah, ‘Thus says the great king, the king of Assyria: “What confidence is this in which you trust?’ <sup>5</sup>I say you speak of having plans and power for war; but they are <sup>2</sup>mere words. Now in whom do you trust, that you rebel against me? <sup>6</sup>Look! You are trusting in the <sup>c</sup>staff of this broken reed, Egypt, on which if a man leans, it will go into his hand and pierce it. So is Pharaoh king of Egypt to all who <sup>f</sup>trust in him.

<sup>7</sup>“But if you say to me, ‘We trust in the LORD our God,’ is it not He whose high places and whose altars Hezekiah has taken away, and said to Judah and Jerusalem, ‘You shall worship before with the knowledge that our Savior is coming. In that day, justice will be restored.

35:4 save you: When the Lord comes, He will offer salvation (see Luke 19:10). vengeance: See the use of this word in 34:8.

35:5, 6 eyes . . . ears . . . lame . . . tongue: This prophecy of healings was fulfilled in the physical and spiritual healings of Jesus (61:1; see Matt. 12:22; Luke 4:18; 7:22). opened . . . unstopped: For similar usage, see 29:18; 32:3.

35:7 The habitation of jackals speaks of the coming reversal of the devastation God had brought on the land (see 34:14). Reeds and rushes speaks of the reversal of the destruction described in 19:5, 6.

35:8 The promise of a safe highway is a reversal of the judgment in 33:8; 34:10 (see also 11:16; 40:3, 4; 57:14; 62:10). ravenous beast: Ferocious animals could make traveling dangerous in the ancient world.

35:10 the ransomed: The restored Babylonian exiles symbolize political and spiritual exiles and the physically and spiritually blind, deaf, and lame of all times and places. The Lord would come to rescue them from their tragic predicaments. come to Zion with singing: For a description of this scene, see 12:1 (compare Ps. 126:1–6). sorrow and sighing: For more detail, see 25:7, 8.

36:1–39:8 This historical bridge between chs. 1–35 and 40–66 consists of two parts: (1) Hezekiah’s faith in the face of an Assyrian threat (chs. 36; 37); (2) Hezekiah’s mixed faith in the face of illness (chs. 38; 39).

36:1–37:38 This section validates Isaiah’s predictions that the Lord would (1) destroy Judah through Assyria (36:1), (2) besiege Jerusalem (36:2–22), (3) deliver the faithful remnant (37:1–35), and destroy the Assyrians (37:36–38). Isaiah proclaims that sin compounded with misplaced confidence brings defeat; conversely, repentance and faith in the Lord brings deliverance (2 Kin. 18:13–19:37; 2 Chr. 32:1–23).

36:1 The fourteenth year of King Hezekiah’s sole reign was 701 B.C. all: In his annals, Sennacherib mentions 46 cities that he attacked.

36:2 The Rabshakeh may have been the king’s personal advisor. great army: For the defeat of this fighting force, see 37:36. aqueduct: For a similar reference, see 7:3.

36:3 Eliakim . . . Shebna: For further details, see 22:15–23.

36:4 Only the Assyrian leader is referred to here as king, not Hezekiah. This is an indication of the Assyrians’ perspective on their own status.

36:6 Judah had refused to listen to Isaiah’s insistence that reliance on Egypt was worthless (19:14–16; 30:3, 7; 31:3). Here they were given the same warning from their enemy.

36:7 taken away: Hezekiah had destroyed the idolatrous high places and altars that his father Ahaz had built (see 2 Kin. 18:1–5; 2 Chr. 31:1–3).

this altar?”<sup>8</sup> Now therefore, I urge you, give a pledge to my master the king of Assyria, and I will give you two thousand horses—if you are able on your part to put riders on them!<sup>9</sup> How then will you repel one captain of the least of my master’s servants, and put your trust in Egypt for chariots and horsemen?<sup>10</sup> Have I now come up without the LORD against this land to destroy it? The LORD said to me, ‘Go up against this land, and destroy it.’”

<sup>11</sup> Then Eliakim, Shebna, and Joah said to the Rabshakeh, “Please speak to your servants in Aramaic, for we understand it; and do not speak to us in <sup>3</sup>Hebrew in the hearing of the people who are on the wall.”

<sup>12</sup> But the Rabshakeh said, “Has my master sent me to your master and to you to speak these words, and not to the men who sit on the wall, who will eat and drink their own waste with you?”

<sup>13</sup> Then the Rabshakeh stood and called out with a loud voice in Hebrew, and said, “Hear the words of the great king, the king of Assyria! <sup>14</sup> Thus says the king: ‘Do not let Hezekiah deceive you, for he will not be able to deliver you; <sup>15</sup> nor let Hezekiah make you trust in the LORD, saying, “The LORD will surely deliver us; this city will not be given into the hand of the king of Assyria.”’ <sup>16</sup> Do not listen to Hezekiah; for thus says the king of Assyria: ‘Make peace with me by a present and come out to me; <sup>17</sup> and every one of you eat from his own vine and every one from his own fig tree, and every one of

36:8 riders: Micah referred to Jerusalem’s soldiers as merely a “troop” (Mic. 5:1) compared to the enormous international army of Assyria (Mic. 4:11).

36:9 one captain of the least: Judah had no hope of defeating the force that surrounded him.

36:10 The LORD said to me: Ancient Middle Eastern conquerors liked to claim that the gods of their defeated enemies had joined their side (2 Chr. 35:21). These words about the Lord were no more than a boast.

36:11 Aramaic was the language of international diplomacy during this period.

36:13, 14 The Rabshakeh spoke in Hebrew to be deliberately provocative: he wanted his words to be understood by the citizens of Jerusalem. deceive you: The Rabshakeh structured his speech so that he would quickly discourage those who heard it.

The Assyrian Empire (650 B.C.) By 650 B.C. the Assyrian Empire, whose capital was Nineveh, stretched from the Persian Gulf in the east through the fertile crescent into Palestine and beyond, embracing for a short time all of Egypt in the southwest. Judah paid tribute to Assyria during the reign of Manasseh, even though it was technically a free zone.

you drink the waters of his own cistern; <sup>17</sup> until I come and take you away to a land like your own land, a land of grain and new wine, a land of bread and vineyards. <sup>18</sup> Beware lest Hezekiah persuade you, saying, “The LORD will deliver us.” Has any one of the <sup>h</sup> gods of the nations delivered its land from the hand of the king of Assyria? <sup>19</sup> Where are the gods of Hamath and Arpad? Where are the gods of Sepharvaim? Indeed, have they delivered <sup>l</sup> Samaria from my hand? <sup>20</sup> Who among all the gods of these lands have delivered their countries from my hand, that the LORD should deliver Jerusalem from my hand?”

<sup>21</sup> But they <sup>4</sup> held their peace and answered him not a word; for the king’s commandment was, “Do not answer him.” <sup>22</sup> Then Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, who was over the household, Shebna the scribe, and Joah the son of Asaph, the recorder, came to Hezekiah with their clothes torn, and told him the words of the Rabshakeh.

Isaiah Assures Deliverance

37 And <sup>a</sup> so it was, when King Hezekiah heard it, that he tore his clothes, covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the house of the LORD. <sup>2</sup> Then he sent Eliakim, who was over the household, Shebna the scribe, and the elders of the priests, covered with sackcloth, to Isaiah the prophet, the son of Amoz. <sup>3</sup> And they said to him, “Thus says Hezekiah: ‘This day is a day of <sup>b</sup> trouble and rebuke and <sup>l</sup> blasphemy; for the children have come to birth, but there is no strength to bring them forth. <sup>4</sup> It may be that the LORD your God will hear the words of the Rabshakeh, whom his master the king of Assyria has sent to <sup>c</sup> reproach the living God, and will rebuke the words which the LORD your God has heard. Therefore lift up your prayer for the remnant that is left.’”

<sup>5</sup> So the servants of King Hezekiah came to Isaiah. <sup>6</sup> And Isaiah said to them, “Thus you shall say to your master,

“Thus says the LORD: “Do not be afraid of the words which you have heard, with which the servants of the king of Assyria have blasphemed Me. <sup>7</sup> Surely I will send a spirit upon him, and he shall hear a rumor and return to his own land; and I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own land.””

Sennacherib’s Threat and Hezekiah’s Prayer

<sup>8</sup> Then the Rabshakeh returned, and found the king of Assyria warring against Libnah, for he heard that he had departed from Lachish. <sup>9</sup> And the king heard concerning Tirhakah king of Ethiopia, “He has come out to make war with you.” So when he heard it, he sent messengers to Hezekiah, saying, <sup>10</sup> “Thus you shall speak to Hezekiah king of Judah, saying: ‘Do not let your God in whom you trust deceive you, saying, “Jerusalem shall not be given into the hand of the king of Assyria.” <sup>11</sup> Look! You have heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all lands by utterly destroying them; and shall you be delivered? <sup>12</sup> Have the <sup>d</sup> gods of the nations delivered those whom my fathers have destroyed, Gozan and Haran and Rezeph, and the people of Eden who were in Telassar? <sup>13</sup> Where is the king of <sup>e</sup> Hamath, the king of Arpad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim, Hena, and Ivah?”

<sup>14</sup> And Hezekiah received the letter from the hand of the messengers, and read it; and Hezekiah went up to the house of the LORD, and spread it before the LORD. <sup>15</sup> Then Hezekiah prayed to the LORD, saying: <sup>16</sup> “O LORD of hosts, God of Israel, the One who dwells between the cherubim, You are God, You <sup>f</sup> alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth. You have made heaven and earth. <sup>17g</sup> Incline Your ear, O LORD, and hear; open Your eyes, O LORD, and see; and <sup>h</sup> hear all the words of Sennacherib, which he has sent to reproach the living God. <sup>18</sup> Truly, LORD, the kings of Assyria have laid waste all the nations and their <sup>i</sup> lands, <sup>19</sup> and have cast their 36:18–20 The Rabshakeh assumed that different gods were worshiped in Samaria than in Jerusalem, so he repeated some of the same sentiments articulated by the Assyrian king in 10:10, 11.

36:22 The words of the enemy would not bring pleasure to Hezekiah. The torn clothes indicated that the messengers were bearing bad news (37:1).

37:1 Sackcloth was a sign of mourning, repentance, and humiliation (20:2, 3; 1 Kin. 20:31; Neh. 9:1; Dan. 9:3). went into the house of the LORD: For a related passage, see 1 Kin. 8:33, 34.

37:4 For more references to the remnant, see 1:9; 10:20.

37:6 The Lord commonly reassured His servants with the words: Do not be afraid (see 7:4; 35:4; Gen. 15:1; Josh. 1:9). We have no reason to fear if our trust is in the all-powerful God (see Heb. 13:6).

37:11 utterly destroying: See 34:2 for another use of this term.

gods into the fire; for they were<sup>j</sup> not gods, but the work of men's hands—wood and stone. Therefore they destroyed them.<sup>20</sup> Now therefore, O LORD our God, <sup>k</sup>save us from his hand, that all the kingdoms of the earth may <sup>l</sup>know that You are the LORD, You alone.”

The Word of the LORD Concerning Sennacherib

<sup>21</sup> Then Isaiah the son of Amoz sent to Hezekiah, saying, “Thus says the LORD God of Israel, ‘Because you have prayed to Me against Sennacherib king of Assyria, <sup>22</sup>this is the word which the LORD has spoken concerning him:

“The virgin, the daughter of Zion,
Has despised you, laughed you to scorn;
The daughter of Jerusalem
Has shaken her head behind your back!

<sup>23</sup> “Whom have you reproached and blasphemed?
Against whom have you raised your voice,
And lifted up your eyes on high?
Against the Holy One of Israel.

<sup>24</sup> By your servants you have reproached the Lord,
And said, ‘By the multitude of my chariots
I have come up to the height of the mountains,
To the limits of Lebanon;
I will cut down its tall cedars
And its choice cypress trees;
I will enter its farthest height,
To its fruitful forest.

<sup>25</sup> I have dug and drunk water,
And with the soles of my feet I have dried up
All the brooks of <sup>2</sup>defense.’

That you should be
For crushing fortified cities into heaps of ruins.
<sup>27</sup> Therefore their inhabitants had little power;
They were dismayed and confounded;
They were as the grass of the field
And the green herb,
As the grass on the housetops
And grain blighted before it is grown.

<sup>28</sup> “But I know your dwelling place,
Your going out and your coming in,
And your rage against Me.

<sup>29</sup> Because your rage against Me and your tumult
Have come up to My ears,
Therefore <sup>n</sup>I will put My hook in

You shall eat this year such as grows of itself,
And the second year what springs
from the same;
Also in the third year sow and reap,
Plant vineyards and eat the fruit of
them.

<sup>31</sup> And the remnant who have escaped of the house of Judah
Shall again take root downward,
And bear fruit upward.

<sup>32</sup> For out of Jerusalem shall go a remnant,
And those who escape from Mount
Zion.

37:21 Because you have prayed to Me: God's gracious response was a direct answer to the prayer of a godly king. Although God can certainly work His will without our prayers, He has chosen to faithfully answer the prayers of His people.

37:22 virgin: Cities are often personified as female in the Scriptures. This imagery speaks of Jerusalem as a “daughter” being threatened by an attacker. Yet Jerusalem prevails and overcomes her assailant. Daughter of Zion is an endearing term for the city of Jerusalem. Just as the Lord called Israel His “son” (see Ex. 4:22), so He looked upon Jerusalem as His daughter (1:8).

37:23 reproached and blasphemed . . . raised your voice . . . lifted up your eyes on high: The folly of the wicked of all ages is epitomized here. Anyone who lifts himself or herself up against the living God deserves the same strong words from the Almighty (see vv. 28, 29). Holy One of Israel: The Lord embodies perfect holiness: He is completely different or set apart from all of creation (40:25); He alone is entirely sinless

(6:4–7). Yet God chooses to enter into a relationship with His people, the Israelites (Ps. 40:1).

37:24 Chariots were the most prized military hardware of the time. height of the mountains: See 2:12–16; 14:13, 14 for other occurrences of these arrogant words.

37:25 dug and drunk water: Deserts cannot stop Assyria's king; he presents himself as invincible. The king boasts that he has dried up Egyptian streams. But the Lord will dry up the Egyptian sea (see 11:15; 44:27).

37:28, 29 your rage against Me: This accusation picks up the point of the indictment in vv. 23, 24. The Assyrians dragged prisoners away with a hook in the nose; soon they would get the hook! The Lord's judgment was coming. For another use of the image of a hook, see Ezek. 38:4.

37:30 Assyria had promised to feed the Judeans; but only God could guarantee that the people would eat (36:16, 17). The third year could have been as early as 13 to 15 months from that time; any part of a year was counted as a year.

The <sup>p</sup> zeal of the LORD of hosts will do this.

<sup>33</sup> “Therefore thus says the LORD concerning the king of Assyria:

‘He shall not come into this city,
Nor shoot an arrow there,
Nor come before it with shield,
Nor build a siege mound against it.

<sup>34</sup> By the way that he came,
By the same shall he return;
And he shall not come into this city;
Says the LORD.

<sup>35</sup> ‘For I will <sup>a</sup> defend this city, to save it
For My own sake and for My servant
‘David’s sake.’”

Sennacherib’s Defeat and Death

prophet, the son of Amoz, went to him and said to him, “Thus says the LORD: <sup>b</sup> ‘Set your house in order, for you shall die and not live.’”

<sup>4</sup> And the word of the LORD came to Isaiah, saying, <sup>5</sup> “Go and tell Hezekiah, ‘Thus says the LORD, the God of David your father: “I have heard your prayer, I have seen your tears; surely I will add to your days fifteen years. <sup>6</sup> I will deliver you and this city from the hand of the king of Assyria, and <sup>f</sup> I will defend this city.”’ <sup>7</sup> And this is <sup>f</sup> the sign to you from the LORD, that the LORD will do this thing which He has spoken: <sup>8</sup> Behold, I will bring the shadow on the sundial, which has gone down with the sun on the sundial of Ahaz, ten degrees backward.” So the sun returned ten degrees on the dial by which it had gone down.

<sup>9</sup> This is the writing of Hezekiah king of Judah, when he had been sick and had recovered from his sickness:

<sup>10</sup> I said,
“In the prime of my life
I shall go to the gates of Sheol;
I am deprived of the remainder of my years.”

<sup>11</sup> I said,
“I shall not see <sup>2</sup> YAH,

37:33 thus says the LORD: God gives His final sentence against the Assyrian tyrant.

37:35 defend: For similar expressions of the Lord’s protection of Jerusalem, see 27:3; 31:5. For My own sake: The Lord would save and protect the city for His own honor, for He had established the city for the worship of His holy name. For similar wording, see 43:25; 48:9, 11; contrast 42:21. for My servant David’s sake: God maintained His promises to David (9:7; 49:8; 2 Sam. 7:8–16; 1 Kin. 8:17–20; Ps. 89:19–37).

37:36 This verse is the fulfillment of God’s promise to take vengeance on those who trouble His people (34:8). the angel of the LORD: Often a visitation from the angel of the Lord brought deliverance to God’s people, as in the incident with Balaam (Num. 22) and the appearances to Gideon (Judg. 6:11, 12) and Manoah (see Judg. 13). At other times the angel of the Lord came in judgment (see 2 Sam. 24:10–25). Here the angel of the Lord delivers His people by fighting for them (see Ex. 15:3).

37:38 Death in the house of Nisroch contrasts with life in the house of the Lord (37:14; 38:20). Esarhaddon began his reign in 681 B.C.

38:1—39:8 Although Hezekiah trusted in God to heal him (38:1–22), he failed when the Babylonian envoys visited him. After his recovery, he paraded his own glory, not the Lord’s (39:1, 2). Thus he implicitly placed his confidence in military strength and political alliances instead of the strength of the Almighty God. Because of his unbelief, Judah would go into exile (39:3–8).

38:1 In those days refers to a time before the events recorded in chs. 36; 37 (v. 6). These earlier events are presented after Jerusalem’s deliverance from Assyria because that deliverance was not the last word for either Hezekiah or Jerusalem.

38:2 prayed: For another prayer of Hezekiah see 37:15.

38:3 loyal heart: For similar descriptions see 2 Kin. 18:3–5. Hezekiah wept bitterly because apparently at that time he had no male heirs. Hezekiah lived an additional 15 years (v. 5); Manasseh, the successor to his throne, was 12 when Hezekiah died (2 Kin. 20:21—21:1).

38:7 sign: For a related reference see 7:11–14.

38:8 Bringing the shadow on the sundial . . . backward symbolized the divine extension of Hezekiah’s life.

38:9–20 Hezekiah’s thanksgiving song celebrating his healing consists of (1) a report of his lament (vv. 10–14), and (2) a report of the Lord’s deliverance (vv. 15–20). His personal deliverance modeled the future national deliverance (see 41:8–11).

38:9 the writing of Hezekiah: Scriptures attest to King Hezekiah’s interest in devotional literature. Apparently he instructed his scribes to compile some of the proverbs of Solomon (see Prov. 25:1). Furthermore, he ordered the Levites to worship God with the psalms of David and Asaph. The following song of praise (vv. 10–20) has some affinities with those psalms (see 2 Chr. 29:30).

38:10 Sheol: For additional references to Sheol see 5:14; 14:9, 11; 38:18. Hezekiah was mourning the fact that he was dying at an early age.

The LORD <sup>d</sup>in the land of the living;

<sup>21</sup> Now <sup>m</sup> Isaiah had said, “Let them take a lump of figs, and apply it as a poultice on the boil, and he shall recover.”

<sup>22</sup> And <sup>n</sup> Hezekiah had said, “What is the sign that I shall go up to the house
of the LORD?”

The Babylonian Envoys

39 At <sup>a</sup> that time <sup>1</sup> Merodach-Baladan the son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters and a present to Hezekiah, for he heard that he had been sick and had recovered. <sup>2b</sup> And Hezekiah was pleased with them, and showed them the house of his treasures—the silver and gold, the spices and precious ointment, and all his armory—all that was found among his treasures. There was nothing in his house or in all his dominion that Hezekiah did not show them.

<sup>3</sup> Then Isaiah the prophet went to King Hezekiah, and said to him, “What did these men say, and from where did they come to you?”

So Hezekiah said, “They came to me from a <sup>c</sup> far country, from Babylon.”

<sup>4</sup> And he said, “What have they seen in your house?”

So Hezekiah answered, “They have seen all that is in my house; there is nothing among my treasures that I have not shown them.”

<sup>5</sup> Then Isaiah said to Hezekiah, “Hear the word of the LORD of hosts: <sup>6</sup> Behold, the days are coming <sup>d</sup> when all that is in your house, and what your fathers have

38:12 Pulling up a tent represented impermanence (33:20; 2 Cor. 5:1). Hezekiah’s life was quickly passing away.

38:17 for my own peace: Hezekiah models an exemplary attitude to hardship: he accepted trials as part of God’s good plan for him. For a development of this theme, see Rom. 8:28. sins: The forgiveness of sin and healing are two different aspects of God’s salvation (53:5; Matt. 8:14–17; Luke 5:17–26). Apparently Hezekiah’s poor health was connected to his sin. Yet not all sickness is due to one’s own sin (see Job 42:7–11; John 9:2, 3).

38:18 cannot thank: Praise for healing can only be offered while a person is alive (Ps. 6:5). Hope for temporal life cannot be extended beyond death, but hope for eternal life remains beyond death (Ps. 22:22–31; see 2 Tim. 1:10; Heb. 2:10–12; 1 John 5:11, 12).

38:19 father . . . children: For a similar idea of the righteous teaching their children of God’s faithfulness, see Ps. 22:30, 31.

38:20 sing: For a song of praise to God our Savior, see 12:1–6.

38:21 Them may refer to the court physicians. poultice: All healing is of God, who may and often does mediate it through medicine and the skills of health care professionals.

38:22 Depending on one’s attitude, the request for a sign may express either unbelief (Matt. 12:39; John 6:30) or faith (v. 7). The healing of a boil would be the sign that the Lord would save Hezekiah (see vv. 20, 21).

39:1 At that time . . . sick: For the background see ch. 38. The letters were probably about rebellion against Assyria. recovered: The miracle of the sundial (38:8) would have held special interest for the astronomy-minded Babylonians (2 Chr. 32:31).

39:2 The fact that Hezekiah showed his treasures instead of praising God suggests that he was trusting in his might and the armies of the nations like Babylon, instead of in the Lord.

39:5 LORD of hosts: This is the same title as used in 1:9. It describes the Lord as Commander in Chief of the angelic armies.

Merodach-Baladan

To the Assyrians, Merodach-Baladan was a persistent rebel king. He appeared on the political scene during the days of Tiglath-Pileser III of Assyria. After Sennacherib came to power, Merodach-Baladan returned to Babylon in 703 B.C., killed the ruler there, and prepared to fight Assyria. Sennacherib reacted energetically and drove Merodach-Baladan into exile once again.

Merodach-Baladan sent ambassadors to Jerusalem to visit King Hezekiah of Judah, who had just recovered miraculously from a serious illness. He sent letters and presents (2 Kin. 20:12; Is. 39:1). Hezekiah showed the Babylonian ambassadors his wealth and arsenal—an act that brought stiff rebuke from the prophet Isaiah (2 Kin. 20:13–18).

Merodach-Baladan was never successful in his bid for Babylonian independence. The task was left for Nabopolassar (626–605 B.C.), who was able to succeed where Merodach-Baladan had failed.

accumulated until this day, shall be carried to Babylon; nothing shall be left,” says the LORD. <sup>7</sup>“And they shall take away some of your <sup>e</sup>sons who will descend from you, whom you will beget; and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.”

<sup>8</sup>So Hezekiah said to Isaiah, <sup>f</sup>“The word of the LORD which you have spoken is good!” For he said, “At least there will be peace and truth in my days.”

39:7 Eunuchs were royal officials or servants. In ancient times, these servants were often castrated to keep them from being a threat to the king’s harem. For further references to eunuchs, see 56:4; Dan. 1:3–6.

40:1—55:13 This section is addressed to the Babylonian exiles in a prophetic manner. This book of comfort, written about 150 years before the time of Cyrus, promised the exiles from Judah that they would return to Jerusalem (40:1, 2), where God would meet them in the form of the Suffering Servant (42:1–4)—the very One who would become a great King (7:14; 9:6, 7; 11:1–5). The restoration after the Exile pointed to the coming of the Lord’s kingdom. In Isaiah’s prophecy, this first taste of salvation merges with predictions of the full salvation that Jesus Christ would bring.

40:1–8 This prophecy consists of addresses by three heavenly heralds. The first calls upon the others to comfort the exiles because their time of servitude has ended (vv. 1, 2). The second calls for building a highway so that all may see the coming of the Lord (vv. 3–5). The third guarantees the vision (vv. 6–8).

40:1 Comfort is used to address all of the people of Zion (v. 9) with words of God’s mercy. This verb, repeated for emphasis, denotes the announcement of an end to the people’s suffering. The message reversed the exiles’ complaint (Lam. 1:2). This consolation was fulfilled in the birth of Christ (Luke 2:25). My people . . . your God evokes the covenantal relationship between God and Israel (Ex. 6:7).

40:2 Here the word Jerusalem represents the exiles. The Lord would end their period of exile and restore them to the city of Jerusalem. Warfare refers to Israel’s hard servitude in Babylon, from which they were about to flee (48:20, 21). Double may mean “the equivalent” or “the right amount.”

40:3 crying in the wilderness: The voice is heard in the wilderness, calling the people there to ready themselves for the coming of the Lord. The analogy is based on the anticipated coming of a magnificent ruler from a distant land. The people who lived in the area of his intended visit would do everything possible to prepare the road for his arrival. Prepare means “clear away the obstacles” (57:14; 62:10). Highway represents the hearts of people who must be spiritually prepared by repentance for God’s glory to be revealed on the earth (Luke 3:3–20).

40:4 valley . . . mountain: For a similar description, see Zech. 14:11–11. While the highway of v. 3 was to be prepared by the people of the Lord, the changes required in v. 4 could be accomplished only by divine action.

40:5 The glory of the LORD began to be revealed in the restoration of the captives of Judah from the Exile (44:23). More grandly, the glory of the Lord would be displayed in the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ (4:2; Luke 2:29–32; John 1:14). The ultimate revelation of the glory of the Lord will be in His glorious kingdom (60:2; Zeph. 3:14–17), where the Savior King dwells in the presence of His people for all eternity (Rev. 22:1–5). All flesh refers to all mankind. the mouth of the LORD has spoken: The importance of this prophecy is underscored by the language of divine oath.

40:7, 8 breath of the LORD: This phrase pictures God’s wrath on the wicked as the summer wind that blows on the grass and dries it up (40:24; Jer. 4:11). But the word of our God stands forever: These words offer full assurance of the reliability, stability, and eternal nature of the divine word. The Son of God fulfills the Word (Matt. 5:17, 18), is the Word (John 1:1-18), and lives forever.

40:9-11 Isaiah summons Zion to join the heavenly heralds (vv. 1-8) in proclaiming to the other cities of Judah the coming of the victorious Lord to shepherd His people.

40:9 In this section of Isaiah (40:1-55:13), Zion is an endearing term for the remnant who have remained faithful to God. The good tidings are that God has come to rescue His enslaved people. Behold your God: Compare John 1:36; 19:5.

40:10 The Lord God might be rephrased “the Lord, the Master.” The Lord’s strong . . . arm figuratively brings His mighty acts of judgment and deliverance (48:14; 51:5, 9; 52:10; 53:1). Reward describes the spoils of victory—namely, the delivered people. The rescued exiles merge with the messianic community (65:15, 16). Work is a synonym for “reward.”

40:11 In the ancient Middle East the ideal king was often depicted as a shepherd (Ps. 23; John 10). Gather the lambs with His arm is a description of the Father’s love for His people (Mic. 5:4).

40:12-31 This oracle, proclaiming the Lord as the only source of eternal strength, addresses five questions: (1) Who is the Creator? (vv. 12-17); (2) To whom may He be compared? (vv. 18-20); (3) Who rules the kingdoms of this world? (vv. 21-24);

(4) To whom may He be compared? (vv. 25, 26); (5) Why are you despondent, Jacob? (vv. 27-31).

40:12 Who: The answer is “God, Creator of the cosmos, and Israel’s Lord” (vv. 15-17). A span is the width of a stretched-out hand. The verse dramatically imposes images of God’s might.

40:13 directed: These questions are an attack against Marduk, a Babylonian deity, who needed the assistance of other gods in creating the world.

40:15 a drop in a bucket: Wicked nations have no power to thwart the purposes of God (Ps. 2:1-6). The word scales links the answer in this verse to the question in v. 12: Who has measured the dust of the earth? Its sovereign Creator has.

40:17 Worthless is the same term used to describe the primeval chaos (Gen. 1:2).

40:18 liken God: The God of Scripture is incomparable; there is no one else like Him (40:25; 46:5; Ps. 113:4-6).

40:19 goldsmith: Many idols were made with wood, then overlaid with gold (41:6, 7; 44:9-20; 46:6, 7). Silver chains kept the idol from moving or falling.

40:20 too impoverished: The poor had to choose the best wood available and then hope it was good enough. Note the satire in these words. What is the value of the prayer of a poor man to a plain idol? What is the value of the prayer of the rich to one covered with gold? To both questions, the answer is “none.”

40:21, 22 Have you not known: The questions here and in v. 28

Has it not been told you from the beginning?
 Have you not understood from the foundations of the earth?
 22 It is He who sits above the circle of the earth,

 The everlasting God, the LORD,
 The Creator of the ends of the earth,
 Neither faints nor is weary.
<sup>a</sup> His understanding is unsearchable.
 29 He gives power to the weak,
 And to those who have no might He increases strength.

Israel Assured of God's Help

41 “Keep <sup>a</sup> silence before Me,
 O coastlands,
 And let the people renew their strength!
 Let them come near, then let them speak;

express God's incredulity at worshipers of idols. Even though the worship of the Lord reached back to the foundations of the earth (Gen. 4:26; Rom. 1:19, 20), these people chose idols over the true worship of the living God. The circle refers either to the horizon or to the apparent hemisphere over the earth. The point is that God is not to be confused with His creation. stretches out the heavens: Creation is the work of the God of Israel: only He deserves our praise.
40:23, 24 nothing . . . useless: For a similar expression of the insignificance of entire nations before the might of the living God, see v. 17. planted . . . blow . . . wither: This imagery describing God's judgment is similar to that in vv. 6-8.
40:25 To whom then will you liken Me: This and the following question in this verse form part of an important biblical theme, the incomparability of God (v. 18). Since God is the Holy One, He is distinct from all others.
40:26 Lift up: Human beings are responsible to discern the greatness of the Creator in His creation and are held guilty for suppressing such discernment (Rom. 1:18-32). created: For similar descriptions of God's creative work, see 4:5; 41:20; 43:1; 45:18; 65:17, 18. These things refers to the heavenly bodies. The Babylonian gods were identified with the heavenly bodies. The words here would have had particular relevance to Israel as they learned to say no to Babylon and yes to the Lord. by number: Each of the stars is known to the Creator; to each He has given a name (Ps. 147:4).
40:27 My way is hidden from the LORD does not question God's omniscience, but His good will. Would the Lord bless His people? The Israelites had a just claim because God had promised to make them a blessing to the nations (Gen. 12:3; 28:13-15).
40:28, 29 Have you not known: The Lord repeats this rhetorical question for emphasis (see v. 21). God is not only everlasting—transcendent over time—but also the Creator of the ends of the earth—transcendent over space. He is omnipotent and inscrutable. Neither faints nor is weary refers to how God meets the needs of His people: the Lord will never let His people down (Ps. 121:3, 4). power to the weak: Strength is a gift of God (Jer. 9:23).

40:30 youths: The point is that human strength cannot compare with the power of God.
40:31 To wait entails confident expectation and active hope in the Lord—never passive resignation (Ps. 40:1). Mount up . . . run . . . walk depicts the spiritual transformation that faith brings to a person. The Lord gives power to those who trust in Him. eagles: The eagle depicts the strength that comes from the Lord. The Lord describes His deliverance of the Israelites in Ex. 19:4 as similar to being lifted up on an eagle's strong wings. In Ps. 103:5, the strength of people who are nourished by God is compared to the strength of the eagle.
41:1—42:17 In this prophecy the Lord puts the nations on trial to show them that He alone is God because only He can predict the future. The trial consists of two cycles (41:1-20; 41:21—42:9), followed by a praise hymn (42:10-17). In each trial cycle, there are three elements: (1) a call of the nations to trial (41:1, 21-24); (2) a prediction of the coming of Cyrus (41:2-7, 25-29); (3) a celebration of the victories of the Servant (41:8-20; 42:1-9).
41:1 Keep silence: Divine calls for silence usually anticipate judgment (Zeph. 1:7). Coastlands includes Lydia in Asia Minor, which was conquered by Cyrus (5:15). Renew their strength contrasts strength that results from faith with unassisted human strength.

Let us <sup>b</sup> come near together for judgment.

<sup>5</sup> Those who contended with you. Those who war against you Shall be as nothing, As a nonexistent thing.

Threshing Sledge

The purpose of threshing was to separate usable grain from the waste straw or chaff. This was usually done by spreading the stalks of grain several inches deep on a smooth flat area that was on a high piece of ground open to the wind. Specially shod animals walked around on the stalks until the grain separated from the hulls.

Frequently threshing sledges (28:27) made of wood (2 Sam. 24:22) with stone or metal teeth embedded in the bottom side were dragged over the grain by these animals.

The city of Damascus was called under judgment because that nation “threshed Gilead with implements of iron” (Amos 1:3) or behaved with unnecessary cruelty against a conquered people.

God promised to make His people into “a new threshing sledge with sharp teeth” and use them to bring judgment on those who oppress the godly (Is. 41:15).

41:2 One from the east refers to Cyrus, king of Persia (559–530 B.C.; see 46:11). Since God had made a covenant between Himself and Abraham (v. 8), He delivered the exiles in righteousness, a synonym for salvation in Isaiah (45:8; 46:13; 51:6; 56:1). God, who has authority over the nations, gave the nations to Cyrus as a ransom for Israel (43:3).

41:3 Cyrus advanced so fast it was as though his feet did not touch the ground.

41:4 first . . . last: For similar references concerning God’s sovereignty over all of time, see 44:6, 10; Heb. 13:8; Rev. 1:8, 17. The Lord is eternal not only in that He is not bound by time, but also in that He is Master of time. I am He: For similar uses of this phrase, see 43:13; 46:4.

41:5 The pronoun it refers to the conquests of Cyrus (vv. 2, 3).

41:7 This verse satirizes assistance from idols in contrast to the sure help from the living God (vv. 10–16). The goldsmith was working on the idol that presumably could save the people. For a similar reference to this occupation, see 40:19. Here the pronoun it refers to an idol (2:8).

41:8 Servant refers to one highly honored by the Lord. There is no higher position to which a person can aspire. The term was bestowed on the person chosen to administer and advance God’s kingdom (Ex. 14:31; 2 Sam. 3:18). In chs. 40–55, the title of servant is bestowed implicitly on Cyrus (45:1–4) and explicitly on God’s prophets (44:26), the nation of Israel (44:21; 45:4) and particularly on the Lord Jesus Christ (42:1–4; 52:13). Abraham: The Lord calls him friend (see Gen. 18:17, 18; 2 Chr. 20:7; James 2:23).

41:9 The ends of the earth probably refers to Mesopotamia (Gen. 11:31; 12:1) and perhaps Egypt (Gen. 15:13). The term indicates God’s sovereign rule over the earth (v. 4). The Lord had punished Israel (42:18–25), but had not cast them away (29:22–24).

41:10 The Lord’s command to the Israelites to fear not contrasts with the fright of pagans in vv. 5, 6. God had bared His right hand at the first Exodus in order to destroy the power of Pharaoh (Ex. 15:6): the phrase indicates His sovereignty and strength over all who oppose Him (40:10).

41:11, 12 The people of God are given renewed assurance that their formidable enemies will be brought to nothing (40:17, 23).

- 13 For I, the LORD your God, will hold your right hand,

The Futility of Idols

- 21 "Present your case," says the LORD.
"Bring forth your strong reasons," says the <sup>z</sup>King of Jacob.
- 22 "Let <sup>a</sup>' them bring forth and show us what will happen;
Let them show the <sup>b</sup>former things, what they were,
That we may <sup>c</sup>consider them, And know the latter end of them;
Or declare to us things to come.
- 23 "Show the things that are to come hereafter,
That we may know that you are gods;
Yes, <sup>d</sup>do good or do evil,
That we may be dismayed and see it together.
- 24 Indeed <sup>e</sup>'you are nothing,
And your work is nothing;
He who chooses you is an abomination.
- 25 "I have raised up one from the north,
And he shall come;
From the <sup>f</sup>rising of the sun <sup>g</sup>'he shall call on My name;

41:13 The Lord will hold the exile's right hand (42:6) just as He held the hand of Moses (63:12). The Lord is with them; they have nothing to fear.

41:14 Exiled Israel seemed as feeble and despicable as a worm (Job 25:6; Ps. 22:6). Redeemer refers to the family protector of distressed relatives, who would avenge murders (Num. 35:19) and redeem indentured slaves (Lev. 25:47–49). A redeemer could also purchase land for a relative or marry a widow whose first husband was childless (see the role of Boaz in the Book of Ruth). When the Lord is called the Redeemer the title highlights His zeal to defend, protect, and purchase back His people (49:26).

41:15 The lowly "worm" (v. 14) would be transformed into a threshing sledge (28:27) that removes mountains, the symbols of opposition and the location of pagan temples and palaces (Mic. 1:3–5).

41:16 winnow: As threshed grain is tossed in the air to separate the chaff, so the victorious people of God would have complete control over their enemies.

41:17 The poor and needy refers to the exiles moving homeward across the desert. thirst: God will meet the people's most basic needs. For a related reference, see 44:3.

41:18 rivers . . . fountains . . . pool of water . . . springs of water: In the first Exodus, the people of Israel were often concerned about water (Ex. 17:1; Num. 20:2). The returning exiles would also need water in the second Exodus (v. 17), but God's provision would be bountiful.

41:19 in the wilderness . . . tree: The abundant water supply would also lead to the Lord's massive plantings of trees and vegetation (35:1, 2).

41:20 The people's reception of God's power and care is the primary concern. the hand: God's hand indicates His power and strength (40:10; 41:10). created: Only God can truly create (4:5; 40:26).

41:21 King of Jacob: This title for God pictures His special relationship with His people (43:15).

41:22 The former things probably refers to prophecies of judgment by earlier prophets, and some prophecies spoken by Isaiah in chs. 1–35 (see also 42:9, 21–25; 43:9, 10; 46:8, 9; 48:3). Latter end of them may also be translated "their glorious future." The phrase things to come may refer to the mighty acts God would do through Cyrus. Ultimately, things to come refers to the gathering of God's people and the establishment of Christ's kingdom on earth. The point is that idols cannot tell the past or the future, but the Lord God can.

41:23 that you are gods: This is part of the satire (vv. 21, 22). Do good or do evil is a way of saying "do anything."

41:24 The word indeed assumes a period of silence between v. 23 and v. 24. The supposed "gods" were mute. An abomination is something that causes revulsion.

41:25 from the north . . . From the rising of the sun: The conquest of Media by Cyrus (550 B.C.) made him master of the territories north of Babylon. Cyrus, who did not personally know God (45:4), nevertheless called on God's name when he released the exiles (2 Chr. 36:23; Ezra 1:1–4).

<sup>g</sup> And he shall come against princes as though mortar,
 As the potter treads clay.
<sup>26</sup> <sup>h</sup> Who has declared from the beginning, that we may know?
 And former times, that we may say,
 ‘He is righteous?’
 Surely there is no one who shows,
 Surely there is no one who declares,
 Surely there is no one who hears your words.
<sup>27</sup> <sup>i</sup> ‘The first time <sup>j</sup> I said to Zion, ‘Look, there they are!’
 And I will give to Jerusalem one who brings good tidings.
<sup>28</sup> <sup>k</sup> For I looked, and there was no man;
 I looked among them, but there was no counselor,
 Who, when I asked of them, could answer a word.
<sup>29</sup> <sup>l</sup> Indeed they are all <sup>o</sup> worthless;
 Their works are nothing;
 Their molded images are wind and confusion.

41:27 The pronoun they refers to the “former things” and “things to come” (of v. 22). One who brings good tidings refers to the prophet Isaiah.

41:28, 29 These verses present the futility of the nations; they do not have any true understanding of reality—past, present, or future (41:26).

42:1 Behold: The Lord formally presents His Servant. The title My Servant is identified with Jesus Christ in the NT (Matt. 12:15–21). Isaiah may have foreshadowed Him, but only Christ brings universal justice (v. 4) and an everlasting covenant (v. 6). uphold: When God upholds a person, nothing can bring him down. For a similar idea, see 41:10. The Servant—that is, Jesus—possessed the Holy Spirit (4:4; 11:2; 48:16; 59:21; 61:1; Luke 3:22) which empowered Him to bring justice to the world.

42:2 The Hebrew word rendered cry out means “to cry out in distress.” The phrase cause His voice to be heard in the street suggests the same idea; the Servant’s rejection is heard for the first time (49:4; 50:5; 6; 53:4–9).

42:3 The phrase a bruised reed represents the poor and needy (41:17; 42:7). The phrase not break is an understatement for the positive equivalent: “mend” or “restore.” A smoking flax represents those who have almost lost their faith and hope in the Lord. The Servant will come to restore the poor and needy and encourage people in the faith (see Matt. 11:5).

42:4 law: The Servant will be more than another Moses (Deut. 18:15–18; Acts 3:22–26); He will mediate the New Covenant (2 Cor. 3:3; Heb. 8:7–13).

42:5 The Lord God introduces Himself as the source of all physical and spiritual life—breath and spirit—for He will enable the Servant to free people from death and spiritual darkness (vv. 6–9).

42:6 Called, hold, keep, and give are expressions parallel to the words of v. 1. In contrast to Cyrus, who brought political deliverance (41:2), the Servant in righteousness will deliver Israel from sin. The Servant will institute a new covenant binding Israel to the Lord (49:8). The prophets refer to this new covenant as a “covenant of peace” (54:10; Ezek. 34:25); an “everlasting covenant” (which is also associated with the Davidic covenant; 55:3); a “new covenant” (see Jer. 31:31–34); and most often simply as a “covenant.” The people refers to the Gentiles (60:3). Christ is the true light of the world (9:2; 49:6; 60:3; John 8:12; 9:5; Acts 26:17, 18, 23), and Christ’s followers should reflect His light (Matt. 5:14).

42:7 To open . . . darkness is metaphorical language drawn from the Babylonian captivity; it indicates spiritual sight and salvation from sin’s bondage (6:9, 10; 29:18, 24; 32:3; 35:5, 10; 61:1). Christ gave sight to the blind to show that He had the power to give everyone spiritual insight (v. 16).

Servant (Heb. ‘ebed) (20:3; 42:1; 2 Sam. 10:19; Jer. 7:25) Strong’s #5650: This word is derived from a verb meaning “to serve,” “to work,” or “to enslave.” While ‘ebed can mean slave (Gen. 43:18), slavery in Israel was different than in most places in the ancient Middle East. Slavery was regulated by the Law of Moses, which prohibited indefinite slavery and required that slaves be freed on the Sabbath (seventh) year (Ex. 21:2)—and the Year of Jubilee—the fiftieth year (Lev. 25:25–28). Sometimes the Hebrew word can refer to the subjects of a king (2 Sam. 10:19). But usually the word is best translated servant. God referred to His prophets as “My servants” (Jer. 7:25) and spoke of the coming Messiah as His Servant, the One who would perfectly obey His will (see 42:1–4; 49:1–6; 50:4–9; 52:13–53:12).

42:8 My name: The fact that God reveals His name to His people is an indication of His wondrous grace (see Ex. 3:14, 15). My glory: Here and in 48:11 this phrase is parallel to God's name.

42:9 former . . . new: For a similar idea, see 41:22. The former prophecies had come to pass; God through Isaiah was announcing new prophecies, and these too would come to pass.

42:10, 11 You who go down to the sea . . . the wilderness and its cities: The command is for all people to sing. The new song celebrated the second Exodus from Babylon, just as Moses' song celebrated the first Exodus from Egypt (Ex. 15:1–21).

ends of the earth: For a similar use of this phrase to describe the honor and praise God will receive from all the world, see 41:5.

42:12 Glory links this hymn with the Servant's Song (v. 8).

42:13 man of war: For a similar description of God as a Warrior, see Ex. 15:3. The Lord is completely sovereign: He will fight for His people even when they are exiles in a foreign land (vv. 14–17). The zeal of the Lord is also described in 9:7. He shall prevail against His enemies: A similar promise that the Lord will eventually triumph is found in 41:11, 12.

42:14 The phrase held My peace describes the Lord's patient delay in acting (48:9; 57:11). A long time most likely refers to

The Holy Spirit in the Old Testament No clearer statement of the intimate interworking of the triune God—Father, Son and Holy Spirit—and especially of the Spirit's powerful role can be found in the Old Testament than in Isaiah's prophecy of the Servant of the Lord (Is. 42:1–9). The passage summarizes the redeeming work of all three Persons of the Trinity in the salvation of the lost. Thus it ties together in remarkable harmony both the Old Testament and New Testament understandings of God's grace. It also sheds light on our understanding of the Holy Spirit.

Some Bible readers assume that the Spirit's activity in Scripture is limited to the New Testament. But actually He is just as active in the Old Testament:

1. The Spirit participated in creation (Gen. 1:2; Job 26:13; Is. 32:15).
2. The Spirit gives life to humanity and the other creatures (Ps. 104:29, 30). It is interesting that when Genesis says God endows people with life by breathing into their nostrils the “breath of life” (Gen. 2:7), the word for “breath” is the same word translated elsewhere as “spirit.”
3. The Spirit strives with sinners (Gen. 6:3), which is perhaps related to His work in convicting people of sin (John 16:8–11).
4. The Spirit came upon certain judges, warriors, and prophets in a way that gave them extraordinary power: for example, Joshua (Num. 27:18), Othniel (Judg. 3:10), Gideon (6:34), Samson (13:25; 14:6), and Saul (1 Sam. 10:9, 10). However, the Spirit later departed from Saul because of his disobedience (16:14).
5. The Spirit played a prominent role in the long span of Old Testament prophecy. David declared that “the Spirit of the LORD spoke by me, and His word was on my tongue” (2 Sam. 23:2). Likewise, Ezekiel reported that “the Spirit entered me when He spoke to me” (Ezek. 2:2).
6. The Spirit inspired holiness in Old Testament believers (Ps. 143:10). And Scripture promised that someday God would put His Spirit in His people in a way that would cause them to live according to His statutes (Ezek. 36:27).
7. The Spirit was crucial in helping God's people anticipate the ministry of the Messiah. For example, Isaiah 11:1–5 is a trinitarian preview of the working of the Father, the Spirit, and the Son, who is the Branch of Jesse. Looking forward to the ministry of Jesus Christ, the Holy Spirit inspired Isaiah to prophesy: “The Spirit of the LORD shall rest upon Him” (Is. 11:2), inspiring God's Chosen One with wisdom, understanding, counsel, might, knowledge, fear of the Lord, righteousness, and faithfulness. Thus we come full cycle to the New Testament, where Jesus claimed to be the fulfillment of this prophecy (Is. 61:1, 2; Luke 4:18, 19).

Israel’s Obstinate Disobedience

- 21 The LORD is well pleased for His righteousness’ sake;
 He will exalt the law and make it honorable.

- 22 But this is a people robbed and plundered;
 All of them are <sup>6</sup> snared in holes,
 And they are hidden in prison houses;
 They are for prey, and no one delivers;
 For plunder, and no one says,
 “Restore!”
 23 Who among you will give ear to this?
 Who will listen and hear for the time to come?
 24 Who gave Jacob for plunder, and Israel to the robbers?
 Was it not the LORD,
 He against whom we have sinned?
<sup>t</sup> For they would not walk in His ways,
 Nor were they obedient to His law.
 25 Therefore He has poured on him the fury of His anger

The Redeemer of Israel

- 43 But now, thus says the LORD, who created you, O Jacob,
 And He who formed you, O Israel:
 “Fear not, <sup>a</sup> for I have redeemed you;
<sup>b</sup> I have called you by your name;
 You are Mine.

<sup>d</sup> I will be with you;
 And through the rivers, they shall not overflow you.

the 70 years of captivity (2 Chr. 36:21). Now indicates the introduction of a new age (43:1; 44:1). woman in labor: The words not only speak of her cry, but of the timely bringing forth of the new age begun with the restoration.

42:15 mountains . . . rivers: These words refer to all obstacles in the way of returning to the land from Exile. The word dry up is an allusion to the Exodus through the Red Sea (Ex. 14:16–29; Ps. 66:6) and entrance into the land through the Jordan River (Josh. 3:14–17).

42:16 Blind refers to the state of the exiles, forming a link with the Servant’s task (v. 7) and the Lord’s accusation against Israel (v. 18). Make darkness light echoes the first Exodus (Ex. 13:21, 22). For similar references to darkness and light, see 58:8, 10; 59:9; 60:1, 2.

42:18–25 This prophecy, justifying the Exile as punishment, consists of (1) an address by the Lord to the exiles, accusing them of being blind and deaf to His mighty acts (vv. 18–22); and (2) an address by Isaiah accusing the exiles of sin (vv. 23–25).

42:18, 19 The people of Israel were deaf because they would not listen (vv. 23, 25) and blind because they would not see (vv. 7, 16). The Lord turned the exiles’ implicit accusation that He was deaf and blind (40:27) against them (6:10). My servant: Isaiah uses the title servant for Israel (see 41:8) because that nation was supposed to be God’s messenger (44:26) to the nations (see Gen. 12:3).

42:21 The LORD is well pleased: For a similar use of this phrase to express God’s good will, see 53:10. for His righteousness’ sake: In punishing Israel for its sin, the Lord exalted His law.

42:22 Israel was robbed and plundered first by the Assyrians (10:6) and then by the Babylonians (39:6). These words link the Lord’s speech with Isaiah’s in v. 24. No one said Restore until Cyrus commanded the exiles to return to Jerusalem (Ezra 1:2–4).

43:1 Thus says the LORD emphasizes the Author of the prophecy and the certainty that it will be fulfilled (49:8; 50:1; 56:1). The words created and formed allude to the creation of the human race in Gen. 1; 2. The Hebrew verb translated created means “to fashion anew”—a divine activity, and is the same key word used in Gen. 1:1 (40:26; 41:20; 45:12, 18; 57:19; 65:17, 18). The second verb formed means “to shape,” to fashion as a potter, and is used in Gen. 2:7 of God fashioning the body of the man from the dust of the earth. The use of these verbs here suggests that the Lord’s creation of Israel as a people was as decisive an act as His creation of human beings at the beginning. In the same way, the NT describes Christians as new creations in Christ (2 Cor. 5:17; Eph. 2:10). by your name: The Lord’s use of name demonstrates His intimate relationship with the Israelites. He had revealed His name to the people (Ex. 6:2–8) and declared their name to Pharaoh (Ex. 4:22).

43:2 Pass through the waters is an allusion to the crossing of

 Nor shall the flame scorch you.

the Red Sea (Ex. 14:21, 22) and the Jordan River (Josh. 3:14-17). Walk through the fire is a metaphor for protection in danger (Ps. 66:12); consider the Lord’s protection of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego in the fiery furnace (Dan. 3:25-27).
43:3 LORD your God: The God of all creation declares Himself to be the God of the Israelites; He had every right to be their God and to call them His people, because He had saved them from the Egyptians. For more on this divine title, see Ex. 6:2-8.
Holy One of Israel: For a similar usage of this divine title, see 1:4. The Hebrew word for Savior comes from the verb meaning “to save,” the word from which the name Jesus is derived (Matt. 1:21).
43:4 Israel is considered precious because of God’s sovereign grace (Deut. 7:6-8).
43:5, 6 Fear not: God’s people are to fear Him—that is, hold Him in awe and reverence. Being sure of His presence, they need not be afraid of anything or anyone else. Israel’s descendants are called by the Lord My sons and My daughters (Hos. 11:1).
east . . . west . . . north . . . south: For a similar idea, see 11:11.
ends of the earth: For similar phrases, see 11:12; 24:14-16; 41:25. The Lord will gather all His people together—all those who praise His name and follow Him.
43:8 As a blind and deaf witness, the nation Israel did not fulfill the prophecy of restoration (42:18-20).
43:10 You is strongly contrasted by “I” at the beginning of

v. 11. witnesses: The people of Israel had witnessed the great works of God in their midst (Ex. 4).
43:11-13 These verses form a magnificent celebration of the sovereignty of God (see 14:24, 26, 27; compare Num. 23:19).
no foreign god: The Hebrew text contains merely the word foreign; the word god is implied. The point is that only the living God was at work in the Israelites’ midst. savior: This same Hebrew term is used in v. 3. before the day: The Lord was always at work—saving, protecting, guiding, and disciplining His people. The concluding line of the song of praise—there is no one . . . My hand—is quoted from Deut. 32:39.
43:14 Thus says the LORD: The same phrase is used in v. 1 to emphasize the ultimate source of this prophecy: God Himself. The Lord is described as a Redeemer because He zealously defends, protects, and purchases back His people (49:26). In ancient Israel, a redeemer was a family protector of distressed relatives. For a similar use of this title, see 41:14. Babylon: For a description of Babylon’s destruction, see Jer. 51:1-44. The Chaldeans were a people who settled in lower Mesopotamia and founded the Neo-Babylonian Empire.
43:15 With the titles of the LORD (Ex. 3:14, 15), Holy One (1:4), The Creator of Israel (40:26; 41:20), and your King (41:21), the living God declared His intimate relationship with the Israelites. He was not only their God, but also the One who created their nation and ruled over them.

They are extinguished, they are quenched like a wick):

43:18 The Lord commanded the people not to remember the past (46:9, 10). The kingdom of Israel inaugurated at the first Exodus and the conquest of the Promised Land would be insignificant compared to the new kingdom God would establish. former things refers to the prophecies of judgment by Isaiah and other prophets (see 42:9, 21–25; 43:9, 10; 46:8, 9; 48:3). the things of old: For a related passage, see 65:16.

43:19, 20 A new thing refers to Cyrus's command for the exiles to return to Jerusalem; the fall of Babylon and Israel's restoration (see v. 20); and the restoration of all things (see 65:17–19). For a similar use of this phrase, see 48:6. a road in the wilderness: The Lord would give the exiles an unobstructed route back to the Promised Land (see 40:3–5). rivers in the desert: Even in desolate regions the Lord would refresh His people (see 41:18, 19).

43:22–28 In this trial scene (see 41:1–42:13; 43:8–13) the Lord finds Israel guilty of sinning against Him by not worshipping Him (vv. 22–24), and instead making Him weary with their sins (v. 24), treating His forgiveness with complacency (v. 25), and sinning against Him from the beginning (vv. 26, 27). The verdict is clear: His destruction of the temple's leaders was deserved (v. 28; see 42:18–25).

43:22 The Lord's accusation was that the people had not worshiped Him in the way He prescribed and with the motivation He demanded. You identifies the exiles with their fathers, since the exiles did not have any opportunity to offer sacrifices.

43:23, 24 The exiles' ingratitude—Nor have you honored Me— contrasts with the Lord's forbearance—you have burdened Me.

43:25 for My own sake: The Lord chooses to save and forgive. This arises out of His own character. For similar phrases, see 37:35; 42:21; 48:9, 11.

43:26 State your case: More than once through Isaiah, the Lord asks Israel to answer His charges (see 41:21; 45:21).

43:27, 28 First father refers to Abraham (51:2). Despite his many acts of faithfulness, Abraham also had sinned (Gen. 12:18, 19; 20:9). Israel's false religious leaders (Mic. 3:9, 10) are called your mediators in contrast to “My mediators.” Princes of the sanctuary refers to the leaders of the priests in Jerusalem (1 Chr. 24:5).

44:1 Now: The call to listen immediately is featured in 42:14; 43:1. servant: For a similar usage of the title servant for the nation of Israel see 41:8.

44:2 Thus says the LORD: This emphatic statement emphasizes that God authored the prophecy and thus it is certain to come to pass (43:1). made . . . formed: The Lord demands an audience with Israel because He is their Creator, see 43:1, 7. Fear not: Since the Lord is the all-powerful One, Israel had nothing to fear. This same encouragement not to worry is found in 43:5. Jeshurun, meaning “Upright One,” is a poetic word for the nation of Israel (Deut. 32:15).

44:3 Pour water may refer either to miracles during the exiles' journey home (43:19–21) or to blessings on those who had returned to the Promised Land (41:17; 55:1). pour My Spirit: Moses prayed for the Lord's Spirit to come on all Israel (Num.

 Fashions it with hammers,
 And works it with the strength of his arms.

Even so, he is hungry, and his strength fails;
 He drinks no water and is faint.

13 The craftsman stretches out his rule,
 He marks one out with chalk;
 He fashions it with a plane,
 He marks it out with the compass,
 And makes it like the figure of a man,
 According to the beauty of a man,
 that it may remain in the house.

14 He cuts down cedars for himself,
 And takes the cypress and the oak;
 He <sup>k</sup> secures it for himself among the trees of the forest.
 He plants a pine, and the rain nourishes it.

15 Then it shall be for a man to burn,
 For he will take some of it and warm himself;

11:29); the prophets foretold it (Joel 2:28–32), and Christ fulfilled it (32:15; Acts 2:14–36).

44:5 The repatriated would proudly identify themselves with the Lord. The name of Israel would no longer be associated with a worm (41:14).

44:6–23 This passage describes another fact-finding trial like the one in 41:1–42:17; 43:8–13. Between the command not to fear (v. 8) and the command to remember (v. 21) and return (v. 22), there is an extended, biting satire on idolatry (vv. 9–20). An exhortation to nature to praise Israel's redeeming Lord concludes the oracle (v. 23), which contains many allusions to the Song of Moses (Deut. 31:30–32:43).

44:6 Thus says the LORD: This emphatic statement refers to the truthfulness of what follows (43:1). King of Israel: For background see Ps. 99. Redeemer: This term is also used in 41:14 and refers to the zeal with which the Lord acts to defend his people. First . . . Last: God is completely sovereign over time (41:4). Besides Me there is no God: For a similar idea see Deut. 32:39.

44:8 Do not fear: A similar command is given in 43:5. When God is on your side, you do not need to fear anything or anyone else. You are My witnesses: The people of Israel had already witnessed great miracles on their behalf (43:10). Rock: The image of a rock represents stability and protection (Ps. 62:2, 6, 7).

For a similar description of God, see Deut. 32:4, 15, 31.

44:9–20 This satire against idolatry consists of (1) an introduction condemning idols and those who make them (vv. 9–12), (2) the main section showing the absurdity of idolatry by describing how metal and wooden idols are made (vv. 12–17), and (3) a didactic conclusion against idol makers (vv. 18–20). The prophet Isaiah was speaking to the future generation, warning them of the foolishness of worshipping idols (see 40:19, 20; 41:21–29; 42:17).

44:9 an image: This is the term used in the Second Commandment to describe an idol (Ex. 20:4). Useless is translated "without form" in Gen. 1:2.

44:10 The Hebrew has the words god and image together, stressing the absurdity of worshipping an image molded by human hands.

44:11 be ashamed: When all people come face to face with God, it will be a day of shame for those who rejected Him in this life.

44:13 While people were made in the image of God (Gen. 1:26–28), idolaters made gods in the figure of a man (Deut. 4:16; Rom. 1:23).

44:15 Isaiah was particularly struck by the absurdity of using one part of a log for burning and the other part of the very same log as an object of worship.

- Yes, he kindles it and bakes bread;
Indeed he makes a god and worships it;
He makes it a carved image, and falls down to it.
- <sup>16</sup> He burns half of it in the fire;
With this half he eats meat;
He roasts a roast, and is satisfied.
He even warms himself and says,
“Ah! I am warm,
I have seen the fire.”
- <sup>17</sup> And the rest of it he makes into a god,
His carved image.
He falls down before it and
worships it,
Prays to it and says,
“Deliver me, for you are my god!”
- <sup>18</sup> <sup>k</sup> They do not know nor understand;
For <sup>l</sup> He has <sup>2</sup> shut their eyes, so that they cannot see,
And their hearts, so that they cannot

- <sup>19</sup> And no one <sup>n</sup> considers in his heart, Nor is there knowledge nor understanding to say,
“I have burned half of it in the fire,
Yes, I have also baked bread on its coals;
I have roasted meat and eaten it;
And shall I make the rest of it an

Israel Is Not Forgotten

- <sup>21</sup> “Remember these, O Jacob,
And Israel, for you are My servant;
I have formed you, you are My servant;
O Israel, you will not be <sup>q</sup> forgotten
by Me!
- <sup>22</sup> <sup>r</sup> I have blotted out, like a thick cloud,
your transgressions,
And like a cloud, your sins.
Return to Me, for <sup>s</sup> I have redeemed
you.”
- <sup>23</sup> <sup>t</sup> Sing, O heavens, for the LORD has done it!
Shout, you lower parts of the earth;
Break forth into singing, you
mountains,
O forest, and every tree in it!
For the LORD has redeemed Jacob,
And <sup>u</sup> glorified Himself in Israel.

Judah Will Be Restored

- <sup>24</sup> Thus says the LORD, <sup>v</sup> your Redeemer, And <sup>w</sup> He who formed you from the womb:
“I am the LORD, who makes all things, <sup>x</sup> Who stretches out the heavens <sup>3</sup> all alone,
Who spreads abroad the earth by Myself;
- <sup>25</sup> Who <sup>y</sup> frustrates the signs <sup>z</sup> of the babblers,
And drives diviners mad;
Who turns wise men backward,
<sup>a</sup> And makes their knowledge
foolishness;
- <sup>26</sup> <sup>b</sup> Who confirms the word of His servant,
And performs the counsel of His messengers;

44:17 you are my god: This is a scene of complete hopelessness (see 57:13); an idolater prays for deliverance from a powerless piece of wood. Worshiping and depending on any object made by human hands—such as money—is just as hopeless.

44:19 abomination: For another use of this word communicating revulsion, see 41:24. a block of wood: The awful truth was that people were worshiping objects made from God’s creation instead of the Creator Himself.

44:20 He feeds on ashes: Compare the two banquets in Prov. 9:1–6, 13–18.

44:21 My servant: The nation of Israel is often described as God’s servant (see 41:8). formed you: This verb suggests that the formation of the nation was a decisive act on the part of God (43:1). not be forgotten: Although the exiles might have thought God had forgotten (see 49:14, 15), the Lord unambiguously declared that He would remember the nation He had created.

44:22 blotted out: The idea of total forgiveness of sins is also found in 40:2; 43:25. The word redeemed describes God as buying back His people. For the Lord as Redeemer, see 41:14.

44:23 The songs (12:1–6) of the heavens and earth (1:2; 49:13), the forest (35:1, 2) and every tree (14:7, 8; 55:12) mirror the joy of God’s people at the arrival of salvation. glorified Himself: The Lord honors Himself when He saves because it demonstrates to the world His mercy and His power (see 40:5; 42:8; 43:7).

44:24–45:13 This salvation oracle proclaiming Cyrus as the Lord’s anointed to save Israel consists of an expanded introduction concerning its Author (44:24–28), a direct address to Cyrus summoning him to service (45:1–7), and concluding commands to the heavens to rain the Lord’s blessings and to the earth to receive them (45:8). In a twofold epilogue, the Lord reproves anyone who faults His sovereignty (45:9, 10), and asserts His right as Sovereign to fashion His own tools.

44:24 Thus says the LORD: Because the Lord says this, it will come to pass (43:1, 14; 44:2, 6, 24). Redeemer: This same title is used in 41:14. It pictures the Lord’s zeal to defend, protect, and purchase back His people. who formed you: That God formed Israel pictures His desire for them as a nation and His constant loving care on their behalf. For a similar idea, see 43:1.

44:25 Babblers refers to the diviners (2:6, 8; 8:19; Deut. 18:10, 11). wise: These were people wise in their own eyes, but not wise toward the Lord. For a similar description, see 29:14.

44:26 performs the counsel: This idea is explored in more

Cyrus, God’s Instrument

45 “Thus says the LORD to His anointed,
To <sup>a</sup> Cyrus, whose <sup>b</sup> right hand I have <sup>1</sup> held—
<sup>c</sup> ‘To subdue nations before him
And <sup>d</sup> loose the armor of kings,

Who <sup>h</sup> call you by your name,
Am the God of Israel.
4 For <sup>i</sup> Jacob My servant’s sake,
And Israel My elect,
I have even called you by your name;
I have named you, though you have not known Me.
5 I <sup>j</sup> am the LORD, and <sup>k</sup> there is no other;
There is no God besides Me.
<sup>l</sup> I will gird you, though you have not known Me,
6 <sup>m</sup> That they may <sup>n</sup> know from the rising of the sun to its setting
That there is none besides Me.
I am the LORD, and there is no other;
7 I form the light and create darkness,
I make peace and <sup>o</sup> create calamity;
I, the LORD, do all these things.<sup>7</sup>
8 “Rain” down, you heavens, from above,
And let the skies pour down righteousness;
Let the earth open, let them bring forth salvation, detail in 41:1—42:13; 43:8–13; 44:6–8. Israel was to be both the servant (41:8) of the Lord, and His messenger (42:19) to the nations (Gen. 12:3). You shall be inhabited: This same promise is found in Jer. 32:15. built: The rebuilding of the temple and the resettlement of the land after the devastation by Babylon inaugurated the new age (58:12; 61:4).

44:27 Deep refers either to the moat protecting Babylon or to the obstacles blocking the returning exiles (42:15). This may be an allusion to the chaotic waters resisting creation (see Gen. 1:2); the Red Sea blocking the first Exodus (43:16–19; 51:10); or the Jordan River opposing the entrance into the Promised Land (Josh. 3:14–17).

44:28 Cyrus: Here Isaiah mentions by name the king of Persia who would allow the Israelites to return to Jerusalem in 538 B.C. (see Ezra 1:1–4). For a less specific reference, see 41:2. Shepherd is a title for an ideal king (40:11; Mic. 5:4).

45:1 To be anointed, literally to be “Messiah,” indicates appointment to an office, usually as king (61:1). The bestowal of this unique and exalted title on the Persian king, after it had been used in Israel of such notables as the patriarchs (Ps. 105:15), David (Ps. 2:2), and the coming Messiah (Dan. 9:25), must have shocked Isaiah’s Israelite audience (vv. 9, 10). Why would the Lord appoint a foreign pagan to carry out His will? The double doors, which were part of the gates connected with Babylon’s defensive moat, were not shut when Cyrus captured Babylon (44:27).

45:2 I will go before you: This was the Lord’s promise to Cyrus, similar to His promise to His people of old. Babylon had one hundred gates of bronze.

45:3, 4 have not known Me: Cyrus knew that the Lord had appointed him, but he did not know the Lord God personally (see Ezra 1:2).

45:3 Treasures of darkness is an allusion to the fabled wealth of Sardis captured by Cyrus in 546 B.C. Who call you by your name refers to the specific naming of Cyrus by the Lord before Cyrus became king (compare 43:1). In this prophecy, the Lord had named Cyrus as both “shepherd” (40:11; 44:28) and “anointed” (v. 1).

45:4 For Jacob My servant’s sake: God anointed Cyrus to establish again the people whom He loved (43:1).

45:6 From the rising of the sun to its setting means everywhere (Ps. 113:3). No other person or object can compare to the holiness and power of our living Creator. He is sovereign over everything—both good and evil. The symbols of light and darkness (Ex. 10:21–23) are clarified by the words peace and calamity (47:11; Amos 3:6).

45:8 Righteousness and salvation are used as synonyms in the Book of Isaiah (46:13; 51:6; 56:1). In the Middle East people commonly believed that the fertility of the earth and the maintenance of the social order depended on the king’s right relationship with a deity. Because Cyrus was anointed by the true God, heaven would shower its blessings on earth.

diviners (Heb. qasam) (44:25; 1 Sam. 6:2; Ezek. 21:23) Strong’s #7080: This term refers to people who attempt to foretell the future through occult practices. Diviners are often mentioned along with other practitioners of the occult—all of whom were forbidden in Israel (Deut. 18:10–22). False prophets, such as Balaam, practiced divination, and the penalty was death (Josh. 13:22; Jer. 27:9; 29:8; Ezek. 22:28). Diviners brought judgment on themselves but on their nations as well (Deut. 18:10; 2 Kin. 17:17, 18; Mic. 3:6, 7). Divining was practiced by several methods: calling up the spirits of the dead, casting arrows as lots, consulting images, looking at the organs of a dead animal, or interpreting dreams and visions (1 Sam. 28:8; Ezek. 13:23; 21:21, 29; 22:28; Mic. 3:6, 7; Zech. 10:2). Diviners charged fees for their services.

And let righteousness spring up together.

I, the LORD, have created it.

Let the potsherd strive with the potsherd of the earth!

 The Holy One of Israel, and his Maker:
 “Ask Me of things to come concerning ‘My sons;

The LORD, the Only Savior

- 14 Thus says the LORD:
 14<sup>a</sup> “The labor of Egypt and merchandise of Cush
 And of the Sabean, men of stature,
 Shall come over to you, and they shall be yours;
 They shall walk behind you,
 They shall come over ‘in chains;
 And they shall bow down to you.
 They will make supplication to you,
saying, <sup>d</sup> ‘Surely God is in you,
 And there is no other;
<sup>e</sup> ‘There is no other God.’”
 15 Truly You are God, <sup>f</sup> who hide Yourself,
 O God of Israel, the Savior!
 16 They shall be <sup>g</sup> ashamed
 And also disgraced, all of them;
 They shall go in confusion together,
 Who are makers of idols.
 17 <sup>h</sup> But Israel shall be saved by the LORD
 With an <sup>i</sup> everlasting salvation;
 You shall not be ashamed or <sup>j</sup> disgraced
 Forever and ever.
 18 For thus says the LORD,
<sup>k</sup> Who created the heavens,
 Who is God,

45:9-13 The epilogue counters the objections against the Lord’s appointment of foreigner Cyrus as His anointed shepherd (see 44:28; 45:1). It develops in two parts: (1) from analogies of the sovereign rights of a creator over his creation and a father over his children (vv. 9, 10), (2) to the Lord’s sovereignty over Israel (v. 11), over all creation (v. 12), and finally over Cyrus (v. 13).

45:9 Woe: For a similar use of this word see 5:8. Maker: For similar references to God as Creator see 29:23; 43:1; 45:11. potsherd: Why should a created being question the Creator? A piece of pottery does not question the potter. For similar references see 29:16; Jer. 18:6.

45:11 Thus says the LORD: This emphatic statement points to the certainty of these words (43:1, 14; 44:2, 6, 24). things to come: For similar phrases, see 41:22, 23.

45:12 Created is the same verb used in Gen. 1:26-28 (see 43:1).

45:13 The pronoun him refers to Cyrus (44:28; 45:1). Although the Lord gave Cyrus a handsome reward (vv. 3, 4) to ransom His people (43:3), this was not the reason Cyrus sent the captives home.

45:14-25 These prophecies predict worldwide salvation through Israel (14:1, 2; 19:23-25; 49:23; 54:3; 60:11). The nations of Africa will join Israel in worship (v. 14). Idolaters will be ashamed, but Israel will be saved forever (vv. 15-17). The Creator and Redeemer will not be thwarted in His purposes (vv. 18, 19); only He can predict the future, for only He controls it (vv. 20, 21). All nations will eventually bow before Israel’s God (vv. 22-25).

45:14 After the Lord handed over Egypt, Cush, and the Sabbeans to Cyrus as a ransom (43:3, 4), they would hand themselves over to Israel and its Lord. come over: For a similar reference, see Ps. 68:31. You and yours are both feminine singular, referring to the Daughter of Zion (1:8; 40:9). Bow down to you indicates submission to the Lord and recognition of His presence with His people in Zion (2:2-4).

45:15 God hides Himself in His wrath (8:17; 54:8; 55:8, 9), but He reveals Himself in the Scriptures (48:5-8).

45:17 an everlasting salvation: These words of divine promise are echoed in 51:6.

45:18 Created and formed are used as synonyms as in the Book of Genesis (compare Gen. 1:27; 2:7). Both verbs identify the Lord as the Creator and do not focus on the way He accomplished His grand act of creation. In vain is the same term used in Gen. 1:2. The Lord created the earth to be inhabited, woe (Heb. hoy) (5:8; 45:9; 55:1; Jer. 23:1) Strong’s #1945: This interjection was primarily used by the prophets at the opening of a section where the evil practices of a particular person or group was denounced (Jer. 23:1). It is found at the beginning of judgment oracles against foreign nations, drawing attention to a threat by God (10:5). These judgment oracles frequently occur in a series, as in ch. 5 (see 5:8, 11, 18, 20, 21). A prophet could use the word woe to express personal feelings of despair or lament (24:16). Yet even then, the prophet was typically expressing God’s lament and condemnation of wickedness (Jer. 22:13-17). Jesus used an equivalent expression (Gk. ouai) when he cursed Chorazin and Bethsaida (Matt. 11:21) and later the scribes and Pharisees (Luke 11:44).

Who formed the earth and made it,
 Who has established it,
 Who did not create it <sup>5</sup>in vain,
 Who formed it to be <sup>1</sup>inhabited:
<sup>18</sup>“I am the LORD, and there is no other.
<sup>19</sup> I have not spoken in <sup>19</sup>secret,
 In a dark place of the earth;
 I did not say to the seed of Jacob,
 ‘Seek Me <sup>6</sup>in vain’;
<sup>20</sup> I, the LORD, speak righteousness,
 I declare things that are right.
<sup>20</sup> “Assemble yourselves and come;
 Draw near together,
 You who have escaped from the
 nations.
<sup>21</sup> They have no knowledge,

Dead Idols and the Living God

46 Bel <sup>1</sup>bows down, Nebo stoops;
 Their idols were on the beasts
 and on the cattle.
 Your carriages were heavily loaded,
<sup>2</sup> A burden to the weary beast.
<sup>3</sup> They stoop, they bow down together;
 They could not deliver the burden, <sup>4</sup> But have themselves gone into captivity.
<sup>3</sup> “Listen to Me, O house of Jacob,
 And all the remnant of the house of
 Israel,
<sup>4</sup> Who have been upheld by Me from <sup>5</sup> birth,
 Who have been carried from the
 womb:
<sup>6</sup> Even to your old age, <sup>7</sup>I am He,
 And even to gray hairs <sup>8</sup>I will carry

 Even I will carry, and will deliver
you.
<sup>5</sup> “To <sup>9</sup>whom will you liken Me, and make Me equal
 And compare Me, that we should be alike?
<sup>6</sup> <sup>10</sup> They lavish gold out of the bag,
 And weigh silver on the scales;
 They hire a <sup>11</sup>goldsmith, and he not to be desolate, as the Assyrians and Babylonians had left the land of Israel (6:11; 7:18, 19; 27:10, 11; 33:9; 44:26, 28).

45:19 Pagan diviners pronounced their mysterious and ambiguous oracles in secret and dark places. The Lord’s prophets proclaimed the truth openly to all who would listen.
45:20 Draw near together: For similar ideas see 41:1, 21, 22; 43:9; 44:7.
45:21 The pronoun this refers to the universal salvation begun with Cyrus’s decree that Israel return home (44:24—45:13).
45:22 no other: For additional references to God’s incomparability see 40:25; 45:5.
45:23 I have sworn by Myself: The Lord’s promise to Abraham was sworn by His own person (Gen. 22:16; Heb. 6:13). The certainty of the Word of the Lord is emphasized strongly in the Book of Isaiah (40:8). The Lord’s promise that to Me every knee shall bow will be fulfilled in Jesus Christ (see Rom. 14:11; 1 Cor. 15:24, 25; Phil. 2:10, 11).
45:24 Those who are incensed against God will have no share in His eternal kingdom (50:11; 66:24).
46:1–13 This collection of salvation oracles are all spoken by the Lord, and all are addressed to the stubborn exiles. They begin with similar imperatives, “Listen” (v. 3); “Remember” (v. 8);

“Listen” (v. 12); and they share the common theme that the Lord is truly God.
46:1, 2 Bel, meaning “Lord,” was a title of Marduk, Babylon’s chief deity. Nebo, Marduk’s son, was the god of fate, writing, and wisdom. Ironically, each of these gods is said to bow down, to stoop along with their idols. In pagan thought, the idols and the gods that they embodied were inseparable. The heavy idols that were expected to bring deliverance were themselves dragged away into captivity.
46:3 An unbelieving remnant (1:9; 10:20) is likely being referred to here, judging by the parallel words, “transgressors” (v. 8) and “stubborn-hearted” (v. 12; see 1:2; 48:1–5; 57:4). carried from the womb: For a similar image of the Lord carrying the nation of Israel, see Deut. 1:31.
46:4, 5 Old age indicates the Lord’s never-ceasing care. I am He: Note in this verse the emphasis God places on His activities on behalf of His people; the Lord Himself and no one else would save Israel (41:4). liken Me: This is the third time the incomparability of God is asserted in this section of Isaiah (40:18, 25).
46:6, 7 The pronoun they refers to the idol makers (40:19, 20; 41:6, 7; 44:9–20). They bear it: In contrast to the living God who

The Humiliation of Babylon

47 “Come <sup>a</sup> down and <sup>b</sup> sit in the dust,
 O virgin daughter of <sup>c</sup> Babylon;

carries and supports His people (see v. 4), idols have to be carried by those who worship them.

46:8 Transgressors refers to the unbelieving remnant (v. 3).

46:10 the end from the beginning: For a similar description see 41:4. As the Sovereign of the cosmos, God can do anything He desires. His pleasure (Ps. 147:10, 11) includes the salvation of His people (Zeph. 3:17) and the worship of their hearts (John 4:23, 24).

46:11 A bird of prey from the east refers to Cyrus (41:2) and to the speed and power of his conquests (41:3). The point is that God may use any tool He wants to accomplish His purposes on earth (Rom. 9:14-23).

46:12 As there were those in the first Exodus who longed to return to Egypt (Num. 14:3), so in the second Exodus there would be those who refused to leave the comfort and security of Babylon and Persia.

46:13 Righteousness is a synonym for salvation in Isaiah (41:2; 45:8; 51:6; 56:1). Salvation from the Exile was not only certain, but near (51:5). Israel My glory: In spite of the Israelites' long history of rebellion (Ex. 32), God loves His people Israel and has never utterly cast them aside (Rom. 11:1).

47:1-15 The humiliation and exile of Babylon's gods (ch. 46) left Babylon's inhabitants exposed to the same fate. Isaiah predicted Babylon's fall in a mocking funeral song aimed at discouraging Babylon and encouraging Israel. The poem has four stanzas (vv. 1-4, 5-7, 8-11, 12-15).

47:1 O virgin daughter of Babylon: The language is sarcastic. Babylon had acted as though she were “God's daughter.” She

Modern-day Idols Perhaps you think of idols as objects of wood, stone, or metal worshiped by ancient civilizations or primitive peoples. That perception is accurate, but from the Bible's point of view, idolatry fundamentally involves allowing anything or anyone to stand in the place of God.

The ancient Babylonians fashioned many idols for both public and private worship (Is. 46:6, 7). But the Lord ridiculed this practice, for the gods of Babylon were impotent: they had to be hand-carried, as they were unable to move on their own, they were mute, and they were powerless.

Yet as we read the Lord's rebuke in Isaiah, it is worth considering the extent to which people practice forms of idolatry today. For example, modern society has come to rely so heavily on technology and government to solve its problems that many people no longer feel a need for God. They seem to place as much faith in human ingenuity as the ancients placed in their carved images.

Likewise, certain psychotherapies practically do away with any need for the God of the Scriptures. Instead, they rely on their own principles and methods to deal with guilt and sin, and to make people healthy and whole. They hold out the promise that people can become all that they were meant to be apart from God.

A third form of modern idolatry is actually a relic of ancient idolatry. Many people today dabble in occult practices using physical objects such as Ouija boards, Tarot cards, and crystals to tell fortunes and receive supernatural messages. Likewise, horoscopes are as popular as ever, and those who promote them even boast in the fact that astrology, on which horoscopes are based, was heavily practiced in ancient Babylon.

Forms of idolatry such as these may be more sophisticated than the shrines set up by the ancient pagans, but they are idolatry just the same. They have been made to stand in the place of God.

The Lord will not allow those who practice these things to go unpunished. Consider His judgment on the Babylonians (Is. 47:10-15). Is there any reason why He would not pour out just as much wrath on idolaters today? He still hates idolatry (Deut. 7:25, 26). The first and second commandments are still there (Ex. 20:2-6). And the Lord is still who He declared Himself to be to the ancients: “I am God, and there is no other; I am God, and there is none like Me” (Is. 46:9).

Sit on the ground without a throne,
O daughter of the Chaldeans!
For you shall no more be called was about to discover that she was the daughter of the Chaldeans. No longer would she be thought of as a heavenly princess—tender and delicate.

47:2, 3 Grinding meal was a usually work for female slaves (Ex. 11:5). Uncover the thigh suggests doing menial labor with overtones of the shame of indecent exposure. Babylon would lose its status and privilege. Nakedness indicates disgrace, impropriety, lack of dignity, and vulnerability (Gen. 9:22, 23).

47:4 In contrast to the humiliated Babylon, Israel had a Redeemer (41:14). The LORD of hosts (1:9) would deliver the nation of Israel.

47:5 The similar structure of vv. 1, 5 link the first stanza (vv. 1–4) with the second stanza (vv. 5–8).

47:6, 7 Babylon's cruel abuse of Israel when the Lord had given them into Babylon's hand would be avenged, as in the case of the Assyrians (10:1–19; 49:25). a lady forever: Babylon was arrogantly boasting that it would remain an empire, "the Lady of Kingdoms" (see v. 5; compare Dan. 4:30), throughout all time. This amounted to blasphemy.

47:8 Hear is addressed to the wicked "daughter," Babylon

(vv. 1, 5; see 1:8). Babylon had deified itself with the statement I am (v. 10). They had tried to usurp the Lord's unique attribute: Only the Almighty has an existence that is not dependent on another (45:5, 6, 18, 21, 22; 46:9). This wicked self-deification mirrors the boasting of the king of Tyre (Ezek. 28:11–19). Babylon is no longer considered a virgin (v. 1), but instead is a widow. The imagery of the loss of children suggests the loss of hope in the future. Contrast Babylon's fate with that of Zion (49:21–23; 54:1–6).

47:10 Wickedness, wisdom, and knowledge refer to the same idea as "sorceries" and "enchantments" in v. 9 (Dan. 2; 5; contrast with 11:2). No one sees me: The selfish pride of the wicked is based in part on believing that there is not an all-knowing, all-seeing God in the universe.

47:11 The word therefore links Babylon's pretensions of "knowledge" (v. 10) with the just judgment that the nation did not know.

47:12 The command to stand matches the Lord's introductory commands in vv. 1, 5. The word sorceries links the final stanza with the earlier ones (vv. 9, 10).

They shall not deliver themselves
From the power of the flame;
It shall not be a coal to be warmed by,
Nor a fire to sit before!

- 15 Thus shall they be to you
With whom you have labored,
<sup>x</sup>Your merchants from your youth;
They shall wander each one to his <sup>6</sup>quarter.
No one shall save you.

Israel Refined for God's Glory

48 "Hear this, O house of Jacob,
Who are called by the name of Israel,

And have come forth from the wellsprings of Judah;
Who swear by the name of the LORD,
And make mention of the God of Israel,

- <sup>2</sup> But <sup>a</sup>not in truth or in righteousness;
For they call themselves <sup>b</sup>after the holy city,
And <sup>c</sup>lean on the God of Israel;
The LORD of hosts is His name:

- <sup>3</sup> "I have <sup>d</sup>declared the former things from the beginning;
They went forth from My mouth,
and I caused them to hear it.
Suddenly I did them, <sup>e</sup>and they came to pass.

- <sup>4</sup> Because I knew that you were <sup>1</sup>obstinate,
And <sup>f</sup>your neck was an iron sinew,
And your brow bronze,

- <sup>5</sup> Even from the beginning I have declared it to you;
Before it came to pass I proclaimed
it to you,
Lest you should say, 'My idol has done them,

And my carved image and my molded image
Have commanded them.'

- <sup>6</sup> "You have heard;
See all this.
And will you not declare it?
I have made you hear new things
from this time,
Even hidden things, and you did not know them.
<sup>7</sup> They are created now and not from the beginning;
And before this day you have not heard them,
Lest you should say, 'Of course I knew them.'
<sup>8</sup> Surely you did not hear,
Surely you did not know;
Surely from long ago your ear was not opened.
For I knew that you would deal very treacherously,
And were called <sup>g</sup>a transgressor from the womb.

- <sup>9</sup> "For <sup>h</sup>My name's sake <sup>i</sup>I will <sup>2</sup>defer
My anger,
And for My praise I will restrain it
from you,
So that I do not cut you off.
<sup>10</sup> Behold, <sup>j</sup>I have refined you, but not as silver;
I have tested you in the <sup>k</sup>furnace of affliction.
<sup>11</sup> For My own sake, for My own sake, I will do it;
For <sup>l</sup>how should My name be profaned?
And <sup>m</sup>I will not give My glory to another.

47:15 Babylon's fate would also overtake those with whom it had labored, its ancient merchants, on whose trade it depended for its wealth. Compare the arrogance of the king of Tyre based on Tyre's successful trading (Ezek. 28:16, 18).

48:1-11 This passage, addressed to all Israel, condemns the people for hypocrisy (v. 1), idolatry (v. 5), arrogance (v. 7), and treachery (v. 8). At the same time, the oracle promises the people salvation for the sake of the Lord's name (vv. 9-11). The tone is similar to 42:18, 19; 43:22-25; 46:1-13. The oracle has four parts: (1) summoning Israel to hear the address (vv. 1, 2); (2) a charge that Israel's unbelief is without excuse because the Lord had revealed that it was He who was helping them (vv. 3-5); (3) a prediction of future salvation (vv. 6-8); and (4) a promise that the Lord will defer judgment for the sake of His name (vv. 9-11).

48:1 Hear is an urgent appeal to "deaf Israel" (6:9, 10; 48:6, 8). Jacob . . . Israel: For a similar use of these names, see 41:8. called by the name: For related descriptions of Israel as called by God, see 43:1, 7; 63:8.

48:2 The holy city is Jerusalem. The citizens of Jerusalem professed to lean on the God of Israel (Rom. 9:6).

48:4 Obstinate means "hard" (46:12; Ex. 32:9; Deut. 9:6, 13). Iron and bronze here are metaphors for rebelliousness (Jer. 6:28).

48:5 Despite Israel's knowledge that no idol had helped them, Isaiah anticipated that in the future they would attribute their salvation to some other god than the one Lord.

48:6 New things include the career of Cyrus (v. 14); the fall of Babylon and Israel's restoration (v. 20), which inaugurated the messianic age (v. 16); and the restoration of all things (65:17-19). To be able to declare . . . hidden things, the Lord must know and control the future.

48:7, 8 As God unfolded His plan of redemption, He created events that Israel had not heard about before. God knew that if the Israelites had possessed such knowledge, they would have acted treacherously, claiming "Of course I knew them."

48:9 The Lord works out everything for His praise (42:8-12; 43:21). Defer My anger means to be "longsuffering" (Ex. 34:6).

48:10 Refined, a reference to judgment (1:25; 4:4), refers to the Babylonian captivity. Furnace is an allusion to Israel's suffering in Egypt (Deut. 4:20; Jer. 11:4).

48:11 For My own sake: The Lord shows His settled will to maintain the integrity of His great name (v. 9). God's acts of mercy are His own initiative, springing from the depths of His mercy (37:35; 42:21; 43:25). My glory is a parallel expression to

“My name” (42:8), as is the expression “My praise” in v. 9. profaned: For descriptions of how Israel had desecrated God’s name, see Ezek. 20:8, 9; 36:21–23.

48:12–22 This section, directed to all Israel, encourages the unrighteous to participate in the Lord’s redemption of the nation from Babylon. The Lord (1) presents Himself as the sovereign Creator (vv. 12, 13), (2) shows that He alone predicted Israel’s salvation through Cyrus (vv. 14, 15), (3) promises to come to the people in the form of His Servant (v. 16), and (4) promises peace and posterity to those who obey Him (vv. 17–19). Isaiah follows the divine speech with an exhortation to flee Babylon (v. 20) and participate joyfully in the second Exodus (vv. 21, 22).

48:12 called: For a similar reference to God’s calling of Israel, see 42:6. First . . . Last: For a similar description of God’s sovereignty over all time, see 41:4.

48:13 Earth and heavens refer to the entire cosmos (13:13; 40:21, 22; 51:6, 13).

48:14 Assemble yourselves probably was addressed to the nations; the pronoun them likely refers to the idols of the nations (41:21–23; 43:9; 45:20, 21). The pronoun him refers to Cyrus (41:2, 25; 45:13; 46:11), a designation made explicit in 44:28–45:1.

48:15 I, even I draws attention to the source of this prophecy: the living God. called: For a similar reference to this calling, see 41:2.

48:16 Me refers to the Servant, Jesus (42:1–13; 61:1), who has spoken through His prophets (1 Pet. 1:10, 11). Lord here means “Master,” suggesting that the speaker is the Servant (50:4). For additional references to God’s Spirit, see 11:2; 30:1; 42:1; 59:21; 61:1; Luke 3:22.

48:17 The Lord teaches and leads through His servants (Deut. 5:27), His prophets, and His Son.

48:18 A river supplies abundant water to produce luxuriant growth (41:18; 66:12; Amos 5:24). The waves of the sea speak of power, constancy, and increase.

48:19 Sand recalls God’s promise to the patriarchs that the Israelites would become very numerous (Gen. 22:17; 32:12).

The Purpose of Prophecy

Perhaps you think of prophecy as having mainly to do with predictions about the future. That’s understandable, since prophets in Bible times sometimes foretold what would happen in the future (for example, Is. 7:14–17; 45:1–7; Jer. 28:12–17). However, the purpose of prophecy goes beyond merely informing people about things to come. There are at least two additional reasons why God spoke through the Old Testament prophets:

First, prophecy shows that the Lord is God. A god who cannot reveal himself to human beings is unlikely to command much respect. But through prophecy, the Lord has made Himself known in compelling ways. For example, He demonstrated His omniscience by revealing to the Israelites what would happen in the future, something no pagan idol could do (Is. 48:5). He also demonstrated His power through the prophets in ways that left no doubt about who He is (1 Kin. 18:36–39).

Second, prophecy announces God’s word. Closely related to God’s revelation of Himself through prophecy is His communication of truth that He wants people to know. Prophecy is often referred to as the “word of the LORD” (Is. 1:10; 28:14; 38:4); in fact, it is often prefaced by the words, “thus says the Lord God” (7:7; 10:24; 22:15). Thus prophecy is revelation from God. It brings to light truth that would otherwise remain unexpressed.

The point of these revelations is not merely to inform but to declare what is true, and then to tell people how they should live in light of what is true. Sometimes prophecy helps to warn people about the consequences of their actions, and sometimes it encourages them when circumstances appear to be desperate. But whatever its effect on people, the purpose of prophecy is to proclaim God and His word.

And the offspring of your body like
the grains of sand;
His name would not have been cut off
Nor destroyed from before Me.”

<sup>7</sup> Thus says the LORD,
The Redeemer of Israel, <sup>5</sup>their Holy
One,

48:20 By putting the command declare into the present tense, the future salvation is brought vividly into the present (40:9-11; 44:23; 46:1-4). Go forth: The people are told to leave Babylon, forsaking its comforts (Gen. 12:1; Ex. 12:31). proclaim: For examples of proclamations, see 12:1; 44:23; 49:13.

48:21 They did not thirst is an allusion to God’s provision of water during the first Exodus (41:17-20; 43:16-21; Ex. 17:1-7; Num. 20:2-11). waters . . . from the rock: For a NT perspective on these miracles see 1 Cor. 10:4.

49:1-13 This second song of the suffering Servant (see also 42:1-13) consists of two parts: the Servant’s soliloquy (vv. 1-6) and the Lord’s oracles to Him (vv. 7-9). The song is followed by Isaiah’s elaboration (vv. 9-12), and it concludes with a hymn of praise (v. 13).

49:1 coastlands: The Servant’s mission pertains to the whole earth (41:1). Matrix means “womb” (Gen. 25:23; Ruth 1:11).

49:2 Through the preaching of His mouth, the Servant will conquer the earth (11:4). like a sharp sword: For similar descriptions of Jesus’ speech, see Eph. 6:17; Heb. 4:12; Rev. 1:16. Shadow suggests protection (30:2, 3; 51:16). Because the Servant’s mission was hidden until He was sent, it would be more effective (48:6-8).

49:3 Israel may refer to the quintessential Israel—the Savior Jesus—who would come to redeem national Israel (v. 5). In whom I will be glorified: In partial fulfillment of this prophecy, Jesus prayed to His Father, “I have glorified You on the earth. I have finished the work which You have given Me to do” (John 17:4).

49:4 The Servant’s complaint that He labored in vain (26:17, 18) points to His rejection by the nation of Israel and His suffering (42:2). reward: The Servant will be vindicated (50:8) and will be rewarded after His death (53:8) and resurrection (53:10).

49:5 The political mission of Cyrus to bring Jacob back from Babylon (44:28; 45:13) foreshadows the spiritually redemptive mission of the Servant to free His people from their captivity to sin (42:7).

49:6 light to the Gentiles: The Servant fulfills the call of Abraham (Gen. 12:1-3) and the nation of Israel (Ex. 19:5, 6) to be a blessing to other nations. After Jesus’ death and resurrection, the great commission of global evangelism is carried on by His apostles (Acts 13:47; 26:23) and those who succeed them to the end of the age (Matt. 28:18-20).

49:7 Paradoxically, the King who humbles Himself to become the servant of rulers will Himself receive homage from them

salvation (Heb. yeshu’ah) (49:6; Job 30:15; Ps. 67:2) Strong’s #3444: This word describes deliverance from distress and the resultant victory and well-being. The term occurs most often in Psalms and Isaiah where it is frequently used along with the word righteousness, indicating a connection between God’s righteousness and His saving acts (45:8; 51:6, 8; 56:1; 62:1; Ps. 98:2). This word can be used for a military victory (1 Sam. 14:45), but it is normally used of God’s deliverance (Ex. 15:2; Ps. 135:6). The expressions “the salvation of the LORD” and “the salvation of our God” speak of God’s work on behalf of His people. The expression “the God of my salvation” is more private in nature, referring to the deliverance of an individual (12:2; 52:10; Ex. 14:13; 2 Chr. 20:17; Ps. 88:1; 98:3).

To the Servant of rulers:
<sup>14</sup>Kings shall see and arise,
Princes also shall worship,
Because of the LORD who is faithful,
The Holy One of Israel;
And He has chosen You.”

<sup>8</sup>Thus says the LORD:

“In an <sup>m</sup>acceptable <sup>7</sup>time I have heard
You,
And in the day of salvation I have helped You;
I will <sup>8</sup>preserve You <sup>n</sup>and give You

God Will Remember Zion

<sup>14</sup> <sup>y</sup> But Zion said, “The LORD has forsaken me,
And my Lord has forgotten me.”

<sup>15</sup> “Can <sup>w</sup> a woman forget her nursing child,
<sup>1</sup> And not have compassion on the son of her womb?
Surely they may forget,
<sup>x</sup> Yet I will not forget you.
<sup>16</sup> See, <sup>y</sup>I have inscribed you on the palms of My hands;
Your walls are continually before Me.
<sup>17</sup> Your <sup>z</sup>sons shall make haste;
Your destroyers and those who laid you waste
Shall go away from you.
<sup>18</sup> <sup>z</sup>Lift up your eyes, look around and see;
All these gather together and come
to you.
As I live,” says the LORD,
“You shall surely clothe yourselves with them all <sup>a</sup>as an ornament,
And bind them on you as a bride
does.”

(see 4:2; 45:24; 52:15). Kings will also bow down to His people (see v. 23).

49:8 In an acceptable time, in contrast to the day of vengeance (34:8; 61:1; 2 Cor. 6:2), the Lord will hear the Servant’s complaint that His mission toward Israel was in vain (v. 4). The Lord will crown His Servant as King to restore blessing on the famished earth (45:8). The pronoun them refers to Israel.

49:9 Go forth is an allusion to Isaiah’s command for the exiles to leave Babylon (48:20). The imagery of feeding in pastures implies that the Servant would be Israel’s Shepherd-King (40:11).

49:10 The word thirst is an allusion to 48:21. Heat and sun may be allusions to Ps. 121, a psalm of pilgrimage. The word guide may be an allusion to the first Exodus (42:16; 48:21; Ex. 15:13).

49:11 Mountains, which were once barriers (2:2, 13, 14; 42:15), will become highways, the means of salvation (vv. 22, 23). The pronoun My before both mountains and highways is significant: God the Creator is the sovereign Owner of all creation.

49:12 The north and the west indicates the universal salvation of all Israel (11:11, 12; 43:5, 6). These oracles are addressed to all Israel and all the earth (48:1; 49:1). Sinim was a district on the southern frontier of ancient Egypt.

49:13 Sing: The Lord is the Creator of music (12:1–6; 44:23).

49:14–26 This section consists of two complaints of Zion

(vv. 14, 24), followed by the Lord’s reassuring responses to them (vv. 15–23; vv. 25, 26). The aim of the two sections is to cause Israel and the nations to know that Israel’s Lord is the eternal God (vv. 23, 26).

49:14 Zion represents the exiles (40:1, 9). The complaint The LORD has forsaken me resembles that in 40:27–31. The Lord disciplined the Israelites briefly because of their sin (54:7; Lam. 5:20–22).

49:15 The Lord says: I will not forget you. The nuance of the verb suggests an even stronger assurance, “As for Me, I am unable to forget you.”

49:16 inscribed: This may refer to the Lord’s command for the names of the tribes of Israel to be inscribed on the stones of the priest’s ephod (see Ex. 28:9–12). When the priest was in the temple, the engraved names would remind God of His covenant with Israel. Your walls are continually before Me: The Creator God has His thoughts focused on the welfare of His people (see Ps. 40:5).

49:17 Cyrus gave the edict to rebuild Jerusalem (44:28). The restored sons of Zion would carry out the decree. Zion’s would-be destroyers were the Babylonians (2 Kin. 25:8–10).

49:18 As I live: This is an oath formula. The Lord swears by His own eternal person (Gen. 22:16). Zion’s returning “sons” were a splendid ornament, like the jewels of a bride (61:10).

19 “For your waste and desolate places,
And the land of your destruction, <sup>b</sup> Will even now be too small for the inhabitants;
And those who swallowed you up will be far away.
20 <sup>c</sup> The children you will have,
<sup>d</sup> After you have lost the others,
Will say again in your ears,
“The place is too small for me;
Give me a place where I may dwell.”
21 Then you will say in your heart,
“Who has begotten these for me,
Since I have lost my children and am desolate,
A captive, and wandering to and fro?
And who has brought these up?

22 <sup>e</sup> Thus says the Lord God:

“Behold, I will lift My hand in an oath

And set up My <sup>3</sup> standard for the

They shall bring your sons in their

“Even the captives of the mighty shall

And the prey of the terrible be

And I will save your children.

All flesh <sup>l</sup> shall know

The Servant, Israel's Hope

50 Thus says the LORD:

“Where is <sup>a</sup> the certificate of your mother's divorce,
Whom I have put away?
Or which of My <sup>b</sup> creditors is it to whom I have sold you?
For your iniquities <sup>c</sup> you have sold
yourselves,
And for your transgressions your mother has been put away.
2 Why, when I came, was there no
man?
Why, when I called, was there none to answer?

49:19 Desolate means “childless” (54:1).

49:20 The complaint that the place is too small is in fact a cause for rejoicing (54:1–3; Zech. 2:4, 5), because it means the Lord would cause His people to grow. This prophecy points to the return of the exiles to Jerusalem, for under Ezra and Nehemiah the exiles built a relatively small city (see Ezra 2; Neh. 7). Some view the ultimate fulfillment of this prophecy to be the gathering of the Lord's people at the coming of Jesus' kingdom.

49:22 I will lift My hand in an oath: God swears by His own character. Standard is often translated “banner” (11:12). The return of the Israelites from the nations and not only from Babylon shows that the future salvation of all Israel is in view (Rom. 11:26).

49:23 The nations that had enslaved Israel had served Israel as foster fathers and nursing mothers (14:2; 43:6; 60:9).

49:24, 25 Israel asks rhetorically: Shall the prey—captive Israel—be taken from the mighty—Babylon? Apparently Israel expects a negative answer to this question, but the Lord responds affirmatively. He would contend with the mighty, terrible Babylon (Jer 50:33, 34) and free His people.

49:26 oppress: Cannibalism was not unknown during the horrible famine of a siege (9:20; see Deut. 28:53–57; 2 Kin. 6:24–31; Lam. 4:10; Zech. 11:9). I, the LORD . . . Mighty One of Jacob: The last couplet is a celebration of the name and character of the living God. The Almighty asserts that He is the One who can powerfully save His people (Ex. 3:14, 15; 34:6, 7).

50:1–3 In this prophecy, the Lord defends Himself (42:18–25; 43:22–28) against the implied accusation brought by the unbelieving exiles of the second generation, that He was unwilling or unable to save them.

50:1 Though the Lord had put away Israel, as a husband might put away a wife, it was for only a short period of exile (see 54:5–7; 62:4) and not permanently. Permanent exile would have required a certificate of divorce (see Deut. 24:1–4). If the Lord had issued one, He could not have taken Israel back (see Deut. 24:1–4; Jer. 3:1, 8). No prophet suggested that God had completely broken His covenant; rather, they predicted God's faithfulness to a remnant who would return (Mic. 4:9, 10). Your mother refers to Jerusalem, more specifically, the inhabitants of the preceding generation that had gone into exile. If the Lord had sold Israel to creditors (see Ex. 21:7; 2 Kin. 4:1; Neh. 5:5), He would not have any authority over their destiny. But the Israelites had sold themselves because of their own iniquities (see 42:23–25). Therefore God as their Redeemer could buy them back (see 41:14; 52:3).

50:2 God came to Israel at the time of the Exile through the prophets He sent. Later God came to this earth through His Servant and Son, Jesus (41:9). But no one answered Him (see 6:9, 10; 66:4). Is My hand shortened: For a variation of this Is My hand shortened at all that it cannot redeem?

 Or have I no power to deliver?
 Indeed with My <sup>d</sup>rebuke I dry up the sea,
 I make the rivers a wilderness;
 Their fish stink because there is no water,

The LORD Comforts Zion

51 “Listen to Me, <sup>a</sup>you who <sup>l</sup>follow after righteousness,
 You who seek the LORD:

rhetorical question, see Num. 11:23. dry up the sea: The Lord alluded to His parting of the Red Sea and the Jordan River to evoke images of His strength (see 43:16, 17; 44:27; 51:9-11).

50:3 Blackness may be an allusion to the ninth plague of Egypt, when the Lord made darkness cover the earth (see Ex. 10:21).

50:4-11 The third Servant song consists of a soliloquy by the Servant (vv. 4-9), and the prophet’s address to believing and unbelieving Israel (vv. 10, 11).

50:4 The title Lord God is emphasized in this section (vv. 5, 7, 9). The title Lord means “Master”; the word God represents the divine name (Yahweh). The Lord educated the Servant’s tongue through suffering. The word learned is translated elsewhere as “disciple” (8:16). weary: Unlike unbelieving Israel (Jer. 31:25), the Lord awakens the Servant’s ear to hear (contrast 42:18, 19).

50:5 opened: The idea is the same as that in Ps. 40:6—the opening of the ear canal as a symbol for hearing and obeying. not rebellious: Contrast 1:2.

50:6 People sometimes struck the back of a fool (Prov. 10:13; 19:29; 26:3). Jesus Christ suffered this humiliation (42:2; 49:4; 53:12; Matt. 27:26; John 19:1). Pulling someone’s beard was a sign of contempt and disrespect (2 Sam. 10:4, 5; Neh. 13:25).

shame and spitting: This prophecy was fulfilled in the suffering of Jesus Christ (Matt. 27:30).

50:7 The Lord is the Servant’s only source of help (41:10, 13, 14; 49:8). The phrase not be disgraced means to be honored (49:7; 52:13). Like a flint indicates determination in the face of opposition (Ezek. 3:8, 9). For this prophecy’s fulfillment in Jesus Christ, see Luke 9:51.

50:8 justifies: God would view this One as completely righteous. This prophecy was fulfilled in Jesus Christ (1 Tim. 3:16).

50:9 the Lord God will help Me: See the same voice of confidence in the Lord in Ps. 118:6-12, another prophecy of the suffering of the Savior Jesus.

50:10 Who . . . fears the LORD: The fear of the Lord—that is, the reverence or awe of God—is the beginning of true wisdom (see Prov. 1:7).

50:11 Those who kindle a fire means those who are self-reliant, instead of walking in the light of the Lord and His Servant (2:5; 42:6). When the Light comes into the world, some will choose darkness (John 3:17, 18). Torment indicates God’s punishment for unbelief.

51:1-8 Three oracles (vv. 1-3, 4-6, 7, 8) are linked by the same imperative, “Listen” (vv. 1, 4, 7); the same speaker, the Lord (except v. 3); the same addressees, the faithful exiles; and the sackcloth (Heb. saq) (50:3; Gen. 37:34; 1 Kin. 20:31, 32; Neh. 9:1; Esth. 4:1-4) Strong’s #8242: Sackcloth is a rough, coarse cloth or a baglike garment made of this cloth. In the Bible, sackcloth was often used to symbolize certain actions. In the case of mourning, either over a death (Gen. 37:34; Joel 1:8) or another calamity (Esth. 4:1-4; Job 16:15), the Israelites showed their grief by wearing sackcloth and ashes. This was done also in instances of confession and grief over sin (1 Kin. 21:27). Sackcloth was often worn by prophets, perhaps to show their own brokenness in the face of their terrible message of judgment and doom (20:2; Rev. 11:3). The word for sackcloth in the Bible can also mean sack. Joseph ordered that the sacks of his brothers be filled with grain (Gen. 42:25).

Look to the rock from which you were hewn,
 And to the hole of the pit from which you were dug.
<sup>2</sup> <sup>b</sup> Look to Abraham your father,
 And to Sarah who bore you;
<sup>c</sup> For I called him alone,
 And <sup>d</sup> blessed him and increased him.”
<sup>3</sup> For the LORD will <sup>e</sup> comfort Zion,
 He will comfort all her waste places;
 He will make her wilderness like Eden,
 And her desert <sup>f</sup> like the garden of the LORD;
 Joy and gladness will be found in it,
 Thanksgiving and the voice of melody.
<sup>4</sup> “Listen to Me, My people;

<sup>j</sup> And My arms will judge the peoples;
<sup>k</sup> The coastlands will wait upon Me, common theme of comfort as a result of the coming salvation. 51:1, 2 Look links the metaphor of v. 1 with its interpretation in v. 2. The metaphors rock and pit are interpreted in v. 2 as referring to Abraham and Sarah.

51:3 Zion replaced Eden. Both were walled-in places of fellowship with God, free from sin, and guarded by cherubim so that only God's people could enter (Gen. 3:24; 2 Chr. 3:7).

51:4 The Servant is the light of the peoples (42:6; 49:6; John 3:17, 18).

51:5 The day of the Lord is always near (2:12; 56:1; Zeph. 1:14; 1 Thess. 5:4-11; James 5:8); here the reference is to the restoration from Exile (46:13). The coastlands (41:1), like the exiles, wait for the Lord. The verb translated wait has to do with confident expectation and active hope (40:31; Ps. 40:1).

51:6 Heavens and earth suggest the entire cosmos (13:13; 40:21, 22; 48:13; 51:13). The old cosmos will vanish away and grow old (34:4; Heb. 1:10, 11), and those who dwell in it will die (v. 8). Only God's people will inherit the new cosmos. Righteousness, a synonym for salvation in Isaiah (45:8; 46:13), will last forever (45:17; 56:1).

51:7 In whose heart is My law refers to those who are bound to God by the provisions of the New Covenant (42:6; Jer. 31:33). The reproach of the exiles anticipates the rejection of the Servant (50:4-11).

51:8 righteousness . . . forever . . . salvation: The interrelationship of salvation, righteousness, and eternity can also be seen in v. 6.

51:9-16 This oracle bases Israel's salvation on the Lord's past mighty acts at creation and the Exodus. It consists of three sections: (1) a call to the Lord to stir up His might as in days of old (vv. 9-11); (2) the Lord's response, recalling those acts and chiding the people for forgetting Him (vv. 12, 13); and (3) a recounting of His gift of prophecy (vv. 14-16).

51:9 Awake implies that the Lord appeared to be asleep (40:27; Ps. 44:23). The Lord's strength at creation in subduing the sea is the subject of Ps. 93. Isaiah's prayer is based on God's promise (50:2), and poetically addressed to God's strong arm (41:10; 51:5). Rahab was a mythical serpent that resisted God's creation of the universe (see Job 7:12; Ps. 74:13, 14). This imagery, possibly borrowed from Canaanite myths, also represents the Lord's defeat of Egypt—the nation that resisted the creation of Israel (30:7). The language here associates the Lord's creative work in the first Exodus and in the second Exodus (the return of the exiles) with His creative act of transforming the chaos of Gen. 1:2 into the cosmos of Gen. 2:1 (see 27:1).

51:10 dried up: For similar references, see 42:15; 50:2. The Lord's victory at the Red Sea (Ex. 14:21, 22) is probably represented by the imagery of a pagan myth in which the sea opposed the creating deity. The probable allusion is supported by the . . . deep, a term used for the primeval chaotic waters of Gen. 1:2. The Exodus is placed within the broader framework of God's power over evil.

51:12 The Lord responds to the double imperative of v. 9, “Awake, awake,” with the doubled pronoun I, even I.

- <sup>c</sup>Of a man who will die,

21 Therefore please hear this, you
afflicted,
And drunk <sup>r</sup>but not with wine.
22 Thus says your Lord,
The LORD and your God,
Who <sup>s</sup>pleads the cause of His people: “See, I have taken out of your hand
The cup of trembling,
The dregs of the cup of My fury;
You shall no longer drink it.
23 <sup>t</sup>But I will put it into the hand of those who afflict you,
Who have said to <sup>u</sup>you,
‘Lie down, that we may walk over
you.’
And you have laid your body like the
ground,
And as the street, for those who walk over.”

God Redeems Jerusalem

- 52 Awake, awake!
Put on your strength, O Zion;
Put on your beautiful garments,
O Jerusalem, the holy city!
For the uncircumcised <sup>a</sup>and the unclean
Shall no longer come to you.
2 <sup>b</sup>Shake yourself from the dust, arise;

51:13 stretched out: For a similar description of creation, see 40:22. oppressor: For a graphic depiction of the punishment of Israel's oppressors, see 49:26.

51:14 Captive exile literally refers to the exiles in Babylon. The meaning extends to all who experience the darkness of sin and alienation from God (48:20; 49:9).

51:15 Who divided the sea . . . roared: The sea represents all that is evil and in opposition to the Lord (Ps. 93).

51:16 Your mouth refers to the words of the Servant (41:9; 44:26; 50:4). shadow of My hand: For a similar use of the phrase, see 49:2.

51:17-23 This salvation oracle urging Jerusalem to have faith in God consists of two parts: (1) Mother Jerusalem (see 49:20, 21; 50:1) must awaken herself from her staggering stupor (vv. 17-20), and (2) the prophet asks the people to hear the Lord's promise that He will transfer the cup of His anger from them into the hands of her enemies (vv. 21-23).

51:17 Awake, awake: The same double imperative is found in v. 9 (contrast 40:1). drunk . . . the cup: For similar imagery see Jer. 25:15-29; Lam. 4:21; Ezek. 23:31-34.

51:19, 20 These two things refers to the desolation of the land and the destruction of the people. at the head of all the streets: A similar image of destruction is used in Lam. 2:19.

51:21-23 The cause of drunkenness was not wine, but the cup of trembling, the terror of God's judgment. those who afflict you: Israel's oppressors would be made to drink “the cup of . . . fury” (v. 22).

52:1 The double call to the Lord to Awake, awake is also used in 51:9, 17. Holy city (48:2) contrasts with uncircumcised and unclean Babylon. Jerusalem (1:8; 40:1, 9) is commanded to awake because she is forever free of her despicable oppressors. Zion: The exiles are identified by their home city (40:1, 9). Zion's strength is like beautiful garments that adorn a queen mother (61:10). The Babylonian hordes would not only be expelled (49:17), but would no longer come to Zion (Nah. 1:15; Rev. 21:27; 22:14, 15).

52:2 Arise . . . sit down evokes the image of a queen ascending her throne. Loose yourself: For similar images of freed captives, see 42:7; 48:20; 51:14.

Sit down, O Jerusalem!
<sup>c</sup>Loose yourself from the bonds of your neck,
 O captive daughter of Zion!
 3 For thus says the LORD:
 4 “You have sold yourselves for nothing,
 And you shall be redeemed <sup>e</sup>without money.”
 4 For thus says the Lord God:
 “My people went down at first
 Into <sup>f</sup>Egypt to <sup>g</sup>dwell there;
 Then the Assyrian oppressed them without cause.
 5 Now therefore, what have I here,”
 says the LORD,
 “That My people are taken away for nothing?
 Those who rule over them
 2 Make them wail,” says the LORD,
 “And My name is <sup>h</sup>blasphemed continually every day.
 6 Therefore My people shall know My
 name;
 Therefore they shall know in that day
 That I am He who speaks:
 ‘Behold, it is I.’”
 7 <sup>h</sup> How beautiful upon the mountains
 Are the feet of him who brings good news,
 Who proclaims peace,
 Who brings glad tidings of good
things,
 Who proclaims salvation,
 Who says to Zion,
 “Your God reigns!”

8 Your watchmen shall lift up their voices,
 With their voices they shall sing
 together;
 For they shall see eye to eye
 When the LORD brings back Zion.
 9 Break forth into joy, sing together,
 You waste places of Jerusalem!
 For the LORD has comforted His
 people,
 He has redeemed Jerusalem.
 10 <sup>j</sup> The LORD has <sup>3</sup>made bare His holy arm
 In the eyes of <sup>k</sup>all the nations;
 And all the ends of the earth shall see
 The salvation of our God.
 11 <sup>l</sup> Depart! Depart! Go out from there,
 Touch no unclean thing;
 Go out from the midst of her,
<sup>m</sup>Be clean,
 You who bear the vessels of the LORD.
 12 For <sup>n</sup>you shall not go out with haste,
 Nor go by flight;
<sup>o</sup>For the LORD will go before you, <sup>p</sup>And the God of Israel will be your rear guard.
The Sin-Bearing Servant
 13 Behold, <sup>q</sup>My Servant shall <sup>4</sup>deal prudently;
<sup>r</sup>He shall be exalted and <sup>5</sup>extolled and be very high.
 14 Just as many were astonished at you,
 So His <sup>s</sup>visage <sup>6</sup>was marred more than any man,

52:4 to dwell there: The wording suggests that Israel was dependent on Egypt’s hospitality; but the text assumes the Egyptians betrayed that trust. Without cause does not mean that Israel was without sin (42:23–25), but that Israel had not wronged either Egypt or Assyria.

52:5 Here refers to Babylon. God’s justice demands that those who make Israel wail will be punished and that Israel will be delivered. My name is blasphemed: For a similar charge, see 37:23, 24.

52:6 My people refers to the redeemed exiles. Know My name is an allusion to Ex. 3:13, 14; 6:2. The Lord glorifies His name by predicting and fulfilling the promise of redemption pledged in v. 3.

52:7 The vision is of the feet of the one who runs from the scene of battle across mountains to the city waiting for news (2 Sam. 18:26). The glorious message of this runner is salvation, meaning “victorious deliverance” (49:8). This is good news or glad tidings. The idea appears in the NT as “to tell the Good News.” The message Your God reigns stands behind all history; the Lord controls every power on earth.

52:10 The LORD has made bare His holy arm in order to fight majestically (40:10; 51:9; Ex. 6:6). the ends of the earth: For similar uses of this phrase, see 45:22; 48:20.

52:11 Depart! Depart: For another use of a double word, see 51:9, 17. Touch no unclean thing: For other passages concerning separation, see 2 Cor. 6:17; Heb. 12:14; 13:13; 1 Pet. 2:1–12;

Rev. 18:4. In the first Exodus, Israel carried out silver and gold from Egypt; in the second Exodus, the priestly nation would bear the vessels made from those elements (2 Kin. 25:14, 15; Ezra 1:7–11; 5:14, 15).

52:12 Before and rear guard are allusions to the pillar of cloud and fire that protected Israel in its flight from Egypt (42:16; 49:10; 58:8; Ex. 13:21, 22; 14:19, 20). the LORD . . . the God of Israel: The pillar of cloud and fire actually stood for the Lord Himself (Ex. 33:9–11).

52:13—53:12 The fourth of the Servant Songs forms the central unit of chs. 40–66, predicting the Servant’s death for the sins of His people. The passage consists of three sections: (1) The Father praises the work of the Servant (52:13–15); (2) Israel confesses that it has despised Him (53:1–9); (3) the prophecy expands on the significance of the Servant’s death (53:10–12). This passage is cited many times in the NT, where the Servant is identified with Jesus Christ (see Luke 22:37; 24:27, 46; 1 Cor. 15:3; 1 Pet. 1:11).

52:13 Exalted and extolled and be very high may refer to three successive events, describing the Servant’s resurrection, ascension, and glorification (Rom. 4:24, 25). Or the three phrases might simply emphasize the great exaltation of the Lord’s servant (Phil. 2:9–11).

52:14 So His visage was marred . . . more than the sons of men: People would be horrified at the Servant’s appearance; He would be so disfigured that He would no longer look human.

52:15 The nations are represented by their kings. Shut their mouths is a token of stunned respect. For what had not been told . . . they shall consider: Romans 15:21 refers to this passage. What they are told is the report of ch. 53.

53:1 Who has believed: This rhetorical question, quoted in John 12:38 and Rom. 10:16, expects a negative answer. The word report is related to the verb “they heard” in 52:15. Our refers to the believing remnant in Israel. Arm refers to God’s great work (40:10; 52:10; Ps. 118:22, 23).

53:2 Tender plant refers to a shoot rising from a plant’s stem or root. A root out of dry ground suggests Christ’s rejection by Israel (49:4; 50:6). No form or comeliness indicates that the Servant did not have a majestic manner.

53:3 He is despised and rejected: For related references describing the rejection of the Servant, see 42:2; 49:7; 50:6 (compare Mark 9:12). Man of sorrows does not indicate that the coming One would be humorless or dour, but He knew better than anyone the havoc that sin brings into human life. Because He is a “Man of sorrows,” He is able to comfort those who experience sorrow.

53:4 He has borne: The Savior Jesus came to suffer and die for the sins of others (53:6, 11, 12; Matt. 8:17; Heb. 9:28; 1 Pet. 2:24). Griefs—or pain—and sorrows—or sickness—refer to the consequences of sin. The people considered Christ to have been smitten by God because the law said, “he who is hanged [on a tree] is accursed of God” (Deut. 21:22, 23; Gal. 3:13).

53:5 The repetition of the pronouns He, Him, and His for our and we underscores the fact that the Servant suffered in our place. The chastisement . . . His stripes: For a similar reference, see 1 Pet. 2:24. Peace sums up the Servant’s ministry of reconciliation, justification, adoption, and glorification (2 Cor. 5:17–21). By saying that they were healed (v. 4), the remnant expressed its faith in what God had announced in 52:13.

53:6 All we like sheep have gone astray: For a NT perspective, see 1 Pet. 2:25.

53:7 Opened not His mouth speaks of the Servant’s willingness to die for sinners; it also marks His dignity and authority (Matt. 26:67, 68; 27:12–14; 1 Pet. 2:23). as a lamb to the slaughter: For similar imagery, see John 1:29, 36; 1 Cor. 5:7; Rev. 5:6, 12; 13:8.

The Suffering Servant Amidst a declaration of the Lord’s coming salvation (see 52:7–12; 54:1–10), Isaiah places a portrait of the Suffering Servant (52:13—53:12). Despised and rejected (53:3), wounded and bruised (53:5), this unattractive Servant would know heartache and sorrow. What was the reason for His suffering? His life could not be the cause, for He was blameless, speaking only the truth (53:9). Yet the Servant would be led to prison and then to death for our sins (53:6–11).

Three other passages in Isaiah focus on the Servant and are called the “Servant Songs” (42:1–4; 49:1–6; 50:4–9). The first song celebrates the Servant as the One who will establish justice for all (42:4). The second highlights the deliverance that the Servant will provide. He will restore Israel and become a “light to the Gentiles.” The third emphasizes the God-given wisdom of the Servant. All this culminates in the description of the suffering and death of the Servant in chapter 53, the final “Servant Song.”

Although at times Isaiah refers to the nation Israel as a Servant (49:3), the preeminent Servant of the Lord was clearly a unique person, a suffering Messiah yet to come (53:6). New Testament authors such as Matthew understood Jesus’ teaching and preaching as a direct fulfillment of Isaiah 42:1–4 (see Matt. 12:15–21). Philip used one of the Servant Songs as a starting point for evangelism (53:7, 8). The Ethiopian eunuch asked him to explain the passage “He was led as a lamb to the slaughter” (53:7, 8; Acts 8:31–34). Philip introduced him to Jesus, the One who was led to His death for the sins of all humanity.

- <sup>i</sup>He was led as a lamb to the slaughter,
And as a sheep before its shearers is silent,
So He opened not His mouth.
- <sup>8</sup> He was <sup>j</sup>taken from <sup>6</sup>prison and from judgment,
And who will declare His generation?
For <sup>k</sup>He was cut off from the land of the living;
For the transgressions of My people He was stricken.
- <sup>9</sup> <sup>l</sup>And <sup>7</sup>they made His grave with the wicked—
But with the rich at His death,
Because He had done no violence,
Nor was any <sup>m</sup>deceit in His mouth.
- <sup>10</sup> Yet it pleased the LORD to <sup>8</sup>bruise Him;
He has put Him to grief.
When You make His soul <sup>n</sup>an offering for sin,
He shall see His seed, He shall prolong His days,
And the pleasure of the LORD shall prosper in His hand.
- <sup>11</sup> <sup>9</sup> He shall see the labor of His soul, and be satisfied.

A Perpetual Covenant of Peace

- 54 “Sing, O <sup>a</sup>barren, You who have not borne!
Break forth into singing, and cry aloud,
You who have not labored with child!
For more are the children of the desolate
Than the children of the married woman,” says the LORD.

Do not spare;
Lengthen your cords,
And strengthen your stakes.
- <sup>3</sup> For you shall expand to the right and to the left,
And your descendants will <sup>c</sup>inherit the nations,
And make the desolate cities inhabited.
- <sup>4</sup> “Do <sup>d</sup>not fear, for you will not be ashamed;

53:8 cut off from the land of the living: This language clearly indicates that the Servant would die.

53:9 Often in Hebrew poetry, the rich appear as synonymous with the wicked. Joseph of Arimathea was a rich man, but he was not wicked (Matt. 27:57–60). at His death: The Hebrew term death is in the plural, as a focus on the deep significance of Christ’s death.

53:10 it pleased the LORD: The OT pointed to the doctrine of the atonement long before Jesus died for our sins (see 1 Cor. 15:3 where Paul speaks of the doctrine coming from “the Scriptures”). The atonement was part of God’s eternal plan (Eph. 1:4–7). The Father was pleased that His Son should die because it would cover up the sins of many and reconcile them to Himself (see v. 11). Offering refers to the “trespass offering,” the sacrifice of a ram in order to secure the Lord’s atonement for sin (Lev. 5:6, 7, 15; 7:1; 14:12; 19:21). Here the prophet Isaiah describes the Servant Jesus as a trespass offering. His seed refers to the spiritual seed, born to the Servant after His death (see Gal. 3:26–29).

53:11 Knowledge means having insight into one’s mission (see 52:13). Justify means to acquit from guilt and to declare righteous (5:23).

53:12 As the great King, the Lord will divide the spoil of victory with His Servant (41:8; 52:13). Great and strong correspond to the Servant’s condition after His rejection, suffering, and death.

54:1–10 In this salvation oracle (see also 49:14–23), the Lord promises Zion that He has not forsaken her, but will give her many offspring. In vv. 1–3, Zion is a barren woman who gives birth to numerous children. In vv. 4–10, Zion is a forsaken wife who receives an everlasting covenant of peace.

54:1 Sing: For similar commands to sing, see 12:6; 44:23; 49:13. Zion (1:8; 40:1, 9) had not labored with child because Cyrus returned the exiles without any pressure from the Israelites. The increase that began in the restoration from Exile (51:1–3) continues today, for the NT applies this verse to “the heavenly Jerusalem” (Heb. 12:22), “the mother of us all”—the church (Gal. 4:26, 27). Salvation depends on sovereign grace.

54:2 As a husband encourages his wife, the Lord encourages Zion, the mother of His people, to enlarge the family tent for her many children (49:19, 20).

54:3 Expand is an allusion to Gen. 28:14, where the same Hebrew word is translated “spread abroad.”

54:4 The shame of your youth refers to Israel’s infidelity, that inherit (Heb. yarash) (54:3; Deut. 5:33; Josh. 12:1; 19:47) Strong’s #3423: The Hebrew word translated inherit means to “take something from someone else and possess it for yourself.” The word is frequently used to describe the Israelite conquest of Canaan (see Deut. 5:33; Josh. 12:1; 19:47). At times the word can be translated dispossess (see Num. 33:53) and may even mean “impoverish” (see 1 Sam. 2:7). In 54:3, the prophet Isaiah uses this word to describe Israel’s expansion. The nation would expand so much that they would take possession of the land of other nations (see 11:14). Isaiah was prophesying that Israel would increase in number so much that they would be like a nomad who has so many children that he has to expand his tents to accommodate them all (54:2).

Neither be disgraced, for you will not be put to shame;
 For you will forget the shame of your youth,
 And will not remember the reproach of your widowhood anymore.
 5 For your Maker is your husband,
 The LORD of hosts is His name;
 And your Redeemer is the Holy One of Israel;
 He is called <sup>j</sup>the God of the whole earth.
 6 For the LORD <sup>g</sup>has called you
 Like a woman forsaken and grieved in spirit,
 Like a youthful wife when you were refused.”
 Says your God.
 7 “For <sup>h</sup>a mere moment I have forsaken you,
 But with great mercies <sup>i</sup>I will gather you.
 8 With a little wrath I hid My face from you for a moment;
<sup>j</sup>But with everlasting kindness I will have mercy on you,”
 Says the LORD, your Redeemer.

The Suffering Servant

Jesus fulfills Isaiah's prophecy of the Suffering Servant.

The Prophecy	The Fulfillment
He will be exalted (52:13)	Phil. 2:9
He will be disfigured by suffering (52:14; 53:2)	Mark 15:17, 19
He will be widely rejected (53:1, 3)	John 12:37, 38
He will bear our sins and sorrows (53:4)	Rom. 4:25; 1 Pet. 2:24, 25
He will make a blood atonement (53:5)	Rom. 3:25
He will be our substitute (53:6, 8)	2 Cor. 5:21
He will voluntarily accept our guilt and punishment (53:7)	John 10:11
He will be buried in a rich man's tomb (53:9)	John 19:38-42
He will justify many from their sin (53:10, 11)	Rom. 5:15-19
He will die with transgressors (53:12)	Mark 15:27, 28; Luke 22:37

led to the Egyptian and Assyrian oppression (52:4; Jer. 31:19; Ezek. 16:1-6). The reproach of your widowhood refers to the Babylonian exile (vv. 6-8).
54:5 The point of the titles LORD of hosts (1:9), Redeemer (41:14), and God of the whole earth is that God did not forsake Zion out of necessity or weakness (50:1-3). Neither did He forsake Israel permanently (v. 7).
54:6 The LORD calls Zion to be His wife (62:4, 5). Like a woman forsaken . . . you were refused refers to Zion's experience in Exile (40:27; 49:14; 50:1).
54:7 God's anger against His elect is for a mere moment (26:20; Ps. 30:5). Great mercies speaks of the affections of God in nurturing, maternal terms.
54:8 Kindness may also be translated “loyal love.” I will have mercy: That is, “I will love you as only a mother can love.”

54:9, 10 As the Lord had sworn to Noah that the waters . . . would no longer cover the earth (Gen. 9:11), so He swore to Zion after the Exile that His covenant of peace (42:6; Ezek. 34:25) would not be removed. Contrast this with the mountains and hills, symbols of strength and permanence, that had been removed from sight in the Flood (Gen. 7:19, 20).
54:11-17 In this salvation oracle, the Lord addresses devastated Zion, first promising the rebuilt city greater glory than before (vv. 11-13) and then protection (vv. 14-17).
54:11, 12 walls of precious stones: For a more detailed description of the New Jerusalem, see Rev. 21:18-21. The afflicted one is Zion or Jerusalem (51:21).
54:13 The children . . . taught by the LORD include those taught by Christ (Jer. 31:34; John 6:45), who had “the tongue of the learned” (50:4).

- And <sup>a</sup>great shall be the peace of your children.
- 14 In righteousness you shall be established;
You shall be far from oppression, for you shall not fear;
And from terror, for it shall not come near you.
- 15 Indeed they shall surely assemble, but not because of Me.
Whoever assembles against you shall <sup>r</sup>fall for your sake.
- 16 “Behold, I have created the blacksmith
Who blows the coals in the fire,
Who brings forth an <sup>1</sup>instrument for his work;
And I have created the <sup>2</sup>spoiler to destroy.
- 17 No weapon formed against you shall <sup>s</sup>prosper,
And every tongue which rises against you shall condemn.
This is the heritage of the servants of the LORD,
<sup>t</sup>And their righteousness is from Me,”
Says the LORD.

54:17 The tongue that speaks propaganda is one of the weapons of war (ch. 36). The Lord will condemn the accusers of His people even as He equipped His Servant (50:7-9; Luke 21:15; 1 Cor. 1:20). Throughout the rest of Isaiah, the word servants refers to all saints, Jews and Gentiles (56:6-8; 63:17; 65:8, 9, 13-15; 66:14), the offspring of the Servant.

55:1-13 Chapters 40—55 conclude with two related invitations: (1) to come to the Lord and participate in the Davidic kingdom (55:1-5); and (2) to seek the Lord and find pardon (vv. 6, 7). The promise is sure because God’s grace is unfathomable (vv. 8, 9) and His word will certainly be fulfilled (vv. 10-13). The invitations, first addressed by the Lord to the exiles, are now held out to everyone (Rev. 21:6; 22:17).

55:1 Ho is an exclamation of pity. Everyone: The ones addressed at first are the covenant nation, the remnant who respond to God. But they will be the means for bringing the same message of God’s salvation to the nations (v. 5). Thirsts is a metaphor for desiring what satisfies a person’s spirit (41:17; 44:3; Ps. 42:1, 2; 63:1; Matt. 5:6). Waters is a metaphor for the enjoyment of salvation in God (John 4:10-14; 7:37). Wine and milk are symbols of complete satisfaction (v. 2). Not only does God’s salvation supply what is necessary for life, but it also provides what brings joy. You who have no money . . . buy expresses that salvation cannot be bought, but is a free gift for those who desire it (52:3; Deut. 8:3; Rom. 6:23).

55:3 Incline your ear and Hear are synonyms for come to Me. The everlasting covenant (54:10) refers to the Davidic covenant and to the New Covenant. The sure mercies of David are God’s promises of an eternal Offspring, throne, and kingdom (2 Sam. 7:12-16; 1 Kin. 8:23-26; Ps. 89:19-37). The pronoun Me includes the Servant of the Lord, Jesus the Messiah (48:16; 61:1). you: The promises of the Davidic covenant are extended to all who “come” to God; they are fulfilled in Jesus Christ (4:2; 7:14; 9:6; 11:1-5) and His church (Rom. 16:20).

55:4 God’s fulfillment of the promises to the house of David, climaxing in the resurrection of Christ, serves as a witness to the nations (43:10, 12; 44:8). Jesus Christ is a leader . . . for the people (42:6; 49:6; Dan. 9:25; Heb. 2:10; 12:2).

55:8, 9 God’s gracious thoughts exceed all human imagination (64:4; Rom. 11:33; 1 Cor. 2:9; Eph. 3:20). No one can fathom the depths of His wisdom.

55:10, 11 bring forth: For a similar reference, see 2 Cor. 9:10.

Salvation for the Gentiles

56

Thus says the LORD:

“Keep justice, and do righteousness,
 “For My salvation is about to come,
 And My righteousness to be revealed.

2 Blessed is the man who does this,
 And the son of man who lays hold on it;
<sup>b</sup> Who keeps from defiling the Sabbath,
 And keeps his hand from doing any evil.”
 3 Do not let <sup>c</sup> the son of the foreigner
 Who has joined himself to the LORD
 Speak, saying,
 “The LORD has utterly separated me
 from His people”;
 Nor let the <sup>d</sup> eunuch say,
 “Here I am, a dry tree.”
 4 For thus says the LORD:
 “To the eunuchs who keep My Sabbaths,
 And choose what pleases Me,
 And hold fast My covenant,
 5 Even to them I will give in <sup>e</sup> My house
 And within My walls a place <sup>f</sup> and a name
 Better than that of sons and daughters;
 I will give <sup>g</sup> them an everlasting name
 That shall not be cut off.
 6 “Also the sons of the foreigner Who join themselves to the LORD, to serve Him,
 And to love the name of the LORD, to be His servants—

God’s word is similar to rainfall; it produces fruit (Ps. 147:15–20). Just as water enlivens and strengthens a withering rose, God’s word produces life in the hearts of sinners.

55:12 The phrase go out refers historically to the Exodus from Babylon (48:20, 21; 52:11, 12). The singing of the elements of creation is a way of describing the singing of God’s people. The rejoicing of the people at the Lord’s salvation will be so full that it will seem that mountains, hills, and trees join in the chorus and applause (14:7, 8; 44:23).

55:13 Instead of the thorn shall come up the cypress tree: This expression symbolizes the replacement of God’s judgments with salvation (compare 5:6; 32:13; 41:19). Everlasting sign recalls the rainbow after the Flood (19:20; Gen. 9:8–17).

56:1–66:24 The prophecies in these concluding chapters are addressed to those who returned to the land of Israel before the rebuilding of the temple in 520 B.C. The temple was still in ruins (63:18; 64:8–12), but its rebuilding was foreseen (56:6–8). The restored worshiping community faced the question of who would be admitted into the religious community (ch. 56). As before the Exile, Israel continued to struggle with idolatry (57:1–13), hypocrisy (ch. 58), injustice (59:1–8), and spiritual malaise (64:1–7).

56:1 about to come: God’s salvation is always near (51:5; Phil. 4:5).

My righteousness is a synonym for My salvation (41:2; 45:8; 46:13; 51:6).

56:2 Keeps from defiling the Sabbath (Ex. 20:8–11) epitomizes righteousness, for the Sabbath was the sign of the covenant (Ex. 31:13–17; Jer. 17:21–27; Ezek. 20:20, 21). Since keeping the Sabbath revealed clear commitment to the Lord, it was closely associated with righteousness and justice.

56:3 In speaking of the proselyte who has joined himself to the LORD, Isaiah was not speaking of the foreign wives that returning exiles married. Ezra and Nehemiah would have to purge the restored community of these unconverted pagans (see Ezra 9). Isaiah was prophesying of foreigners who would be converted to the worship of the true Lord (see 44:5). These were foreigners who would demonstrate saving faith and thus be counted among those “born in Zion” (see Ps. 87).

56:4, 5 eunuchs: Probably some of the male exiles were castrated so that they could serve in the Babylonian and Persian courts (39:7; Dan. 1:3). A place and a name may be rephrased as “a memorial monument.” For Isaiah, this memorial is better than that of sons and daughters because it symbolizes an everlasting name, or everlasting life, in the temple. Not be cut off is an idiom for preserving one’s name through one’s offspring. The phrase links this passage with 55:13.

sign (Heb. ’ot) (7:14; 19:20; 55:13; Gen. 1:14) Strong’s #226: The Hebrew word for sign refers to something which is marked off or made distinct. God gave circumcision to Israel as a sign of their covenant relationship with Him, the fact that they were set apart for Him (Gen. 17:11). The word was also used to call attention to a particular event and God’s promises surrounding that event. For instance, the rainbow is a reminder of the Flood and God’s promise to refrain from destroying the earth with a flood again (Gen. 9:13). God promised to provide a clear sign of the coming Messiah in His virgin birth (7:14). The counterpart of this word in the NT (Gk. semeion) is used widely by the gospel writers (Matt. 16:4; Mark 8:12; John 2:11) to refer to Jesus’ miraculous signs which confirmed His divinity.

Everyone who keeps from defiling
the Sabbath,
And holds fast My covenant—
7 Even them I will <sup>g</sup>bring to My holy mountain,
And make them joyful in My <sup>h</sup>house
of prayer.
<sup>i</sup>Their burnt offerings and their sacrifices
Will be <sup>j</sup>accepted on My altar;
For <sup>k</sup>My house shall be called a house of prayer <sup>l</sup>for all nations.”
8 The Lord God, <sup>m</sup>who gathers the outcasts of Israel, says,
“Yet I will gather to him
Others besides those who are gathered to him.”

7 “On <sup>i</sup>a lofty and high mountain
You have set <sup>j</sup>your bed;
Even there you went up
To offer sacrifice.
8 Also behind the doors and their posts
You have set up your remembrance;

56:7 house of prayer: Inclusion in the covenant community involves intimate communion with God (Ps. 15:1; Matt. 21:13). for all nations: People of other nations who came to a living faith in God were met with a joyful welcome (2:2-4; 1 Kin. 8:41-43). Jesus also spoke of joy in heaven over a repentant sinner (Luke 15:7).

56:8 Outcasts refers to the exiles (11:11, 12).

56:9 The unclean, ravenous beasts summoned to attack the ungodly community are hostile nations (18:6; Jer. 12:8, 9; Ezek. 34:5, 8, 25; 1 Cor 15:32). In ancient Eastern religions, demons and spirits were often believed to appear as animals.

56:10 The pronoun His refers to the Lord. Watchmen, those who ought to warn the city of approaching danger, refers to prophets (21:6; Jer. 6:17; Ezek. 3:17; 33:2-7) who do not fear God. The ungodly watchmen leave the people defenseless.

56:11 greedy dogs: The dog was not highly regarded in biblical culture, and to the Jews they were unclean. Shepherds is a metaphor for rulers (40:11; Ezek. 34:1-6).

57:2 Peace here refers to the final state of the righteous who rest in their deathbeds (3:10, 11; 53:5; Phil. 1:21-23). No one understood that the righteous were being spared the judgment to come (2 Kin. 22:19, 20).

57:3 offspring: For similar references, see 1:4; Ezek. 16:3, 45. Adulterer and harlot allude to the perverse Canaanite fertility rites that threatened the culture of ancient Israel.

57:5 Green tree was associated with pagan fertility rites (1:29, 30; 1 Kin. 14:23; Jer. 2:20). Slaying the children was associated with the worship of Molech and with demon worship (30:33; 2 Kin. 23:10; Ps. 106:37, 38; Jer. 7:31).

57:6 Immoral idolatry was the people's portion or lot, instead of the Lord (Deut. 4:19, 20; Ps. 16:5; 142:5).

57:7 A high mountain refers to a place for idolatrous practices (Jer. 3:6; Ezek. 16:16; Mic. 1:3-5). The word bed is associated with sexual aspects of idolatry (Ezek. 23:17; Hos. 4:13). sacrifice: Animal and grain offerings were also part of pagan worship. There were enough similarities between true and false worship for people to be confused (compare “wisdom” and “folly” in Prov. 9).

57:8 Remembrance may refer to a pagan cultic symbol in the home. made a covenant: This phrase, which has so many associations with true religion, is here used in the context of obscene behavior associated with pagan worship. nudity: The Hebrew word is the regular term for “hand.” Here it appears to be a euphemism for the male genitals.

For you have uncovered yourself to those other than Me,
 And have gone up to them;
 You have enlarged your bed
 And <sup>2</sup>made a covenant with them;

Healing for the Backslider

<sup>14</sup> And one shall say,
 "Hear it up! Hear it up!
 Prepare the way,
 Take the stumbling block out of the way of My people."
<sup>15</sup> For thus says the High and Lofty
 One
 Who inhabits eternity, <sup>r</sup>whose name is Holy:
 "I dwell in the high and holy place, <sup>4</sup>With him who has a contrite and humble spirit,
<sup>w</sup>To revive the spirit of the humble,
 And to revive the heart of the contrite ones.
<sup>16</sup> <sup>v</sup>For I will not contend forever,
 Nor will I always be angry;
 For the spirit would fail before Me,
 And the souls <sup>w</sup>which I have made.
<sup>17</sup> For the iniquity of <sup>x</sup>his covetousness
 I was angry and struck him;
<sup>y</sup>I hid and was angry, <sup>z</sup>And he went on <sup>z</sup>backsliding in the way of his heart.
<sup>18</sup> I have seen his ways, and <sup>a</sup>will heal
 him;
 I will also lead him,
 And restore comforts to him
 And to <sup>b</sup>his mourners.
<sup>19</sup> "I create <sup>c</sup>the fruit of the lips:
 Peace, peace <sup>d</sup>to him who is far off and to him who is near,"

57:9 King probably refers to the Ammonite god Molech (1 Kin. 11:7), whose name means "king." Sheol here alludes to the gods of the underworld, perhaps associated with necromancy.

57:10 There is no hope: The people persisted in worthless idolatry. The people's way is detailed in vv. 5-9. They found a counterfeit life in immorality and idolatry that would only lead to permanent death (Rom. 1:18-32).

57:11 of whom have you been afraid . . . not remembered Me: For a related passage, see 51:12, 13. Lied here refers to infidelity to the Lord. The Lord held His peace by not sending judgment immediately (42:14; 48:9; 2 Pet. 3:9).

57:12 your righteousness: Here this phrase is stated in sarcasm or irony (58:2, 3; 64:6).

57:13 Let your . . . idols deliver you: The thought is pitiful (44:17). The worshiper of idols was appealing to a work of his own hands for deliverance. the wind will carry them all away: The idols are like worthless chaff (Ps. 1:4). But: This word shows that there is an appeal in the denunciation. Each judgment text is a call for repentance. puts his trust: This verb is used of a little chick finding shelter under its mother's wings (4:6; 25:4; Ruth 2:12).

57:14 This verse is based on 40:1-4. The phrase one shall say resembles "The voice of one crying" (40:2). Hear it up resembles "Every valley shall be exalted" (40:4). Prepare the way repeats the appeal of 40:3 (see also 11:16; 35:8-10; 62:10). Stumbling block probably refers to the idolatry described in vv. 3-13.

57:15 This verse matches Ex. 34:6 as a defining passage for understanding the biblical view of God: Although God is completely unapproachable, He reaches down to lift up those who humble themselves before Him. High and Lofty may be rephrased as "Exceedingly Lofty" (2:11; 6:1; 52:13). This is one of the ways in which Isaiah describes the transcendence and holiness of God. He is above everyone—perfect and holy. inhabits eternity: Not only is God eternal, without beginning or ending, He transcends time itself. In this way He is able to give all of His time to each of His people; He is not bound by the succession of moments that limits our experience. High and holy may be rephrased as "unsearchably high" (32:15; 33:5, 16). Contrite and humble may be rephrased as "genuinely humble," referring to those who submit and repent under God's judgment (Ps. 34:17, 18; 51:17; 1 Pet. 5:6).

57:16 God will not contend forever because humans will always fail. Therefore, in His sovereign grace, the Lord "created" salvation (54:9; 57:19; Gen. 8:21, 22; Ps. 130:3, 4).

57:17 I hid: For a related reference, see 1:15. I was angry: For a similar reference to the Lord's anger, see 54:7, 8. Covetousness violates God's covenant (56:11; Ps. 119:36; Jer. 22:17).

57:18 I . . . will heal: The Lord is the Physician (30:26). I will . . . lead him: For similar imagery describing the Lord's guidance, see 40:11; 42:16. Mourners refers to those who lament the destruction of Jerusalem (66:10).

57:19 fruit of the lips: For an explanation of the fruit, see Heb. 13:15. Peace, peace indicates "genuine peace." Contrast the false use of this phrase in Jer. 6:13, 14; 8:10, 11. far off . . . near: For a similar reference, see 56:7, 8 (compare Acts 2:39; Eph. 2:13, 17).

Says the LORD,
 “And I will heal him.”
 20 “But the wicked are like the troubled sea,
 When it cannot rest,
 Whose waters cast up mire and dirt.
 21 “There<sup>f</sup> is no peace,
 Says my God, “for the wicked.”

Fasting that Pleases God

58 “Cry aloud, <sup>1</sup> spare not;
 Lift up your voice like a
 trumpet;
 “Tell My people their transgression,
 And the house of Jacob their sins.
 2 Yet they seek Me daily,
 And delight to know My ways,
 As a nation that did righteousness,
 And did not forsake the ordinance of their God.
 They ask of Me the ordinances of
 justice;
 They take delight in approaching
 God.
 3 ‘Why<sup>b</sup> have we fasted,’ they say, ‘and
 You have not seen?
 Why have we <sup>c</sup>afflicted our souls,
 and You take no notice?’
 “In fact, in the day of your fast you find pleasure,
 And <sup>2</sup>exploit all your laborers.
 4 <sup>d</sup>Indeed you fast for strife and debate,
 And to strike with the fist of
 wickedness.
 You will not fast as you do this day,
 To make your voice heard on high.

57:20 cannot rest: Contrast v. 2. The fate of the wicked is also described in 56:9–12; 57:3–13. troubled sea: For a similar analogy comparing the wicked to turbulent waters, see Jude 13.

57:21 There is no peace . . . for the wicked: This phrase is also found in 48:22.

58:1 Isaiah was to alert the people as loudly and clearly as a trumpet (Ex. 19:19; 20:18; Hos. 8:1; 1 Cor. 14:8). Transgression is related to the verb translated “rebelled” in 1:2.

58:2 They seek Me daily contrasts with the seeking called for in 55:6. Ordinance is translated “justice” in 56:1. The hypocritical religionists delight in approaching God in ritual worship (29:13).

58:3, 4 Formerly, the nation fasted in times of national calamity (Jer. 36:9; Joel 1:14); later, fasting became part of the liturgical calendar (Zech. 7:2, 3; 8:19; Luke 18:12). This sermon may have been delivered on the Day of Atonement when the people of Israel afflicted their souls (v. 10; Lev. 16:29). You take no notice: A similar attitude is expressed in Mal. 3:14. Paradoxically, Israel finds pleasure in fasting, but not in keeping the Sabbath (vv. 13, 14). The accusations, you . . . exploit all your laborers and you fast for strife and debate, expose the hypocrisy of the people’s worship. Instead of ceasing their normal pursuits and setting the day aside to fast and pray, they strike with the fist the laborer who does not work. Will not may also be translated “cannot.”

58:5 Is it a fast that I have chosen: For related passages, see 1:10–15; Amos 5:21–23; Mic. 6:7. The people’s fast was not an acceptable day to the LORD because it focused on self-righteousness and not on justice for others. Bow down and spread out refer to the mourning ceremonies which accompanied fasting (2 Sam. 12:16; Joel 1:13, 14). Like a bulrush is meant to signify humility (42:3).

58:6 To loose, to undo, to let . . . go free, and break every yoke are synonyms of genuine righteousness (Ezek. 18:16–18). Yoke is a metaphor for social oppression.

58:7 the hungry . . . the naked: For similar expressions of the duty to take care of the poor, see Job 31:16–23; Matt. 25:35, 36. The poor who are cast out refers to those whose lands and houses were expropriated in payment of debts.

58:8 The light dawned with the advent of Christ (v. 10; 9:2; 10:17; 59:9; 60:1–3; Luke 1:78, 79). Righteousness refers to salvation (56:1). The glory of the LORD probably alludes to the pillar of cloud and fire in the desert (4:5, 6; Ex. 13:21; 14:20). rear guard: A marching army needs an alert rear defense (see also 52:12).

58:9 The pointing of the finger was a sinister gesture (Prov. 6:13).

58:10 The afflicted soul here contrasts with the hypocritical affliction described in v. 3.

Separated from God

59 Behold, the LORD's hand is not <sup>a</sup>shortened,
 That it cannot save;
 Nor His ear heavy,
 That it cannot hear.
 2 But your iniquities have separated you from your God;

And your sins have hidden His face from you,
 So that He will <sup>b</sup>not hear.
 3 For <sup>c</sup>your hands are defiled with <sup>i</sup>blood,
 And your fingers with iniquity;
 Your lips have spoken lies,
 Your tongue has muttered perversity.
 4 No one calls for justice,
 Nor does any plead for truth.
 They trust in <sup>d</sup>empty words and speak lies;
<sup>e</sup>They conceive <sup>2</sup>evil and bring forth iniquity.
 5 They hatch vipers' eggs and weave the spider's web;
 He who eats of their eggs dies,
 And from that which is crushed a viper breaks out.
 6 <sup>f</sup>Their webs will not become garments,
 Nor will they cover themselves with their works;
 Their works are works of iniquity,
 And the act of violence is in their hands.
 7 <sup>g</sup>Their feet run to evil,
 And they make haste to shed <sup>h</sup>innocent blood;
<sup>i</sup>Their thoughts are thoughts of iniquity;
 Wasting and <sup>j</sup>destruction are in their paths.
 8 The way of <sup>k</sup>peace they have not known,
 And there is no justice in their ways;
<sup>l</sup>They have made themselves crooked paths;
 Whoever takes that way shall not know peace.

58:11 A watered garden and a perennial spring are similes for prosperity and the blessings of God's salvation.

58:12 Build the old waste places presupposes that the restored exiles had not found the spiritual and economic resources to rebuild Judah (44:26, 28; 61:2, 4; Ezek. 36:10; Hag. 1:2-9). The coming of Christ rebuilt the house of David (Amos 9:11, 12; Acts 15:15-17).

58:13 Doing your pleasure probably refers to commerce (vv. 3, 4; Amos 8:5). Holy day clearly indicates that in vv. 2-9 the Lord was not rejecting ritual altogether (see 66:23).

58:14 This blessing is based on the Song of Moses in Deut. 32:9, 13.

59:1 the LORD's hand is not shortened: For related passages, see 40:10; 50:2. The Lord's ear, unlike Israel's (6:10), is able to hear.

59:3 your hands are defiled with blood: For similar passages on the people's guilt, see 1:15; 59:7; Ezek. 7:23. Your lips have spoken lies: For related passages, see 33:15; 59:13; Mark 7:21-23; Rom. 3:10-18; Gal. 5:19-21.

59:4 Calls for justice probably means to help the poor in the law courts (Job 9:16; 13:22). No one would plead the case of the poor fairly (1:17; 5:23; 59:14). Conceive evil and bring forth iniquity is translated “conceive trouble and bring forth futility” in Job 15:35.

59:5 Hatch . . . eggs and weave the . . . web signify the deliberate, calculated wickedness in the courts (32:7; 59:4).

59:6 Their webs will not become garments illustrates the futility depicted in v. 4 and the ultimate failure of the schemes depicted in v. 5. The wicked power structures would prove worthless (Job 8:14, 15).

59:7, 8 This passage is cited in Rom. 3:15-17 to document the universality of sin. Their feet . . . make haste to shed innocent blood: The people run without forethought into evil (Prov. 1:16). thoughts of iniquity: Contrast 55:7-9. Those who deny peace to others will themselves not know peace (57:21). crooked paths: For similar images of the wicked person's way of life, see Prov. 2:15; 10:9; 28:18.

Sin Confessed

- <sup>9</sup> Therefore justice is far from us,
Nor does righteousness overtake us;
<sup>m</sup> We look for light, but there is darkness!
For brightness, but we walk in blackness!
- <sup>10</sup> <sup>n</sup> We grope for the wall like the blind,
And we grope as if we had no eyes;
We stumble at noonday as at twilight;
We are as dead men in desolate places.
- <sup>11</sup> We all growl like bears,
And <sup>o</sup> moan sadly like doves;
We look for justice, but there is none;
For salvation, but it is far from us.
- <sup>12</sup> For our <sup>p</sup> transgressions are multiplied before You,
And our sins testify against us;
For our transgressions are with us,
And as for our iniquities, we know
them:
- <sup>13</sup> In transgressing and lying against the
LORD,
And departing from our God,
Speaking oppression and revolt,
Conceiving and uttering <sup>q</sup> from the heart words of falsehood.
- <sup>14</sup> Justice is turned back,
And righteousness stands afar off;
For truth is fallen in the street,
And equity cannot enter.
- <sup>15</sup> So truth fails,
And he who departs from evil makes himself a <sup>r</sup> prey.

Standard

A standard was a symbol carried on a pole and raised high in the air, much like a flag, to rally a tribe or a group of warriors in battle (Num. 2:10; Is. 59:19). These standards or ensigns were probably carvings or likenesses of animals raised on a spear or pole (Num. 21:8, 9). These were usually set on a hill and often were accompanied by the sound of a trumpet.

The eagle was one of the earliest known standards. In fact, it became the official standard or symbol of the Roman Empire. Other popular animal standards were stags, steers, horses, lions, unicorns, serpents, and wolves. Assyrian armies carried the moon sickle mounted on a spear in honor of their god, Ashur.

- <sup>u</sup> Therefore His own arm brought salvation for Him;
And His own righteousness, it sustained Him.
- <sup>17</sup> <sup>v</sup> For He put on righteousness as a breastplate,
And a helmet of salvation on His
head;
He put on the garments of vengeance
for clothing,
And was clad with zeal as a cloak.
- <sup>18</sup> <sup>w</sup> According to their deeds, accordingly
He will repay,
Fury to His adversaries,
Recompense to His enemies;
The coastlands He will fully repay.
- <sup>19</sup> <sup>x</sup> So shall they fear
The name of the LORD from the west,
And His glory from the rising of the sun;
When the enemy comes in <sup>y</sup> like a flood,
The Spirit of the LORD will lift up a standard against him.
- <sup>20</sup> <sup>z</sup> “The <sup>z</sup> Redeemer will come to Zion,
And to those who turn from transgression in Jacob,”
Says the LORD.

59:9 Therefore links Israel's repentance with the prophet's reprimand. With the pronoun us, Isaiah identified himself with his people's sins (Ezra 9:6, 7; Dan. 9:5). The words justice and righteousness refer to God's salvation (46:13). Light and darkness refer to salvation and doom respectively (9:2; 42:16; 58:8, 10; 60:1–3). The Book of Isaiah, like the Gospel of John, makes much use of the words light and darkness as a way to contrast eternal life and death, truth and falsehood (John 1:4–9; 3:19–21; 8:12; 9:5; 12:35, 36).

59:10 The people grobe . . . like the blind in fulfillment of the covenant curse on those who were disobedient (Deut. 28:29).

59:11 The people growl out of frustration. moan: For related images of the people's despair involving doves, see 38:14; Ezek. 7:16.

59:14 Justice and righteousness speak here of ethical conduct (v. 4).

59:15, 16 Justice refers here to salvation (vv. 9, 10). The Lord, using the first person, expresses the thought of this passage in 63:5. no man: God's salvation does not depend on humans (Ezek. 22:30). no intercessor: Contrast the intercession of the Servant in 53:12. His own arm figuratively represents the Lord as a warrior (42:13; 49:24, 25; 51:9; 52:10). Righteousness refers to the Lord's victorious salvation (46:13; 51:6, 8; 56:1).

59:17 The Lord's breastplate and helmet are taken up by His saints in their battle against the devil (Eph. 6:14–17). garments of vengeance: For a more detailed description of the Lord who comes to judge but also to save, see 63:1–3.

59:18 Recompense to His enemies is translated “fully repays His enemies” in 66:6. Coastlands indicates that the Lord's adversaries were distant nations (41:1). However, He judged wicked Israelites as well (65:6, 7). Only the repentant will be blessed (vv. 9–15, 20).

59:19 From the west . . . from the rising of the sun is another way of saying everywhere. When the enemy comes could also mean “when He comes as an enemy” (35:4).

59:20 The Redeemer will come in the person of Jesus Christ. For other prophecies of the Redeemer see 41:14. turn from transgression: For similar appeals to turn from sin in the prophecies of Isaiah see 1:17–19; 30:15; 31:6; 59:9–15.

The Gentiles Bless Zion

60 Arise, “shine;
For your light has come!
And <sup>b</sup> the glory of the LORD is risen upon you.
2 For behold, the darkness shall cover the earth,
And deep darkness the people;
But the LORD will arise over you,
And His glory will be seen upon you.
3 The <sup>c</sup> Gentiles shall come to your light,
And kings to the brightness of your rising.
4 “Lift<sup>d</sup> up your eyes all around, and see:
They all gather together, “they come to you;
Your sons shall come from afar,
And your daughters shall be nursed at your side.
5 Then you shall see and become radiant,
And your heart shall swell with joy;
Because <sup>f</sup> the abundance of the sea shall be turned to you,
The wealth of the Gentiles shall come to you.

6 The multitude of camels shall cover your land,
The dromedaries of Midian and <sup>g</sup> Ephah;
All those from <sup>h</sup> Sheba shall come;
They shall bring <sup>i</sup> gold and incense,
And they shall proclaim the praises of the LORD.
7 All the flocks of <sup>j</sup> Kedar shall be gathered together to you,
The rams of Nebaioth shall minister to you;
They shall ascend with <sup>k</sup> acceptance on My altar,
And <sup>l</sup> I will glorify the house of My glory.
8 “Who are these who fly like a cloud,
And like doves to their roosts?
9 <sup>m</sup> Surely the coastlands shall wait for Me;
And the ships of Tarshish will come first,
<sup>n</sup> To bring your sons from afar,
<sup>o</sup> Their silver and their gold with them,
To the name of the LORD your God,
And to the Holy One of Israel,
<sup>p</sup> Because He has glorified you.
10 “The <sup>q</sup> sons of foreigners shall build up your walls,
<sup>r</sup> And their kings shall minister to you;
For <sup>s</sup> in My wrath I struck you,
<sup>t</sup> But in My favor I have had mercy on you.
11 Therefore your gates <sup>u</sup> shall be open continually;

59:21 Them refers to the repentant (v. 20). My Spirit: For similar references see 11:2; 30:1; 42:1; 48:16; 61:1; Luke 3:22. You and your in this verse are singular, probably with reference to Isaiah. God’s Spirit and words would be given to all Israel so that all would become prophets of the living God (44:3).

60:1 Arise is addressed to Zion (v. 14). shine: Zion is both the recipient of God’s light and the reflector of it. light: Isaiah’s prophecies often emphasize the contrast between light and darkness to symbolize the contrast between eternal life and death, salvation and judgment (see 9:2; 10:17; 58:8; 59:9; 60:19, 20).

60:2 As was the case during the Exodus from Egypt, darkness is on the wicked while God’s light is on His people (Ex. 10:23). Deep darkness elsewhere describes a cloud enfolding the glory of God (Ex. 20:21), and serves as a warning of His impending judgment (Jer. 13:16).

60:3 Gentiles is translated “nations” in 2:2–4. In the earlier passage, they come to heavenly Zion to be taught of God; here they come to bring tribute (vv. 5, 11, 13). Isaiah foresaw a day when not only would the righteous remnant in Israel be devoted to God, but so would the redeemed from all peoples. Christ is the light to kings (42:6; 49:6).

60:4 Lift up your eyes . . . they come to you is cited from 49:18. Your sons . . . your daughters is cited from 49:22. Those verses were addressed to exiles and primarily concerned their return to the land, while this verse is addressed to the few restored exiles and looks to a greater return that is still in the future (11:11).

60:5 become radiant: See “shine” in v. 1. wealth of the Gentiles: For similar phrases, see Hag. 2:7; Zech. 14:14.

60:6 Camels, animals of burden, carried gold and incense. Midian was famous as a caravan leader and trader (Gen. 37:28, 36). Ephah was one of Midian’s sons (Gen. 25:4). The allusion to Sheba, renowned for its wealth, links this city with Solomon’s (1 Kin. 10:1–13; Ps. 72:10). proclaim the praises: The nations would not bring just their wealth; they would accompany their gifts with public, vocal acknowledgment of the wonder of God (1 Kin. 10:9; Heb. 13:14, 15).

60:8 The ships’ sails resemble a fast-moving cloud and doves returning to their roosts.

60:9 The reference to the ships of Tarshish (2:16) alludes to the wealth of King Solomon (1 Kin. 10:22).

60:10 Foreigners, such as Hiram king of Tyre, helped build the first temple (1 Kin. 5); today Gentiles are building up the church, the temple of the Lord (Eph. 2:11–22). Wrath is translated “indignation” in 34:2.

60:11 Zion’s gates shall be open continually both because the city is secure and because the doors must be open in order to accommodate the great influx of the wealth of the Gentiles (v. 5). For the “gates of Zion,” see Ps. 87:1–3. This verse is alluded to in Rev. 21:24, 25.

God the Glory of His People

- 19 <sup>f</sup> “The <sup>g</sup> sun shall no longer be your light by day,
 Nor for brightness shall the moon
 give light to you;
 But the LORD will be to you an

 And <sup>h</sup> your God your glory.
- 20 <sup>i</sup> Your sun shall no longer go down,

 For the LORD will be your everlasting

 And the days of your mourning shall be ended.
- 21 <sup>j</sup> Also your people shall all be
 righteous;
<sup>k</sup> They shall inherit the land forever,
<sup>l</sup> The branch of My planting,
<sup>m</sup> The work of My hands,
 That I may be glorified.
- 22 <sup>n</sup> A little one shall become a thousand,

60:12 The nation and kingdom that does not serve Zion, where Christ now reigns (Acts 2:29–36), shall perish (John 3:18; Heb. 2:3; 9:27; 10:27). In the coming kingdom, there will be no opposition to the reign of the Savior-King.

60:13 As the glory of Lebanon—its luxurious cypress, pine, and box tree—glorified the first temple (1 Kin. 5:10, 18) so it will beautify the temple again (vv. 5–7). Formerly, the place of the Lord’s feet was the ark of the covenant (1 Chr. 28:2); later it was the temple (Ezek. 43:7), and then the whole earth (66:1).

60:15 The new sanctuary will be greater than the old one because it is eternal, rich, and spiritual (vv. 17, 18). you have been forsaken: For related ideas, see 49:14, 21; 50:1; 54:6.

60:16 This verse is modeled on 49:26. In the earlier verse, the nations serve Israel; here they enrich it. milk the breast of kings: This line, representing great wealth, demonstrates clearly that the prophet was using figurative language.

60:17 The new temple will be made of better-than-necessary metals—gold, silver, bronze, and iron—symbolizing by exaggeration its exceedingly great and enduring wealth. Peace and righteousness are personified as officers and magistrates respectively (26:3; 48:18).

60:18 Judging from the figurative language in vv. 15–22, especially v. 17, God’s Salvation and Israel’s Praise will be the city’s defense (Zech. 2:4, 5).

60:19, 20 These verses form the basis for the description of the New Jerusalem in the new heaven and earth (Rev. 21:1, 23; 22:5). See also 65:17; 66:22.

60:21 In the new Zion, people shall all be righteous (4:3; Rev. 21:27). Though the exiles were back in the land (49:8; 54:3), they looked to a new Zion, when Israel would inherit the land forever. The branch of My planting: For similar references to God’s people as a branch, see 4:2; 5:1–7; 61:3.

60:22 A little one shall become a thousand: The inhabitants of the new Zion will be prolific (54:3; Lev. 26:8).

everlasting (Heb. ’olam) (30:8; 60:19, 20; Ps. 89:2; Amos 9:11) Strong’s #5769: This word is likely related to the one that means “to hide”; thus this term connotes “hidden, unknown time,” usually referring to the future but sometimes to the past. The word may speak of time that is limited by a single life, that reaches through several generations (Gen. 6:3, 4; Deut. 15:17; Neh. 2:3; Mal. 3:4), or that extends to the beginning of the created order (64:4; Gen. 49:26). Sometimes the word refers to a period of time beyond death (45:17; Prov. 8:23; Eccl. 12:5; Dan. 12:2). Thus the term is quite naturally used of God, who is eternal and hidden (40:28; Gen. 21:33; Ps. 90:2). It refers to God’s never-ending covenants, statutes, salvation, and love (Gen. 9:12; Lev. 16:29–31; Jer. 31:3). The Bible also describes the coming Messiah, His kingdom, and His priesthood as eternal (9:7; Ps. 45:6, 7; 110:4).

And a small one a strong nation.
I, the LORD, will hasten it in its time.”

The Good News of Salvation

61 “The <sup>a</sup>Spirit of the Lord God is upon Me, Because the LORD <sup>b</sup>has anointed Me
To preach good tidings to the poor;
He has sent Me <sup>c</sup>to <sup>1</sup>heal the brokenhearted,
To proclaim <sup>d</sup>liberty to the captives,
And the opening of the prison to
those who are bound;
<sup>2</sup> “To proclaim the acceptable year of
the LORD,
And <sup>f</sup>the day of vengeance of our God;
<sup>g</sup>To comfort all who mourn,
<sup>3</sup> To <sup>2</sup>console those who mourn in Zion,
<sup>h</sup>To give them beauty for ashes,
The oil of joy for mourning,
The garment of praise for the spirit
of heaviness;
That they may be called trees of
righteousness,
<sup>i</sup>The planting of the LORD, <sup>j</sup>that He may be glorified.”
<sup>4</sup> And they shall <sup>k</sup>rebuild the old ruins, They shall raise up the former desolations,
And they shall repair the ruined
cities,
The desolations of many generations.
<sup>5</sup> Strangers shall stand and feed your flocks,
And the sons of the foreigner
Shall be your plowmen and your vinedressers.

61:1–11 This is the fifth of the Servant songs. In this song, the emphasis is on the Servant’s mission.

61:1 The Spirit: For similar references, see 11:2; 30:1; 42:1; 48:16; 59:21; Luke 3:22. The Me featured so prominently here is the same Servant as in 42:1; 49:1; 50:4; 52:13. Several reasons point to this identification: (1) The Servant refers to God as His Master, the “Lord God” (compare 50:4); (2) He has received the Lord’s Spirit (compare 42:1); (3) He brings a word of healing and liberation (compare vv. 1–3 with 42:7; 49:9; 50:4); (4) He proclaims the “year of the LORD” (compare v. 2 with 49:8); (5) He is associated with an everlasting covenant (compare v. 8 with 42:6; 49:8); (6) Jesus Christ inaugurated His ministry by identifying Himself as this Servant (Luke 4:17–21). the LORD has anointed: This phrase signifies that the Servant is more than a prophet, since only kings and high priests—with the exception of Elisha (1 Kin. 19:16)—were anointed (45:1). The name Messiah, or Christ in Greek, means the “Anointed One.” Poor also means “humble,” which like brokenhearted, indicates those who confidently hope in God in spite of their present distress (11:4; Ps. 34:18; 51:17). Proclaim liberty probably alludes to the official inauguration of the “Year of Release” or Jubilee (Lev. 25:10). Captives refers to those in bondage to the wicked (58:6) or to wickedness in general—not to the exiles as in 51:14. Those who are bound is translated “prisoners” in 49:9, where it refers in part to the exiles; here it means “captives.”

61:2 The acceptable year of the LORD corresponds to “the day of salvation” (49:8) and “the year of My redeemed” (63:4). our God: For a similar use of this term see 25:9. To comfort all who mourn: For related passages see 12:1; 49:13; Matt. 5:4.

61:3 A host lavished on a guest the oil of joy (Ps. 23:5; 45:7; Luke 7:46). He may be glorified: For similar references see 44:23; 49:5.

61:4 They refers to Jews (58:12) and Gentiles (60:10). desolations of many generations: See 58:12; 60:10.

61:6 priests of the LORD: With Christ, they will make intercession for sinners (53:12; Ex. 19:6; 1 Pet. 2:9; Rev. 1:6). Servants here means “ministers,” a synonym for “priests” (1 Kin. 8:11).

61:7 Everlasting joy: For other references to eternal joy see 35:10; 51:11; 60:19, 20.

61:9 Shall be known has the sense of “shall be renowned” among the Gentiles. . . . whom the LORD has blessed: This section alludes to the fulfillment of the promises made to Abraham (41:8; 51:2; Gen. 12:3).

61:10 I and the parallel My soul refer to personified Zion. Rejoice is translated “joy” in v. 3 (see also 65:18). Clothed signifies the Servant’s new glorified status or condition (47:2; 52:1; 59:17). Ornaments is translated “beauty” in v. 3. bride: For a similar image see 49:18.

- <sup>11</sup> For as the earth brings forth its bud,
As the garden causes the things that are sown in it to spring forth,
So the Lord God will cause
<sup>w</sup>righteousness and <sup>x</sup>praise to spring forth before all the nations.

Assurance of Zion's Salvation

- 62 For Zion's sake I will not <sup>1</sup>hold
My peace,
And for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest,
Until her righteousness goes forth as brightness,

<sup>m</sup> Prepare the way for the people;

61:11 spring forth: This phrase is also found in 42:9; 43:19; 45:8 to describe the coming of God's salvation. Righteousness here means “deliverance” (54:17). before all the nations: For related passages see 52:10; 60:2, 3.

62:2 The repetition of righteousness (v. 1) shows that the divine oracle and the prophet's comment are linked. A new name, like new clothing (61:10), signifies a new status (Gen. 17:5, 15; 32:28; Rev. 2:17). For the new names see vv. 4, 12.

62:3 Zion does not receive a crown of glory, or royal diadem, but is one in the hand of the LORD.

62:4 The name Forsaken is a symbolic name for Jerusalem (see the symbolic name Immanuel in 7:14). It appears as the name of a person in 1 Kin. 22:42. For related references see 54:6; 60:15. Desolate: The term is also found in 49:8, 19; 54:1. Hephzibah and Beulah are symbolic names, although Hephzibah does appear as a personal name at 2 Kin. 21:1. The names are explained in the end of the verse.

62:6, 7 I refers to the Lord (vv. 1, 8). Watchmen refers to prophets (56:10). You who make mention of the LORD is Isaiah's synonym for “watchmen” and shows that the prophets were intercessors. The phrases do not keep silent and give Him no rest relate the prophets' prayer to the Lord's promises in v. 1 (see 64:12; 65:6).

62:8 The LORD has sworn: For other examples see 14:24; 45:23; 54:9. no longer: This phrase gives assurance that the covenantal blessings will outlast the curses.

62:9 in My holy courts: This phrase anticipates the rebuilding of the temple (Lev. 23:39, 40; Deut. 12:17, 18; 14:22-27; 16:9-17).

62:10 For the double imperatives go through and build up see 40:1; 51:17; 52:11. The prophets not only prayed for the people (vv. 6, 7), they encouraged them to worship. Gates probably refers to those in the “holy courts” (v. 9). The prophet commanded the worshipers of v. 9 to pass through the gates in order to praise the Lord. Prepare the way means to encourage the people to come to the temple for worship (40:3, 4; 57:14). Stones refers to any impediment to worship (57:14). Lift up a banner (5:26; 11:10) is an encouragement to all peoples to worship God.

righteousness (Heb. tsedeq) (62:1; Ps. 45:7; 85:10; 132:9; Prov. 1:3) Strong's #6664: This term denotes conformity to an ethical or moral standard. It occurs in reference to honorable business dealings (Gen. 30:33; Lev. 19:36; Deut. 25:15) and proper speech (Ps. 52:3; Prov. 8:8). The term is used most often in relation to one's standing with legal authorities, either human or divine. The word is frequently found in the context of other legal terms such as judgment or justice (Lev. 19:15; Ps. 23:3; 72:2; 119:6-8). Righteousness, judgment, and justice are declared to be the foundation of God's throne (Ps. 89:14; 97:2). God's righteousness is associated with deliverance. It is in this context that one of the divine names of God is revealed: “The Lord Our Righteousness” (41:10; 51:5; Jer. 23:6; 33:16).

Watchmen

Watchmen guarded or watched over a city or harvest field. Because of the danger of being raided, every Palestinian city or village had a watchman, especially at night. These watchmen were stationed on the city walls (2 Sam. 18:24), a watchtower (2 Kin. 9:17), or a hilltop (Jer. 31:6). Watchmen were responsible for reporting any hostile action or approaching suspicious person. These watchmen sometimes patrolled the city, called out the hours of the night, and especially looked forward to dawn (Is. 21:11, 12). At harvest times watchmen guarded the crops at night. Israel's prophets were responsible for watching for impending divine judgment or blessing (Is. 21:6; 52:8; 62:6; Jer. 6:17) and bringing the news to the people.

- <sup>11</sup> Indeed the LORD has proclaimed
To the end of the world:
“Say to the daughter of Zion,
‘Surely your salvation is coming;
Behold, His <sup>p</sup>reward is with Him,
And His <sup>8</sup>work before Him.’”
- <sup>12</sup> And they shall call them The Holy People,
The Redeemed of the LORD;
And you shall be called Sought Out,
A City Not Forsaken.

And My own fury, it sustained Me.
<sup>6</sup> I have trodden down the peoples in
My anger,
Made them drunk in My fury,
And brought down their strength to
the earth.”

God's Mercy Remembered

- <sup>7</sup> I will mention the lovingkindnesses
of the LORD
And the praises of the LORD,
According to all that the LORD has bestowed on us,
And the great goodness toward the house of Israel,
Which He has bestowed on them
according to His mercies,
According to the multitude of His lovingkindnesses.
<sup>8</sup> For He said, “Surely they are My
people,
Children who will not lie.”
So He became their Savior.

62:11 Proclaimed to the end of the world links this verse with “a banner for the peoples” in v. 10. The verb say is plural, indicating that a number of people will declare this announcement of salvation to Jerusalem. your salvation is coming: For similar references to the coming of the Lord's salvation see 40:9; Zech. 9:9; Matt. 21:5.

62:12 The pronoun they refers to the Gentiles (v. 2). The Holy People: For similar descriptions of the redeemed see 4:3; Ex. 19:6.

63:1 The word comes links this verse with 62:11. Edom epitomized Israel's enemies (Ps. 137:7; Lam. 4:21, 22; Ezek. 25:12; 35:1–15; Obad. 13, 14); it was famous for its wine-making (see v. 3 for a reference to wine). Note that the text does not say God vanquished Edom, but rather the “peoples” (vv. 3, 6). garments: See the warrior's garments in 59:17. Bozrah was the chief town of Edom (34:6; Jer. 49:13). The pronoun I refers to the Lord.

63:2 The apparel will be red from bloodstains.

63:3 The pronoun I is applied to Christ in Rev. 19:15. trodden:

For this figure of judgment see Lam. 1:15; Rev. 14:17–20. The winepress represents the battle.

63:4 year of My redeemed: This phrase alludes to the “law of redemption” of slaves and property (61:2; Lev. 25). A close relative of a slave had the right and duty to buy back the slave and rescue a family member from destitution.

63:7 I will mention: Isaiah, representing the people, publicly proclaims God's saving mercies (Ps. 77:12; 89:1). The plural words lovingkindnesses and praises refer to the Lord's many acts of love and loyalty to His people. The word lovingkindnesses is translated “sure mercies” in 55:3 (see also Ps. 89:1).

63:8 In the Hebrew Bible, the term My people is used in two ways: (1) for those who were united nationally to God by blood and history through Abraham's flesh (48:1; Ex. 3:7), and (2) for those who were united to Him inwardly through Abraham's faith and obedience (Lev. 26:12; Deut. 29:13). The nation is in view here. Lie means “to deal falsely.” Israel's rebellion was unexpected (1:2, 3). Just as godly parents expect godly children (Prov. 22:6), so God Himself expected godly children.

<sup>2</sup> afflicted,
<sup>h</sup> And the Angel of His Presence saved
 them;
<sup>i</sup> In His love and in His pity He redeemed them;
 And <sup>j</sup> He bore them and carried
 them
 All the days of old.
<sup>10</sup> But they <sup>k</sup> rebelled and <sup>l</sup> grieved His Holy Spirit;
<sup>m</sup> So He turned Himself against them
 as an enemy,
 And He fought against them.
- <sup>11</sup> Then he <sup>n</sup> remembered the days of old,
 Moses and his people, saying:
 “Where is He who <sup>o</sup> brought them up out of the sea
 With the <sup>3</sup> shepherd of His flock?
<sup>p</sup> Where is He who put His Holy Spirit within them,
<sup>12</sup> Who led them by the right hand of Moses,
<sup>q</sup> With His glorious arm,
<sup>r</sup> Dividing the water before them
 To make for Himself an everlasting
 name,
<sup>13</sup> <sup>s</sup> Who led them through the deep,
 As a horse in the wilderness,
 That they might not stumble?”
- <sup>14</sup> As a beast goes down into the valley,
 And the Spirit of the LORD causes
 him to rest,
 So You lead Your people,
<sup>t</sup> To make Yourself a glorious name.

A Prayer of Penitence

- <sup>15</sup> <sup>u</sup> Look down from heaven,
 And see <sup>v</sup> from Your habitation, holy and glorious.
 Where are Your zeal and Your
 strength,
 The yearning <sup>w</sup> of Your heart and
 Your mercies toward me?
 Are they restrained?
<sup>16</sup> <sup>x</sup> Doubtless You are our Father, Though Abraham <sup>y</sup> was ignorant of us,
 And Israel does not acknowledge us.
 You, O LORD, are our Father;
 Our Redeemer from Everlasting is
 Your name.
<sup>17</sup> O LORD, why have You <sup>z</sup> made us
 stray from Your ways,
 And hardened our heart from Your fear?
 Return for Your servants' sake,
 The tribes of Your inheritance.
<sup>18</sup> <sup>a</sup> Your holy people have possessed it but a little while;
<sup>b</sup> Our adversaries have trodden down
 Your sanctuary.
<sup>19</sup> We have become like those of old,
 over whom You never ruled,
 Those who were never called by
 Your name.

- 64 Oh, that You would <sup>1</sup> rend the
 heavens!
 That You would come down!
 That the mountains might shake at
 Your <sup>a</sup> presence—
<sup>2</sup> As fire burns brushwood,
 As fire causes water to boil—
 To make Your name known to Your
 adversaries,

63:9 Their affliction probably refers to God's sympathy for His people in Egypt (Ex. 2:25; 3:7) and at the time of the judges (Judg. 10:16). He was afflicted: God shares the hurt of His people (Ex. 2:23–25). Paul's persecution of the members of the early church caused Christ to be afflicted (Acts 9:4). Bore and carried are allusions to Ex. 19:4 (see Deut. 1:31; 32:10–12).

63:10 rebelled: This verb means “to be contentious” (Num. 20:10; Ps. 78:40; 106:33, 43). The Holy Spirit is referred to from time to time in the Hebrew Scriptures, and several times in the Book of Isaiah (11:2; 42:1).

63:11 Days of old refers to the period of the Exodus and the Wilderness. The sea is an allusion to the Red Sea (50:2; Ex. 14:21–29). Shepherd, referring to Moses, is plural. Christ is the greater Shepherd (John 10:11; Heb. 13:20; 1 Pet. 5:4). Put His Holy Spirit within them is an allusion to Num. 11:17, 25.

63:12 Glorious arm is an allusion to Ex. 15:6 (see also 41:13; 51:9). Dividing the water is a reference to Ex. 14:16, 21 (see Ps. 78:13).

63:13, 14 The account of the Exodus and settlement of the land is concluded with two images. The first is a horse moving surefootedly across the sea bottom as through a wilderness—that is, a “desert”; the second is a beast, meaning “a domesticated herd,” returning from grazing on mountain-sides into the valley . . . to rest (Deut. 12:9; Josh. 1:13; 11:23; 21:44).

63:15 Heaven refers to God's universal rule over space and time (Ps. 11:4–6). The pronoun me is a personified Israel (59:9–15).

63:16 The people of Israel are the Lord's children (v. 8). He is their Father because He created them as a nation (Deut. 32:6; Jer. 3:4, 19). It is rare in the pages of the Hebrew Bible to find the explicit statement of the Fatherhood of God, although it is often presented implicitly. Abraham and Israel, the people's human fathers (51:2), were limited in their knowledge by time and space—in contrast to the Lord, the people's Father and Redeemer from Everlasting (41:14).

63:17 us: Isaiah identifies himself with his people (59:9–15). The Lord, confirming the people in their sin, hardened their hearts (6:10; Ex. 4:21; Ps. 95:8).

63:19 Called by Your name signifies the Lord's ownership of the people (Deut. 28:10; Jer. 14:9).

64:1, 2 Oh, that . . . You would come down: This appeal for the Lord to appear and strike terror in the enemy is based on His appearances at Sinai (Ex. 19:16–18) and for David (Ps. 18:7–15). The image of fire often symbolizes God's presence (10:17; 31:9; Ex. 19:18; Heb. 12:18), especially in judgment (Heb. 12:29).

 And we need to be saved.
 6 But we are all like an unclean thing,

 our iniquities.

8 But now, O LORD,
 You are our Father;
 We are the clay, and You our <sup>g</sup> potter;
 And all we are the work of Your
 hand.
 9 Do not be furious, O LORD,
 Nor remember iniquity forever;
 Indeed, please look—we all are Your
 people!
 10 Your holy cities are a wilderness,
 Zion is a wilderness,
 Jerusalem a desolation.
 11 Our holy and beautiful <sup>4</sup> temple,
 Where our fathers praised You,
 Is burned up with fire;
 And all <sup>h</sup> our pleasant things <sup>5</sup> are laid waste.
 12 <sup>i</sup> Will You restrain Yourself because of these things, O LORD?
<sup>j</sup> Will You <sup>6</sup> hold Your peace, and afflict us very severely?

The Righteousness of God's Judgment

65 “I was <sup>a</sup> sought by those who did not ask for Me;
 I was found by those who did not seek
 Me.
 I said, ‘Here I am, here I am,’
 To a nation that <sup>b</sup> was not called by My name.
 2 <sup>c</sup> I have stretched out My hands all day long to a <sup>d</sup> rebellious people,

64:3 awesome things: The appearance of God is a fearsome event (Ex. 19:16–21; Deut. 10:21; 2 Sam. 7:23; Ps. 106:22). for which we did not look: God’s saving acts surpass human expectations (Eph. 3:20). The mountains shook: For a similar description see Ex. 19:18.

64:4 Paul cites this verse with some changes in 1 Cor. 2:9. Nor . . . seen any God besides You: For similar ideas see 43:11; Deut. 4:35.

64:5 You meet him . . . Who remembers You in Your ways: These words reinforce the idea of v. 4. does righteousness: For a similar phrase see 56:1. The word indeed provides a transition from the petition (63:15–64:5) to the confession of sin (64:5–7).

64:6 Unclean means the people were unfit for God’s presence. Filthy rags refers to garments stained during menstruation (see also “sins . . . like scarlet” in 1:18), making a woman unclean (Lev. 15:19–24; Ezek. 36:17). As a leaf signifies the people’s worthlessness and separation from God.

64:7 No one who calls is an exaggerated phrase calling attention to the people’s apathy. hidden: God is never really “in hiding,” but He does obscure His presence because of human sin (1:15).

64:8 But now, O LORD: These words serve as a contrast to the preceding section, the confession of sin. our Father: For similar references to God as Father see 63:8, 16. We are the clay: For similar imagery of human beings as clay in the Potter’s hands, see Job 10:9; Rom. 9:20, 21.

64:9 Do not be furious claims God’s promise in 54:7, 8. Nor remember claims God’s promise in 43:25. Please look refers to God’s “hiding” of Himself in v. 7.

64:10 cities . . . Zion . . . Jerusalem: The prophetic picture of the devastation of the land following the Babylonian invasion is used as a means of appeal to the heart of God.

64:11 Holy and beautiful may be rephrased as “exquisite beauty.” Our fathers praised You suggests that the speakers are at least a generation removed from the fall of the temple.

64:12 Will You restrain Yourself: The people use the language of love, of remembrance, of family, and of shared values in this section (vv. 8–12) to implore God to act again on their behalf.

65:1 I was sought literally means “I allowed Myself to be sought.” I was found literally means “I allowed Myself to be found.” This promise links this oracle with Isaiah’s lament (64:7). Here I am (58:9) is repeated for emphasis (see the repetition of the word comfort in 40:1). The Lord’s glorious presence assures salvation. A nation that was not called by My name includes the Gentiles (42:1; 49:6, 22; 52:15) and the remnant who “sought” God (v. 10). Together they are the servants who will be called “by another name” (v. 15). Paul saw his ministry to the Gentiles as a fulfillment of this promise (Rom. 10:20, 21). Peter calls the church “a holy nation” (1 Pet. 2:9).

65:2 I have stretched out My hands pictures God beckoning Israel to respond to Him. All day long suggests the Lord’s long-suffering patience. Rebellious describes Israel (63:10). Who, repeated six times in vv. 2–5, introduces a sorry catalogue of Israel’s abominable religious practices: arrogance (v. 2), open defiance (v. 3), idolatrous fertility rites (v. 3), divination (v. 4), eating unclean foods (v. 4), and blasphemous self-righteousness (v. 5). their own thoughts: Contrast the Lord’s thoughts in 55:8, 9.

Who <sup>e</sup>walk in a way that is not good,
 According to their own thoughts;
<sup>3</sup> A people <sup>f</sup>who provoke Me to anger continually to My face;
<sup>g</sup>Who sacrifice in gardens,
 And burn incense on altars of brick;
<sup>4</sup> <sup>h</sup>Who sit among the graves,
 And spend the night in the tombs;
<sup>i</sup>Who eat swine's flesh,
 And the broth of <sup>l</sup>abominable things
 is in their vessels;
<sup>5</sup> <sup>j</sup>Who say, 'Keep to yourself,
 Do not come near me,
 For I am holier than you!'
 These <sup>z</sup>are smoke in My nostrils,
 A fire that burns all the day.
<sup>6</sup> "Behold, <sup>k</sup>it is written before Me:
<sup>l</sup>I will not keep silence, <sup>m</sup>but will repay—
 Even repay into their bosom—<sup>7</sup> Your iniquities and <sup>n</sup>the iniquities of your fathers together,"
 Says the LORD,
<sup>o</sup>"Who have burned incense on the mountains
<sup>p</sup>And blasphemed Me on the hills;
 Therefore I will measure their former work into their bosom."
<sup>8</sup> Thus says the LORD:
 "As the new wine is found in the cluster,
 And one says, 'Do not destroy it,
 For <sup>q</sup>a blessing is in it,'
 So will I do for My servants' sake,
 That I may not destroy them <sup>r</sup>all.

<sup>9</sup> I will bring forth descendants from Jacob,
 And from Judah an heir of My
 mountains;
 My <sup>s</sup>elect shall inherit it,
 And My servants shall dwell there.
<sup>10</sup> <sup>t</sup>Sharon shall be a fold of flocks,
 And <sup>u</sup>the Valley of Achor a place for herds to lie down,
 For My people who have <sup>v</sup>sought Me.
<sup>11</sup> "But you are those who forsake the
 LORD,
 Who forget <sup>w</sup>My holy mountain,
 Who prepare <sup>x</sup>a table for <sup>3</sup>Gad,
 And who furnish a drink offering for <sup>4</sup>Meni.
<sup>12</sup> Therefore I will number you for the sword,
 And you shall all bow down to the slaughter;
<sup>y</sup>Because, when I called, you did not answer;
 When I spoke, you did not hear,
 But did evil before My eyes,
 And chose that in which I do not delight."
<sup>13</sup> Therefore thus says the Lord God:
 "Behold, My servants shall eat,
 But you shall be hungry;
 Behold, My servants shall drink,
 But you shall be thirsty;
 Behold, My servants shall rejoice,
 But you shall be ashamed;
<sup>14</sup> Behold, My servants shall sing for joy of heart,
 But you shall cry for sorrow of heart,

65:3 To My face means "openly." The people did not hide their shameful practices or restrain their evil habits. The Babylonians would commonly offer incense to the "host of heaven" on the brick or tile roofs of houses (2 Kin. 23:12; Jer. 19:13; Zeph. 1:5).

65:4 Spend the night in the tombs may refer to the practice of seeking an oracle from a god or from the dead. The Law prohibited eating swine's flesh (66:17; Lev. 11:7; Deut. 14:8). Abominable things refers to other foods that were prohibited to Israel (Lev. 11). When the people of Israel ate the same foods as their neighbors, they ceased to be holy or distinct.

65:5 I am holier than you: The idolaters were like the worst of the Pharisees in the NT times. Jesus called the Pharisees children of the devil (John 8:44), but they regarded themselves as better than others (Luke 18:9-14). Smoke and fire stand for things that provoke God's anger.

65:6 It is written refers to the heavenly book that records sin. Royal courts in the ancient world recorded unpunished crimes. I will not keep silence: For a similar phrase, see 62:1. repay: For similar references to the Lord's vengeance see 33:10-14; 34:8; 59:18.

65:7 the iniquities of your fathers: For related passages see Ex. 20:5; Ezek. 18:20. blasphemed Me: The Israelites rejected and offended God by offering sacrifices to the false gods of other nations on the hilltops (see Ezek. 20:27, 28). Therefore: The punishment matches the crime (47:11).

65:8 New wine represents the servants (54:17); the otherwise unproductive cluster represents all Israel (5:1, 2). The association of wine and bleasing here is common in the Scriptures. Servants include "the remnant," as well as foreigners (56:6). not destroy them all: For a related passage see 1:8, 9.

65:9 I will bring forth descendants is fulfilled in Christ and in all those who are found in Him (Gal. 3:16, 26-29). Jacob and Judah represent all Israel. An heir involves the Messiah (Gen. 49:10; Matt. 21:38; Gal. 3:16). My elect: For a related passage see 41:8, 9 (compare Gal. 3:26-29).

65:10 Sharon, the coastal plain in the west, and the Valley of Achor, near Jericho in the east, represent the whole land.

65:11 The word who occurs four times in this verse, introducing more (vv. 2-5) of Israel's sins. These sins involved forsaking the Lord, forgetting His place of worship, worshipping Gad, a god of good luck, and worshipping Meni, a god of fate.

65:12 When I called, you did not answer contrasts with "Before they call, I will answer" in v. 24.

65:13 Therefore logically connects this stanza with the first two, vv. 1-7, 8-12. Behold . . . But: The pattern here recalls the blessings and curses on Mt. Gerizim and Mt. Ebal (Deut. 27), in the Beatitudes (Luke 6:20-26), and in Christ's picture of the Last Judgment (Matt. 25:31-46). eat and drink: This is a festive meal accompanied by rejoicing.

65:14 Sing here develops the idea of rejoicing in v. 13 (see also 12:1-6; 35:10; 61:7).

And <sup>z</sup> wail for <sup>5</sup> grief of spirit.
 15 You shall leave your name <sup>a</sup> as a curse to <sup>b</sup> My chosen;
 For the Lord God will slay you,
 And <sup>c</sup> call His servants by another
 name;
 16 <sup>d</sup> So that he who blesses himself in the earth
 Shall bless himself in the God of truth;
 And <sup>e</sup> he who swears in the earth
 Shall swear by the God of truth;
 Because the former troubles are forgotten,
 And because they are hidden from
 My eyes.

The Glorious New Creation

17 <sup>f</sup> “For behold, I create <sup>f</sup> new heavens and a new earth;
 And the former shall not be remembered or <sup>g</sup> come to mind.
 18 But be glad and rejoice forever in what I create;
 For behold, I create Jerusalem as a
 rejoicing,
 And her people a joy.
 19 <sup>h</sup> I will rejoice in Jerusalem,
 And joy in My people;
 The <sup>h</sup> voice of weeping shall no

CHAPTER 66

1 <sup>a</sup> 1 Kin. 8:27; 2 Chr. 6:18; Ps. 11:4; Matt. 5:34; Acts 17:24

For the child shall die one hundred years old,
<sup>i</sup> But the sinner being one hundred years old shall be accursed.
 21 <sup>j</sup> They shall build houses and inhabit
them;
 They shall plant vineyards and eat
 their fruit.
 22 They shall not build and another inhabit;
 They shall not plant and <sup>k</sup> another eat;
 For <sup>i</sup> as the days of a tree, so shall be the days of My people,
 And <sup>m</sup> My elect shall long enjoy the work of their hands.
 23 They shall not labor in vain,
<sup>n</sup> Nor bring forth children for trouble;
 For <sup>o</sup> they shall be the descendants of the blessed of the LORD,
 And their offspring with them.
 24 <sup>q</sup> “It shall come to pass
 That <sup>p</sup> before they call, I will answer;
 And while they are still speaking, I will <sup>r</sup> hear.
 25 The <sup>r</sup> wolf and the lamb shall feed
 together,
 The lion shall eat straw like the ox,
<sup>s</sup> And dust shall be the serpent’s food.
 They shall not hurt nor destroy in all
 My holy mountain,”
 Says the LORD.

True Worship and False

66

Thus says the LORD:

<sup>a</sup> “Heaven is My throne,

65:15 The chosen (v. 9) will use the apostates’ name as a curse by invoking the terrible fate of the apostates upon others. The chosen will say, “The Lord make you like apostate Israel.” See Jer. 29:22 for an example of how the Babylonian captives used the names of Zedekiah and Ahab as a curse. Another name signifies the launching of a new era (62:2); this name would be associated with blessing (v. 16), not with a curse.

65:16 He who blesses himself in the earth — Jew or Gentile—will invoke the Lord’s name, because He is the God of truth.

65:17, 18 I create may also be translated “I am creating” or “I am about to create.” new heavens and a new earth: As God fashioned the existing heavens and earth, so He will fashion a new cosmos that will be ready for His presence and for the enjoyment of His people. Former encompasses everything up to the creation of the new cosmos (Rev. 21:4). Be glad and rejoice means “to be openly, deliriously happy.” Saints are called upon to celebrate by faith the coming glorious salvation (66:10). Create Jerusalem signifies that it will be entirely new, with no resemblance to the old city (62:7). John also links the “new heaven and new earth” with the New Jerusalem (Rev. 21:1, 2).

65:19 My people: This title for the citizens of Jerusalem is also used in 63:8. weeping shall no longer be heard: For similar ideas concerning God’s coming salvation see 25:8; 35:10; 51:11.

65:20 the child shall die one hundred years old: On one level, these words indicate a return in the coming kingdom to the extended life spans that are noted before the Flood (Gen. 5). It appears that people will not be affected by disease and aging in the same way as in our present world. Sinner can also mean “the one who fails” to live a long life.

65:21, 22 These verses imply meaningful work in both the coming kingdom as well as in the new cosmos, along with a reverse of the curse (Deut. 28:49–52). houses . . . vineyards: The life of blessing in the coming kingdom is presented in terms that would have been readily understood by the people of Isaiah’s day (Mic. 4:4). Industry will not be limited to these twin pursuits, but the happy, blessed life is indicated by them. As the days of a tree indicates longevity and stability (v. 20). The words long enjoy reinforces the idea of longevity.

65:23 They shall not labor in vain: These words speak of God reversing the curse on this cosmos (Gen. 3:17–22) and removing the curse that came in the time of Moses (Deut. 28:30). The word vain means “empty.”

65:24 Before they call, I will answer expresses the truth that there will be no sorrow between petition and praise (30:19; 58:9). Praise will be continuous.

65:25 This verse condenses the promises of 11:6–9. The figures represent the reversal of nature and the coming of universal peace. Dust shall be the serpent’s food is an allusion to Gen. 3:14 to indicate that this specific curse will be consummated.

66:1 The Lord has no need for a man-made temple because heaven and earth—the whole cosmos—is His sanctuary (40:22). footstool: The resting place for the “feet” of the Lord is extended beyond the ark of the covenant (60:13) to the whole earth. Where is the house: No place on earth can

<sup>3</sup> <sup>d</sup> [Is. 1:10-17; 58:1-7; Mic. 6:7, 8] <sup>e</sup> Deut. 23:18
<sup>5</sup> <sup>g</sup> Ps. 38:20; Is. 60:15; [Luke 6:22, 23]

- And earth is My footstool.
 Where is the house that you will build Me?
 And where is the place of My
 rest?
<sup>2</sup> For all those things My hand has made,
 And all those things exist,”
 Says the LORD.
<sup>h</sup>“But on this one will I look:
 “On him who is poor and of a contrite
 spirit,
 And who trembles at My word.
<sup>3</sup> “He<sup>d</sup> who kills a bull is as if he slays a
 man;
 He who sacrifices a lamb, as if he “breaks a dog’s neck;
 He who offers a grain offering, as if
 he offers swine’s blood;
 He who burns incense, as if he blesses an idol.
 Just as they have chosen their own ways,
 And their soul delights in their abominations,
<sup>4</sup> So will I choose their delusions,
 And bring their fears on them;
<sup>f</sup>Because, when I called, no one answered,
 When I spoke they did not hear;
 But they did evil before My eyes,
 And chose that in which I do not
 delight.”

The LORD Vindicates Zion

- <sup>5</sup> Hear the word of the LORD,
 You who tremble at His word:
 “Your brethren who<sup>g</sup> hated you,

- Who cast you out for My name’s sake, said,
<sup>h</sup>“Let the LORD be glorified,
 That<sup>i</sup> we may see your joy;
 But they shall be ashamed.”
<sup>6</sup> The sound of noise from the city!
 A voice from the temple!
 The voice of the LORD,
 Who fully repays His enemies!
<sup>7</sup> “Before she was in labor, she gave birth;
 Before her pain came,
 She delivered a male child.
<sup>8</sup> Who has heard such a thing?
 Who has seen such things?
 Shall the earth be made to give birth
 in one day?
 Or shall a nation be born at once?
 For as soon as Zion was in labor,
 She gave birth to her children.
<sup>9</sup> Shall I bring to the time of birth, and not cause delivery?” says the
 LORD.
 “Shall I who cause delivery shut up
the womb?” says your God.
<sup>10</sup> “Rejoice with Jerusalem,
 And be glad with her, all you who love her;
 Rejoice for joy with her, all you who mourn for her;
<sup>11</sup> That you may feed and be satisfied
 With the consolation of her bosom,
 That you may drink deeply and be delighted
 With the abundance of her glory.”

<sup>h</sup> Is. 5:19
<sup>i</sup> [2 Thess. 1:10;
 Titus 2:13]

accommodate the transcendent God (1 Kin. 8:27). The place of My rest refers to the temple (1 Chr. 28:2; Ps. 132:8, 14).

66:2 Those things refers to everything in the universe. I look: God seeks true worshipers (John 4:24). Contrite spirit . . . trembles at My word is similar to Jesus’ phrase “in spirit and truth” (John 4:24).

66:3 The term He who, used four times in this verse, refers to those who worship according to the letter but not the spirit of the Law. Their worship in God’s estimation is as unacceptable as if it consisted of abominable pagan practices (1:11–14; 65:3–5). God’s harsh criticism of false liturgy is tempered with His promise of the coming true liturgy (vv. 20, 23). Slays a man may refer to child sacrifice (57:5). Breaks a dog’s neck may refer to a pagan practice; in any case, the dog was regarded as an unclean animal, a detestable scavenger. The sacrifice of a bull, a lamb, a grain offering, and incense was considered to be their own ways because the worshipers lacked a contrite spirit. It was as if their soul delighted in their abominations.

66:4 So will I choose their delusions: For a related passage see 63:17. their fears: This is the judgment spelled out in vv. 15, 16, 24. when I called . . . I do not delight: This passage echoes 65:12.

66:5 You who tremble at His word: These words link vv. 5–11 with vv. 1–4. Your brethren who hated you: These words intensify the opposition encountered in ch. 65. Let the LORD be glorified represents the false worshiper’s hypocritical righteousness (v. 17). Cast . . . out of the temple, the true worshipers went into the world and brought back Gentiles (v. 18). Joy is spoken sarcastically (Ps. 22:8). The persecutors shall be ashamed and the persecuted shall “rejoice” (v. 10).

66:6 Isaiah heard the sound of battle noise proceeding from the city and the temple (13:4). His enemies refers to the self-righteous idolaters persecuting God’s servants. This prophecy may find its fulfillment in the fall of the temple in A.D. 70 (Matt. 24:1, 2) or at the Lord’s Second Coming (66:17; 2 Thess. 1:7–10).

66:7, 8 Before she . . . gave birth represents the birth of the community from the cast-out worshipers as coming so quickly that it will be without pain. At times, Zion is pictured as the daughter of the Lord (1:8); here she is the mother of His people. The male child and her children may refer to Christ and His Church.

66:9 The rhetorical questions introduced by the words shall I guarantee the prophecy of vv. 7, 8. God finishes what He begins (Phil. 1:6).

66:11 Through the joyful faith of v. 10, saints before Christ’s coming ate figuratively at a banquet (65:13).

<sup>12</sup>For thus says the LORD:

“Behold, <sup>j</sup>I will extend peace to her like a river,
And the glory of the Gentiles like a flowing stream.
Then you shall <sup>k</sup>feed;
On her sides shall you be <sup>l</sup>carried,
And be dandled on her knees.
<sup>13</sup>As one whom his mother comforts,
So I will <sup>m</sup>comfort you;
And you shall be comforted in Jerusalem.”

The Reign and Indignation of God

<sup>14</sup>When you see this, your heart shall rejoice,
And <sup>n</sup>your bones shall flourish like grass;
The hand of the LORD shall be known to His servants,
And His indignation to His enemies.
<sup>15</sup><sup>o</sup>For behold, the LORD will come with fire
And with His chariots, like a whirlwind,
To render His anger with fury,
And His rebuke with flames of fire.
<sup>16</sup>For by fire and by <sup>p</sup>His sword the LORD will judge all flesh;
And the slain of the LORD shall be <sup>q</sup>many.

66:12 For links vv. 12–24 with vv. 5–11. The pronoun her refers to Mother Jerusalem (vv. 7, 8). You refers to true worshipers and their offspring (v. 22), the beloved children of Mother Jerusalem. On her sides . . . carried: For similar images see 49:22; 60:4.

66:13 I will comfort you: Here God Himself is the comforting “Mother” (2 Cor. 1:3, 4).

66:14 Heart and bones refer to mental and physical health (Ps. 6:2; 109:18).

66:15 For links the judgment with rebuke. This verse is a picture of God’s judgment. The Lord’s coming corresponds to Isaiah’s prayer (64:1–3). Fire is the lightning; His chariots are the storm clouds (Deut. 33:26; Ps. 18:10). Like a whirlwind depicts the speed and strength of the Lord’s coming (Jer. 4:13).

66:16 The Divine Warrior comes with fire (v. 15) and sword (27:1; 31:8; Luke 21:24; Rev. 19:11–15). All flesh refers to all of the false worshipers described in this chapter (Jer. 9:2).

66:17 This section summarizes the abominable practices of the false worshipers (65:2–5; 66:3).

66:18 Their works and their thoughts probably refers to the right acts and spirit of the true worshipers, on whom God looks with favor (v. 2), since reference is made to bringing salvation to the Gentiles (v. 19). My glory probably refers to God’s presence in His temple (Ezek. 11:22, 23; 44:4).

66:19 The sign may be the deliverance of the true worshipers as judgment falls on the false. Those . . . who escape may refer to those who escape God’s slaughter (vv. 16, 17), but more likely to those who escape persecution (Matt. 24:9–14). Those who escaped would bring God’s glory to the nations (v. 18) and then give birth to the new age (vv. 7–11). to Tarshish . . . the coastlands: For similar references see 23:6; 60:9. declare My glory among the Gentiles: For another prophecy by Isaiah of the spread of God’s glory throughout the world, see 24:14–16.

66:20 an offering to the LORD: For a related reference see Deut. 12:5–7. horses . . . camels: Animals represent the diverse countries from which they come. The Gentiles are likened to a clean vessel (56:6, 7; Acts 10:28), a striking reversal of the dominant attitude towards Gentiles in the OT (52:1).

66:22 A prediction of the coming of the new heavens and the new earth also occurs in 65:17. Your descendants . . . remain guarantees the continuity of true Israel (65:9; Rom. 11:1–36).

66:23 From one New Moon to another refers to all time. All flesh refers to the blessed—Jew and Gentile—in contrast to the rejected (vv. 16, 24). Through all time and from all the earth, true worship will be offered to God.

<sup>b</sup> All flesh shall come to worship before Me,” says the LORD.

<sup>24</sup> “And they shall go forth and look Upon the corpses of the men

Who have transgressed against Me.
For their <sup>c</sup>worm does not die,
And their fire is not quenched.
They shall be an abhorrence to all flesh.”

66:24 Corpses refers to the rebels (5:25; 34:3). The word for transgressed is related to the word for rebelled in 1:2. Their worm . . . is not quenched depicts eternal punishment (48:22; 57:20). The imagery derives from the Valley of Hinnom that was Jerusalem’s garbage dump, where unclean corpses decomposed and were burned. This verse is cited by Jesus in Mark 9:44, 46, 48. Although the Book of Isaiah depicts God’s coming salvation, it closes with a strong statement of the judgment of the wicked.

The Book of Jeremiah

The Book of Jeremiah, perhaps more vividly than any other book of the Bible, reveals the inner struggles of a prophet of God. In “confessions” such as those in 15:10–21; 20:7–18, Jeremiah candidly reveals his inner turmoil concerning his call to prophetic ministry. Indeed, the prophet’s anguish over the message of judgment upon his people and the coming destruction of the land was at times overwhelming (4:19–22). Yet despite his anguish, Jeremiah fulfilled his ministry of proclaiming God’s judgment against the people of Judah for their idolatry, their unfaithfulness to the covenant, and their obstinate disobedience of His will. Long acknowledged as one of the great prophets of the Old Testament, Jeremiah serves to this day as an example of someone who remained faithful to the word of God despite countless hardships.

Author and Date • Jeremiah was born in Anathoth, just three miles northeast of Jerusalem in the hill country of Benjamin. His father was Hilkiyah. Jeremiah’s ministry extended from 626 to 586 B.C., making him a contemporary of Zephaniah, Ezekiel, and Habakkuk. The prophet’s writing ministry began in the fourth year of Jehoiakim’s reign in 605 B.C. (see 36:1, 2), though portions of the book may have been written earlier. The book was completed sometime after the fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C.

Historical Setting • Jeremiah’s ministry covered a very critical time in the history of the ancient Middle East. When Josiah king of Judah died at the hands of the Egyptian army, Judah became subject to Egypt and its ruler Pharaoh Necho. The people of Judah chose Jehoahaz to succeed Josiah. However, three months later Necho appointed Jehoiakim (Eliakim) to rule as his vassal on the throne in Jerusalem. Having lost their freedom, the people of Judah turned not to God but to the idols they had worshiped in the days of Manasseh and Amon. This idolatry was the reason for Jeremiah’s proclamations of God’s judgment.

In 605 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar defeated Pharaoh Necho at Carchemish, and Jehoiakim immediately submitted to the Babylonian king, who permitted him to remain on the throne as a vassal. Three years later, Jehoiakim rebelled against Nebuchadnezzar and was deposed (see 2 Kin. 24:1, 2). Jehoiachin replaced Jehoiakim on the throne for a short time, but he was then exiled to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar. Thousands of political and religious leaders were carried to Babylon with Jehoiachin in 597 B.C. (see 2 Kin. 24:14–16).

Nebuchadnezzar made Jehoiakim’s brother Zedekiah the new ruler of Judah. In 589 B.C., Zedekiah led a rebellion against Babylon, and Nebuchadnezzar’s reprisal was swift. His army entered Judah and destroyed all resisting fortified settlements. Nebuchadnezzar’s army turned aside from besieging Jerusalem when the Egyptian army appeared in southwest Palestine in the summer of 588 B.C. But the Egyptians soon withdrew, and Nebuchadnezzar resumed his siege. Several times during the siege of Jerusalem, Zedekiah came to Jeremiah for counsel from the Lord. The prophet advised him to surrender, but Zedekiah would not listen.

Jerusalem’s walls were breached in the fourth month of 586 B.C. One month later, the temple was burned, along with the palaces, houses, and other administrative buildings. An additional 4,600 Jerusalemites were deported to Babylon. Gedaliah was appointed governor of Judah at Riblah. Jeremiah, who had been imprisoned by Zedekiah, was released and sent to serve under Gedaliah. Gedaliah was assassinated and his supporters fled to Egypt, fearful of Nebuchadnezzar’s revenge. Jeremiah went with them to Egypt against his will, and there he continued to confront the Jews for their idolatry and unfaithfulness.

Structure • The structure and organization of the Book of Jeremiah have perplexed interpreters for generations. A brief examination of passages with explicit historical notes proves that the material is not ordered chronologically. Instead, the organization of the oracles, prose sermons, and other material is based on content, audience, and connective links. The division is as follows: (1) the call of Jeremiah (ch. 1); (2) the judgment of Judah and Jerusalem (chs. 2—24); (3) Jeremiah’s ministry to the nations (chs. 25—51); (4) an historical appendix recounting the fall of Jerusalem (ch. 52). This arrangement gives balance and unity to the lengthy prophetic text.

Message • Jeremiah’s prayers, confessions, laments, and dialogues reveal the depth of the prophet’s understanding of the character of God and the nature of His relationship to people. For Jeremiah, the God of Israel was the incomparable God of all creation, the Lord over nature and history. He reigned not only over Judah and Israel but over all nations (25:13).

The thread that wove together Jeremiah’s knowledge of God was his understanding of the word of God. It permeated the prophet’s life and speech, for God Himself promised to touch Jeremiah’s mouth and infuse His words into Jeremiah’s mind and speech (1:9). From then on, God’s words were like an unquenchable fire burning within the prophet’s soul (20:9).

Jeremiah was keenly aware of the provisions of the covenant between God and Israel. The covenant bound Israel to God in a special relationship of love, faithfulness, and hope. But the covenant had two sides. Faithfulness to the Lord and the covenant would bring blessing; disobedience would result in punishment, destruction, and exile (see Deut. 27:14—28:68). Jeremiah called the people to obey the words of the covenant and to turn from their idolatry and their unjust treatment of one another (11:6, 7).

Jeremiah’s message of judgment also contained a word of hope: a righteous remnant would be restored. The land had been defiled by the people’s idolatry. The leaders had brought the nation to the brink of disaster and the people were exiled. But based on His everlasting love for Israel, God promised to bring the people back from captivity and restore them to blessing (30:18—31:6). Israel’s enemies would be defeated (30:16), and the people would sing joyfully of God’s goodness (31:12).

Christ in the Scriptures

Although Jeremiah’s references to Jesus are not as numerous as Isaiah’s, they are equally as strong. He paints a word picture of the Messiah in 23:1–8 in which we see Him as the coming Shepherd, righteous Branch, and a King who “shall reign and prosper, and execute judgment and righteousness in the earth . . . now this is His name by which He will be called: THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS” (23:5, 6).

But Jeremiah doesn’t stop there. He writes of one who “will make a new covenant” (31:31–34). This is the same one who will fulfill God’s covenants with Abraham (Gen. 12:1–3; 17:1–8), with Moses and the people (Deut. 28—30), and with David (2 Sam. 7:1–17).

1:1 The name Jeremiah probably means either “The Lord Exalts” or “The Lord Establishes.”

1:2 The word of the LORD came literally to Jeremiah. He did not speak out of his own imagination, as did false prophets like Hananiah (28:1, 2). Jeremiah spoke as God revealed His word and will. Jeremiah's call to ministry came in the thirteenth year of Josiah, who reigned 31 years.

1:3 Jeremiah's ministry as a prophet lasted from the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim (608 B.C.) to the eleventh year of Zedekiah and the fall of Jerusalem (586 B.C.).

Gedaliah was appointed governor over the peasant-populated Judah after the Babylonians, under Nebuchadnezzar, had deported the leading citizens of Jerusalem. Jeremiah continued ministering until he was taken unwillingly to Egypt following the assassination of Gedaliah.

1:4 the word of the LORD came: A standard way of introducing a divine oracle at the beginning of a prophetic book (see Ezek. 1:3; Hos. 1:1; Joel 1:1; Jon. 1:1; Mic. 1:1; Zeph. 1:1; Hag. 1:1; Zech. 1:1).

<sup>5</sup> “Before I <sup>h</sup>formed you in the womb <sup>i</sup>I knew you;
Before you were born I <sup>j</sup>sanctified <sup>k</sup>you;
I <sup>l</sup>ordained you a prophet to the nations.”

<sup>6</sup> Then said I:

<sup>k</sup>“Ah, Lord God!
Behold, I cannot speak, for I am a youth.”

<sup>7</sup> But the LORD said to me:

“Do not say, ‘I am a youth,’
For you shall go to all to whom I send you,
And <sup>l</sup>whatever I command you, you shall speak.

<sup>8</sup> <sup>m</sup>Do not be afraid of their faces,
For “I am with you to deliver you,” says the LORD.

<sup>9</sup> Then the LORD put forth His hand and <sup>o</sup> touched my mouth, and the LORD said to me:

<sup>10</sup> “See, I have this day set you over the nations and over the kingdoms,
To <sup>r</sup>root out and to pull down,
To destroy and to throw down,
To build and to plant.”

<sup>11</sup> Moreover the word of the LORD came to me, saying, “Jeremiah, what do you see?”

And I said, “I see a <sup>3</sup>branch of an almond tree.”

<sup>12</sup> Then the LORD said to me, “You have seen well, for I am <sup>4</sup>ready to perform My word.”

<sup>13</sup> And the word of the LORD came to me the second time, saying, “What do you see?”

And I said, “I see <sup>s</sup>a boiling pot, and it is facing away from the north.”

<sup>14</sup> Then the LORD said to me:

“Out of the <sup>t</sup>north calamity shall break forth
On all the inhabitants of the land.

1:5 Jeremiah was keenly aware that the call of God in his life had been determined by God from before his conception. As God’s word became a reality in his life, the prophet understood that God knew him and had called him to proclaim a critical message at a crucial point in the history of the nation. The word knew refers to an intimate knowledge that comes from relationship and personal commitment. That intimate relationship was made apparent in God’s sanctifying work, whereby Jeremiah was “set apart” (made holy) for special service. Jeremiah’s role was to be a prophet to the nation of Judah as well as a messenger of God for all nations.

1:6 Like Moses, who was called to speak to the Pharaoh of Egypt at a decisive point in Israel’s history, Jeremiah was called to address the kings of Judah and leaders of Babylon. Jeremiah’s doubts concerning his power to speak before the nations’ leaders were due to his youth. The word youth can refer to a wide range of ages—from infancy up to the teen years. The term can also refer to a servant of any age.

1:7, 8 Jeremiah would not go and speak alone or of his own accord, but according to the word of the Lord and with His powerful presence. The term deliver is used in Jeremiah to indicate the saving of the people from their captors (15:20, 21), the deliverance of the poor from their oppressors (20:13), and the safety of the prophet from possible harm before national leaders. I am with you: Twice in his call (see also v. 19), God reassured Jeremiah of His presence and protection. In moments of personal crisis, Jeremiah prayed these words back to God (20:11).

1:9 Jeremiah is commissioned for his task and the essence of his message is outlined. I have put My words in your mouth: The source of Jeremiah’s message was clearly the Lord, but the message would be expressed through the personality, experience, and artistry of the prophet. This verse gives us an understanding of the dual nature of Scripture. The message is the Lord’s; its expression is accomplished through His servants the prophets (see Heb. 1:1).

1:10 I have . . . set you over the nations: The nations were instruments in God’s purpose of revealing Himself. The Lord would use Babylon to punish Judah, and then He would use the Persians to punish Babylon. The phrasing here suggests the official appointment of a person to an authoritative position, as when Nebuchadnezzar appointed Gedaliah governor of Judah. With God’s words in his mouth, Jeremiah had the authority to stand before any ruler. To root out and to pull down . . . To build and to plant: Judgment and restoration were the two messages of the prophet of God. The words root out, pull down, destroy, throw down, build, and plant are repeated at key points in the Book of Jeremiah to reaffirm Jeremiah’s call (18:7; 24:6; 31:28; 42:10; 45:4).

1:11, 12 God confirmed His call to Jeremiah with two visions. The first vision involved an almond tree, which blossoms when other trees are still dormant. The almond tree served as a harbinger of spring, as though it “watched over” the beginning of the season. In a similar fashion, God was “watching over” His word, ready to bring judgment on Israel.

1:13, 14 The second vision God used to confirm Jeremiah’s call involved a boiling pot that was tilted toward the south, indicating the direction in which the pot’s contents would be spilled. The calamity suggested by this vision was an enemy attack on Judah and Jerusalem from the north. In 20:4, Jeremiah finally identifies this enemy as Babylon. Babylon itself was east of Jerusalem, but the road went around the desert and approached from the north.

1:15 The calamity from the north (v. 14) would involve a siege build (Heb. banah) (1:10; 24:6; Gen. 22:9; Is. 45:13) Strong’s #1129: Things described as built using this word are “a new house” in Deut. 20:5, “the altar” in Deut. 27:6, and “the house of the LORD” in 1 Kin. 6:1. The expression “build a house” can also refer to establishing a family (Ruth 4:11) or a dynasty (Ps. 89:4). The word may also be used in the sense of “rebuilding” or “restoring” something that has been destroyed or is in disrepair (Neh. 2:17). Jeremiah’s commission as God’s prophet included the task of building and planting (1:10). In the present context the term is used figuratively of the prophetic ministry of restoring the people of God, or spiritually rebuilding Israel as the people of God, after the Exile (31:4).

God's Case Against Israel

2 Moreover the word of the LORD came to me, saying, <sup>2a</sup> “Go and cry in the hearing of Jerusalem, saying, “Thus says the LORD:

“I remember you,
 The kindness of your <sup>a</sup> youth,
 The love of your betrothal,

 In a land not sown.

<sup>e</sup> All that devour him will offend;
 Disaster will <sup>j</sup> come upon them,” says the LORD.”

<sup>4</sup> Hear the word of the LORD, O house of Jacob and all the families of the house of Israel. <sup>5</sup> Thus says the LORD:

<sup>6a</sup> “What injustice have your fathers found in Me,
 That they have gone far from Me,
<sup>b</sup> Have followed <sup>2</sup> idols,
 And have become idolaters?
 6 Neither did they say, ‘Where is the LORD,
 Who <sup>i</sup> brought us up out of the land of Egypt,
 Who led us through <sup>j</sup> the wilderness,
 Through a land of deserts and pits,
 Through a land of drought and the shadow of death,
 Through a land that no one crossed
 And where no one dwelt?’
 7 I brought you into <sup>k</sup> a bountiful country, of Jerusalem and all the cities of Judah. I am calling: The use of the first-person pronoun indicates that it was God Himself who was at war with His people.

1:16 One of the main reasons for God’s judgment on Judah and Jerusalem was Israel’s worship of other gods. God is not one among many; He alone is God of Israel (see Deut. 6:4). Burned incense: The Hebrew term meaning “to burn” or “to make smoke” is used 19 times in Jeremiah, all in the context of burning sacrifices to other gods. worshiped: The term means “to cause oneself to bow down” in honor or service of God or man. The first and foremost commandment (see Ex. 20:3) had been broken.

1:17 Prepare yourself is literally “gird up your loins,” or tuck your robe in your belt so you can run (see 1 Sam. 2:4). Do not be dismayed: If Jeremiah shrank back in terror before the men God had commanded him to confront, God Himself would bring terror into the prophet’s life.

1:18 Jeremiah’s position is phrased in military language, emphasizing the certainty that God would fight for him. God made Jeremiah an impregnable fortified city with bronze walls. Jeremiah’s defense system could not be battered down or tunneled under by men and armies. kings . . . princes . . . priests . . . people: This list of the various types of people in Israel suggests that the entire nation would be against Jeremiah.

1:19 The people and their leaders would fight against Jeremiah and his message, but they would not overcome because God Himself protects and fights for the faithful.

2:1–3 Chapter 2 is presented in the form of a covenant lawsuit, an indictment brought by God against His people (2:1–3:5). Jeremiah challenged the people of Judah to remember God. The betrothal period between God and Israel in the wilderness was a time when Israel went after, or worshiped, the Lord. The nation of Israel is referred to as the firstfruits, which rightfully belonged to God (see Deut. 26:1–11) and holiness, something set apart for God’s glory. In the time of Jeremiah, the people of Judah no longer remembered the days when their grandfathers and grandmothers had worshiped and obeyed God.

2:5 Idols means “futility,” “vapor,” or “worthlessness.” The Hebrew word translated followed is used in the books of Jeremiah and Deuteronomy to describe the worship of idols and other gods. they . . . have become idolaters: Those who serve idols, which are only vapor, become like vapor themselves.

2:6 In pursuing other gods, the people of Israel lost sight of their identity as the elect of God. They forgot how God had delivered them from oppression in Egypt and had given them food, water, and protection in the wilderness for 40 years.

2:7 God’s guiding hand had brought Israel out of the desert and into a bountiful country, the region of Carmel, with its luxurious trees and vineyards. Israel had enjoyed the bounty of the land flowing with milk and honey, but then turned

To eat its fruit and its goodness.
 But when you entered, you <sup>1</sup>defiled
 My land
 And made My heritage an abomination.

<sup>8</sup> The priests did not say, “Where is the LORD?”
 And those who handle the <sup>m</sup>law did not know Me;
 The rulers also transgressed against
 Me;
 “The prophets prophesied by Baal,
 And walked after things that do not <sup>9</sup> “Therefore <sup>o</sup>I will yet <sup>3</sup>bring charges against you,” says the LORD,

 “And against your children’s children
 I will bring charges.

 your God
 When <sup>y</sup>He led you in the way?
<sup>18</sup> And now why take <sup>z</sup>the road to Egypt,

God’s beautiful heritage into a polluted abomination. The word heritage refers to God’s possession of the land that He bestowed upon the nation.

2:8 The people had not sought the Lord, nor had the priests, rulers, or prophets. Those who should have known God most intimately did not know Him at all. The rulers transgressed against God and His covenant. The prophets prophesied in the name of Baal rather than God.

2:9 Charges of apostasy and idolatry are formally presented in 2:9–13.

2:10, 11 The only nation whose god was truly God, was at the same time the only nation that exchanged its God for others.

2:13 God’s people had forsaken (1:16) Him and served worthless deities. God, the fountain of living waters, offered a limitless supply of fresh, life-giving sustenance. Instead the people chose broken cisterns, which were useless for storing water and useless for sustaining life.

2:14 Israel was not founded to be a servant or homeborn slave. Yet the nation that God set free from slavery and oppression had placed itself in the position of a servant, enslaved by Assyria and Egypt.

2:15 Assyria—the young lions—laid waste to Israel and Judah during several invasions between 734 and 701 B.C.

2:16 Egypt forced Judah into a vassal relationship. The Egyptians had broken the crown of Israel’s head by killing Josiah. Noph is Memphis, the capital of Lower Egypt. Tahpanhes was in the eastern Nile delta.

2:18 Sihor means “Black” and refers to the Nile River. The word River refers to the Euphrates, which is associated with Assyria. Tragically, the people of Judah had left the everlasting fountain of God for the broken cisterns of Assyria and Egypt (v. 13).

Jeremiah’s Faith Some might consider Jeremiah the model of faithfulness, while others might think of him as an example of failure and futility. He served as God’s prophet for over 40 years, yet the rulers and the people of Judah did not listen to his warnings. Jeremiah was put in prison, thrown into a well, and taken to Egypt against his will. He was not allowed to marry. He was rejected by his friends, neighbors, family, false priests and prophets, and kings. Jeremiah stood alone in his call for the people to repent and turn to God. He warned them time and time again of their impending punishment. And even though much of what he prophesied came true during his ministry, the people and the leaders continued to ignore him.

Yet through all the hardship and humiliation he was forced to endure, Jeremiah remained obedient and faithful to God. Although at first he questioned God’s calling, once he accepted his position he became a model of perseverance and devotion. After enduring decades of abuse, threats, and outright indifference, Jeremiah could easily have turned his back and walked away. But he knew that was exactly the problem God had told him to warn the people about. The people had turned away from God’s will, and Jeremiah was not about to do the same. Some may look back at his ministry and consider it a failure because the people did not respond to his call. In reality, his life was a glorious success because Jeremiah remained faithful to his God. He may not have seen immediate results, but his struggle to obey God in a world that had turned wholesale away from its Creator has inspired generations of believers.

To drink the waters of <sup>a</sup>Sihor?
 Or why take the road to <sup>b</sup>Assyria,
 To drink the waters of <sup>s</sup>the River?
 19 Your own wickedness will <sup>c</sup>correct
 you,
 And your backslidings will rebuke
 you.
 Know therefore and see that it is an

 That you have forsaken the LORD

 And the <sup>9</sup>fear of Me is not in you,”
 Says the Lord God of hosts.

20 “For of old I have <sup>d</sup>broken your yoke

Dromedary (Camel)

To the Hebrews, camels (gama) were predominantly a beast of burden. Camels are bad-tempered, a bit dense, and complain when they have to carry a load, but they can cope with a hot, harsh environment. Long legs keep the camel's belly comfortably away from the blazing sands. The camel conserves water. Its thick wool coat provides natural insulation as it maintains an even body temperature and hardly perspires. A thirsty camel may gulp 25 gallons of water but can go for long periods without food or water. The dromedary camel has one hump—a mass of muscle and fat that serves as its reserve fuel tank. After an arduous journey, the hump may become floppy and soft and have to be built up again.

But you said, <sup>l</sup>“There is no hope.
 No! For I have loved <sup>m</sup>aliens, and after them I will go.”

26 “As the thief is ashamed when he is found out,
 So is the house of Israel ashamed;
 They and their kings and their princes, and their priests and their <sup>n</sup>prophets,
 27 Saying to a tree, ‘You are my father,’
 And to a <sup>o</sup>stone, ‘You gave birth to
 me.’
 For they have turned their back to Me, and not their face.
 But in the time of their <sup>p</sup>trouble
 They will say, ‘Arise and save us.’
 28 But <sup>q</sup>where are your gods that you have made for yourselves?
 Let them arise,
 If they <sup>r</sup>can save you in the time of your <sup>4</sup>trouble;
 For <sup>s</sup>according to the number of your cities
 Are your gods, O Judah.

29 “Why will you plead with Me?
 You all have transgressed against Me,” says the LORD.

30 “In vain I have <sup>t</sup>chastened your children;
 They <sup>u</sup>“received no correction.

2:19 Backslidings means “turnings.” Israel had turned in every direction for help except to the true source of safety and security. The phrase says the Lord God of hosts confirms the severity of the crime and the certainty of the punishment about to befall the people of God.

2:20 Israel had broken its yoke like a beast, even though the people had promised to be faithful when they came into the land (see Josh. 24:24). Instead, idolatrous abandonment of God had pervaded the land: on every high hill and under every green tree. The term harlot is a figurative way of referring to unfaithfulness to God, and in addition it may refer to the ritual prostitution of Canaanite and Phoenician fertility cults.

2:21 Noble vine refers to the lush vines of the Sorek valley, which runs from Jerusalem to the Mediterranean through some of the richest farmland in the country. Judah became an alien vine, fertilized by foreign gods (see Is. 5).

2:23–25 The picture of the wild dromedary, a female camel in heat, and a wild donkey mad with lust vividly portrays the craving of Israel for foreign gods.

2:29, 30 The term plead recalls the charges made by God against Israel in v. 9. The people tried to plead their case, but Jeremiah repeated God's charge of rebellion (v. 8). God, the Sovereign Lord, chastened His children repeatedly, but they devoured His spokesmen the prophets like hungry mountain lions.

Your sword has <sup>v</sup>devoured your prophets
Like a destroying lion.

- 31 “O generation, see the word of the LORD!
Have I been a wilderness to Israel,
Or a land of darkness?
Why do My people say, ‘We <sup>s</sup> are lords;
<sup>w</sup> We will come no more to You’?
32 Can a virgin forget her ornaments,
Or a bride her attire?
Yet My people <sup>h</sup> have forgotten Me days without number.
33 “Why do you beautify your way to seek love?
Therefore you have also taught
The wicked women your ways.
34 Also on your skirts is found <sup>u</sup> The blood of the lives of the poor innocents.
I have not found it by <sup>e</sup> secret search,
But plainly on all these things.
35 <sup>s</sup> Yet you say, ‘Because I am innocent,
Surely His anger shall turn from me.’
Behold, <sup>a</sup> I will plead My case against
you,
<sup>b</sup> Because you say, ‘I have not sinned.’
36 <sup>c</sup> Why do you gad about so much to change your way?
Also <sup>d</sup> you shall be ashamed of Egypt <sup>e</sup> as you were ashamed of Assyria.
37 Indeed you will go forth from him
With your hands on <sup>f</sup> your head;
For the LORD has rejected your trusted allies,
And you will <sup>g</sup> not prosper by them.

Israel Is Shameless

- 3 “They say, ‘If a man divorces his wife,
And she goes from him
And becomes another man’s,
“May he return to her again?”
Would not that <sup>b</sup> land be greatly polluted?
But you have <sup>c</sup> played the harlot with many lovers;
<sup>d</sup> Yet return to Me,” says the LORD.
2 “Lift up your eyes to <sup>e</sup> the desolate heights and see:
Where have you not <sup>f</sup> lain with men?
<sup>f</sup> By the road you have sat for them
Like an Arabian in the wilderness;
<sup>g</sup> And you have polluted the land
With your harlotries and your wickedness.
3 Therefore the <sup>h</sup> showers have been withheld,
And there has been no latter rain.
You have had a <sup>i</sup> harlot’s forehead;
You refuse to be ashamed.
4 Will you not from this time cry to Me,
‘My Father, You are <sup>j</sup> the guide of <sup>k</sup> my youth?’
5 <sup>l</sup> Will He remain angry forever?
Will He keep it to the end?”
Behold, you have spoken and done evil things,
As you were able.”

A Call to Repentance

<sup>6</sup>The LORD said also to me in the days of Josiah the king: “Have you seen what <sup>m</sup>backsliding Israel has done? She has

2:31, 32 A virgin bride could hardly forget the wedding sash that was the sign of her new status. Yet God’s bride Israel had forgotten her wedding adornment—God Himself.

2:33 taught the wicked women: This phrase implies that Judah had become so skilled in adulterous ways that they could have instructed prostitutes in new methods of seduction.

2:34, 35 The blood . . . of the poor innocents: Provision for the poor was specifically commanded in the Law (see Deut. 15:7-11).

2:36, 37 Israel turned every direction but to the Lord. Appealing to Egypt would have been as fruitless as appealing to Assyria had been in the past. With your hands on your head: This was a gesture of grief and remorse—in this case, over Israel’s futile pursuits.

3:1 Deuteronomy 24:1-4 forbids a man to remarry his divorced wife if she has remarried and been divorced in the meantime. The implication is that the woman has been defiled by the second marriage. After forsaking God, Israel had taken many other lovers—that is, the nation worshiped many other gods. Yet the Lord in His mercy still extended His loving hand to His unfaithful bride. The word return implies repentance (5:3).

3:2 desolate heights: This term parallels the high hills of 2:20. Upon these barren heights Israel committed physical and spiritual adultery. The word lain has strong sexual connotations. Like Arabs who were known for ambushing caravans, Israel lustily sought other gods.

3:3 Showers and latter rain refer to the two types of rain that fall in Israel in the spring, from March to early April. These rains are vital in the dry land. Even the punishment of drought did not soften Israel’s harlot’s forehead. This term may refer to a distinguishing mark of slaves, or it may describe a person’s character (see Ezek. 3:8). Israel was like a prostitute who was totally unashamed.

3:6 The reign of Josiah (640-609 B.C.) followed the idolatrous reigns of Manasseh (697-642 B.C.) and Amon (642-640 B.C.). On every high mountain and under every green tree echoes the words of 2:20 (see also v. 2).

guide (Heb. ’alluph) (3:4; Prov. 2:17; 16:28; Mic. 7:5) Strong’s #441: The Hebrew word translated as guide here means “friend.” Israel’s appeal based on God’s friendship with them will avail them nothing due to their hardness of heart (v. 3). This word is translated companion in Prov. 2:17; Mic. 7:5, where the subjects are human. In Ps. 55:13 the treachery of a false friend is reproached.

“gone up on every high mountain and under every green tree, and there played the harlot. <sup>7</sup> And I said, after she had done all these things, ‘Return to Me.’ But she did not return. And her treacherous <sup>8</sup> sister Judah saw it. <sup>8</sup> Then I saw that <sup>9</sup> for all the causes for which backsliding Israel had committed adultery, I had <sup>7</sup> put her away and given her a certificate of divorce; <sup>9</sup> yet her treacherous sister Judah did not fear, but went and played the harlot also. <sup>9</sup> So it came to pass, through her casual harlotry, that she <sup>1</sup> defiled the land and committed adultery with <sup>10</sup> stones and trees. <sup>10</sup> And yet for all this her treacherous sister Judah has not turned to Me <sup>11</sup> with her whole heart, but in pretense,” says the LORD.

‘Return, backsliding Israel,’ says the LORD;
 ‘I will not cause My anger to fall on you.
 For I am <sup>13</sup>merciful,’ says the LORD;
 ‘I will not remain angry forever.
<sup>13</sup> Only acknowledge your iniquity,
 That you have transgressed against the LORD your God,
 And have <sup>14</sup>scattered your <sup>2</sup> charms
 To <sup>15</sup>alien deities <sup>6</sup> under every green tree,
 And you have not obeyed My voice,’
 says the LORD.

<sup>14</sup> “Return, O backsliding children,” says the LORD; <sup>14</sup> “for I am married to you. I will take you, <sup>6</sup> one from a city and two from a family, and I will bring you to <sup>7</sup> Zion. <sup>15</sup> And I will give you <sup>8</sup> shepherds according to My heart, who will <sup>10</sup> feed you with knowledge and understanding.

<sup>16</sup> “Then it shall come to pass, when you are multiplied and <sup>1</sup> increased in the land in those days,” says the LORD, “that they will say no more, ‘The ark of the covenant of the LORD.’ <sup>17</sup> It shall not come to mind, nor shall they remember it, nor shall they visit it, nor shall it be made anymore.

<sup>18</sup> “In those days <sup>19</sup> the house of Judah shall walk with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of <sup>19</sup> the north to <sup>19</sup> the land that I have given as an inheritance to your fathers.

<sup>19</sup> “But I said:

‘How can I put you among the children
 And give you <sup>19</sup> a pleasant land,
 A beautiful heritage of the hosts of nations?’

“And I said:

‘You shall call Me, <sup>19</sup> “My Father,”
 And not turn away from Me.’

3:7 Return means to “return” to God in faith (5:3). Judah had witnessed Israel’s refusal to repent.

3:8 Adultery is forbidden by one of the Ten Commandments (see Deut. 5:18), the heart of the covenant. Because of Israel’s adultery, the Lord presented her with a certificate of divorce based on Deut. 24:1–4. As a consequence, in 722 B.C. Israel was taken captive by Assyria, and Samaria was destroyed. Judah looked on but did not learn from Israel’s example.

3:10 Judah pretended to repent in times of distress, but did not actually turn with its heart to the Lord (see Deut. 6:5; 10:16). The heart means the people’s will, mind, and emotion.

3:11 Because it had not learned from Israel’s example, Judah was considered more treacherous than Israel.

3:12 The cry toward the north may indicate a summons for the northern kingdom in the days of Josiah to repent. Return, backsliding Israel: If the people turned in repentance (3:1, 7; 5:3), God’s anger would not come upon them. The basis of this appeal is that God is merciful, faithful to His covenant promise.

3:13 Iniquity refers to the breaking of the covenant commandments. Israel’s rebellious iniquity is identified as the pursuit of alien gods, idolatry committed throughout the land.

3:14 To marry in this context means to become lord or master. In other words married describes the covenant relation between God and Israel. take you . . . bring you: The remnant of Israel would be united with the remnant of Judah on Mt. Zion in Jerusalem.

3:15 shepherds: Throughout the Bible the image of the shepherd is an important one. God provides shepherds for His people to watch over them, guide them, care for them, and lead them. From Moses in the OT to Jesus in the New, God provides faithful, devoted leaders after His own heart. God rules with a heart of knowledge and understanding, not falsehood and deceit.

3:16 God ordained that His shepherds would lead Israel through a time of blessing, increase in numbers, and material prosperity. In that future time, the highest symbol of God’s presence, the ark of the covenant, would no longer be central to the true religion of Israel. God Himself would be central to Jewish worship.

3:17 Jerusalem, not the ark of the covenant, would be The Throne of the LORD and the focal point of the world’s religion. The name of the LORD summarizes the essence of His character and His relationship with His people (see Ex. 3; 14; 15).

3:18 Restoration and reunification of Israel, unknown since the days of David and Solomon, would be brought about by God Himself. From the north, the direction from which Israel’s enemies typically came, God would bring back His people and bless them in the land of promise, under the Lord’s chosen Shepherd—the Messiah.

3:19 The possession of the land was always dependent on the covenant faithfulness of Israel to their God. The Lord’s desire has always been to bless His people.

And say, <sup>j</sup> ‘Assemble yourselves,
And let us go into the fortified cities.’
- 6 Set up the <sup>3</sup> standard toward Zion.
Take refuge! Do not delay!

3:21 The confessions and prayers of the people are voiced in the midst of their idolatry. Their cries were but idle words, because they had forgotten their God.

3:22 The call to repentance of v. 14 is reiterated in words strongly reminiscent of Hos. 14:1–4. The confession begins with acknowledgment of the Lord as God in accordance with the First Commandment (Ex. 20:2, 3).

3:23 The term vain, meaning “falsehood,” is found 37 times in Jeremiah, often in reference to idolatry and false prophecy (see 5:2; 7:4, 9). The mountains were centers of idol worship and thus were strongholds of falsehood. True salvation or deliverance could be found only in the true God of Israel.

3:24 Shame is a euphemism for idolatry, which had consumed Israel’s thoughts, their flocks and fields, and even their children. The reference to children recalls the human sacrifices in the Valley of Hinnom in the days of Manasseh.

3:25 The people acknowledged the shame and reproach that they had brought upon themselves. They had sinned against God since their days of youth in the wilderness.

4:1 The term abominations or “detestable objects” is usually used in the context of idolatry in the OT (7:30). You shall not be moved implies that repentant Israel would be unwavering in its faith in God.

4:2 The LORD lives: This phrase was regularly used in oaths. When spoken by those faithful to the covenant it should have been a sign of truth, judgment, and righteousness. These three terms summarize the ultimate and ideal demands of the covenant. They are the standards by which all men, from kings to slaves, were and will be judged. bless themselves: The results of Israel’s justice and righteousness would have international consequences. See God’s promise to Abraham in Gen. 12:1–3, that other nations would be blessed through his descendants.

4:3 fallow ground: This is unused soil, not a regularly plowed field. Israel needed a new field in which to sow its seed of faithfulness, a radical departure from its ways of sin and idolatry.

4:4 Circumcise: Circumcision was a sign of the covenant relationship between Israel and God (see Gen. 17:10–14). The intent of God was always that the outward symbol should be a sign of an inward reality of total devotion to Him (see Deut. 10:12–21). fury: Jeremiah’s stern warning of judgment is given with the picture of an unquenchable fire (see Joel 2:3). If the people did not repent of evil, destruction would come.

4:5 Jeremiah announced the judgment of Judah and Jerusalem with the alarming sound of a trumpet, literally a shofar made of a ram’s horn. This was the instrument used to sound the alarm when an enemy attacked a city.

4:6 Standard may refer to signal fires that connected Jerusalem with the perimeter fortresses of Judah. Since the foe

For I will bring disaster from the

Has not turned back from us.

9 “And it shall come to pass in that

The Desert Winds

Wind is both a boon and a bane to Palestine. The hot climate is eased by cool Mediterranean winds during the day. Chill evenings provide a welcome change from the day's heat in desert and hill country. The moisture-laden sea winds combine with cool air at night to give Palestine its vital dew. A southeasterly wind marks the change of seasons in Palestine, from spring to summer and from summer to fall. Jeremiah 4:11 mentions “a dry wind of the desolate heights [that] blows in the wilderness.” This dry wind loaded with dust makes the people very uncomfortable.

The Bible's “east wind” (Jer. 18:17) may be what the Arabs call a khamsin. This wind leaves people irritable and feeling like doing nothing because of the oppressive heat. Jonah may have experienced this: “God prepared a vehement east wind; and the sun beat on Jonah's head” (Jon. 4:8).

Now <sup>s</sup>I will also speak judgment against them.”

13 “Behold, he shall come up like clouds,
And ‘his chariots like a whirlwind.
‘His horses are swifter than eagles.
Woe to us, for we are plundered!”

14 O Jerusalem, <sup>v</sup>wash your heart from wickedness,
That you may be saved.
How long shall your evil thoughts lodge within you?

15 For a voice declares <sup>w</sup>from Dan
And proclaims <sup>x</sup>affliction from Mount Ephraim:

16 “Make mention to the nations,
Yes, proclaim against Jerusalem,
That watchers come from a <sup>y</sup>far country
And raise their voice against the cities of Judah.

from the north was yet unidentified by Jeremiah, this prophecy probably dates from between 622 and 609 b.c. All of Israel's enemies except Egypt came from the north. Later on, Jeremiah identified this enemy as Babylon.

4:7 Destruction would come as a terrible surprise, like a lion . . . from his thicket pouncing suddenly upon its prey. The desolation of the land and the deportation of the people would be the result.

4:8 Sackcloth was a rough-textured fabric worn as a sign of mourning or distress (6:26). fierce anger: The burning wrath of God would come as an inextinguishable fire.

4:10 Even Jeremiah was overwhelmed at what God was about to bring upon Jerusalem. This passage indicates the deep inner struggle Jeremiah faced in his proclamation of the divine message. Jeremiah challenged God's dealings with His people, claiming that God had deceived the people with a message of peace. False prophets like Hananiah foretold a time of peace when in reality despair was more in order.

4:11, 12 The sirocco wind comes from the deserts east and south of Israel, bringing scorching heat and whirling dust. The divine winds of judgment would bring destruction to Jerusalem, the daughter of God. This last phrase is particularly touching; Jacob is God's “son,” and Jerusalem is His “daughter” (see 4:31; 6:2).

4:13 Judah had become the foe of God, and He would use the nation's international foes to discipline them. The imagery of clouds and chariots like a whirlwind portray the thoroughness and swiftness of God's judgment. The people would respond in horror to their fate.

4:14 The word wash is used in Leviticus and Numbers to describe the cleansing of garments that had become defiled through contact with unclean objects or diseases. Cleansing of the heart is foundational to salvation (see Is. 1:18–20).

4:15 Dan: The most northern city of Israel proper. Dan was conquered by Tiglath-Pileser III in 733 b.c. and was incorporated as part of an Assyrian province. The city continued to be occupied through the Assyrian period by remnants of the northern kingdom and by foreigners who had been settled there. Ephraim was in the southernmost region of the northern kingdom of Israel. The message is clear. Just as Israel had been subjugated, Judah was also in danger.

4:16, 17 Jeremiah, the prophet to the nations, announced the attack of foreign enemies who would raise their battle cries against Judah.

- 17 # Like keepers of a field they are against her all around,
Because she has been rebellious against Me,” says the LORD.
18 “Your <sup>z</sup> ways and your doings
Have procured these things for you.
This is your wickedness,
Because it is bitter,
Because it reaches to your heart.”

Sorrow for the Doomed Nation

- 19 O my <sup>a</sup> soul, my soul!
I am pained in my very heart!
My heart makes a noise in me;
I cannot hold my peace,
Because you have heard, O my soul,

The alarm of war.

For the whole land is plundered.
Suddenly <sup>c</sup> my tents are plundered,

And <sup>h</sup> all the birds of the heavens had fled.
26 I beheld, and indeed the fruitful land
was a <sup>i</sup> wilderness,
And all its cities were broken down
At the presence of the LORD,
By His fierce anger.

27 For thus says the LORD:

- “The whole land shall be desolate;
<sup>j</sup> Yet I will not make a full end.
28 For this <sup>k</sup> shall the earth mourn,
And <sup>l</sup> the heavens above be black,
Because I have spoken.
I have <sup>m</sup> purposed and <sup>n</sup> will not relent,
Nor will I turn back from it.
29 The whole city shall flee from the noise of the horsemen and bowmen.
They shall go into thickets and climb up on the rocks.
Every city shall be forsaken,
And not a man shall dwell in it.
30 “And when you are plundered,
What will you do?”

4:19, 20 Soul here means “bowels” or “belly,” a reference to the internal organs. In ancient Middle Eastern thought, the internal organs were the seat of emotions and feelings. The term describes Jeremiah’s inward anguish over the coming destruction of Jerusalem. The phrase makes a noise depicts the “groaning” of the prophet’s heart at the sound of the trumpet announcing Judah’s destruction (v. 5). The destruction of Judah extended to the entire land, even to Jeremiah’s own dwelling place, adding to his misery.

4:22 Foolish describes the character of the people. The terms foolish and silly are contrary to the terms knowledge and understanding. God described His people as impudent children. They were wise in the ways of evil, but totally deficient in knowing how to do good.

4:23 without form, and void: This Hebrew phrase is the same one used in Gen. 1:2 to describe the chaos before the ordering of the cosmos. no light: The prophets spoke of darkness as part of God’s judgment on the world. Here the lack of light describes the disastrous effects of sin on creation, particularly on the land of Judah.

4:24, 25 The symbols of stability and of strength would be shaken as by an earthquake. Birds would disappear as Hosea had proclaimed (see Hos. 4:3). In Gen. 1, the creation of the birds of the heavens depicts the fulfillment of the creative process. In Jeremiah and Hosea, the removal of the birds symbolizes the reversal of creation.

4:26 The term fruitful refers to the region of Mt. Carmel, where there were productive vineyards, olive groves, and oak trees. The term is used figuratively to symbolize the productivity of the land as a “garden of God.” Yet this also would be turned to desert—desolate and unproductive land.

4:27 Desolate refers to the uninhabitable devastation of Judah as a result of its unfaithfulness. Yet the land would not see total destruction. A slim ray of future hope still existed. God remembers His mercy in His wrath.

4:28 The black skies associate darkness with God’s judgment. The term relent, meaning “to repent” or “to be sorry,” parallels the term turn back. God’s judgment on sin and rebellion is inescapable (see Num. 23:19).

4:30 Instead of turning to the Lord in its time of despair, Judah would turn to the idolatrous activity which had caused its dismal plight. To adorn oneself in crimson, gold, and eye mourn (Heb. ’abal) (4:28; 12:4, Job 14:22) Strong’s #56: This verb is one of several Hebrew verbs which refers to the outward acts involved in ancient mourning rites for the dead. Mourning often involved the appearance of an individual: a mourner would frequently wear sackcloth and ashes as a symbol of mourning (6:26)—sometimes even the head would be shaved (Amos 8:10). In the Bible, this Hebrew word is also translated lament (Lam. 2:8). Often the word is used figuratively of objects which cannot really mourn. Here Jeremiah uses the word to describe the earth as mourning in reaction to the broken covenant. God’s people had neglected their obligations to the Lord’s covenant.

Though you clothe yourself with crimson,
 Though you adorn yourself with ornaments of gold,
<sup>a</sup>Though you enlarge your eyes with paint,
 In vain you will make yourself fair;
<sup>b</sup>Your lovers will despise you;
 They will seek your life.

31 “For I have heard a voice as of a woman in <sup>d</sup>labor,
 The anguish as of her who brings forth her first child,
 The voice of the daughter of Zion bewailing herself;
 She <sup>e</sup>spreads her hands, saying,

But they have not grieved;

 But <sup>i</sup>they have refused to receive correction.

 Their backslidings have increased.

paint depicts the seduction of clients by a prostitute. The word lovers describes Judah and Israel’s history of physical and spiritual prostitution.

4:31 The voice of God called for repentance; but the voice of the people cried out in anguish and despair, but not to the Lord their Savior. daughter of Zion: The term is an endearing way of describing Jerusalem as God’s beloved daughter (see 4:11; 6:2). The use of this warm phrase in such a terrible context heightens our appreciation of the horror of the moment. spreads her hands: This phrase portrays the agony of the impending death of Jerusalem. My soul is weary suggests dying words of agony and despair. Judah’s lovers had become her murderers.

5:1 Similar to Abraham’s plea that Sodom be saved on account of the few faithful people among its inhabitants (see Gen. 18:16-33), so Jeremiah summoned the people to search the city of Jerusalem for one just and righteous person. Judgment describes one who has done what is right and just before God and man.

5:2 Used at times by the prophets of Jeremiah’s day to introduce divine oracles or by people in swearing oaths (4:2), the phrase as the LORD lives invokes God’s name and character in the proclamation.

5:3 God always looks for truth (v. 1) and faithfulness. When truth was found lacking in Judah, God punished the people of Jerusalem through foreign invasion. But rather than responding with remorse and repentance, the people reacted in rebellion. The Hebrew term translated correction means “chastisement” or “discipline.” Sometimes it means “instruction.” In the prophets it generally refers to God’s attempt to teach His children faithfulness by means of discipline or punishment (7:28). But despite the words of Jeremiah and other prophets, Israel refused “correction” and continued down the path of self-destruction. The illustration of faces harder than rock emphasizes the rebellious attitudes of the people.

5:4 Here the term poor is paralleled by the word foolish, a rare term used by Isaiah (19:13) to refer to the nation as deluded and deceived. Thus the word poor refers to those who lack knowledge of God and are insensitive to His instruction and inattentive to His will.

5:5, 6 Greatness is achieved not by wealth and power but by the knowledge of God and obedience to Him. known: The word refers to intimate and practical knowledge. Here the knowledge is of the way of the LORD—the path characterized by truth, justice, and righteousness. Jeremiah paints a picture of Judah as oxen that have broken their yoke, wandering aimlessly through the field, guided by their own desires. Because they have broken the yoke, they are exposed to the elements and the wild animals of the forest and desert. The animals symbolize the foreign nations who would lay siege to their cities. The cause of the devastation is the many transgressions, meaning “rebellions,” and backslidings, or “turnings,” of Judah.

5:7 The message is still addressed to the leaders of Judah (v. 5). The word pardon means forgiveness that cannot be granted where there is no repentance, but only continual abandoning

 Every one neighed after his

<sup>9</sup>Shall I not punish them for these things?<sup>10</sup> says the LORD.
 "And shall I not <sup>11</sup>avenge Myself on such a nation as this?
<sup>10</sup>"Go up on her walls and destroy,

<sup>14</sup>Therefore thus says the LORD God of

<sup>20</sup>"Declare this in the house of Jacob
 And proclaim it in Judah, saying, of the ways of the Lord. not gods: The use of this phrase, found also in 2:11 and 16:20, is tantamount to declaring the nonexistence of the foreign deities that Judah worshiped. The words your children refers to the children of the leaders, who are the leaders' children and not God's. I had fed: The term means God had satisfied their every need. adultery . . . harlots' houses: These terms refer to physical adultery, though the source of this immoral sexual conduct may have been the presence of pagan cultic prostitutes. The prophets generally referred to cultic prostitution as adultery. 5:8 In the context of Josiah's reforms, the men may have turned from cultic prostitutes, whom the king had eradicated, to ordinary prostitutes. From the brothels they turned to one another's wives. Like stallions, their lust was uncontrollable. 5:9 The Hebrew word translated punish, literally meaning "to visit," can be used of the visitation of God in mercy (see Ps. 65:9) or in wrath. Here it clearly refers to wrath. 5:10 An unidentified adversary is called upon by the Lord to attack Jerusalem, but not to utterly destroy her. her branches: The degenerate, unfaithful limbs would be pruned because they were not His. 5:12 The people lied about the Lord, denying that He was about to inflict a horrible defeat. They had deceived themselves into thinking that God would not punish His own city and people, forgetting the negative effects of disobedience to the covenant (see Deut. 27; 28). 5:13 False prophets like Hananiah (28:11) had foretold a time of peace and deliverance from the domination and destructiveness of their enemies. But their word was like an empty breeze. The very sword (v. 12) they denied would seal their fate.

5:14 LORD God of hosts: This phrase reminds the hearer that the true God of Israel controls all of the forces of heaven and earth. this word: This refers to the proclamation of Jeremiah, who voices the words of the Lord with the intensity of a blazing fire.

5:15 The true prophet Jeremiah announces the imminent coming of a mighty nation from distant lands who will carry out the divine purpose. The nation is not named, indicating that the oracle predates the advent of Babylon under Nabopolassar and Nebuchadnezzar. The only identification is that the enemy speaks a tongue unknown to the people in Jerusalem. 5:17 The word eat is used four times in this verse to paint an image of the enemy as consuming field, flock, and fortifications.

5:18 In the middle of a prophecy of judgment, Jeremiah includes a word of hope. The phrase in those days is indicative of the judgment God would visit upon His people. God would not destroy His people, but He would make them suffer greatly.

5:19 In summary, Jeremiah repeats two key words describing the sins of Judah and Israel: forsaken (abandonment) and foreign gods (idolatry; see 1:16; 2:13). Since Judah persisted in worshiping gods from foreign lands, God would allow them to be deported and serve their enemies.

5:20 house of Jacob: Even after the northern kingdom had

Impending Destruction from the North

And set up a signal-fire in <sup>a</sup> Beth been destroyed, the prophets still spoke of Israel. There was not a complete destruction of the northern tribes, as is commonly assumed.

5:21 foolish: This term emphasizes the people's ignorance of the ways of God. The parallel phrase without understanding shows the waywardness of the mind of the nation. Judah's blind eyes and deaf ears were a fulfillment of Isaiah's prophecy more than one hundred years earlier (see Is. 6:10).

5:22 To fear God is to acknowledge His majesty and to submit to His will. The negative rhetorical questions highlight Judah's refusal to submit to and to serve God. Instead, they bowed to the many foreign gods who were entirely powerless. God controls the sea, the realm of the mythological Canaanite gods Yamm and Lotan (see Is. 27:1).

5:24 The fear of the LORD is associated here with His creation of the natural world. our God: This title indicates the covenant affinity between the Lord and His people which was sadly lacking in their heart and mind. Who gives rain: In the Canaanite fertility cult, Baal was viewed as the provider of the rains that enriched the soil and brought productivity (see 1 Kin. 17:1). Elijah's victory over Baal and Asherah on Mt. Carmel demonstrated that the God of Israel was the true provider (see 1 Kin. 18).

5:26-28 the wicked: Those responsible for the welfare of the whole populace had abused their positions by exploiting the lesser elements of Israelite society. The picture presented is one of birds, or the poor, being ensnared by great men who were building wealth at the expense of orphans and the needy (see Deut. 10:18).

5:30, 31 Jeremiah describes the moral depravity of Judah's leaders as an astonishing and horrible thing. The deterioration of the leadership of the land reached to the prophets and priests, the very people who were to be the mainstays of righteousness among the people. Both offices had succumbed to the temptation of abusing their power, rejecting their responsible roles as messengers and servants of God.

6:1 The siege alarm was sounded to the cities surrounding Jerusalem. Jeremiah called his own tribe of Benjamin in the north to abandon the city for more secure territory. To the south in Tekoa, the watchman's trumpet was blown; to the west in the Beth Haccerem region, communication signal fires were sent. The offensives of Sennacherib in 701 B.C. and of Nebuchadnezzar in 586 B.C. brought siege forces from both the north and the south. The origin of the disaster is the north, the direction from which most of Israel's enemies approached Jerusalem.

6:4, 5 Prepare or “make holy” speaks of ritual sanctification performed in preparation for battle. The words are overheard

Woe to us, for the day goes away,
For the shadows of the evening are

5 Arise, and let us go by night,
And let us destroy her palaces.”
6 For thus has the LORD of hosts said:
“Cut down trees,
And build a mound against
Jerusalem.
This is the city to be punished.
She is full of oppression in her midst.
7 <sup>f</sup> As a fountain <sup>j</sup> wells up with water,
So she wells up with her wickedness.
<sup>g</sup> Violence and plundering are heard in her.
Before Me continually are <sup>2</sup> grief and wounds.
8 Be instructed, O Jerusalem,
Lest <sup>h</sup> My soul depart from you;
Lest I make you desolate,
A land not inhabited.”
9 Thus says the LORD of hosts:
“They shall thoroughly glean as a vine
the remnant of Israel;
As a grape-gatherer, put your hand back into the branches.”
10 To whom shall I speak and give warning,
That they may hear?
Indeed their <sup>i</sup> ear is uncircumcised,
And they cannot give heed.

Behold, <sup>j</sup> the word of the LORD is a reproach to them;
They have no delight in it.
11 Therefore I am full of the fury of the
LORD.
<sup>k</sup> I am weary of holding it in.
“I will pour it out <sup>l</sup> on the children outside,
And on the assembly of young men
together;
For even the husband shall be taken with the wife,
The aged with him who is full of days.
12 And <sup>m</sup> their houses shall be turned over to others,
Fields and wives together;
For I will stretch out My hand Against the inhabitants of the land,”
says the LORD.
13 “Because from the least of them even to the greatest of them,
Everyone is given to <sup>n</sup> covetousness;
And from the prophet even to the <sup>o</sup> priest,
Everyone deals falsely.
14 They have also <sup>p</sup> healed the <sup>3</sup> hurt of
My people <sup>4</sup> slightly,
<sup>q</sup> Saying, ‘Peace, peace!’
When there is no peace.
15 Were they <sup>r</sup> ashamed when they had committed abomination?
No! They were not at all ashamed;
Nor did they know how to blush.
Therefore they shall fall among those who fall;

in the camps of the enemies who are about to come against Jerusalem. Sorcerers and diviners were called upon to perform sacrifices to determine the will of the gods and assure a successful outcome in battle.

6:6 The terminology implies that God Himself was the true combatant against Jerusalem. Though the enemies were calling on their supposed deities for help in their siege against Jerusalem, it was the Lord who would fight for them and assure the defeat of Jerusalem. Cut down trees . . . build a mound: A siege mound was a ramp of wood, stone, and sand that sloped toward the wall of a city. Armored siege machines could go up the ramp and attack the city walls. The reason for the assault was the oppression within the city. The leaders were abusing their power, especially against the poor, widows, and orphans (see Deut. 14:29).

6:7 Jerusalem had become a well of bitter and polluted waters rather than fresh and pure water. Violence and plundering characterized the city that was once overflowing with peace, justice, and righteousness. Grief and wounds describe the sickness and injury that would continually plague the inhabitants. The horrors of the siege of Jerusalem by the Babylonians in 588–586 B.C. were unspeakable (see the Book of Lamentations).

6:8 Instructed can also mean “disciplined” or “chastened.” Jerusalem was advised to heed the discipline of the Lord or face imminent desolation as a result of His departure.

6:9 The LORD of hosts may also be translated “The Lord of armies” (2:19; 5:14). Thoroughly glean indicates the intensity and thoroughness of the punishment. Every person among the remnant of Israel would know God’s judgment. put your hand back: Jeremiah had to return to his proclamation so that no one would be unaware.

6:10 Because their ears were uncircumcised, meaning that their lives were not devoted to the Lord, the citizens of Jerusalem were incapable of keeping the covenant. Furthermore, their rebellion had become so ingrained that the word of the LORD had become a disgrace to them. The revelation of God’s divine will was no longer a delight to them.

6:11 Jeremiah’s own emotions reveal his identification with God’s feelings about Judah. The prophet was both angry and weary with the entire nation, from the youngest of children to the oldest of the aged men.

6:12 The entire land and its contents would be given to others by the power of the hand of God. God’s hand had saved the people; it would also bring about their judgment.

6:13 The accusation of covetousness suggests monetary gain by means of deception and fraud. Even those called to guide the nation in its covenant relationship had defrauded God and man.

6:14 The religious leaders sought to comfort the people with a message of hope and peace. But such words were not the word of God. Peace describes the wholeness of life, the safety, security, and tranquility of heart and mind that come from living by faith according to God’s word.

6:15 Nor did they know how to blush: The people had lost all sense of what was right before God. they shall fall: Everyone would experience the harsh hand of God’s judgment.

At the time I punish them,
They shall be cast down,” says the
LORD.

<sup>16</sup> Thus says the LORD:

“Stand in the ways and see,
And ask for the <sup>s</sup>old paths, where the good way is,
And walk in it;
Then you will find <sup>t</sup>rest for your souls.
But they said, ‘We will not walk in
it.’

<sup>17</sup> Also, I set <sup>u</sup>watchmen over you,
saying,

“Listen to the sound of the trumpet!
But they said, ‘We will not listen.’

<sup>18</sup> Therefore hear, you nations,
And know, O congregation, what is among them.

<sup>19</sup> <sup>w</sup>Hear, O heart!
Behold, I will certainly bring <sup>x</sup>calamity on this people—

<sup>y</sup>The fruit of their thoughts,
Because they have not heeded My words

Nor My law, but rejected it.

<sup>20</sup> <sup>z</sup>For what purpose to Me
Comes frankincense <sup>a</sup>from Sheba,
And <sup>b</sup>sweet cane from a far country?
<sup>c</sup>Your burnt offerings are not acceptable,
Nor your sacrifices sweet to Me.”

<sup>21</sup> Therefore thus says the LORD:

“Behold, I will lay stumbling blocks
before this people,
And the fathers and the sons together shall fall on them.
The neighbor and his friend shall perish.”

<sup>22</sup> Thus says the LORD:

“Behold, a people comes from the
<sup>d</sup>north country,
And a great nation will be raised from the farthest parts of the earth.

<sup>23</sup> They will lay hold on bow and spear;
They are cruel and have no mercy;
Their voice <sup>e</sup>roars like the sea;
And they ride on horses,
As men of war set in array against you, O daughter of Zion.”

<sup>24</sup> We have heard the report of it;
Our hands grow feeble.

<sup>f</sup> Anguish has taken hold of us,
Pain as of a woman in <sup>g</sup>labor.

<sup>25</sup> Do not go out into the field,
Nor walk by the way.
Because of the sword of the enemy,
Fear is on every side.

<sup>26</sup> O daughter of my people,

<sup>g</sup> Dress in sackcloth

<sup>h</sup> And roll about in ashes!

<sup>i</sup> Make mourning as for an only son,
most bitter lamentation;

For the plunderer will suddenly come upon us.

<sup>27</sup> “I have set you as an assayer and <sup>j</sup>a fortress among My people,
That you may know and test their way.

<sup>28</sup> <sup>k</sup> They are all stubborn rebels,
<sup>l</sup>walking as slanderers.

They are <sup>m</sup>bronze and iron,
They are all corrupters;

<sup>29</sup> The bellows blow fiercely,
The lead is consumed by the fire;
The smelter refines in vain,
For the wicked are not drawn off.

<sup>30</sup> People will call them <sup>n</sup>rejected silver,
Because the LORD has rejected them.”

6:16, 17 Old paths probably refers to the Sinai covenant and the Book of Deuteronomy, as Jeremiah called the people back to former days of steadfast devotion. The people obstinately refused to walk rightly and find rest. They also refused to listen to the alarming sound of the trumpet, denying that any danger existed.

6:18, 19 The nations and the earth are called to witness the stubborn character of Judah (see Is. 1:2; Mic. 1:2). My words . . . My law: The revelation of God through Moses and the prophets was rejected by the people for whom it was prepared and given.

6:20 Even if the people used the most expensive offerings available in the markets of that day, their sacrifices were still neither acceptable nor sweet. The burnt offerings were the “holocaust” offerings, in which the entire animal was consumed by fire. The sacrifices were those that were partially consumed by the offerers. The people performed these sacrifices incorrectly, making themselves the primary beneficiaries of their own worship.

6:24, 25 Anguish or distress overwhelmed the people. Their pain is compared to childbirth. The people were prisoners in their own city.

6:26 Daughter of my people may be rendered “O Daughter, My people” (see 4:11, 31; 6:2, 23). Jeremiah used an endearing word for Jerusalem even in the middle of this warning of coming judgment. The most dreaded loss for an ancient Israelite family was that of an only son. Sackcloth was a dark, coarse fabric of goat or camel hair (4:8). To roll about in ashes symbolically expressed sorrow and despair.

6:27 The Lord describes Jeremiah’s role. Jeremiah would act as the nation’s assayer, the one who tests or evaluates quality or purity. fortress: An alternative translation of this term is tester or assessor, which might fit this context better as a synonym for assayer.

6:28 Jeremiah gives his assessment of the people. Rebels speaks of their defiant attitudes. Slanderers refers to those who tell tales. Corrupters refers to those who destroy.

6:29, 30 Jeremiah assesses Judah as a refiner purifies silver, using lead to remove impurities (9:7). The lead is consumed, so the dross in the silver ore cannot be purged. This results in the refiner discarding the ore because it is so impure that the smelting process is not worth the energy it takes. Similarly God rejects those whose wickedness cannot be refined.

Trusting in Lying Words

7 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying, <sup>2a</sup>“Stand in the gate of the LORD’s house, and proclaim there this word, and say, ‘Hear the word of the LORD, all you of Judah who enter in at these gates to worship the LORD!’” <sup>3</sup>Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: <sup>b</sup>“Amend your ways and your doings, and I will cause you to dwell in this place. <sup>4c</sup>Do not trust in these lying words, saying, ‘The temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD are these.’

7:1, 2 The word that came to Jeremiah was a direct message from God in His temple courts. Stand in the gate: The parallel in 26:2 suggests the proclamation was made in the outer court of the temple, where Jeremiah would have been guaranteed a large audience. Worship suggests bowing prostrate in service and obedience to a god, king, or priest. In bowing down, the worshiper pledged himself or herself to obedience in adhering to the demands of the one being honored (22:9).

7:3 The LORD of hosts can also be translated “God of armies” (2:19; 5:14; 6:9). Amend: The call to repentance here uses a different term (26:13) from the usual word translated “return” (3:1). A complete transformation of the people’s ways and doings, lifestyle and beliefs, was necessary.

7:4 Trust conveys the sense of security and confidence that the people had in their holy place. They believed that since God had chosen Jerusalem as His dwelling, had promised that a Davidic king would remain on the throne forever, and had delivered the city from attack in the days of Hezekiah and Isaiah, He would never allow the city or the temple to be destroyed. Lying words may refer to the unfounded reliance on the temple as an idolatrous symbol or to the worship of foreign gods. The temple of the LORD had become a talisman to the Israelites. They believed the building guaranteed their security whether or not they obeyed the provisions of the covenant. This false hope was a lie (3:23; 7:9; 8:8).

7:5, 6 The only true hope for dwelling in the context of the temple was a radical restructuring of Judah’s society. Thoroughly amend, or “make good” or “do good,” emphasizes the necessary transformation of Jerusalem’s inhabitants. thoroughly execute judgment: The emphatic phrase form implies the depth of corruption that existed in the land; there was no justice. Stranger refers to resident aliens who were dwelling in the land. The fatherless and the widow were accorded special treatment in the Law, but they had been abused by the leaders of Jerusalem. Innocent blood refers to those convicted of capital crimes on false charges, such as Urijah the prophet (26:23). Humanitarian concern for all persons was a central element of the covenant. To walk after other gods is to serve and worship them.

7:7 I will cause you to dwell: This phrase emphasizes the will and work of God to establish the nation of Israel in the land. In order for the nation to dwell in the land, it had to be faithful to God (see Deut. 7:6–11).

7:8 The refrain of v. 4 is complemented here by the phrase cannot profit (2:8, 11). The idea that the temple was inviolable was as profitless as the powerless gods that Israel idolized.

7:9 The covenant stipulations that Jerusalem’s inhabitants had violated are listed here (see Ex. 20:1–17). burn incense: Jeremiah uses this phrase 19 times in the context of worshipping deities other than God (1:16). Know refers to an intimate, purposeful relationship—like that between husband and wife.

7:10 Stand before means “to place (oneself) in submissive service to someone.” Entering the temple of God in such a manner while worshipping other gods was incomprehensible. Furthermore, for the people to think that they were secure (delivered) enough to perform perverted abominations (2:7) was the ultimate hypocrisy. Paul builds on this concept in Rom. 6:12–16.

7:11 den of thieves: Like robbers hiding in a cave for safety,

A Sobering Object Lesson Shiloh was a sobering object lesson for Judah. Once the center of Israel’s religious life and the site of the tabernacle (see 1 Sam. 1:3), Shiloh lay in ruins in Jeremiah’s day, and its people had been taken captive by the Assyrians. Why? Because the northern kingdom of Israel had turned away from the Lord to idols. Jeremiah warned that the same outcome awaited the people of Jerusalem—and for the same reason (Jer. 7:12–15).

Jeremiah’s message of judgment must have sounded incredible. Jerusalem was the site of the temple, the magnificent house of worship that David had envisioned and Solomon had built to the glory of God (see 2 Chr. 5:1). How could God allow His temple and its city to be destroyed? Yet if anyone doubted Jeremiah’s warning, all they had to do was travel a little more than 20 miles north to Shiloh.

Apparently, few people heeded the prophet’s word, because Jerusalem fell to the Babylonians within a few short years. The temple was burned and most of the people were either killed or deported.

This tragic outcome challenges us to consider whether idols exist in our own lives. We don’t bow down to images of wood and stone, but if we allow anything to take the place of God, then we are practicing idolatry. This can happen in our work, in our relationships, and, like the people of ancient Judah, even in our houses of worship. In that case, God may take away the thing that we hold so dear in order to redirect our attention and affection to where they belong—on Him. The first commandment is still in effect: “You shall have no other gods before Me” (Ex. 20:3).

by My name, become a "den of thieves in your eyes? Behold, I, even I, have seen it," says the LORD.

<sup>12</sup> "But go now to <sup>o</sup>My place which was in Shiloh, <sup>p</sup>where I set My name at the first, and see <sup>q</sup>what I did to it because of the wickedness of My people Israel. <sup>13</sup> And now, because you have done all these works," says the LORD, "and I spoke to you, <sup>r</sup>rising up early and speaking, but you did not hear, and I <sup>s</sup>called you, but you did not answer, <sup>14</sup> therefore I will do to the house which is called by My name, in which you trust, and to this place which I gave to you and your fathers, as I have done to 'Shiloh. <sup>15</sup> And I will cast you out of My sight, "as I have cast out all your brethren—"the whole posterity of Ephraim.

<sup>16</sup> "Therefore <sup>w</sup>do not pray for this people, nor lift up a cry or prayer for them, nor make intercession to Me; <sup>x</sup>for I will not hear you. <sup>17</sup> Do you not see what they do in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem? <sup>18</sup> <sup>y</sup>The children gather wood, the fathers kindle the fire, and the women knead dough, to make cakes for the queen of heaven; and <sup>z</sup>they <sup>z</sup>pour out drink offerings to other gods, that they may provoke Me to anger. <sup>19</sup> <sup>a</sup>Do they provoke Me to anger?" says the LORD. "Do they not <sup>z</sup>provoke themselves, to the shame of their own faces?"

Judah attempted to hide behind the sanctuary of the temple for protection from the divine hand of judgment. But the Lord had seen the hypocrisy of Israel's ways. Jesus quoted this verse when He cleansed the second temple (see Matt. 21:13).

7:12 Shiloh was the site of the tent of meeting and ark of the covenant in the days of the judges. Leaders in the family of Eli had abused their priestly position for personal gain, and idolatry was rampant in the land. When the Israelites attempted to use the ark as a victory-giving talisman, the ark was captured (see 1 Sam. 4) and the sanctuary was destroyed by the Philistines. The Philistines were instruments of divine punishment for the wickedness of God's people. God's love for His people does not prevent Him from chastising them for their wickedness.

7:13 All these works are the sins listed in vv. 6, 8, 9.

7:14, 15 The earlier dwelling place of the ark of God, Shiloh, served as an example of the impending destruction of Jerusalem. The temple had to be destroyed to vindicate the name of God; the people had to be removed from the land in order to purge it of wickedness.

7:16 God's instruction to Jeremiah, do not pray for this people, indicates the extreme depravity of Jerusalem's inhabitants (see also 11:14; 14:11). No manner of intercession was to be made on behalf of Judah. God would not hear Jeremiah's appeals.

7:17, 18 The queen of heaven refers to the goddess Ishtar (Astarte), who was worshipped in open-air cultic centers throughout the eastern Mediterranean region and Mesopotamia. Worship of Ishtar involved the preparation of special cakes that bore the goddess's image, as well as drink offerings (44:19). The family cooperation in the idolatrous worship of Ishtar stood in direct opposition to the covenant demands that a father instruct his children in the ways of the Lord (see Deut. 6:4-9).

7:19 Provoke, which means "to vex or irritate," describes the effects of Israel's continual unfaithfulness on God. Furthermore, they were bringing harm upon themselves.

7:20 God's judgment on the abominable idolatry of Ishtar worship is described in terms of a fire that cannot be quenched. The devastation of the fire would extend to man, beast, field, and fruit.

7:21 Add your burnt offerings to your sacrifices: Because the people had missed the true meaning of the Lord's worship, they could multiply their offerings as much as they liked and it would do them no good. The Lord cared for none of their sacrifices. To Him they were simply meat.

7:22 All sacrifices were not rejected, only those offered without true repentance and a commitment to obey the Lord.

7:23 God required that His people obey His voice. that it may be well with you: Obedience would bring blessing. When the prophets lashed out against sacrifice, it was not against the sacrificial system as God had established it, but against the corruption of that system as the people practiced it. The same thing is found in the NT passages that seemingly speak against the Law. Both the NT writers and the Hebrew prophets denounce the abuses of divine systems in human hands.

7:24 The history of Israel is seen in terms of disobedience rather than faithfulness to the covenant, reflecting the people's evil hearts (4:14). The result was a worsening or backward direction rather than an improving or forward walk.

7:25 From the days of Moses, God sent His servants the prophets to call the nation of Israel to obedience based upon the covenant. Daily rising up early and sending them indicates the persistence and urgency of God's message through His prophets.

7:26, 27 Incline their ear suggests eager listening and readiness to obey. Stiffened their neck suggests a cold rebuff to <sup>27</sup>“Therefore <sup>m</sup>you shall speak all these words to them, but they will not obey you. You shall also call to them, but they will not answer you.

Judgment on Obscene Religion

<sup>28</sup>“So you shall say to them, ‘This is a nation that does not obey the voice of the LORD their God <sup>n</sup>nor receive correction. <sup>o</sup>Truth has perished and has been cut off from their mouth. <sup>29</sup>’Cut off your hair and cast it away, and take up a lamentation on the desolate heights; for the LORD has rejected and forsaken the generation of His wrath.’ <sup>30</sup>For the children of Judah have done evil in My sight,” says the LORD. <sup>q</sup>“They have set their abominations in the house which is called by My name, to <sup>5</sup>pollute it. <sup>31</sup>And they have built the <sup>r</sup>high places of Tophet, which is in the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, to <sup>s</sup>burn their sons and their daughters in the fire, <sup>w</sup>which I did not command, nor did it come into My heart.

<sup>32</sup>“Therefore behold, <sup>u</sup>the days are coming,” says the LORD, “when it will no more be called Tophet, or the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, but the Valley of Slaughter; <sup>v</sup>for they will bury in Tophet until there is no room. <sup>33</sup>The <sup>w</sup>corpses of this people will be food for the birds of the heaven and for the beasts of the earth. ### The Peril of False Teaching

<sup>4</sup>“Moreover you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD:

“Will they fall and not rise?
Will one turn away and not return?

But they do not speak aright.

the will and work of God. Jeremiah, like Isaiah before him (see Is. 6:9, 10), was told that the people would not respond to his message.

7:28 The people were stubborn, rejecting the laws of the covenant. They were persistently disobedient to the voice of the LORD revealed through His prophets. Correction refers to the instruction of the Law and the prophets (5:3). Truth refers to the faithfulness and fidelity that was characteristic of God but absent among His people.

7:29 To cut off one's hair was a way of expressing mourning and grief. The act may also have symbolized that Judah had rejected the covenant relationship just as if they had broken a Nazirite vow, a sign of personal devotion that required the hair not to be cut (see Num. 6:1-21). desolate heights: The place of lamentation was the very place where Judah carried on its idolatrous practices (3:2). The Lord had rejected this generation, even as they had rejected His Law (6:19) and had been rejected by their “lovers” (4:30).

7:30, 31 The evil doings of this generation, which had continued since the days of Manasseh, included the placing of abominations or “detestable objects” such as idols and pagan altars in the temple of God. The Tophet sacrifices, adopted from Phoenician and Canaanite practices, involved the ritual sacrifice of children in times of national crisis or disaster. burn . . . in the fire: This took place in the Valley of Hinnom southwest of Jerusalem (also called Gehenna).

7:32 days are coming: This phrase signifies the advent of a divine intervention in history, usually in judgment. With the phrase Valley of Slaughter, Jeremiah uses the prophetic device of changing a name to express the Lord's assessment of the Valley of Hinnom.

7:33 Unburied corpses left to the elements and animals were regarded as a horrible desecration in the ancient Middle East.

7:34 Prayer would avail Judah nothing on account of its great sin. The nation would be devoid of all joy and gladness. The land would be desolate. The word desolate is used extensively in Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel to refer to the devastation in Jerusalem.

8:1-3 In the day when Jerusalem's judgment was fulfilled at the hands of its enemies, the bones of its people and their leaders would be desecrated by being removed from their graves. the sun and the moon and all the host of heaven: The gods and goddesses to whom Jerusalem looked for deliverance would stand over the people's desecrated corpses, which are pictured here as refuse or “dung” (9:22). Those who survived the siege and attack as exiles and slaves would prefer death over life.

8:4, 5 The questions in these verses emphasize the absurdity of Judah's lifestyle. Instead of correcting their erroneous behavior, the people were engaged in perpetual backsliding, falling deeper and deeper into sin and despair. hold fast: In stubborn defiance, the people clung to their lives of deceit or “treachery.”

8:6 No righteous or repentant person could be found in the city of Jerusalem. Rather than turning from sin, every person pursued his or her own course, a lifestyle leading to destruction.

Saying, ‘What have I done?’

8:7 Jeremiah contrasts the citizens of Jerusalem with the birds in the heavens who understand the approach of the seasons and appointed times. Whereas the birds follow their instincts to migrate, the people of Israel refused to follow God’s promptings to obey His covenant. Note that God still refers to the people of Judah as My people even though they continued to rebel against Him. do not know: Like his northern counterpart Hosea (see Hos. 4:6), Jeremiah identified the people’s major deficiency as their lack of knowledge of the Lord and His judgment. 8:8, 9 Jeremiah contended with fraudulent scribes and wise men whose understanding of the Law Jeremiah deemed falsehood. False pen describes the idolatry and errant beliefs of Jerusalem’s leadership. The wisdom of the scribes and wise men was folly and shame because it was not founded on a true knowledge of God’s word and law. 8:10–12 The people had interpreted the Law unwisely, believing that peace and prosperity would be granted to them. They were grossly mistaken (6:12–15). 8:14 Assemble . . . enter: Judah’s inhabitants would gather within the citadel and walls of Jerusalem for protection from an oncoming army. Silent can also be translated “perish.” The people believed that God was judging them with bitter, poisoned water, by which they would surely die. 8:15 The search for peace and health was hopeless and full of trouble—“terror” or “dismay.” God’s hand of judgment strikes terror in the hearts and minds of those who continue in sin and rebellion. 8:16 Dan lies at the northern border of Israel. In 1:14, 15, Jeremiah warned that calamity would come from the north. The snorting of enemy horses would sound the fury of the impending invasion. His horses: The enemy’s horses were instruments of divine judgment. 8:17 serpents . . . Vipers: Judgment by means of poisonous snakes is described in Num. 21:6.

falsehood (Heb. sheqer) (8:8; 23:25; Prov. 6:17; 31:30) Strong’s #8267: This word refers to all actions meant to deceive others, such as fraud, lying, betrayal, and unfaithfulness. It is sometimes translated lying (7:4), vain (3:23), or deceitful (Prov. 31:30). One of Jeremiah’s greatest tasks as a prophet was to speak out against the deceitful schemes of lying prophets (23:9–40). These prophets were prophesying relief for Judah from suffering when God was actually handing Judah over to the Babylonians for judgment (23:17–19). Their deceptive ways made them enemies to the truth, the truth of God’s Word (see Ps. 119:20, 30).

Vipers which cannot be <sup>a</sup> charmed,
And they shall bite you,” says the
LORD.

The Prophet Mourns for the People

<sup>18</sup> I would comfort myself in sorrow;
My heart is faint in me.

<sup>19</sup> Listen! The voice,
The cry of the daughter of my people
From <sup>b</sup> a far country:
“Is not the LORD in Zion?
Is not her King in her?”

“Why have they provoked Me to anger
With their carved images—
With foreign idols?”

<sup>20</sup> “The harvest is past,
The summer is ended,
And we are not saved!”

<sup>21</sup> <sup>c</sup>For the hurt of the daughter of my people I am hurt.
I am <sup>d</sup> mourning;
Astonishment has taken hold of me.
<sup>22</sup> Is there no <sup>e</sup> balm in Gilead,
Is there no physician there?
Why then is there no recovery
For the health of the daughter of my people?

9 Oh, <sup>a</sup> that my head were waters,
And my eyes a fountain of tears,
That I might weep day and night
For the slain of the daughter of my people!

the LORD.
- <sup>4</sup> “Everyone <sup>f</sup> take heed to his <sup>l</sup> neighbor,

They weary themselves to commit deceit;

Through deceit they refuse to know

<sup>7</sup> Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts:

- “Behold, <sup>i</sup> I will refine them and <sup>2</sup> try
them;
<sup>j</sup> For how shall I deal with the daughter of My people?”
- <sup>8</sup> Their tongue is an arrow shot out;
It speaks <sup>k</sup> deceit;
One speaks <sup>l</sup> peaceably to his

But <sup>3</sup> in his heart he <sup>4</sup> lies in wait.

8:18 The hopelessness of Judah was so overwhelming to Jeremiah that his heart was faint. The word faint describes an illness or sickness that results from great sorrow.

8:19 Cry refers to great grief resulting from God’s rejection, or foreign oppression (see Ps. 18:6). Far country or “far places” probably refers to the outer reaches of the land of Judah. Is not the LORD in Zion? Is not her King in her: These rhetorical questions expect an affirmative response. God, the King, had not abandoned His people; it was the Israelites who had rejected the living God for other gods. Provoked vividly describes the defiant attitudes of the people toward the pure worship of God. Carved images generally refers to stone idols. The phrase foreign idols in Hebrew is “foreign futilities.” The people were looking for deliverance in useless and motionless images. Excavations in Jerusalem dating back to Jeremiah’s time have uncovered numerous images and household idols.

8:20–22 This proverb reflects the sense of helplessness in the early fall. The harvest was meager and the oppression persisted. Even Jeremiah was deeply hurt—this translates a Hebrew word derived from the verb meaning “to break,” “to shatter”; in other words, the prophet’s spirit was broken over the fate of his people. Is there no balm in Gilead: The region of Gilead was known for its balsam ointment (see Gen. 37:25). There is no healing, physical or spiritual, for a people intent on rebelling against God.

9:1 my eyes a fountain of tears: Jeremiah, who is known as the “weeping prophet,” identified personally with the suffering of his people. Here he expresses his desire for a reserve of tears that would flow without stopping.

9:2 Jeremiah desired a wilderness refuge where he would be free from the agony, sorrow, bitterness, and degradation of Jerusalem. The word adulterers refers literally to unfaithful husbands or wives, but here to idolaters as those who are spiritually faithless.

9:4 take heed to his neighbor . . . do not trust any brother: The personal affairs of the people were characterized by deceit, slander, and mistrust. Ethical standards had collapsed. Supplant, which means “to defraud,” is the basis of the name Jacob. As Jacob deceived his brother Esau, so the people of Judah defrauded their brethren (see Gen. 27).

9:5, 6 They weary themselves to commit iniquity: The people had literally worn themselves out with perversions. Deceit here is the same term used of Jacob’s trickery toward Esau (see Gen. 27:35). The term refers to swindling by false speech or false scales. they refuse to know Me: The essence of Judah’s problem was its lack of knowledge of God.

9:7 Jeremiah returns to the imagery of metallurgical refining (6:28–30). God would refine and try the people by fire to see if any were faithful to Him.

9 <sup>m</sup> Shall I not punish them for these things?" says the LORD.
 "Shall I not avenge Myself on such a nation as this?"

10 I will take up a weeping and wailing for the mountains,
 And <sup>n</sup> for the <sup>5</sup> dwelling places of the wilderness a lamentation,
 Because they are burned up,
 So that no one can pass through;
 Nor can men hear the voice of the cattle.
<sup>o</sup> Both the birds of the heavens and the beasts have fled;
 They are gone.

11 "I will make Jerusalem <sup>n</sup> a heap of ruins, <sup>q</sup> a den of jackals.
 I will make the cities of Judah desolate, without an inhabitant."

12 <sup>r</sup> Who is the wise man who may understand this? And who is he to whom the mouth of the LORD has spoken, that he may declare it? Why does the land perish and burn up like a wilderness, so that no one can pass through?

13 And the LORD said, "Because they have forsaken My law which I set before them, and have <sup>s</sup> not obeyed My voice, nor walked according to it, <sup>14</sup> but they have <sup>t</sup> walked according to the <sup>6</sup> dictates of their own hearts and after the Baals, <sup>u</sup> which their fathers taught them," <sup>15</sup> therefore thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: "Behold, I will <sup>v</sup> feed them, this people, <sup>w</sup> with wormwood, and give them <sup>7</sup> water of gall to drink. <sup>16</sup> I will <sup>x</sup> scatter them also among the Gentiles, whom neither they nor their fathers have known. <sup>y</sup> And I will send a sword after them until I have consumed them."

The People Mourn in Judgment

<sup>17</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts:

"Consider and call for <sup>z</sup> the mourning women,
 That they may come;
 And send for skillful wailing women,
 That they may come.
<sup>18</sup> Let them make haste
 And take up a wailing for us,
 That <sup>a</sup> our eyes may run with tears,
 And our eyelids gush with water.

9:8, 9 Jeremiah returns to the imagery of bow and arrow to depict Judah's deceit (v. 3). The picture is of a person speaking peaceably to his neighbor while lying in wait to ambush him.

9:10, 11 weeping and wailing for the mountains: The entire land would be laid waste by destruction. Even the animals would abandon the land because not a crumb of food would remain for the birds and beasts. The holy city of Jerusalem would become a den of jackals where no man or woman lived. Jackals are desert creatures who live far from people. The only way Jerusalem could become home for jackals was for it to be no longer inhabited by God's people.

9:12 The wise man observes and understands the natural order and the working of God in the world He has made. No wise person could be found among the inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem.

9:13, 14 The people's lack of adherence to the covenant they had forsaken is indicated by the phrase have not obeyed . . .

nor walked. The word obey, which comes from the Hebrew word meaning "to hear," implies an active response to the hearing of God's word. Instead of walking according to God's law, the people walked according to the dictates or "stubbornness" of their own hearts.

9:15, 16 Water of gall, used in 8:14 to describe God's judgment, refers to some kind of poisonous or salty drink. scatter them . . . send a sword: The people of Judah would be exiled from their promised homeland and even killed as they ran away because they rejected God.

9:17 Skillful wailing women refers to professional mourners, women who attended funerals to express the emotions of those in sorrow. Women were called by Jeremiah to sing laments when Josiah died (see 2 Chr. 35:25). Here they are called to weep over the collapse of Jerusalem.

9:18 make haste: There is urgency in summoning the skilled mourners to lead the people in tearful lament over the imminent destruction of Judah.

"Sin Is Sin" Jeremiah presents a sobering message, both to the people of his day as well as to people today: God is against all sin. His judgment of wrath falls on the sin of all individuals and all nations, without exception (Jer. 9:25, 26). It doesn't matter whether one is Jew ("circumcised") or Gentile ("uncircumcised"). No group is exempt. No one has special privileges. As Paul put it, "The wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men" (Rom. 1:18). All have sinned and stand under God's judgment (Rom. 3:10-18, 23).

Jeremiah leaves no room for bargaining. He says that God will punish Egypt, Judah, Edom, Ammon, Moab, and every other nation, even those living in the farthest corners of the earth. That includes all the nations that have ever existed or will exist. Apparently the Lord sees no difference between the sins of Judah and the sins of Egypt, the sins of ancient cultures or the sins of modern culture. Sin is sin. There are no good sins. The sins of one people are as evil as the sins of another.

This is the "bad news" that makes the message of Christ's work on the Cross good news indeed. Yet even the bad news shows that God is as evenhanded in His judgment as He is in His mercy and grace (Rom. 3:29, 30). He warns of judgment on all, but He also offers life to all. No one can hide from the all-seeing eyes of the Lord. But no one needs to lose out on His salvation unless that person rejects God's provision, Christ.

<sup>19</sup> For a voice of wailing is heard from Zion:

‘How we are plundered!
We are greatly ashamed,
Because we have forsaken the land,
Because we have been cast out of <sup>b</sup>our dwellings.’”

<sup>20</sup> Yet hear the word of the LORD,
O women,
And let your ear receive the word of
His mouth;
Teach your daughters wailing,
And everyone her neighbor a lamentation.

<sup>21</sup> For death has come through our

‘Even the carcasses of men shall fall
<sup>d</sup>as refuse on the open field,
Like cuttings after the harvester,
And no one shall gather them.’”

<sup>23</sup> Thus says the LORD:

Idols and the True God

10 Hear the word which the LORD speaks to you, O house of Israel.

<sup>2</sup>Thus says the LORD:

<sup>a</sup>“Do not learn the way of the Gentiles;
Do not be dismayed at the signs of
heaven,
For the Gentiles are dismayed at
them.

<sup>3</sup> For the customs of the peoples are <sup>l</sup>futile;

For <sup>b</sup>one cuts a tree from the forest,
The work of the hands of the workman, with the ax.

<sup>4</sup> They decorate it with silver and gold;

They <sup>c</sup>fasten it with nails and hammers

So that it will not topple.

<sup>5</sup> They are upright, like a palm tree,
And <sup>d</sup>they cannot speak;

They must be <sup>e</sup>carried,
Because they cannot go by themselves.
Do not be afraid of them,

9:19 plundered: This term, which means “to devastate,” is used frequently in Jeremiah to refer to the impending devastation of Jerusalem.

9:20–22 Teach your daughters wailing: The impending disaster in Jerusalem would be so great and the dead would be so numerous that multitudes of trained mourners would be needed. Death has come like the Canaanite god of death Mot, who was believed to enter a household through an open window to bring adversity, destruction, and death. children . . . young men . . . men: Death claims its victims without respect to sex or age. Corpses would remain in the open field like refuse or dung (8:2), or like cuttings left in the field to decompose.

9:23, 24 wise . . . mighty . . . rich: The people with whom Jeremiah contended were depending on their own capabilities rather than on God. Glory may also be translated boast, meaning “to praise oneself.” The idea is that people should find their real meaning and true worth in the fact that they know God and may celebrate His attributes. True knowledge of God resulting from an intimate relationship with Him will be demonstrated in a person’s character. Three attributes of God that He demands of people called by His Name are lovingkindness, meaning “loyal love”; judgment, meaning “justice”; and righteousness, meaning “uprightness.”

9:25, 26 God would punish or “visit” Judah, along with its uncircumcised neighboring nations. Circumcision, the sign of God’s covenant with Abraham, was meaningless without a heart faithfully devoted to God. Here Judah is listed as just another nation. In fact, it is not even at the head of the list. The point of this text is similar to the concept of temple inviolability (ch. 7). Just as God would destroy even the temple (7:12–14), so He would ignore even circumcision when it was merely an outward symbol (see Deut. 10:12–22).

10:2 The way of the Gentiles was worshiping natural phenomena by means of handmade icons and symbolic imagery. The signs of heaven were the astral deities (8:1–3) worshiped in the days of Manasseh and reinstated following the death of Josiah and the collapse of his reforms. dismayed: The heavenly realms held a certain awe or terror for the nations, but Israel was to worship God who held the heavenly realm under His control.

10:3, 4 Customs refers to the practice of constructing deities for worship. Futile, which means “vapor,” “vanity,” or “worthlessness,” describes the utter uselessness of idol worship.

10:5 The upright idols were dumb and motionless; they required attendants to care for them and carry them from place to place. Do not be afraid: There is no reason to fear—let alone worship—things that are completely powerless, unable to do good or evil.

For <sup>f</sup>they cannot do evil,
Nor can they do any good.”

<sup>6</sup> Inasmuch as there is none <sup>g</sup>like You,
O LORD

(You are great, and Your name is great in might),

<sup>7</sup> <sup>h</sup>Who would not fear You, O King of
the nations?

For this is Your rightful due.

For <sup>i</sup>among all the wise men of the nations,

And in all their kingdoms,
There is none like You.

<sup>8</sup> But they are altogether <sup>j</sup>dull-hearted and foolish;

A wooden idol is a <sup>2</sup>worthless doctrine.

<sup>9</sup> Silver is beaten into plates;
It is brought from Tarshish,
And <sup>k</sup>gold from Uphaz,
The work of the craftsman
And of the hands of the metalsmith;
Blue and purple are their clothing;
They are all <sup>l</sup>the work of skillful
men.

<sup>10</sup> But the LORD is the true God;
He is <sup>m</sup>the living God and the <sup>n</sup>everlasting King.
At His wrath the earth will tremble,
And the nations will not be able to endure His indignation.

<sup>11</sup> Thus you shall say to them: <sup>o</sup>“The gods that have not made the heavens and the earth <sup>p</sup>shall perish from the earth and from under these heavens.”

<sup>12</sup> He <sup>q</sup>has made the earth by His power,

He has <sup>r</sup>established the world by His wisdom,
And <sup>s</sup>has stretched out the heavens
at His discretion.

<sup>13</sup> <sup>t</sup>When He utters His voice,
There is a <sup>3</sup>multitude of waters in the
heavens:

<sup>u</sup>“And He causes the vapors to ascend from the ends of the earth.
He makes lightning for the rain,
He brings the wind out of His treasuries.”

<sup>14</sup> <sup>v</sup>Everyone is <sup>w</sup>dull-hearted, without knowledge;

<sup>x</sup>Every metalsmith is put to shame by an image;

<sup>y</sup>For his molded image is falsehood,
And there is no breath in them.

<sup>15</sup> They are futile, a work of errors;
In the time of their punishment they shall perish.

<sup>16</sup> <sup>z</sup>The Portion of Jacob is not like them,
For He is the Maker of all things,
And <sup>a</sup>Israel is the tribe of His
inheritance;

<sup>b</sup>The LORD of hosts is His name.

The Coming Captivity of Judah

10:6, 7 there is none like You, O LORD: This phrase expresses one of the great teachings of the prophets—the “incomparability of God.” God is not simply “better” than other gods; He alone is the living God.

10:8 Dull-hearted can mean “brutish,” “stupid,” or “unreceptive.” The idea here is that instruction received from idolaters is as worthless as the idols themselves.

10:9, 10 Silver came from Tarshish, which some scholars have identified with Tartessus in southern Spain. The wooden and metallic idol was adorned with blue and purple fabrics, whose dye probably originated with the Phoenicians. However, even the most skillful or “wise” craftsmen could not manufacture true gods, for there is but one true, living, and everlasting God. The fabricated icons were lifeless, deteriorating, false gods who were no more powerful or wise than their makers.

10:11 This verse was originally written in Aramaic rather than Hebrew, the usual language of the OT, but the reason for this change of language is not known. (Aramaic also occurs in Ezra and Daniel.) The message is clear that the helpless so-called gods would be destroyed.

10:12, 13 Jeremiah emphasizes the creative power of God, drawing from the imagery of Job 38 and Ps. 8. By God’s power, wisdom, and discretion or “understanding,” the earth and the heavens were brought into orderly existence. By the command of His voice, at Creation (see Gen. 1:1—2:4), the waters, lightning, and wind are summoned. Jeremiah reminded the people of Judah that their God not only created the universe but also governs its ongoing life.

10:14, 15 True knowledge is found only in relationship to God. metalsmith: The craftsmen who used silver and gold for the images they constructed were put to shame by their handiwork. The lifeless and useless objects that they fashioned showed that their efforts were futile.

10:16 The Portion of Jacob: The Lord is the portion or “share” of His people, sufficient for their every need. His inheritance: Israel belonged to God; God is the sufficiency of His people.

10:17, 18 Gather up your wares: The Assyrian stone reliefs of Shalmaneser III depict captives transporting household goods on their heads as they go into exile in the eastern reaches of the empire. Soon, this would be the fate of the people of Judah.

10:19 Woe is me: Jeremiah personally identified with Judah and the destruction of Jerusalem. my hurt . . . My wound: The injuries inflicted upon Judah were severe; the Hebrew text suggests “incurable wounds.” infirmity: Supplementing the words hurt and wounds, the word infirmity completes the threefold imagery of the damage done to Judah. Writing in triplets was a Hebrew technique to symbolize fullness.

But I say, <sup>a</sup>“Truly this is an infirmity,
 And <sup>b</sup>I must bear it.”
<sup>20</sup> <sup>i</sup>My tent is plundered,
 And all my cords are broken;
 My children have gone from me,
 And they are <sup>j</sup>no more.
There is no one to pitch my tent
anymore,
 Or set up my curtains.
<sup>21</sup> For the shepherds have become dull-hearted,
 And have not sought the LORD;
 Therefore they shall not prosper,
 And all their flocks shall be

It is not in man who walks to direct

<sup>24</sup> O LORD, <sup>o</sup>correct me, but with justice;
 Not in Your anger, lest You bring me to nothing.
<sup>25</sup> <sup>p</sup>Pour out Your fury on the Gentiles,

The Broken Covenant

11 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying, <sup>2</sup>“Hear the words of this covenant, and speak to the men of Judah and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem; <sup>3</sup>and say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD God of Israel: “‘Cursed is the man who does not obey the words of this covenant <sup>4</sup>which I commanded your fathers in the day I brought them out of the land of Egypt, <sup>b</sup>from the iron furnace, saying, ‘Obey My voice, and do according to all that I command you; so shall you be My people, and I will be your God,’ <sup>5</sup>that I may establish the <sup>d</sup>oath which I have sworn to your fathers, to give them ‘a land flowing with milk and honey,’ as it is this day.”””

And I answered and said, <sup>1</sup>“So be it, LORD.”

<sup>6</sup>Then the LORD said to me, “Proclaim all these words in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem, saying: ‘Hear the words of this covenant <sup>f</sup>and do them. <sup>7</sup>For I earnestly exhorted your fathers in the day I brought them up out of the land of Egypt, until this day, <sup>g</sup>rising early and exhorting, saying, “Obey My voice.” <sup>8h</sup>Yet they did not obey or incline their ear, but <sup>i</sup>everyone <sup>2</sup>followed the dictates of his evil heart; therefore I will bring upon them all the words of this covenant, which I commanded them to do, but which they have not done.’”

<sup>9</sup>And the LORD said to me, <sup>j</sup>“A conspiracy has been found among the men of Judah and among the inhabitants of Jerusalem. <sup>10</sup>They have turned back to

10:20 Like the Bedouin whose tent had been destroyed by marauding bandits, Judah lay plundered while its children were murdered or deported. No one remained to pitch the tent and reestablish the nation.

10:21 In the Book of Jeremiah, shepherds usually refers to the national leaders to whom God gave the responsibility of maintaining justice. Judah’s leaders had become dull-hearted, dumbfounded by the chastisement that God had brought upon them. Because the leaders had not sought God with a whole heart, they would not prosper with the growth of their flocks. Instead the shepherds would lose their flocks. The people would be scattered like sheep.

10:22 The advance of the foe from the north is announced (1:14, 15; 8:16). The armies of this foe would destroy the towns of Judah, reducing it to a desolate . . . den of jackals (9:11).

10:24 The verb correct, which means “to discipline” or “to instruct,” has as its goal conformity to the word and will of God. Jeremiah pleaded with the Lord to deal with the nation according to His justice, but to withhold His anger.

10:25 The passage ends with a prayer to God to bring judgment upon those who destroyed Judah. Even though the Gentile nations were not heirs to God’s covenant, they would be judged according to God’s ethical standards.

11:1, 2 Jeremiah’s message from the Lord here is strongly associated with the Book of Deuteronomy. The term words is the Hebrew name of the Book of Deuteronomy; it is also used to refer to the terms of the covenant. A covenant is a legal treaty or relationship between individuals, between nations, or—in the case of Israel—between a nation and its God. The covenant specified rights, obligations, and responsibilities of the parties entering into the agreement.

11:3 Cursed suggests the negative provisions of the covenant as summarized in Deut. 27:26 (see all of Deut. 27; 28).

11:4 iron furnace: This terminology comes directly from Deut. 4:20, which is set in a context of a warning against worshipping idols. Obey: Obedience is the key to blessing (see Deut. 27:10; 28:1–14).

11:5, 6 that I may establish the oath: The blessing of the land, as promised to Abraham, was dependent upon the covenant loyalty of the people. The words Judah and Jerusalem are a standard way of referring to the entire nation of Israel. Hear . . . and do: These terms set forth the correct response to God’s law.

11:7, 8 The emphatic form of the Hebrew phrase earnestly exhorted highlights the history of God’s continual urgent—rising early—pleas for loyalty from His nation, from the Exodus until the present. The message had been the same from the beginning: obey. Incline their ear also means “obey.” The Hebrew word translated dictates means stubbornness or obstinacy.

11:9, 10 A conspiracy is a plot with treacherous intent. turned back: The people had returned to the ways of their forefathers, who had rebelled against God and the covenant. Gone after means “to serve” or “to worship.” Both the north-

<sup>k</sup>the iniquities of their forefathers who refused to hear My words, and they have gone after other gods to serve them; the house of Israel and the house of Judah have broken My covenant which I made with their fathers.”

<sup>11</sup>Therefore thus says the LORD: “Behold, I will surely bring calamity on them which they will not be able to <sup>3</sup>escape; and <sup>l</sup>though they cry out to Me, I will not listen to them. <sup>12</sup>Then the cities of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem will go and <sup>m</sup>cry out to the gods to whom they offer incense, but they will not save them at all in the time of their trouble. <sup>13</sup>For according to the number of your <sup>n</sup>cities were your gods, O Judah; and according to the number of the streets of Jerusalem you have set up altars to that shameful thing, altars to burn incense to Baal.

<sup>14</sup>“So <sup>o</sup>do not pray for this people, or lift up a cry or prayer for them; for I will not hear them in the time that they cry out to Me because of their trouble.

<sup>15</sup> “What <sup>p</sup>has My beloved to do in My house, Having <sup>q</sup>done lewd deeds with many?
 And <sup>r</sup>the holy flesh has passed from you.
 When you do evil, then you <sup>s</sup>rejoice.
<sup>16</sup> The LORD called your name,
 ‘Green Olive Tree, Lovely and of Good Fruit.
 With the noise of a great tumult
 He has kindled fire on it,
 And its branches are broken.

<sup>17</sup>“For the LORD of hosts, <sup>u</sup>who planted you, has pronounced doom against you for the evil of the house of Israel and of the house of Judah, which they have done against themselves to provoke Me to anger in offering incense to Baal.”

Jeremiah's Life Threatened

<sup>18</sup>Now the LORD gave me knowledge of it, and I know it; for You showed me their doings. <sup>19</sup>But I was like a docile lamb brought to the slaughter; and I did not know that they had devised schemes against me, saying, “Let us destroy the tree with its fruit, <sup>v</sup>and let us cut him off from <sup>w</sup>the land of the living, that his name may be remembered no more.”

<sup>20</sup> But, O LORD of hosts,
 You who judge righteously,
<sup>x</sup>Testing the <sup>y</sup>mind and the heart,
 Let me see Your <sup>z</sup>vengeance on them,
 For to You I have revealed my cause.

Jeremiah's Question

12 Righteous <sup>d</sup>are You, O LORD, when I plead with You;
 Yet let me talk with You about Your judgments.
<sup>e</sup>Why does the way of the wicked prosper?
 Why are those happy who deal so treacherously?

ern and southern kingdoms had practiced idolatry and broken the first of the Ten Commandments.

11:11 Because the heart of the nation was evil, God would bring calamity upon the people. God's justice is inescapable when sin is intrinsic to one's character. Even if the people were to cry out in distress, God would not listen.

11:12, 13 Rather than accept God's punishment and repent of their evil ways, the nation preferred to cry out to other gods for deliverance. The altars of their incense (1:16; 7:9) and sacrifices would become shameful objects.

11:14 Judah's status was decided. Jeremiah's prayer would be to no avail (7:16; 14:11).

11:15 My house: The nation had no right to worship in God's temple while paying homage to other gods.

11:16 The LORD called Judah the Green Olive Tree, indicating its beauty and His blessing on the nation. But the noise of a great tumult or tempest would accompany the attacking army that would ravage and destroy the tree with fire.

11:17 The term planted recalls the theme of 2:21, the idea that God had established Israel as His choicest vine. However, here the context is the impending doom that would result from the evil done by the Lord's people.

11:18, 19 The LORD gave me knowledge: God revealed to Jeremiah a plot against the prophet's life. a docile lamb brought to the slaughter: This imagery is reminiscent of Is. 53:7 and the sacrificial death of Jesus Christ.

11:20 Jeremiah appealed for vindication to God, as the one true righteous Judge. Mind is literally the internal organs of the body, and is a way of referring to the seat of human emotion. Heart refers to the seat of the intellect and will. Vengeance describes God's fury and anger against sin that demands punishment.

11:21-23 The men of Anathoth insisted that Jeremiah not prophesy in the name of the LORD. If Jeremiah had yielded to their demand, he would have repudiated his calling, his person, and his God. The threat of death to Jeremiah was answered by punishment of the young men as well as their children. The prediction of death by famine was fulfilled when the city was besieged by the Babylonians in the days of Zedekiah.

12:1 Plead means “contend legally.” While no legal grievance can be brought against God, Jeremiah could pose legal questions to the righteous Judge.

The LORD Answers Jeremiah

- 5 “If you have run with the footmen, and they have wearied you,
 Then how can you contend with horses?
 And if in the land of peace,
 In which you trusted, they wearied you,
 Then how will you do in <sup>j</sup>the <sup>2</sup>floodplain of the Jordan?
 6 For even <sup>k</sup>your brothers, the house of your father,

Even they have dealt treacherously with you;
 Yes, they have called <sup>3</sup>a multitude after you.

- <sup>l</sup>Do not believe them,
 Even though they speak <sup>4</sup>smooth words to you.
- 7 “I have forsaken My house, I have left My heritage;
 I have given the dearly beloved of My soul into the hand of her enemies.
- 8 My heritage is to Me like a lion in the forest;
 It cries out against Me;
 Therefore I have <sup>m</sup>hated it.
- 9 My <sup>5</sup>heritage is to Me like a speckled vulture;
 The vultures all around are against her.
 Come, assemble all the beasts of the field,
<sup>n</sup>Bring them to devour!
- 10 “Many <sup>o</sup>rulers <sup>6</sup>have destroyed <sup>p</sup>My vineyard,
 They have <sup>q</sup>trodden My portion underfoot;
 They have made My <sup>7</sup>pleasant portion a desolate wilderness.
- 11 They have made it <sup>r</sup>desolate;
 Desolate, it mourns to Me;
 The whole land is made desolate,
 Because <sup>s</sup>no one takes it to heart.

12:2 The theme of God’s establishing the nation of Israel is also found in 2:21; 11:17. The plant had taken root, but was producing bad fruit. near in their mouth . . . far from their mind: Pious phrases, such as “as the Lord lives,” were often spoken by the rebellious leaders of Israel, but without a commitment of their mind (11:20).

12:3 You, O LORD, know me: God’s intimate relationship with Jeremiah is evidenced here. The prophet had faced becoming like a sheep for the slaughter (11:19); here he calls for his enemies to be judged in the same way.

12:4 How long: Jeremiah’s question related to God’s delay of judgment on the people of the land. land mourn . . . herbs of every field wither . . . beasts and birds are consumed: These three elements are recurring themes in Jeremiah and other prophetic texts (see 4:28; Is. 40:7; Zeph. 1:3). In spite of past chastisement, the people believed that God would not bring their country to an end.

12:5, 6 God’s response to Jeremiah’s question (v. 4) comes in the form of two metaphorical questions. The first metaphor, of foot racing, was designed to teach Jeremiah that the obstacles he faced in his hometown were meager compared to those he would encounter before the kings of Judah and Babylon (the horses). The second metaphor, of peace, was designed to remind the prophet of the impending turmoil he would have to endure in proclaiming the message of judgment to an unrepentant leadership. The relatively peaceful setting of Anathoth, with its minor opposition from treacherous family members, served to prepare Jeremiah to struggle against greater antagonists.

12:7–13 The precise setting of this lament is unknown. Yet the context would fit the period after Nebuchadnezzar seized control of Palestine and the vassal kingdom of Jehoiakim. Edomites, Moabites, and others attacked the perimeters of Judah, plundering towns and fortresses and taking captives.

12:7 dearly beloved: God’s love and concern for His people does not preclude discipline when their sin makes it necessary.

12:8, 9 Judah had become like a lion roaring against God, resulting in His beloved becoming His hated.

12:10, 11 Rulers here refers to the foreign kings who had come as agents of God to judge Judah. The repetition of the word desolate three times in v. 11 describes the complete devastation of Judah (see Is. 6:11). Because of sin, the land that once saw God’s bounteous blessing would experience His devastating judgment.

forsaken (Heb. ‘azab) (2:13; 12:7; Is. 1:4; 54:7) Strong’s #5800: The prophets frequently used this term to describe the people’s relationship to the covenant God made with them. Israel is described as “forsaking” God and His covenant by turning to idols (22:9; Ezek. 20:8). Moses warned the Hebrews about breaking God’s covenant and forsaking Him. Because of their unfaithfulness, God would in turn forsake His own people (see Deut. 31:16, 17). Here the prophet Jeremiah indicates that this divine threat had become a reality for the nation of Judah (12:7).

<sup>12</sup> The plunderers have come
On all the desolate heights in the wilderness,
For the sword of the LORD shall devour
From one end of the land to the other end of the land;
No flesh shall have peace.
<sup>13</sup> ‘They have sown wheat but reaped thorns;
They have <sup>8</sup>put themselves to pain
but do not profit.
But be ashamed of your harvest
Because of the fierce anger of the
LORD.’”

<sup>14</sup> Thus says the LORD: “Against all My evil neighbors who <sup>14</sup>touch the inheritance which I have caused My people Israel to inherit—behold, I will <sup>15</sup>pluck them out of their land and pluck out the house of Judah from among them. <sup>15</sup> Then it shall be, after I have plucked them out, that I will return and have compassion on them <sup>16</sup>and bring them back, everyone to his heritage and everyone to his land.
<sup>16</sup> And it shall be, if they will learn carefully the ways of My people, <sup>17</sup>to swear by My name, ‘As the LORD lives,’ as they taught My people to swear by Baal, then they shall be <sup>18</sup>established in the midst of My people. <sup>17</sup> But if they do not <sup>19</sup>obey, I will utterly pluck up and destroy that nation,” says the LORD.

<sup>6</sup> Now it came to pass after many days that the LORD said to me, “Arise, go to the Euphrates, and take from there the sash which I commanded you to hide there.” <sup>7</sup> Then I went to the Euphrates and dug, and I took the <sup>6</sup>sash from the place where I had hidden it; and there was the sash, ruined. It was profitable for nothing.

12:12 Destruction would come to the desolate heights where Israel and Judah performed their idolatrous deeds (3:2; 3:21; 4:11).
12:13 The imagery turns to the fields, which the Israelites believed were endowed with fertility by Baal. Because of the people’s idolatry, their fields were overgrown with thorns.
12:14 Evil neighbors included the powerful nations of Babylon and Assyria, as well as opportunistic kingdoms like Edom, Moab, and Ammon. These latter kingdoms seized land, crops, and hostages when Judah was weakened by invasion. The inheritance refers to the land that God gave His people under specific conditions. Pluck . . . out, which means “to root out, destroy,” is often used in the Book of Jeremiah in the context of God’s retribution on evil nations. Judah would be “plucked out” from among those who were plucked out.
12:15 This verse offers a glimmer of hope in the middle of a prophecy of judgment. In the midst of His judgment, God would remember His covenant with Abraham. Eventually He would return and have compassion on His people. Land portions would revert to their original owners.
12:16 The nations are given a stern condition regarding their survival and blessing. They are advised to learn the ways of Israel more diligently than they had taught Israel their own ways of Baal worship. If the nations would do this and place themselves under His covenant—swear by His name, they would be established. This is a call for the nations to share in Israel’s salvation.

13:1, 2 linen sash: This article of clothing was like a short skirt or kilt worn by men. Jeremiah was not supposed to wash it.
13:3-5 Jeremiah was commanded to take his linen sash to the Euphrates River and hide it between the rocks. Since this would have meant a round-trip journey of some seven hundred miles—a trip that would have taken two to three months—some scholars have suggested that the river, generally translated as Euphrates, was within Palestine, perhaps the springs at the head of the Wadi Farah.
13:6, 7 Because Jeremiah’s sash was dirty and then was exposed to the elements, it was ruined and profitable for nothing.
13:8-11 As Jeremiah’s waistcloth was ruined (v. 7), so Judah’s pride would be reduced to ruin. Pride describes the self-exalting conduct that characterized Israel in its love for idols. This pride is explained in a triplet of verbal phrases: refuse to hear . . . follow the dictates of their hearts . . . walk after other gods. Jeremiah’s undefiled waistcloth in v. 1 symbolized unspoiled Judah in its early days of devotion to God, tightly bound to Him in covenant faithfulness. But as the waistcloth became ruined near the Euphrates, so Judah defiled itself by its allegiances to Assyria, Babylon, and their national deities.
13:12 Jeremiah’s quotation of a well-known proverb in the blessing of plentiful wine would be met with a derogatory response. The bottle was a clay storage jar used for wine, water, and oil.

Israel: “Every bottle shall be filled with wine.”

“And they will say to you, ‘Do we not certainly know that every bottle will be filled with wine?’”

<sup>13</sup> “Then you shall say to them, “Thus says the LORD: “Behold, I will fill all the inhabitants of this land—even the kings who sit on David’s throne, the priests, the prophets, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem—<sup>i</sup>with drunkenness! <sup>14</sup> And <sup>j</sup>I will dash them <sup>8</sup>one against another, even the fathers and the sons together,” says the LORD. “I will not pity nor spare nor have mercy, but will destroy them.””

Pride Precedes Captivity

- <sup>15</sup> Hear and give ear:
Do not be proud,
For the LORD has spoken.
- <sup>16</sup> <sup>k</sup> Give glory to the LORD your God

13:13 Blessing turned to debauchery among the leaders and citizens of Jerusalem. The listing of kings, priests, prophets, and inhabitants is a means of depicting the entire religious and political nation by listing the different parts.

13:14 The wine jars of God’s wrath would be smashed and broken together, a picture of a devastated nation. The triplet of synonyms for compassion—pity, spare, and have mercy—heightens the effect of hopelessness in Judah’s situation.

13:15 Proud here refers to self-exaltation and contempt for the spoken or revealed word of God.

13:16 To give glory to God is to exalt and worship Him. This verse warns of the consequences of failing to glorify God. Four Hebrew synonyms for darkness are found in this verse, deepening the impression of divine displeasure meted out against God’s people. In the rugged mountains that dominate the landscape of Judah, where walking in the dark is hazardous, no hope or light would be discerned.

13:17 Jeremiah had been told not to pray for the rebellious and unresponsive people of Judah (7:16; 11:14; 14:11), but here he expresses in secret his deep lament for the LORD’s flock, who had been carried away into exile.

13:18, 19 The king and the queen mother are Jehoiachin and his mother Nehushta, who were exiled by Nebuchadnezzar (see 2 Kin. 24:8–12) after only three months on the throne in Jerusalem. Humble yourselves: Jeremiah advised the royal household to submit to Babylon. Judah had established a series of fortresses in the South that were an important line of defense from the days of Solomon to Zedekiah. They were a source of pride for the military but were destroyed by the Assyrians and again by the Babylonians.

13:20 Those who come from the north refers to the Babylonians.

13:21 you have taught them . . . to be head over you: This verse seems to indicate that Judah had cooperated with its enemies as they began to dominate the nation. The metaphor of childbirth portrays Judah reaping the fruits of its labors in pain and anguish.

13:22 Your skirts have been uncovered: Judah would be shamed by its conquerors in the same way that a prostitute was publicly disgraced.

13:23 The negative rhetorical question confirmed Judah’s inability to change its own ways. The nation had reinforced its habit of doing evil (4:22) for so long that it did not know how to do good.

13:24, 25 The consequence of Judah’s continual rebellion would be the scattering of its inhabitants like chaff or stubble driven by the desert wind. The word falsehood is one of the key terms Jeremiah uses to refer to the fraudulent worship of foreign deities.

13:26, 27 Uncover your skirts refers to public exposure (v. 22). Since Judah had lustfully sought adulterous relationships with foreign gods and goddesses, God would expose and bring to shame its actions. Adulteries are literally sins against marriage. Applied to Israel the term means involvement with another nation's gods. Neighings refers to animals in heat pursuing mates. The lewdness of your harlotry describes both physical and spiritual prostitution.
14:1 Droughts were viewed as indicators of divine displeasure, as in the idolatrous days of Ahab, Jezebel, and Elijah.
14:2 Four short clauses using four words for lament profile the mourning of the country. The Hebrew word translated mourns is a general word for grief over the dead. Languish means "to wither" or "to shrink back." The Hebrew word for mourn describes the dark gloom of weeping and wailing. Finally, cry describes a clamoring cry of joy or sorrow.
14:3, 4 nobles: The men of renown, who could have afforded any price for water, sent out servants to search in all the normal locations for water, but no water could be found. The rain-starved farmlands were scorched by the sun, and the farmers covered their heads in mourning.
14:5, 6 The drought of Judah affected even the wild animals. The doe abandoned its fawn for lack of forage. Wild donkeys stood on barren hills, sniffing the wind for the scent of moisture—to no avail.

14:7 Jeremiah echoes the sentiments of his people in his plea for forgiveness and deliverance for the nation. The word iniquities refers to the accountable guilt that results from continual unconfessed sin.
14:8 Jeremiah pleaded with God on the basis of God's name and character, particularly His role as the Hope and Savior of His people. Instead of having an intimate relationship with Judah, God had become like a stranger or a traveler in the land, because the people worshiped other gods.
14:10 Unlike the troubled Jeremiah, the people were unrepentant and in need of correction. Jeremiah realized that judgment was inevitable because God offered no hint of deliverance. they have loved to wander: Loved describes voluntary desire. Wander describes a repetitive back and forth movement—in this case, of seeking every possible occasion for sin. Because no one displayed any restraint from sin, God could not violate His holy character and accept the people of Judah.
14:11, 12 Because divine discipline was inevitable, Jeremiah was instructed not to pray for the good of Jerusalem. fast . . . offer burnt offering: These methods of expressing penitence and establishing communion with God were ineffective because of the people's disobedience. The doom of Judah was sealed.
14:13 Jeremiah complained to the Lord about false prophets who were proclaiming a message of peace instead of war see the sword, nor shall you have famine, but I will give you <sup>2</sup>assured <sup>s</sup>peace in this place.”

<sup>14</sup> And the LORD said to me, “The prophets prophesy lies in My name. “I have not sent them, commanded them, nor spoken to them; they prophesy to you a false vision, <sup>3</sup>divination, a worthless thing, and the <sup>v</sup>deceit of their heart. <sup>15</sup> Therefore thus says the LORD concerning the prophets who prophesy in My name, whom I did not send, <sup>w</sup>and who say, ‘Sword and famine shall not be in this land’—‘By sword and famine those prophets shall be consumed!’ <sup>16</sup> And the people to whom they prophesy shall be cast out in the streets of Jerusalem because of the famine and the sword; <sup>x</sup>they will have no one to bury them—they nor their wives, their sons nor their daughters—for I will pour their wickedness on them.”

<sup>17</sup> “Therefore you shall say this word to them:

<sup>y</sup>“Let my eyes flow with tears night and day,
And let them not cease;
<sup>z</sup>For the virgin daughter of my people
Has been broken with a mighty stroke, with a very severe blow.
<sup>18</sup> If I go out to <sup>a</sup>the field, Then behold, those slain with the sword!
And if I enter the city,
Then behold, those sick from famine!
Yes, both prophet and <sup>b</sup>priest go about in a land they do not know.”

Why have You stricken us so that

“We looked for peace, but there was no

And for the time of healing, and there was trouble.

<sup>20</sup> We acknowledge, O LORD, our

And the iniquity of our <sup>f</sup>fathers,

For <sup>g</sup>we have sinned against You.

The LORD Will Not Relent

<sup>15</sup> Then the LORD said to me, <sup>a</sup>“Even if <sup>b</sup>Moses and <sup>c</sup>Samuel stood before Me, My <sup>1</sup>mind would not be favorable toward this people. Cast them out of My sight, and let them go forth. <sup>2</sup> And it shall be, if they say to you, ‘Where should we go?’ then you shall tell them, ‘Thus says
the LORD:

<sup>d</sup>“Such as are for death, to death;

And such as are for the sword, to the
sword;

And such as are for the famine, to
the famine;

And such as are for the <sup>e</sup>captivity, to the captivity.”

<sup>3</sup> “And I will <sup>f</sup>appoint over them four forms of destruction,” says the LORD: “the and pestilence. These pretentious prophets presumed upon God’s mercy and promise of deliverance as demonstrated in the days of Hezekiah and Isaiah, when Jerusalem was miraculously rescued from the siege of Sennacherib’s army.

14:14 The prophet who truly speaks in the name of God will see his words come to pass. The false prophets who promised peace (v. 13) spoke lies of their own device (see 2 Pet. 1:19–21).

Divination is prohibited in Deut. 18:14. Worthless thing is a degrading description of the idols that were worshiped in the days of Isaiah (see Is. 2:8) but condemned by the Law (see Lev. 19:4).

14:15, 16 God’s condemnation would fall first on the false prophets because of their prophecies of peace (v. 13). Next in line for judgment would be the inhabitants of the city who had been deceived by the false prophets.

14:17, 18 The setting for this lament over the desecrated city may be either 597 B.C., when Judah was invaded, or 588–586 B.C., when Jerusalem fell.

14:20 The people of Judah acknowledged their wickedness, meaning “rebellion,” their iniquity, meaning “perversity,” and the fact that they had sinned. This triplet of terms indicates the pervasiveness of sin in the land.

14:21, 22 The people’s plea for God’s mercy was based on His character—His name’s sake, His glory, His covenant relationship with Israel, and His power over creation. Entreaties based on divine character and attributes are common in the Psalms. At stake was God’s reputation and the blessing that would come to the people, but here the obligations of the people to the Lord are disregarded.

15:1 When Moses and Samuel interceded with God on behalf of the nation, God responded favorably. However, not even these men of God could alter the Lord’s intended purpose for the people of Judah—namely, that they should be driven from the land.

15:2 Death, sword, famine, and captivity would be the outcome of God’s judgment. He would use foreign armies as instruments of judgment (14:11, 12).

15:3, 4 The four forms of destruction describe the complete judgment of Judah. The imagery of dogs, birds, and beasts devouring human flesh vividly illustrates not only death, but desecration. The basis for this desecration is the defilement of Jerusalem that took place during the reign of Manasseh, when idolatry reigned in the temple courts and children were sacrificed to Molech (7:31).

- <sup>10</sup> <sup>r</sup> Woe is me, my mother,
That you have borne me,
A man of strife and a man of contention to the whole <sup>3</sup> earth!
I have neither lent for interest,
Nor have men lent to me for interest.
Every one of them curses me.
- <sup>11</sup> The LORD said:
- “Surely it will be well with your remnant;
Surely I will cause <sup>s</sup> the enemy to intercede with you
In the time of adversity and in the time of affliction.
- <sup>12</sup> Can anyone break iron,
The northern iron and the bronze?
- <sup>13</sup> Your wealth and your treasures
I will give as <sup>t</sup> plunder without price,
Because of all your sins,
Throughout your territories.
- <sup>14</sup> And I will <sup>4</sup> make you cross over with your enemies
<sup>u</sup> Into a land which you do not know;
For a <sup>v</sup> fire is kindled in My anger,
Which shall burn upon you.”
- <sup>15</sup> O LORD, <sup>w</sup> You know;

And <sup>x</sup> take vengeance for me on my persecutors.
In Your enduring patience, do not take me away.
Know that <sup>y</sup> for Your sake I have suffered rebuke.
- <sup>16</sup> Your words were found, and I <sup>z</sup> ate
them,

15:6 Forsaken means “cast down” or “rejected.” The people threw off the yoke of the covenant and went backward instead of forward in obedience. My hand indicates the active power of God in accomplishing His will for His people (see Deut. 26:8). I am weary of relenting: Relenting refers to God’s restraining from totally demolishing Israel and Judah. For hundreds of years, the Lord had refrained from fully punishing Israel for its idolatry and unfaithfulness. 15:7, 8 Like wheat chaff that is scattered by the winnowing fork and the wind, the people of Judah would be dispersed. The population would be decimated. The further ravaging of the land is revealed in the numerous widows who would be left in the wake of the death of the men of Judah. 15:9 The blessing of seven sons was the ultimate hope for ancient mothers and fathers. But the utmost horror was to lose all seven in death, resulting in the loss of an heir. 15:10 Jeremiah’s faithfulness to his call to be a prophet had caused only strife and contention. Every one of them curses me: To curse someone in ancient Israel was to invoke condemnation on that person with a prescribed formula. 15:12 Iron here may symbolize Jeremiah, who was called an “iron pillar” in his call in 1:18. The iron of the north could then refer to the high quality iron from Asia Minor or the Balkans. Otherwise the imagery is that of a powerful foe from the north. 15:13, 14 Judah would be taken captive and exiled to an unknown land, as had happened to Israel a century before. Fire is often used in the books of the prophets as a symbol of divine wrath and judgment (4:4; 11:16). 15:15 God’s patience was shown in the way He endured for a long time the sin of His people. Jeremiah requested God to be patient with him and not take . . . away his life because of his own rebellion (see Jeremiah’s lament in v. 10). 15:16 Eating the words of the Lord means to internalize them and allow their meaning to become a reality in one’s life. Inner joy and rejoicing, or “abundant joy,” are the endowment of the one who knows and is known by the Lord. To be called by the Lord’s name is to be recognized as belonging to Him as a servant.

And <sup>a</sup>Your word was to me the joy and rejoicing of my heart;
For I am called by Your name,
O LORD God of hosts.
<sup>17</sup> <sup>b</sup>I did not sit in the assembly of the mockers,
Nor did I rejoice;
I sat alone because of Your hand,
For You have filled me with indignation.
<sup>18</sup> Why is my <sup>c</sup>pain perpetual
And my wound incurable,
Which refuses to be healed?
Will You surely be to me <sup>d</sup>like an unreliable stream,
As waters that <sup>e</sup>fail?

The LORD Reassures Jeremiah

<sup>19</sup>Therefore thus says the LORD:

“If you return,
Then I will bring you back;
You shall <sup>f</sup>stand before Me;
If you <sup>g</sup>take out the precious from
the vile,
You shall be as My mouth.
Let them return to you,
But you must not return to them.
<sup>20</sup> And I will make you to this people a

And they will fight against you,
But <sup>i</sup>they shall not prevail against
you;

Jeremiah's Life-Style and Message

16 The word of the LORD also came to me, saying, <sup>2</sup>“You shall not take a wife, nor shall you have sons or daughters in this place.” <sup>3</sup>For thus says the LORD concerning the sons and daughters who are born in this place, and concerning their mothers who bore them and their fathers who begot them in this land: <sup>4</sup>“They shall die <sup>a</sup>gruesome deaths; they shall not be <sup>b</sup>lamented nor shall they be <sup>c</sup>buried, but they shall be <sup>d</sup>like refuse on the face of the earth. They shall be consumed by the sword and by famine, and their <sup>e</sup>corpses shall be meat for the birds of heaven and for the beasts of the earth.”

<sup>5</sup>For thus says the LORD: <sup>f</sup>“Do not enter the house of mourning, nor go to lament or bemoan them; for I have taken away My peace from this people,” says the LORD, “lovingkindness and mercies. <sup>6</sup>Both the great and the small shall die in this land. They shall not be buried; <sup>g</sup>neither shall men lament for them, <sup>h</sup>cut themselves, nor <sup>i</sup>make themselves bald for them. <sup>7</sup>Nor shall men break bread in mourning for them, to comfort them for the dead; nor shall men give them the cup of consolation to <sup>j</sup>drink for their father or their mother. <sup>8</sup>Also you shall not go into the house of feasting to sit with them, to eat and drink.”

<sup>9</sup>For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: “Behold, <sup>k</sup>I will cause to cease from this place, before your eyes and in your days, the voice of <sup>l</sup>mirth and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride.

<sup>10</sup>“And it shall be, when you show this

15:17 Jeremiah's isolation and indignation were the results of his obedience to the word and calling of God.

15:18 My pain refers to Jeremiah's internal agonizing over his prophetic role. The unreliable stream is a vivid picture of the arid regions of the Middle East, where water is at a premium and streams can run dry without warning.

15:19 The Lord responded to Jeremiah's impassioned inquiry (vv. 15–18) with a message of repentance and reassurance of Jeremiah's call. return: Jeremiah is admonished to “repent” (3:1, 7, 12), after which God would restore him to his prophetic position as God's spokesman. Stand before means “to serve”; repentance and divine appointment are necessary for genuine prophetic service.

15:20, 21 I will make you . . . a fortified bronze wall . . . they shall not prevail: Jeremiah was recommissioned with words similar to those of his original calling (1:18, 19). The term deliver suggests bringing out from danger, bondage, and oppression. Redeem means to rescue from danger. The wicked refers to people such as Jehoiakim and the men of Anathoth who had opposed Jeremiah so vehemently (11:18–23). God promises His presence in times of opposition, persecution, and imprisonment for His sake.

16:1, 2 In the case of Jeremiah, the prohibition against marriage was both a sign to the nation and a blight against his name among the people. Celibacy was abnormal; large families were indicative of God's blessing upon a household. Jeremiah faced life with God as his sole comfort and support.

16:5 God's prohibition against participating in the customary grief process reveals the abnormal nature of Jeremiah's life. The trio of terms for sorrow—mourning, lament, and bemoan—is followed by a trio of terms referring to God's faithful care—peace, lovingkindness, and mercies—from which Judah had been removed.

16:6, 7 The pagan mourning practices of cutting oneself and shaving oneself bald were strictly forbidden in the Law of Moses (see Lev. 19:28; 21:5; Deut. 14:1). The bread of mourning and cup of consolation probably refer to food and drink brought for the family of the deceased.

16:8, 9 The house of feasting was a banquet hall often used for wedding celebrations. Jeremiah was restricted from participating in all meaningful family ceremonies. Jeremiah's life was symbolic of the state of Israel and the estrangement between God and Judah.

16:10 The trio of questions posed by the people indicates their lack of understanding of God's word. The people of Judah had missed the purpose for which they were chosen, to manifest to the world the nature and character of God by living as the people of God.

people all these words, and they say to you, <sup>14</sup>“Why has the LORD pronounced all this great disaster against us? Or what is our iniquity? Or what is our sin that we have committed against the LORD our God?” <sup>11</sup>then you shall say to them, <sup>11</sup>“Because your fathers have forsaken Me,” says the LORD; “they have walked after other gods and have served them and worshiped them, and have forsaken Me and not kept My law. <sup>12</sup>And you have done <sup>12</sup>worse than your fathers, for behold, <sup>12</sup>each one <sup>2</sup>follows the dictates of his own evil heart, so that no one listens to Me. <sup>13</sup>Therefore I will cast you out of this land <sup>13</sup>into a land that you do not know, neither you nor your fathers; and there you shall serve other gods day and night, where I will not show you favor.”

God Will Restore Israel

<sup>14</sup>“Therefore behold, the <sup>14</sup>days are coming,” says the LORD, “that it shall no more be said, ‘The LORD lives who brought up the children of Israel from the land of Egypt,’ <sup>15</sup>but, ‘The LORD lives who brought up the children of Israel from the land of the <sup>15</sup>north and from all the lands where He had driven them.’ For ‘I will bring them back into their land which I gave to their fathers.

<sup>16</sup>“Behold, I will send for many <sup>16</sup>fishermen,” says the LORD, “and they shall fish them; and afterward I will send for many hunters, and they shall hunt them from every mountain and every hill, and out of the holes of the rocks. <sup>17</sup>For My <sup>17</sup>eyes are on all their ways; they are not hidden from My face, nor is their iniquity hidden from My eyes. <sup>18</sup>And first I will repay <sup>18</sup>double for their iniquity and their sin, because <sup>18</sup>they have defiled My land;

Judah’s Sin and Punishment

- 17 “The sin of Judah is <sup>a</sup>written with a <sup>b</sup>pen of iron; With the point of a diamond it is <sup>c</sup>engraved On the tablet of their heart, And on the horns of your altars,
- <sup>2</sup> While their children remember Their altars and their <sup>d</sup>wooden <sup>1</sup>images By the green trees on the high hills.
- <sup>3</sup> O My mountain in the field, I will give as plunder your wealth, all your treasures, And your high places of sin within all your borders.
- <sup>4</sup> And you, even yourself, Shall let go of your heritage which I gave you;

16:11, 12 Judah had forsaken its covenant LORD and pursued other deities. Abandoning God and His law or “instruction” led to disaster. listens: This term is foundational to the nation’s existence; it recalls Deut. 6:4, the central creed of Israel’s biblical faith.

16:13 The blessing of devotion to God was freedom, prosperity, and large families in the land. Blessing was dependent on obedience; the consequence of disobedience was a dreaded life out of the land, in a world the people did not know.

16:14, 15 the days are coming: The future restoration of Israel would surpass the ancient deliverance from Egypt (23:7, 8).

16:16 The fishermen and hunters refer to the Babylonian armies that would scour the land for Judah’s rebels. Hunting and fishing imagery as a metaphor for deportation is also found in Ezek. 12:13; Amos 4:2.

16:18 Defiled is used sometimes to refer to combined ethical, physical, and spiritual uncleanness. God’s land or inheritance had been profaned by numerous cultic objects, which Jeremiah scathingly refers to as the carcasses of their detestable and abominable idols.

16:19, 20 A message of hope begins with a trio of honorific terms for God: strength, fortress, and refuge. Strength and fortress are related words in Hebrew, like the English “strength” and “stronghold.” A refuge is a place of safety from danger. Jeremiah knew that His only place of strength and safety was in God. The scope of Jeremiah’s hope is universal. The Gentiles, among whom the people of Judah would be exiled, would come to the God of Israel in fulfillment of the promise of Gen. 12:1-3.

17:1 Judah’s sin had become so deeply engraved that it could not be removed. The point of a diamond on a pen of iron indicates the permanence of the engraving. The heart of the people, the center of their spiritual, emotional, and mental well-being, was inextricably entangled in stubborn rebellion against God.

17:3 Jerusalem and the other cities of Judah were demolished and plundered by the Babylonians. The remaining treasures of the temple of God were carried by Nebuchadnezzar’s army to Babylon. Even the idolatrous cultic centers were destroyed (15:13, 14).

17:4 let go: This phrase, when used in the context of land, usually refers to letting the land lie fallow during the sabbatical year (see Ex. 23:10, 11). Judah’s captivity would provide rest for the land from the idolatrous activities of its people.

And I will cause you to serve your enemies

For <sup>f</sup>you have kindled a fire in My

Jeremiah Prays for Deliverance

<sup>14</sup> Heal me, O LORD, and I shall be healed;

Save me, and I shall be saved,
For <sup>w</sup>You are my praise.

<sup>15</sup> Indeed they say to me,
<sup>x</sup>“Where is the word of the LORD?
Let it come now!”

<sup>16</sup> As for me, <sup>y</sup>I have not hurried away from being a shepherd who follows You,

17:5, 6 cursed: This term is used extensively in Deuteronomy. Two different words for man are used in this passage. The first refers to a strong and capable male; the second is a generic term for humankind as made in the image of God (see Gen. 1:26–28). One cannot trust in both God and humankind; to turn one’s heart toward people is to turn away from God.

17:7 The term blest is used often in the Psalms and Deuteronomy to describe the benefits that accrue to one who is devoted to the Lord and His Word. The words translated trusts and hope are related in Hebrew.

17:8 planted: The imagery of a fruitful tree derives directly from Ps. 1:3. This verse teaches that one who trusts in God will not be free from trials and adversity, but that God will bring fruit and blessing in and through those difficulties (14:1–9; 15:19–21).

17:9 The heart refers to the mind, the source of thinking, feeling, and action.

17:11 The teaching of 17:1–10 is supported by a proverb based on the common belief that the partridge hatched eggs other than its own. When the young birds recognized that the partridge was not their mother, they would leave her. Similarly, a man who unjustly gains wealth will be abandoned by that wealth and then be known as a fool. Fool here refers to a person without moral, ethical, or spiritual character.

17:12, 13 A glorious high throne refers to the temple in Jerusalem and the ark of the covenant, the symbol of God’s presence and sovereignty over the nation. The hope of Israel refers to the expectation of deliverance and the restoration of the faithful (14:8). Judah had nowhere to turn because it had forsaken God and His lordship. There is only one source of life and hope for Israel and all nations—the LORD, the fountain of living waters.

17:14 Though Jeremiah struggled with difficulties, including persecution and loneliness, he continually turned in praise to the Lord who can heal and save. Likewise, the only hope of healing and salvation for the nation of Judah was divine intervention.

17:15, 16 Some scoffers dared to defy God and the word revealed through Jeremiah, taunting the Lord to bring the judgment threatened by His spokesman. Jeremiah pointed out that he took no pleasure in proclaiming judgment. He remained a devoted shepherd who was intimately concerned for his own people.

heal (Heb. apha) (17:14; 2 Chr. 7:14; Is. 19:22; 53:5; 57:18) Strong’s #7495: This word applies literally to the work of a physician. Occasionally it refers to inanimate objects and can be best translated repair (1 Kin. 18:30). But more commonly this word connotes the idea of restoring to normal, as in 2 Chr. 7:14, where God promises to restore the land if His people pray. In the psalms, God is praised for His role in healing disease (Ps. 103:3), healing the brokenhearted (Ps. 147:3), and healing the soul by providing salvation (Ps. 30:2; 107:20). Isaiah declared that the healing of God’s people results from the sacrificial wounds of His Son (Is. 53:5–12).

Nor have I desired the woeful day;
You know what came out of my lips;
It was right there before You.

<sup>17</sup> Do not be a terror to me;
<sup>18</sup> <sup>a</sup>You are my hope in the day of doom.
<sup>18</sup> <sup>a</sup> Let them be ashamed who persecute me,
But <sup>b</sup> do not let me be put to shame;
Let them be dismayed,
But do not let me be dismayed.
Bring on them the day of doom,
And <sup>c</sup> destroy <sup>7</sup> them with double destruction!

Hallow the Sabbath Day

<sup>19</sup> Thus the LORD said to me: “Go and stand in the gate of the children of the people, by which the kings of Judah come in and by which they go out, and in all the gates of Jerusalem; <sup>20</sup> and say to them, <sup>4</sup> “Hear the word of the LORD, you kings of Judah, and all Judah, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, who enter by these gates. <sup>21</sup> Thus says the LORD: “Take heed to yourselves, and bear no burden on the Sabbath day, nor bring it in by the gates of Jerusalem; <sup>22</sup> nor carry a burden out of your houses on the Sabbath day, nor do any work, but hallow the Sabbath day, as I <sup>f</sup> commanded your fathers. <sup>23</sup> <sup>g</sup> But they did not obey nor incline their ear, but <sup>8</sup> made their neck stiff, that they might not hear nor receive instruction.

<sup>24</sup> “And it shall be, <sup>h</sup> if you heed Me carefully,” says the LORD, “to bring no burden through the gates of this city on the <sup>i</sup> Sabbath day, but hallow the Sabbath day, to do no work in it, <sup>25</sup> <sup>j</sup> then shall enter the gates of this city kings and princes sitting on the throne of David, riding in chariots and on horses, they and their princes, accompanied by the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and this city shall remain forever. <sup>26</sup> And they shall come from the cities of Judah and from <sup>k</sup> the places around Jerusalem, from the land of Benjamin and from <sup>l</sup> the <sup>9</sup> lowland, from the mountains and from <sup>m</sup> the <sup>1</sup> South, bringing burnt offerings and sacrifices, grain offerings and incense, bringing <sup>n</sup> sacrifices of praise to the house of the LORD.

<sup>27</sup> “But if you will not heed Me to hallow the Sabbath day, such as not carrying a burden when entering the gates of Jerusalem on the Sabbath day, then <sup>o</sup> I will kindle a fire in its gates, <sup>p</sup> and it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem, and it shall not be <sup>q</sup> quenched.””

The Potter and the Clay

18 The word which came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying: <sup>2</sup> “Arise and go down to the potter’s house, and there I will cause you to hear My words.” <sup>3</sup> Then I went down to the potter’s house, and there he was, making something at the <sup>1</sup> wheel. <sup>4</sup> And the vessel that he <sup>2</sup> made of clay was <sup>3</sup> marred in the hand of the potter; so he made it again into another vessel, as it seemed good to the potter to make.

<sup>5</sup> Then the word of the LORD came to me, saying: <sup>6</sup> “O house of Israel, <sup>a</sup> can I not do with you as this potter?” says the LORD. “Look, <sup>b</sup> as the clay is in the potter’s hand, so are you in My hand, O house of Israel! <sup>7</sup> The instant I speak concerning a nation and concerning a kingdom, to <sup>c</sup> pluck up, to pull down, and to destroy it, <sup>8</sup> <sup>d</sup> if that

17:17 Terror may refer to physical, emotional, or mental horror. The word hope, meaning “refuge” or “shelter,” refers to a position of safety and security in the face of danger and helplessness, such as Jeremiah faced in Judah and Jerusalem.

17:18 Jeremiah called for his persecutors to be ashamed and dismayed, to be dishonored and demoralized. The prophet also called upon the Lord to confirm the message of judgment in the day of doom and double destruction.

17:19, 20 The particular gate is not mentioned, though the description would place it in the area of the Davidic citadel. Jeremiah’s message was to be proclaimed throughout the city. From kings to peasants, all of the inhabitants of the city were to hear—and obey—the word of the Lord.

17:21, 22 Take heed: This same phrasing is used in Deut. 4:15 in a warning against idolatry. The sanctity of the Sabbath was a most serious matter. The Sabbath stood as a sign of creation and the covenant relationship between God and Israel. To hallow it is to set it apart, to distinguish it from other days.

17:23 Abuse of the Sabbath was apparently commonplace throughout the history of the nation.

17:24, 25 If the Sabbath was kept holy, signifying the covenant faithfulness of Israel, the nation would retain its sovereign kings and princes. In other words, the promise of unending Davidic succession in kingship would be fulfilled (see 2 Sam. 7:16).

17:26 If the stipulations of v. 21 were followed, the temple would once again become the center of worship for the nation. People would travel from throughout the land to Jerusalem to worship God with their sacrifices.

17:27 The consequence of disobedience would be total destruction of the city. If the stipulations of 17:21 were not followed, the Lord of the covenant would bring an unquenchable, destructive fire against the city and its palaces (see 4:4; Hos. 8:14; Amos 1:4—2:5).

18:2 Arise and go down is a common formula for divinely directed service.

18:4-6 The potter’s vessel was marred and thus unsuitable for its intended purpose. The potter’s remodeling of the clay into an acceptable and unblemished work symbolized God’s action in reforming Israel. The people had become marred and defiled and had to be reformed into a vessel fit to be identified with the Lord.

18:7, 8 If a nation threatened with destruction would turn from its evil, God would relent of the promised disaster. God the Potter was more than willing to forgive the iniquity and stubborn rebellion of Judah. Unfortunately, the people continued in their stiffnecked ways. In Gal. 4:19, Paul uses this imagery to depict the formation of the image of Christ in the obedient Christian.

nation against whom I have spoken turns from its evil, <sup>e</sup>I will relent of the disaster that I thought to bring upon it. <sup>9</sup>And the instant I speak concerning a nation and concerning a kingdom, to build and to plant it, <sup>10</sup>if it does evil in My sight so that it does not obey My voice, then I will relent concerning the good with which I said I would benefit it.

<sup>11</sup>“Now therefore, speak to the men of Judah and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying, ‘Thus says the LORD: “Behold, I am fashioning a disaster and devising a plan against you. <sup>f</sup>Return now every one from his evil way, and make your ways and your doings <sup>g</sup>good.”’”

God's Warning Rejected

<sup>12</sup>And they said, <sup>h</sup>“That is hopeless! So we will walk according to our own plans, and we will every one <sup>d</sup>obey the <sup>i</sup>dictates<sup>5</sup> of his evil heart.”

<sup>13</sup>Therefore thus says the LORD:

<sup>j</sup>“Ask now among the Gentiles, horrible thing.

Jeremiah Persecuted

<sup>18</sup>Then they said, <sup>s</sup>“Come and let us devise plans against Jeremiah; <sup>t</sup>for the law shall not perish from the priest, nor counsel from the wise, nor the word from the prophet. Come and let us attack him with the tongue, and let us not give heed to any of his words.”

<sup>19</sup> Give heed to me, O LORD,
And listen to the voice of those who contend with me!
<sup>20</sup> <sup>u</sup> Shall evil be repaid for good?
For they have <sup>v</sup>dug a pit for my life.
Remember that I <sup>w</sup>stood before You
To speak good <sup>8</sup>for them,
To turn away Your wrath from
them.
<sup>21</sup> Therefore <sup>x</sup>deliver up their children to the famine,

18:9, 10 A nation to whom God has promised His blessing may forfeit its preferred status through disobedience. In such a case, God would relent of the good He had promised and bring calamity upon the rebellious people.

18:11 God was fashioning a disaster, a calamity, for Judah if it did not repent or return to Him and change its actions from evil to good.

18:12 The people's response to God's warning (v. 11) is similar to that in 17:23: They rebelliously pursued their own ways. Hopeless describes the despair the people felt concerning obedience to God. These feelings were the direct result of the evil heart that is characteristic of people who continually turn away from the Lord and His ways.

18:13, 14 Negative rhetorical questions show the absurdity of Israel's rebellion. The snow water of Lebanon describes the Mt. Hermon watershed that erupts in numerous springs, providing most of the water for the Jordan River. God's blessing was often demonstrated in the provision of water from rocks in arid regions (see Ex. 17:6). No one would trade cool spring water for strange or “alien” waters.

18:15 The principal indictment brought against Judah was idolatry, which had resulted in the people's wayward lives and the humiliating destruction of the land. forgotten: This term is used in the same way in 3:21; 13:25. worthless idols: Foreign deities such as Baal and Asherah were represented by empty and ineffective cultic figurines. they have caused themselves to stumble: The people had brought upon themselves the droughts and disaster that they faced because they had strayed from the ancient paths, the way of the Law and the covenant relationship to God.

18:16 make their land desolate: For similar descriptions of the destruction of Judah, see 4:27; 6:8; 9:11.

18:17 An east wind refers to the scorching, late-spring sirocco wind from the northern Arabian desert. I will show them the back and not the face: This graphic expression depicts God withholding His assistance from the nation in its day of despair (2:27).

18:18 Similar to the situation in 11:18-23, the people devised plans to counter the words of Jeremiah. They reasoned that with their own priests, wise men, and prophets in Jerusalem, they did not need to listen to Jeremiah.

18:19, 20 Jeremiah reminded the Lord how he had interceded for the people and had asked God to turn away His wrath and judgment. But instead of showing their appreciation for Jeremiah's intervention, the people dug a pit in anticipation of his demise.

18:21, 22 Jeremiah's cry for personal revenge may not be as easily justified as those of the psalmists (see Ps. 137). Nonetheless, he had been falsely charged with misrepresenting the truth of God. All the imprecations, or calls for divine cursing, in the Bible have one element in common: Though strongly worded, they await the work of God rather than speaking of initiating revenge. Famine was one of the curses of breaking the covenant (see Deut. 28:48).

The Potter's Wheel

The potter's wheel was used by potters to make their pottery even and symmetrical. Before its invention, pottery was built up of coils of clay smoothed and shaped by hand. The "slow wheel" was a small flat disk on a spindle, with a larger stone disk on the other end. It was spun by hand as the potter alternated between keeping the wheel in motion and shaping the clay. The "fast wheel" was really two wheels, one above the other, with an axle joining them. The potter sat on a bench and turned the lower wheel with his feet. This way, he could keep it going rapidly, yet still have both hands free to shape the clay on the upper wheel.

Jeremiah visited a potter at his wheel and compared the potter who molds his clay to God who has the power to mold the nation of Israel (18:2–8).

And pour out their blood

By the force of the sword;
Let their wives become widows
And bereaved of their children.

Let their men be put to death,
Their young men be slain

By the sword in battle.

22 Let a cry be heard from their houses,

When You bring a troop suddenly upon them;

For they have dug a pit to take me,
And hidden snares for my feet.

23 Yet, LORD, You know all their counsel

Which is against me, to slay me.

Provide no atonement for their

Nor blot out their sin from Your

The Sign of the Broken Flask

19 Thus says the LORD: "Go and get a potter's earthen flask, and take some of the elders of the people and some of the elders of the priests. <sup>2</sup> And go out to <sup>a</sup>the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, which is by the entry of the Potsherd Gate; and proclaim there the words that I will tell you, <sup>3b</sup> and say, 'Hear the word of the LORD, O kings of Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem. Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: "Behold, I will bring such a catastrophe on this place, that whoever hears of it, his ears will <sup>c</sup>tingle.

<sup>4</sup> "Because they <sup>d</sup>have forsaken Me and made this an alien place, because they have burned incense in it to other gods whom neither they, their fathers, nor the kings of Judah have known, and have filled this place with <sup>e</sup>the blood of the innocents <sup>5f</sup>(they have also built the high places of Baal, to burn their sons with fire for burnt offerings to Baal, <sup>g</sup>which I did not command or speak, nor did it come into My mind), <sup>6</sup>therefore behold, the days are coming," says the LORD, "that this place shall no more be called Tophet or <sup>h</sup>the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, but the Valley of Slaughter. <sup>7</sup> And I will make void the counsel of Judah and Jerusalem in this place, <sup>i</sup>and I will cause them to fall by the sword before their enemies and by the hands of those who seek their lives; their <sup>j</sup>corpses I will give as meat for the birds of the heaven and for the beasts of the earth. <sup>8</sup> I will make this city <sup>k</sup>desolate and a hissing; everyone who passes by it will be astonished and hiss because of all its plagues. <sup>9</sup> And I will cause them to eat the <sup>l</sup>flesh of their sons and the flesh of their daughters, and everyone shall eat the flesh of his friend in the siege and in

18:23 You know: As God had known Jeremiah's heart (12:3; 15:15), so He was keenly aware of the people's plots against the prophet. The word translated atonement is the same Hebrew word used in Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. The word emphasizes total cleansing and removal of sin and its effects. The word blot out is also used to refer to the removal of sin and guilt by God. Jeremiah's appeal was for God to condemn in anger rather than to forgive his enemies.

19:1, 2 A flask was a small, narrow-necked water bottle made of clay, six to ten inches tall. The elders were summoned to follow Jeremiah to the Valley of the Son of Hinnom (7:31, 32), a dumping area where children were ritually sacrificed in the days of Manasseh.

19:3 Hear: This key word of the Deuteronomic code (see Deut. 6:4) calls for a decision regarding the content of the message. his ears will tingle: This expression is used to refer to a harsh, ringing judgment announcement (see 1 Sam. 3:11).

19:4, 5 made this an alien place: The people, through their idolatry, had prevented the once-holy city of Jerusalem from being the place where God chose His name to dwell. The city had become a place of alien gods and goddesses. neither they . . . nor the kings of Judah have known: The word know speaks of an intimate, personal knowledge that it is impossible to have with inanimate physical objects. The blood of the innocents refers to the murderous act of child sacrifice (7:31). Human sacrifice was known among the Phoenicians, Moabites, and Canaanites. This abominable practice, performed in the name of religious worship, was explicitly forbidden in the covenant (see Deut. 12:31).

19:7 Babylon was the agent who would make void, or "lay waste," the counsel of the elders who rebutted the Lord's message through Jeremiah and continued in idolatry.

19:8 God would allow Jerusalem to be made an object of derision and humiliation in order to vindicate His name (18:16). Plagues would strike the city according to the covenant curse of Deut. 28:58–61 (see Lam. 2:15; Zeph. 2:15).

19:9 The gruesome practice of cannibalism appears, recalling the words of Deut. 28:53. After years of siege resulting in severe famine, the people would resort to eating human flesh in order to survive. This prophecy was literally fulfilled in 586 B.C. when Nebuchadnezzar invaded Judah, and again in A.D. 70 when Titus destroyed Jerusalem.

the desperation with which their enemies and those who seek their lives shall drive them to despair.”

<sup>10 m</sup> “Then you shall break the flask in the sight of the men who go with you, <sup>11</sup> and say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts: “Even so I will break this people and this city, as one breaks a potter’s vessel, which cannot be <sup>1</sup> made whole again; and they shall <sup>o</sup> bury them in Tophet till there is no place to bury. <sup>12</sup> Thus I will do to this place,” says the LORD, “and to its inhabitants, and make this city like Tophet. <sup>13</sup> And the houses of Jerusalem and the houses of the kings of Judah shall be defiled <sup>n</sup> like the place of Tophet, because of all the houses on whose <sup>q</sup> roofs they have burned incense to all the host of heaven, and <sup>r</sup> poured out drink offerings to other gods.”’”

<sup>14</sup> Then Jeremiah came from Tophet, where the LORD had sent him to prophesy; and he stood in <sup>s</sup> the court of the Lord’s house and said to all the people, <sup>15</sup> “Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: ‘Behold, I will bring on this city and on all her towns all the doom that I have pronounced against it, because ‘they

The Word of God to Pashhur

20 Now <sup>a</sup> Pashhur the son of <sup>b</sup> Immer, the priest who was also chief governor in the house of the LORD, heard that Jeremiah prophesied these things. <sup>2</sup> Then Pashhur struck Jeremiah the prophet, and put him in the stocks that were in the high <sup>c</sup> gate of Benjamin, which was by the house of the LORD.

<sup>3</sup> And it happened on the next day that Pashhur brought Jeremiah out of the stocks. Then Jeremiah said to him, “The LORD has not called your name Pashhur, but <sup>1</sup> Magor-Missabib. <sup>4</sup> For thus says the LORD: ‘Behold, I will make you a terror to yourself and to all your friends; and they shall fall by the sword of their enemies, and your eyes shall see it. I will <sup>d</sup> give all Judah into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall carry them captive to Babylon and slay them with the sword. <sup>5</sup> Moreover I <sup>e</sup> will deliver all the wealth of this city, all its produce, and all its precious things; all the treasures of the kings of Judah I will give into the hand of their

19:11 As pottery breaks into pieces when it is thrown on the hard ground, so God’s judgment would shatter the city and scatter those dwelling there. Restoration would be impossible. The number of corpses would outnumber possible burial sites (7:32, 33).

19:12, 13 As the inhabitants of Jerusalem had made the Valley of the Son of Hinnom a place of death, so the Lord would make the entire city of Jerusalem a place of death (vv. 4–6).

20:1 Pashhur . . . chief governor: A person in this position had to be a priest. He had oversight of the temple, the temple guards, entry into the courts, and so on. Jeremiah’s proclamations against the city and the temple were of grave concern to Pashhur because of the threat to the continuation of the cult in which he was involved.

20:2 Jeremiah was beaten and confined to a stockade by Pashhur. This was not a normal prison or dungeon, but a holding cell for those who might defile the area by uncleanness or aberrant behavior. The high gate of Benjamin was also called the Upper Gate, to distinguish it from another city gate of the same name. This portal provided access into the temple courtyards from the north, the direction of Benjamin’s territory.

20:3, 4 The name Magor-Missabib means “Terror on Every Side.” As Pashhur had been a terror to Jeremiah, so he would become a terror to himself, his family, and his associates. The foe from the north described in earlier passages (1:13–15) is here identified as Babylon.

20:5 The four resources of Jerusalem that would be transported with the exiles to Babylon were wealth, produce, precious things, and treasures. This list is balanced by four terms for the confiscation of Jerusalem’s valuables: give, plunder, seize, and carry. The use of these terms for both the plunder and the confiscation indicates comprehensiveness.

The Valley of Slaughter A deep, narrow ravine south of Jebus (later Jerusalem), called the Valley of Hinnom or the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, was the boundary between the territories of Benjamin and Judah (Josh. 15:8; 18:16). The location was unremarkable in Joshua’s day, but came to have great significance later in Israelite history.

In the period of the divided monarchy, this valley was the site of a pagan altar (see Deut. 12:2) known as Tophet (“fireplace”; Jer. 7:31, 32; 19:6, 11–14). Parents sacrificed their children there to the god Molech. The Bible singles out Ahaz and Manasseh, kings of Judah, as having led the way in this grotesque ritual (2 Chr. 28:3; 33:6). But Scripture praises King Josiah for destroying this idolatrous altar during his reforms (2 Kin. 23:10).

Jeremiah, who was called as a prophet during Josiah’s reign, foretold that God would judge the Israelites for committing the awful abomination of human sacrifice, among other evils. The Lord would cause such destruction that the Valley of Hinnom would become a cemetery known as the Valley of Slaughter (Jer. 7:32; 19:6).

This prophecy began to be fulfilled when Jerusalem was destroyed by the Babylonians in 586 B.C. Later, the valley became the city dump for Jerusalem. Fires continually smoldered there, as the site was used as a burning ground for refuse and the dead bodies of criminals and animals.

In time, the valley became so noxious that its name became a synonym for hell. The Hebrew phrase ge (“valley of”) hinnom eventually became the Greek gehenna, translated as “hell fire” (Matt. 5:22; Mark 9:43, 45, 47). At one time, Jewish tradition even held that the entrance to hell began at that valley.

enemies, who will plunder them, seize them, and <sup>f</sup>carry them to Babylon. <sup>6</sup>And you, Pashhur, and all who dwell in your house, shall go into captivity. You shall go to Babylon, and there you shall die, and be buried there, you and all your friends, to whom you have <sup>g</sup>prophesied lies.’”

Jeremiah's Unpopular Ministry

<sup>7</sup> O LORD, You <sup>2</sup>induced me, and I was persuaded;
<sup>h</sup>You are stronger than I, and have prevailed.
<sup>i</sup>I am <sup>3</sup>in derision daily;
 Everyone mocks me.
<sup>8</sup> For when I spoke, I cried out;
<sup>j</sup>I shouted, “Violence and plunder!”
 Because the word of the LORD was made to me
 A reproach and a derision daily.

 Making him very glad.

20:6 Pashhur, his family, and his close associates who had opposed Jeremiah would be deported to Babylon because Pashhur had prophesied lies. Pashhur apparently had announced that Jerusalem would not suffer destruction.
20:7 induced . . . persuaded: A play on words is intended by using two forms of the same word, which means “to entice.” Jeremiah claimed that the Lord had seduced him and that he had succumbed to the temptation.
20:8 Jeremiah had faithfully proclaimed the Lord’s word of judgment and destruction, but the prophecy had not been fulfilled, thus opening the prophet up to reproach and derision.
20:9 Jeremiah decided to refrain from declaring God’s word or speaking in His name. But the divine message could not be held within or in any way hindered from accomplishing God’s purpose (see Is. 46:10, 11; 55:11). God’s word was like a consuming fire in Jeremiah’s heart and bones; unless the word was unleashed, the prophet would perish. Unlike the heart of the people, Jeremiah’s mental, physical, emotional, and spiritual life was overwhelmed by God’s word and will for His people.
20:10 Jeremiah was mocked with his own words, fear on every side (v. 3, 4). Report . . . and we will report it: Whatever Jeremiah announced or denounced, the leaders of Judah turned back against him until he was devastated and demoralized.

20:11 Most psalms of individual lament contain a confession of trust in God (see Ps. 13). Jeremiah turned to God in prayer and praise in his hour of deepest need. with me: In his call, Jeremiah was promised God’s presence to deliver him (1:8, 19). mighty, awesome One: God was Jeremiah’s powerful warrior. Jeremiah’s enemies would not prevail (vv. 7, 10), but would stumble and fall before God. Their punishment would be shame and everlasting confusion (23:40).
20:12 You who test: God tests (6:27; 17:10) and judges the righteous, those who walk uprightly in His ways and truth. see the mind and heart: God can see the innermost being of a person and discern his or her attitude and spirit. vengeance: Jeremiah cried for the Lord’s promised judgment and destruction to be fulfilled without delay.
20:13 Jeremiah’s confession of trust turns to praise as he quotes or paraphrases a psalm or hymn. The context and content of the psalm closely parallel Ps. 35:9, 10 (see also Ps. 109:30, 31).
20:14, 15 In ancient Israel, to curse God or one’s parents was an offense punishable by death. Jeremiah avoided committing a capital offense by cursing his conception and birth, and hence his call from God.

word (Heb. dabar) (1:2, 13; 7:2; 20:8; 26:5; Deut. 24:5) Strong’s #1697: This Hebrew word is derived from the verb “to speak,” and it signifies the word or thing spoken. Often it refers to the idea or content of what is said, and is translated matter (2 Sam. 11:19), thing (Ex. 16:16), or business (Deut. 24:5). The phrase “word of the LORD” is used by the prophets at the beginning of a divine message (see 1:13). In the case of prophetic literature, word can be a technical term for a prophecy. In the Bible, the word of revelation is associated with prophets (26:5), just as wisdom is associated with wise men and the law with priests (18:18). Jeremiah used dabar more than any other prophet in order to clarify the authority given to him by God.

<sup>3</sup>Then Jeremiah said to them, “Thus you shall say to Zedekiah, <sup>4</sup>“Thus says the LORD God of Israel: “Behold, I will turn back the weapons of war that are in your hands, with which you fight against the king of Babylon and the <sup>2</sup>Chaldeans who besiege you outside the walls; and <sup>c</sup>I will assemble them in the midst of this city. <sup>5</sup>I/Myself will fight against you with an <sup>6</sup>outstretched hand and with a strong arm, even in anger and fury and great

Message to the House of David

20:16, 17 Jeremiah's intense dejection caused him to call for the death of the man who told Jeremiah's father the good news of his son's birth. did not relent: Jeremiah, in his distress, thought it would have been more merciful for him to die before birth than to endure the hardship of rejection, persecution, and imprisonment that he faced.

21:1 Pashhur the son of Melchiah had Jeremiah cast into a dungeon for the prophet's alleged disloyalty to the kingdom (38:1-6). Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah was a temple officer who, with others, sought divine guidance through Jeremiah's counsel (37:3, 4).

21:2 To inquire of the Lord means to seek His will. Nebuchadnezzar was king of Babylon from 605-562 B.C. wonderful works: This phrase is primarily used of God in His cosmic activity and mighty acts in history on behalf of Israel (see Ps. 40:5). God had delivered Jerusalem from destruction during the siege of Sennacherib of Assyria in 701 B.C.; King Zedekiah was hoping for a similar divine deliverance.

21:3, 4 Jeremiah's response to Zedekiah was demoralizing. Instead of turning back the forces of the Babylonians, God would thwart what little strength Jerusalem could muster against them.

21:5 Because the people of Judah had become God's enemies, God would fight against them. outstretched hand . . . strong arm: The divine instruments by which Israel had gained freedom from Egypt (see Ex. 15:6; Deut. 6:21) and deliverance from their enemies would be used against them.

21:6, 7 The pestilence that would strike man and beast recalls one of God's plagues on the Egyptians prior to the Exodus (see Ex. 9:1-7). Nebuchadnezzar . . . enemies . . . those who seek their life: Not only did the Babylonians inflict damage upon Judah, so did constant enemies like the Edomites, who raided and then settled in the dry regions to the south. God would not spare or have pity on the stubborn and rebellious inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem.

21:8, 9 way of life . . . way of death: Death would come to those who attempted to survive the siege of Jerusalem; life was possible through surrender to the Chaldeans (Babylonians). Prize usually refers to the booty and spoils of war. Those who submitted to the Babylonians were on the side of God, and their “booty” would be their lives (38:2).

21:10 I have set My face: This phrase describes the fixed intention of God, which in this context was against Jerusalem. The result would be adversity rather than good.

21:11-14 This oracle in language reminiscent of 7:6 and Deut. 17:18-20 establishes the basis for judgments against the kings of Judah in subsequent chapters. The king was to be devoted to the commandments of God and was to mete out judgment, or justice. The ultimate test of the king was measured in his judicial response to those who were oppressed and plundered (see Is. 1:17; Amos 4:1-3).

Chaldeans

The Chaldeans were one of the ancient peoples that formed the dominant population in Babylonia, especially beginning with the empire of Nebuchadnezzar II (king of Babylonia from 605 to 562 B.C.).

In the Bible, the term Chaldeans is first mentioned in connection with Haran—the son of Terah and brother of Abram. Abram lived in Ur of the Chaldeans before the Chaldeans dominated Babylonia (Gen. 11:28–31). Most references to Chaldeans appear in the Book of Jeremiah (21:4, 9; 35:11; 51:4, 54). Jeremiah identified the Chaldeans with the Babylonians who besieged the city of Jerusalem during the reign of Nebuchadnezzar, looted the temple, and carried the Israelites into captivity.

The term also was used by ancient authors to denote those educated in classical Babylonian literature, especially astronomy and astrology (Dan. 2:2, 4, 5, 10). Some believe the “wise men from the East” (Matt. 2:1) may have been Chaldean astrologers.

there speak this word, <sup>2</sup>and say, <sup>3</sup>“Hear the word of the LORD, O king of Judah, you who sit on the throne of David, you and your servants and your people who enter these gates! <sup>3</sup>Thus says the LORD: <sup>4</sup>“Execute <sup>1</sup> judgment and righteousness, and deliver the plundered out of the hand of the oppressor. Do no wrong and do no violence to the stranger, the <sup>5</sup>‘fatherless, or the widow, nor shed innocent blood in this place. <sup>4</sup>For if you indeed do this thing, <sup>4</sup>then shall enter the gates of this house, riding on horses and in chariots, accompanied by servants and people, kings who sit on the throne of David. <sup>5</sup>But if you will not <sup>2</sup>hear these words, <sup>6</sup>‘I swear by Myself,’” says the LORD, “that this house shall become a desolation.””
<sup>6</sup>For thus says the LORD to the house of the king of Judah:

“You are <sup>1</sup>Gilead to Me,
The head of Lebanon;
Yet I surely will make you a
wilderness,
Cities which are not inhabited.

They shall cut down <sup>2</sup>your choice

<sup>8</sup>And many nations will pass by this city; and everyone will say to his neighbor, <sup>9</sup>‘Why has the LORD done so to this great city?’ <sup>9</sup>Then they will answer, <sup>10</sup>‘Because they have forsaken the covenant of the LORD their God, and worshiped other gods and served them.’”

Weep bitterly for him <sup>2</sup>who goes away,

21:13, 14 inhabitant of the valley . . . rock of the plain: These phrases refer to Jerusalem. come down: Attacking armies generally approached Jerusalem from the north along an elevated ridge. Punish means “to visit in judgment” in this context.

22:1 One goes down to Jerusalem by coming from the north in Anathoth and descending slightly in elevation. The house of the king was the royal palace located just south of the temple courtyards.

22:2 Jeremiah’s prophecy was addressed to three groups: kings who sit upon the throne of David and thus are of David’s lineage, the kings’ servants (royal officials and attendants), and the people who enter these gates. The last phrase may refer to the citizens in general or to personnel who regularly entered the palace gates.

22:3 According to Is. 11:1–5, the ideal Davidic king would execute judgment, or justice, and righteousness, or uprightness, fairness, and conformity to standard. This description anticipates the “Branch of righteousness” in 23:5. The wisdom and prophetic writers echoed the same sentiment concerning the righteousness of kingdoms—that they must be measured according to their protection of the three segments of society who were unable to defend themselves: the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow.

22:4, 5 If justice and righteousness characterized the leadership of the land, the continued prosperity of the Davidic dynasty would be assured. However, if the Lord’s words were not heeded, the house of David would be made a desolation—that is, a ruin or waste.

22:6, 7 Gilead and Lebanon were sources for timber for the royal palaces. These luxurious residences would be reduced to deserted wilderness and set ablaze if the kings disobeyed the covenant.

22:8 Even the nations—the Gentiles—would recognize that the punishment described in vv. 5–7 was the work of the Lord, the result of His displeasure with His people.

22:9 The pagan nations would recognize that the destruction of Jerusalem was the result of Judah’s violation of its covenant with God. The people of Judah had exchanged their God for alien deities, whom they worshiped and served.

For he shall return no more,
Nor see his native country.

Message to the Sons of Josiah

<sup>13</sup> “Woe<sup>o</sup> to him who builds his house by unrighteousness
And his <sup>4</sup>chambers by injustice,
<sup>p</sup>Who uses his neighbor’s service without wages
And gives him nothing for his work,
<sup>14</sup> Who says, ‘I will build myself a wide house with spacious <sup>5</sup>chambers,
And cut out windows for it,
Paneling it with cedar
And painting it with vermilion.’

<sup>15</sup> “Shall you reign because you enclose yourself in cedar?
Did not your father eat and drink,
And do justice and righteousness?
Then <sup>q</sup>it was well with him.
<sup>16</sup> He <sup>6</sup>judged the cause of the poor and needy;
Then it was well.
Was not this knowing Me?” says the LORD.

<sup>17</sup> “Yet <sup>r</sup>your eyes and your heart are for nothing but your covetousness,
For shedding innocent blood,

And practicing oppression and violence.”

<sup>18</sup> Therefore thus says the LORD concerning Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah:

“They shall not lament for him,
Saying, ‘Alas, my brother!’ or ‘Alas, my sister!’
They shall not lament for him,
Saying, ‘Alas, master!’ or ‘Alas, his glory!’

<sup>19</sup> <sup>u</sup>He shall be buried with the burial of a donkey, Dragged and cast out beyond the gates of Jerusalem.

<sup>20</sup> “Go up to Lebanon, and cry out,
And lift up your voice in Bashan;
Cry from Abarim,
For all your lovers are destroyed.

<sup>21</sup> I spoke to you in your prosperity,
But you said, ‘I will not hear’
<sup>v</sup>This has been your manner from your youth,

That you did not obey My voice.

<sup>22</sup> The wind shall eat up all <sup>w</sup>your <sup>7</sup>rulers,
And your lovers shall go into captivity;
Surely then you will be ashamed and humiliated
For all your wickedness.

22:11, 12 This is the first of three messages directed at specific kings of Judah. Josiah died at Megiddo in 609 B.C. while attempting to block Pharaoh Necho of Egypt from coming to the aid of Assyria. who went from this place: This is a reference to Jehoahaz, also called Shallum. This fourth son of Josiah was placed on the throne by the people of Judah, but he was dethroned after three months by Pharaoh Necho. Shallum was imprisoned and taken captive to Egypt (see 2 Chr. 36:1-4). Eliakim (Jehoiakim), Shallum’s brother, was placed on the throne as an Egyptian vassal. Necho maintained control of Palestine until Nebuchadnezzar defeated Egypt at the Battle of Carchemish in 605 B.C. Shallum (Jehoahaz) died without returning from Egypt, in fulfillment of Jeremiah’s words (2 Kin. 23:34).

22:13, 14 unrighteousness . . . injustice: The key terms for true, biblical leadership quality—righteousness and justice—were negated by the king’s actions. uses his neighbor’s service without wages: The king was supposed to be the guardian of his people, but Jehoiakim enslaved his fellow Israelites to build his self-aggrandizing palaces.

22:15, 16 Did not your father . . . do justice and righteousness: This rhetorical question identifies Josiah, father of Jehoiakim, as a model king. knowing Me: Israel perished because of its lack of knowledge of God (see Hos. 4:6). Knowledge of God here is related to concern for the poor and needy (20:13).

22:17 Jehoiakim did not follow in the footsteps of Josiah. covetousness . . . shedding innocent blood . . . practicing oppression and violence: This triad of sins characterizing the reign of Jehoiakim would hammer home a resounding message to Judah concerning the collapse of its kingship. Covenant violations would not go unpunished.

22:18, 19 A king of such despicable character as Jehoiakim deserved no lament. burial of a donkey: Instead of proper funeral rites due a king, Jehoiakim would receive an ignoble burial, like an animal, alone and unlamented.

22:20 Jerusalem was called upon to mourn its destruction in the mountainous regions of the north—Lebanon, in the northeast—Bashan, and in the mountainous regions of the southeast—Abarim. Lovers here probably refers to Judah’s past and present political allies, such as Phoenicia, Aram, Moab, and Egypt.

22:21 God had spoken to Israel and Judah in times of prosperity, as in the days of Azariah, Jeroboam II, and Josiah, but the people would not hear and obey the words of the prophets, righteous kings, priests, and other leaders.

22:22, 23 The wind shall eat up: The winds of adversity and invasion would carry off Judah’s leaders and allies alike. The nation would be ashamed that it had entered into such futile associations. Lebanon refers to Jerusalem here (in contrast to v. 20). Cedars refers to the luxuriant royal palaces in the city (see Ezek. 17:1-10).

Message to Coniah

<sup>28</sup> “Is this man <sup>3</sup>Coniah a despised, broken idol—
<sup>c</sup> A vessel in which is no pleasure?
 Why are they cast out, he and his descendants,
 And cast into a land which they do not know?

<sup>30</sup> Thus says the LORD:
 ‘Write this man down as <sup>e</sup>childless,

 For <sup>f</sup>none of his descendants shall prosper,
 Sitting on the throne of David,
 And ruling anymore in Judah.’”

says the LORD God of Israel against the shepherds who feed My people: “You have scattered My flock, driven them away, and not attended to them. <sup>b</sup> Behold, I will attend to you for the evil of your doings,” says the LORD. <sup>3</sup> “But <sup>e</sup> I will gather the remnant of My flock out of all countries where I have driven them, and bring them back to their folds; and they shall be fruitful and increase. <sup>4</sup> I will set up <sup>d</sup> shepherds over them who will feed them; and they shall fear no more, nor be dismayed, nor shall they be lacking,” says the LORD.

22:24–27 Coniah, also known as Jehoiachin, succeeded his father in 598 B.C. under the threat of siege from Babylon as a result of Jehoiakim’s rebellion. The king’s signet ring, a symbol of his power and authority, was used to seal official court documents. Jehoiachin could not serve God in such a capacity because of his evil reign (see 2 Kin. 24:9). Jehoiachin reigned for three months until he and his family were exiled to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar (see 2 Kin. 24:6–16). Your mother refers to Nehushta, the queen mother of the 18-year-old Jehoiachin. Eventually Jehoiachin was released from prison, after the death of Nebuchadnezzar (see 2 Kin. 25:27).

22:28–30 childless: The king had seven sons (see 1 Chr. 3:17, 18), but the Davidic lineage of kingship would not extend to his heirs. A man who shall not prosper: Jehoiachin remained in prison throughout the reign of Nebuchadnezzar from 598 to 562 B.C.

23:1, 2 Woe usually introduces a harsh message of judgment. shepherds: In the ancient Middle East, the ideal of kingship was often presented in the imagery of a shepherd. For Israel, the ideal of the Good Shepherd was found in its Great King (see Ps. 23) and was reflected in the reign of David, the shepherd-king. But instead of protecting and nurturing the nation, the shepherd kings of Israel had scattered and not attended to or “visited” the people.

23:3 The kings of Israel had caused the dispersion of the nation; but the Lord would mercifully bring about the restoration of the remnant. The concept of a reestablished remnant is prominent in the prophets (see Is. 1:9; 10:20–23; 11:16; 46:3). The blessing of restoration and prosperity as a consequence of repentance is outlined in Deut. 30:1–10.

23:4 God would raise up a new generation of kings who would place the people’s welfare and God’s will above all other considerations.

23:5 Branch: Beginning with Is. 4:2, this term is used of the promised Messiah (see 33:15; Zech. 3:8; 6:12). This great king will reign with judgment, or justice, and righteousness. This ideal was founded on God’s promise to David (2 Sam. 7:16). The necessity for the Lord to send His own king is based on the failure of Israel’s monarchs to live up to the standards of kingship (21:11, 12; 22:1–4).

23:6 The days of the Messiah’s reign would bring salvation. Both Judah and Israel would be restored. The name that characterizes this ideal king is THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS. Contrast that to the name Zedekiah, which means “The Lord Is My Righteousness” (21:1). Zedekiah’s name was a gross misnomer compared to the One who would establish the true, righteous rule—God’s appointed king (see also Is. 9:7; 11:1–10). This verse is one of the texts in the Hebrew Bible that speaks specifically and surely of the coming of the glorious Savior and King.

23:7, 8 the days are coming: The future restoration of Israel would exceed anything in the past; it would surpass even the first Exodus, the deliverance from Egypt. A similar text is found in 16:14, 15, following a judgment oracle.

the house of Israel from the north country <sup>h</sup>and from all the countries where I had driven them.' And they shall dwell in their own <sup>i</sup>land.'

False Prophets and Empty Oracles

23:9, 10 Heart here refers to the mind more than the emotions. Jeremiah's dismay over the false prophets weakened him mentally and physically, so much so that he felt drunken from the inner turmoil. The prophet also felt unrest from his being consumed by the holy words of God. adulterers: This term could apply to those who practiced immoral sexual behavior, those who committed spiritual adultery by pursuing other gods, and those who were involved in cultic prostitution. The effects of the adultery reached to the land. Instead of experiencing the God-given fertility and productivity of crops, the pleasant places were dried up. Wilderness refers not to the desert in this context, but to pasture land. Might here refers to royal power.

23:11 Prophets were to be spokesmen for God in directing the nation. Priests were to teach the Law, to distinguish between the clean and the unclean, and to oversee religious ceremonies (see Lev. 10:8-20). Profane means "unclean" or "corrupt." My house: Like the prophet and priest, the temple of God had become polluted by the wickedness of the spiritual leaders.

23:13, 14 The prophets of Samaria, rather than speaking in the name of God, prophesied by Baal. They caused the people of Israel to err—that is, to stray morally, mentally, and spiritually from God's norms. Horrible thing here refers to "something utterly disgusting" (5:30). God found that the prophets of Jerusalem were committing adultery (v. 10) and walking in lies. The term lie is used commonly by Jeremiah to refer to idolatry. The leaders of Judah had supported evildoers who, like the kings, had abused the power of their position. The nation had become like Sodom and Gomorrah and thus deserved the same judgment those cities suffered (see Gen. 19:12-29).

23:15 Wormwood and water of gall refer to bitterness and death by poison. According to Deut. 18:20, the consequence of false prophecy was death.

23:16 Worthless is used to describe the futility of listening to those who speak a vision of their own heart. Visions were commonly understood to be a means of receiving a message from God (or the gods). The term vision used here and in 14:14 is also found in Daniel (Dan. 1:17; 8:1); plus it is used in other prophetic books to describe a divine revelation (see Is. 1:1; Mic. 3:6).

23:17 The false prophets proclaimed a false hope of peace and security to those who despised Jeremiah. However God's intention was to bring evil, or calamity (6:14).

23:18 God's counsel is available to one who walks in the fear of the Lord according to His word, who understands God's working in nature and history.

Who has marked His word and heard it?
 19 Behold, a <sup>f</sup>whirlwind of the LORD has gone forth in fury—
 A violent whirlwind!
 It will fall violently on the head of the wicked.
 20 The <sup>g</sup>anger of the LORD will not turn back
 Until He has executed and performed the thoughts of His heart.

<sup>h</sup>In the latter days you will understand it perfectly.

21 “I <sup>i</sup> have not sent these prophets, yet they ran.
 I have not spoken to them, yet they prophesied.
 22 But if they had stood in My counsel, And had caused My people to hear My words,
 Then they would have <sup>j</sup>turned them from their evil way
 And from the evil of their doings.

23 “Am I a God near at hand,” says the LORD,

“And not a God afar off?”

24 Can anyone <sup>k</sup>hide himself in secret places,
 So I shall not see him?” says the LORD;

<sup>l</sup>“Do I not fill heaven and earth?” says the LORD.

<sup>25</sup> “I have heard what the prophets have said who prophesy lies in My name, saying, ‘I have dreamed, I have dreamed!’
 26 How long will this be in the heart of the prophets who prophesy lies? Indeed they are prophets of the deceit of their own heart, <sup>27</sup> who try to make My people forget My name by their dreams which everyone tells his neighbor, <sup>m</sup> as their fathers forgot My name for Baal.

28 “The prophet who has a dream, let him tell a dream;
 And he who has My word, let him speak My word faithfully.
 What is the chaff to the wheat?” says the LORD.
 29 “Is not My word like a <sup>a</sup> fire?” says the LORD,
 “And like a hammer that breaks the rock in pieces?”

<sup>30</sup> “Therefore behold, <sup>o</sup> I am against the prophets,” says the LORD, “who steal My words every one from his neighbor.
 31 Behold, I am <sup>p</sup> against the prophets,” says the LORD, “who use their tongues and say, ‘He says.’”
 32 Behold, I am against those who prophesy false dreams,” says the LORD, “and tell them, and cause My people to err by their <sup>q</sup> lies and by <sup>r</sup> their recklessness. Yet I did not send them or command them; therefore they shall not <sup>s</sup> profit this people at all,” says the LORD.

<sup>33</sup> “So when these people or the prophet or the priest ask you, saying, ‘What is <sup>t</sup> the <sup>s</sup> oracle of the LORD?’ you shall then say to them, <sup>9</sup> ‘What oracle?’ I will even forsake you,” says the LORD.

 36 And the <sup>2</sup> oracle of the LORD you shall mention no more. For every man’s word will be his oracle, for you have “perverted the words of the living God, the LORD of hosts, our God.”
 37 Thus you shall say to the prophet, ‘What has the LORD answered you?’ and, ‘What has the LORD spoken?’”
 38 But since you say, ‘The <sup>3</sup> oracle of the LORD!’ therefore thus says the LORD: ‘Because you say this word, “The oracle of the LORD!” and

23:19, 20 God’s counsel to Jeremiah’s audience was not peace but harsh judgment. Whirlwind is used as a symbol of God’s judgment (see Is. 29:6). thoughts of His heart: This phrase denotes God’s plans and purposes by which He was bringing punishment (contrast Ps. 40:5).

23:21, 22 A true prophet must be sent by God with a word from God. A true prophet of God calls people to repentance of sin or evil and to renewed faith.

23:25–27 Lies here is singular, referring to the quality of the word the false prophets spoke. I have dreamed: Dreams were prized among the Assyrians, Egyptians, and Babylonians as a means of divine revelation. But in Israelite law and tradition, dreams were received cautiously. the heart of the prophets: The character of the false prophets was based on lies and deceit. Their deception was apparent because their goal was to draw the people into idolatry with their fanciful dreams, leading people to forget God and follow Baal (2:8).

23:28, 29 This poetic interlude compares dream and word. A dream is fleeting, like chaff in the wind. God’s word has the force of fire and a hammer.

23:30, 31 steal My words: Lacking true knowledge and a word from God, the false prophets repeated false hopes and twisted God’s words. use their tongues and say, “He says”: The false prophets spoke on their own, lacking a true word from God.

23:32 The counterfeit spokesmen of God prophesied false dreams, deluding the people. Recklessness further indicates the perverse character of the false prophets.

23:34–36 No true oracle would come from the false prophets. The sharing of oracles among neighbors (v. 27) would involve perverting the words of the living God. Perverted means “overturned.” The false prophets turned God’s words around to their own desired benefit.

23:38–40 Speaking the oracle of the LORD was forbidden for the false prophets. everlasting reproach . . . perpetual shame: The disgrace that resulted from the false prophets would last for an extended period of time; its memory would endure forever (20:11).

I have sent to you, saying, “Do not say, ‘The oracle of the LORD!’” <sup>39</sup>therefore behold, I, even I, <sup>v</sup>will utterly forget you and forsake you, and the city that I gave you and your fathers, and will cast you out of My presence. <sup>40</sup>And I will bring <sup>w</sup>an everlasting reproach upon you, and a perpetual <sup>x</sup>shame, which shall not be forgotten.’”

The Sign of Two Baskets of Figs

24 The <sup>a</sup>LORD showed me, and there were two baskets of figs set before the temple of the LORD, after Nebuchadnezzar <sup>b</sup>king of Babylon had carried away captive <sup>c</sup>Jehoiachin the son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, and the princes of Judah with the craftsmen and smiths, from Jerusalem, and had brought them to Babylon. <sup>2</sup>One basket had very good figs, like the figs that are first ripe; and the other basket had very bad figs which could not be eaten, they were so <sup>d</sup>bad. <sup>3</sup>Then the LORD said to me, “What do you see, Jeremiah?”

And I said, “Figs, the good figs, very good; and the bad, very bad, which cannot be eaten, they are so bad.”

<sup>4</sup>Again the word of the LORD came to me, saying, <sup>5</sup>“Thus says the LORD, the

The Object Lessons and Parables of a Prophet

Since the people were not responding to Jeremiah’s messages of warning and judgment, God had the prophet perform object lessons in order to arouse curiosity and effectively communicate the Lord’s message to the people.

Passage	Sign	Meaning
13:1–11	The ruined waistband	A linen sash was buried and later dug up. Its ruined state symbolized how the nation—which was intended to be close to God—had become corrupt and useless through idolatry.
13:12–27	The wine jugs	Jeremiah’s prophecies concerning the broken wine jugs symbolized the coming judgment.
16:1–9	Jeremiah’s celibacy	Jeremiah was forbidden to marry or participate in Jewish feasts to demonstrate how imminent God’s judgment was.
18:1–23	The potter	Jeremiah was sent to watch a potter make a vessel and then remake it into something else. This functioned as a reminder to the people of God’s sovereignty.
19:1–15	The broken jar	Jeremiah purchased a flask and then gathered the nation’s leaders near the Valley of Hinnom—Jerusalem’s “landfill.” There Jeremiah broke the flask as a sign of God’s coming judgment on His people because of their idolatrous ways.
24:1–10	The baskets of figs	Jeremiah spoke of a vision in which he saw two baskets of figs before the temple—one filled with good, ripe figs and the other with rotten figs. The good figs represented the Jews taken into Babylonian exile, while the bad figs represented the Jews who fled to Egypt.

24:1 The LORD showed me: This phrase suggests a visionary experience like those of Amos and Joel. The historical setting is the 597 B.C. exile of Jehoiachin (Jehoiachin).

24:2 The observation of good, or newly ripened, figs in the temple would place this account in the context of the fall festival of firstfruits (see Deut. 26:1–11).

24:4–7 The good figs are identified with the deported exiles, including Jehoiachin’s royal household, whom God set apart for good. God would bring . . . back the captives, establish them in the land, and multiply their crops. Above all, God would give them a heart to know Him. This verse anticipates the new covenant message of 31:31–34.

24:8–10 According to chs. 28; 36–38, the people who remained in Jerusalem treated Jeremiah harshly, subjecting him to beating and imprisonment. Zedekiah and his entourage, along with Jews who fled to Egypt, would see the trouble, meaning “trembling fear” or “horror,” and harm, meaning “calamity,” from the Lord.

Seventy Years of Desolation

25 The word that came to Jeremiah concerning all the people of Judah, <sup>a</sup>in the fourth year of <sup>b</sup>Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah (which was the first year of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon), <sup>2</sup>which Jeremiah the prophet spoke to all the people of Judah and to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying: <sup>3c</sup>“From the thirteenth year of Josiah the son of Amon, king of Judah, even to this day, this is the twenty-third year in which the word of the LORD has come to me; and I have spoken to you, rising early and speaking, <sup>d</sup>but you have not listened. <sup>4</sup>And the LORD has sent to you all His servants the prophets, <sup>e</sup>rising early and sending them, but you have not listened nor inclined your ear to hear. <sup>5</sup>They said, <sup>f</sup>“Repent now everyone of his evil way and his evil doings, and dwell in the land that the LORD has given to you and your fathers forever and ever. <sup>6</sup>Do not go after other gods to serve them and worship them, and do not provoke Me to anger with the works of your hands; and I will not harm you.” <sup>7</sup>Yet you have not listened to Me,” says the LORD, “that you might <sup>g</sup>provoke Me to anger with the works of your hands to your own hurt.

<sup>8</sup>“Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts: ‘Because you have not heard My words, <sup>9</sup>behold, I will send and take <sup>h</sup>all the families of the north,’ says the LORD, ‘and Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, <sup>i</sup>My servant, and will bring them against this land, against its inhabitants, and against these nations all around, and will utterly destroy them, and <sup>j</sup>make them an astonishment, a hissing, and perpetual desolations. <sup>10</sup>Moreover I will <sup>l</sup>take from them the <sup>k</sup>voice of mirth and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, <sup>l</sup>the sound of the millstones and the light of the lamp. <sup>11</sup>And this whole land shall be a desolation and an astonishment, and these nations shall serve the king of Babylon seventy <sup>m</sup>years.

<sup>12</sup>“Then it will come to pass, <sup>n</sup>when <sup>2</sup>seventy years are completed, that I will punish the king of Babylon and that nation, the land of the Chaldeans, for their iniquity,” says the LORD; <sup>o</sup>“and I will make it a perpetual desolation. <sup>13</sup>So I will bring on that land all My words which I have pronounced against it, all that is written in this book, which Jeremiah has prophesied concerning all the nations. <sup>14p</sup> (For many nations <sup>q</sup>and great kings shall <sup>r</sup>be served by them also; <sup>s</sup>and I will repay them according to their deeds and according to the works of their own hands.)”

Judgment on the Nations

<sup>15</sup>For thus says the LORD God of Israel to me: “Take this <sup>u</sup>wine cup of <sup>3</sup>fury from My hand, and cause all the nations, to whom I send you, to drink it. <sup>16</sup>And “they will drink and stagger and go mad because of the sword that I will send among them.”

<sup>17</sup>Then I took the cup from the LORD’s hand, and made all the nations drink, to whom the LORD had sent me: <sup>18</sup>Jerusalem and the cities of Judah, its kings and its princes, to make them <sup>v</sup>a desolation, an astonishment, a hissing, and <sup>w</sup>a curse, as it is this day; <sup>19</sup>Pharaoh king of Egypt, his

25:1 the first year of Nebuchadnezzar: In 605 B.C., Nebuchadnezzar succeeded his father on the throne of Babylon. He quickly moved his army to Carchemish and then defeated the Egyptians and some Assyrians. The following year Nebuchadnezzar’s forces gained control of all of Palestine, reaching southward to the Brook of Egypt.

25:3 Starting from the time he was called in 626 B.C., Jeremiah faithfully proclaimed the word of the Lord for 23 years. The idiom rising early and speaking describes Jeremiah’s diligence and persistence.

25:4, 5 Other prophets, such as Habakkuk, Zephaniah, Urijah (26:20), and those of previous centuries, had persistently proclaimed the message of repentance so that the nation might remain in the land. Security, prosperity, and long life in the land were directly related to the nation’s covenant faithfulness to God (see Deut. 28; 29).

25:6, 7 The phrase go after is used throughout Jeremiah to mean resorting to other gods in worship. The works of your hands refers to the manmade idols used in pagan worship, a breach of the covenant (see Ex. 20:3-5) that provoked God to anger.

25:8, 9 behold, I: The Lord was the One bringing judgment; the Babylonians and tribes from the north were merely agents of His destruction. families of the north: The Babylonian army employed Scythian and Cimmerian mercenaries from Asia Minor. Nebuchadnezzar . . . My servant: This expression does not imply that the Babylonian monarch worshiped Israel’s God, but simply that he was used by God to fulfill His purposes (as in the case of Cyrus, who is called the Lord’s “anointed” in Is. 45:1).

25:10, 11 take: This term means “cause to perish” and indicates harsh judgment. Life as they knew it would cease. These nations refers to Judah and the surrounding nations, such as Moab and Phoenicia, who would be subjected to enslavement and captivity. Seventy years is the approximate length of the Babylonian captivity.

25:15-17 The triad sequence drink . . . stagger . . . go mad depicts the judgment process by which the sword of the Lord subdues those opposed to Him. The state of drunkenness was condemned in the OT; to drink the cup and stagger was to display one’s guilt (see Num. 5:19-28). Then I took the cup: Jeremiah responded faithfully to God’s commands.

25:18 The list of nations that would be made to drink from the cup of the Lord’s judgment begins with Judah and Jerusalem, which would be made a source of derision (19:8; 25:9).

25:19 The first foreign nation condemned by God through Jeremiah was Egypt. The expanded oracle is found in ch. 46.

servants, his princes, and all his people; <sup>20</sup> all the mixed multitude, all the kings of <sup>x</sup> the land of Uz, all the kings of the land of the <sup>y</sup> Philistines (namely, Ashkelon, Gaza, Ekron, and <sup>z</sup> the remnant of Ashdod); <sup>21 a</sup> Edom, Moab, and the people of Ammon; <sup>22</sup> all the kings of <sup>b</sup> Tyre, all the kings of Sidon, and the kings of the coastlands which are across the <sup>c</sup> sea; <sup>23 d</sup> Dedan, Tema, Buz, and all who are in the farthest corners; <sup>24</sup> all the kings of Arabia and all the kings of the <sup>e</sup> mixed multitude who dwell in the desert; <sup>25</sup> all the kings of Zimri, all the kings of <sup>f</sup> Elam, and all the kings of the <sup>g</sup> Medes; <sup>26 h</sup> all the kings of the north, far and near, one with another; and all the kingdoms of the world which are on the face of the earth. Also the king of <sup>4</sup> Sheshach shall drink after them.

<sup>27</sup> “Therefore you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: <sup>i</sup> “Drink, <sup>j</sup> be drunk, and vomit! Fall and rise no more, because of the sword which I will send among you.”’ <sup>28</sup> And it shall be, if they refuse to take the cup from your hand to drink, then you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts: “You shall certainly drink! <sup>29</sup> For behold, <sup>k</sup> I begin to bring calamity on the city <sup>l</sup> which is called by My name, and should you be utterly unpunished? You shall not be unpunished, for <sup>m</sup> I will call for a sword on all the inhabitants of the earth,” says the LORD of hosts.’

<sup>30</sup> “Therefore prophesy against them all these words, and say to them:

“Behold, disaster shall go forth From nation to nation, And <sup>t</sup> a great whirlwind shall be raised up From the farthest parts of the earth.

<sup>33</sup> “And at that day the slain of the LORD shall be from one end of the earth even to the other end of the earth. They shall not be <sup>v</sup> lamented, <sup>w</sup> or gathered, or buried; they shall become refuse on the ground.

Roll about in the ashes, You leaders of the flock! For the days of your slaughter and your dispersions are fulfilled; You shall fall like a precious vessel.

25:20 The land of Uz is generally interpreted as the region of Edom or northern Arabia. Ashkelon was captured by Nebuchadnezzar in 604 B.C. Gaza and Ashdod are also mentioned in Nebuchadnezzar’s Babylonian chronicles (see ch. 47).

25:21, 22 The states of Edom, Moab, and Ammon, and the Phoenician coastal territories of Tyre and Sidon, suffered heavily under Nebuchadnezzar’s attacks (see 48:1–49:22; Ezek. 27; 28).

25:23, 24 The Arabian desert kingdoms of Dedan, Tema, and Buz were condemned. Dedan and Tema were in Edomite territory (49:7, 8). The location of Buz is unknown.

25:25, 26 Elam and Media were located east of Babylon (49:34–39).

25:27, 28 The triad of terms for progressive inebriation—drink, be drunk, and vomit—emphasizes the extent of judgment that would flow from God’s cup of wrath. Those who refused the cup would be forced to drink.

25:29 God’s judgment would begin with His own people and their holy city. God would bring calamity on the city that was called by His name. In doing so, God would vindicate His name and His holiness. From Jerusalem, God’s sword of judgment would go forth to the ends of the earth.

25:30 on high . . . from His holy habitation: Generally these phrases refer to God’s abode on Mt. Zion (see Joel 3:16; Amos 1:2).

25:31 A noise refers to a thunderous judgment resulting from God’s controversy or “covenant lawsuit” against the nations. Though they had not received the Law like Judah and Israel, the Gentiles would be judged because they were wicked. The word wicked refers to the guilt associated with the breach of ethical standards, including violating the poor and needy and abusing the oppressed.

25:32, 33 As with Judah’s horrifying calamity of unburied corpses (7:33), the nations would experience massive death and extensive destruction. The neglect of the dead is described in a triad of terms: not be lamented . . . (not be) gathered . . . (not be) buried. This desecration would be finalized by the decay of bodies into refuse or “dung” (8:2; 9:22; 16:4).

shepherd (Heb. ra’ah) (23:1; 25:34; 31:10; Gen. 49:24; Ps. 23:1) Strong’s #7462: The Hebrew noun for shepherd refers to someone who feeds and tends domestic animals. David spoke of God as His shepherd because God provided, sustained, and guided him (Ps. 23). Kings and other leaders were also seen as shepherds of their people, and the title “shepherd” was frequently applied to kings in the ancient Middle East. David was a true shepherd-king, responsibly leading and protecting his people (2 Sam. 5:1, 2). Jeremiah rebuked the leaders of Israel who were false shepherds and failed in their responsibility of caring for the spiritual well-being of God’s people (23:1–4).

Jeremiah Saved from Death

26 In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, this word came from the LORD, saying, <sup>2</sup>“Thus says the LORD: ‘Stand in <sup>a</sup>the court of the LORD’s house, and speak to all the cities of Judah, which come to worship <sup>b</sup>in the LORD’s house, <sup>c</sup>all the words that I command you to speak to them. <sup>d</sup>Do not diminish a word. <sup>3</sup>Perhaps everyone will listen and turn from his evil way, that I may <sup>e</sup>relent concerning the calamity which I purpose to bring on them because of the evil of their doings.’ <sup>4</sup>And you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD: <sup>f</sup>“If you will not listen to Me, to walk in My law which I have set before you, <sup>5</sup>to heed the words of My servants the prophets <sup>g</sup>whom I sent to you, both rising up early and sending them (but you have not heeded), <sup>6</sup>then I will make this house like <sup>h</sup>Shiloh, and will make this city <sup>i</sup>a curse to all the nations of the earth.””

<sup>7</sup>So the priests and the prophets and all the people heard Jeremiah speaking these words in the house of the LORD. <sup>8</sup>Now it happened, when Jeremiah had made an end of speaking all that the LORD had commanded him to speak to all the people, that the priests and the prophets and all the people seized him, saying, “You will surely die! <sup>9</sup>Why have you prophesied in the name of the LORD, saying, ‘This house shall be like Shiloh, and this city shall be <sup>j</sup>desolate, without an inhabitant?’” And all the people were gathered against Jeremiah in the house of the LORD.

<sup>10</sup>When the princes of Judah heard these things, they came up from the king’s house to the house of the LORD and sat down in the entry of the New Gate of the LORD’s house. <sup>11</sup>And the priests and the prophets spoke to the princes and all the people, saying, <sup>12</sup>“This man deserves to <sup>k</sup>die! For he has prophesied against this city, as you have heard with your ears.”

<sup>12</sup>Then Jeremiah spoke to all the princes and all the people, saying: “The LORD sent me to prophesy against this house and against this city with all the words that you have heard. <sup>13</sup>Now therefore, <sup>l</sup>amend your ways and your doings, and obey the voice of the LORD your God; then the LORD will relent concerning the doom that He has pronounced against you. <sup>14</sup>As for me, here <sup>m</sup>I am, in your hand; do with me as seems good and <sup>2</sup>proper to you. <sup>15</sup>But know for certain that if you put me to death, you will surely bring innocent blood on yourselves, on this city, and on its inhabitants; for truly the LORD has

25:37, 38 Homes and pastures that once were peaceful and secure would be devastated. The Oppressor is a surprising designation for the Lord.

26:1 In the beginning: This expression technically refers to the part of the year between the day the king ascended to the throne and the beginning of his first full year of reign, which began in the spring month of Nisan (March-April), 608 B.C.

26:2 The court of the temple may refer to one of the inner courts connected by the gate mentioned in 7:2. Come to worship describes the normal worship there or perhaps more specifically the pilgrimages to Jerusalem for festival and fast days. Do not diminish: Jeremiah was told to speak unsparingly with unwavering boldness.

26:3 The introduction to the judgment oracle is expressed in conditional terms. If the people repented of evil the Lord would relent from the calamity He was threatening to bring on them.

26:6 Shiloh was not far from Jerusalem. The people could see the effects of its destruction by the Philistines in 1050 B.C.—a destruction that overtook it even though it was the first resting place of the ark of the covenant. Jeremiah uses Shiloh as an illustration of the coming judgment of Jerusalem even though the temple of God had been built there.

26:8, 9 The priests and the prophets and all the people refers to the collective worship assembly. The religious leaders responsible for overseeing the temple considered Jeremiah’s words blasphemy, for he spoke of the destruction of the temple itself. The people rejected Jeremiah’s prophecy and tried to kill him (see John 8:59 for the similar rejection suffered by Jesus).

26:10, 11 Jeremiah’s words were reported to the princes, the royal administrators and kingdom officials, who came to the New Gate to carry out an official inquiry. The prophets and priests presented an accusation against Jeremiah, calling for the death sentence for speaking against Jerusalem.

26:12, 13 Jeremiah called the assembly to amend, or make good, their evil ways and to obey God’s voice, here referring to the covenant and the words proclaimed by Jeremiah.

26:14, 15 Held captive by the hostile crowd, Jeremiah pointed to the potential sin of shedding innocent blood. Jeremiah had already accused the leaders of Jerusalem of shedding innocent blood with child sacrifices in the Hinnom valley (2:34; 19:4). truly the LORD has sent me: Sentencing God’s prophet to death would result in greater judgment, in addition to the people’s other offenses against heaven.

sent me to you to speak all these words in your hearing.”

<sup>16</sup>So the princes and all the people said to the priests and the prophets, “This man does not deserve to die. For he has spoken to us in the name of the LORD our God.”

<sup>17</sup>Then certain of the elders of the land rose up and spoke to all the assembly of the people, saying: <sup>18</sup>“Micah of Moresheth prophesied in the days of Hezekiah king of Judah, and spoke to all the people of Judah, saying, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts:

“Zion shall be plowed like a field,
Jerusalem shall become <sup>9</sup>heaps of ruins,
And the mountain of the <sup>3</sup>temple
Like the <sup>4</sup>bare hills of the forest.””

<sup>19</sup>Did Hezekiah king of Judah and all Judah ever put him to death? <sup>20</sup>Did he not fear the LORD and <sup>21</sup>seek the LORD’s favor? And the LORD <sup>22</sup>relented concerning the doom which He had pronounced against them. <sup>23</sup>But we are doing great evil against ourselves.”

<sup>20</sup>Now there was also a man who prophesied in the name of the LORD, Urijah the son of Shemaiah of Kirjath Jearim, who prophesied against this city and against this land according to all the words of Jeremiah. <sup>21</sup>And when Jehoiakim the king, with all his mighty men and all the princes, heard his words, the king sought to put him to death; but when Urijah heard it, he was afraid and fled, and went to Egypt. <sup>22</sup>Then Jehoiakim the king sent men to Egypt: Elnathan the son of

Symbol of the Bonds and Yokes

27<sup>1</sup> In the beginning of the reign of <sup>2</sup>Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, a king of Judah, this word came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying, <sup>2</sup>“Thus says the LORD to me: ‘Make for yourselves bonds and yokes, <sup>b</sup>and put them on your neck, <sup>3</sup>and send them to the king of Edom, the king of Moab, the king of the Ammonites, the king of Tyre, and the king of Sidon, by the hand of the messengers who come to Jerusalem to Zedekiah king of Judah. <sup>4</sup>And command them to say to their masters, “Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel—thus you shall say to your masters: <sup>5</sup>“I have made the earth, the man and the beast that are on the ground, by My great power and by My outstretched arm, and <sup>d</sup>have given it to whom it seemed proper to Me. <sup>6</sup>“And now I have given all these lands into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, <sup>f</sup>My servant; and <sup>g</sup>the beasts of the field I have also given him to serve him. <sup>7</sup>“So all nations shall serve him and his son and his son’s son, <sup>i</sup>until the time of his land comes; <sup>j</sup>and then many nations and great kings shall

26:16 This man does not deserve to die: Jeremiah’s self-defense gained acceptance from the crowd, against the objections of the wicked religious leaders.

26:17–19 After Jeremiah’s hearing, one of the elders from the people cited the precedent of the eighth century prophet Micah of Moresheth. In the reign of Hezekiah, Micah had announced the impending destruction of Jerusalem by the Assyrians (see Mic. 3:12). Yet because of the repentance of Hezekiah and the inhabitants, the city was spared from the onslaught of the Assyrian army under Sennacherib (701 B.C.).

26:20–23 Urijah, whose name means “My Light Is the Lord,” was from Kirjath Jearim, about 15 miles west of Jerusalem (see 1 Sam. 7:1, 2). Like Jeremiah, Urijah had prophesied in the name of the LORD about judgment against Jerusalem. When Jehoiakim and his administrators heard of Urijah’s declarations, they sought to seize the “blasphemous” prophet, who escaped by fleeing to Egypt. Since Jehoiakim was a vassal to Necho of Egypt, Urijah was extradited and executed. Elnathan the son of Achbor was among the princes in Jehoiakim’s court who heard the reading of Jeremiah’s first scroll of oracles (36:11–19) and protested Jehoiakim’s burning of the scroll (36:20–26).

26:24 Jeremiah was sheltered by Ahikam the son of Shaphan who, along with his father, served as a scribe under Josiah when the Book of the Law was found in the temple (see 2 Kin.

22:8–14). Ahikam’s brother Gemariah also opposed Jehoiakim’s burning of Jeremiah’s original scroll (36:25). This faithful family was supportive of Jeremiah and was instrumental in saving his life.

27:2, 3 Bonds and yokes are wooden bars or beams that attach to a pair of oxen with leather bands. The symbolic act of wearing the yoke would communicate bondage, restraint, and enslavement. The messengers were foreign ambassadors in Jerusalem.

27:4, 5 The foreign ambassadors were to announce to their masters that the God of Israel is the true sovereign Lord over creation and the affairs of humans. The whole of creation is summed up in the triad earth . . . man . . . beast. Unlike the gods of the nations, whose power was often believed to be geographically limited, the God of Israel reigned over all the earth, granting territorial rights and power to nations and kings as it seemed proper to Him.

27:6, 7 My servant: With all of his military might and conquests, the king of Babylon was still a servant of the God of Israel, carrying out the Lord’s purposes—namely the judgment of Judah. son’s son . . . time of his land: Following the death of Nebuchadnezzar in 562 B.C., his heirs and successors retained control of Babylon for only 24 years. Babylon fell without a battle to Cyrus and the Persian armies in 539 B.C., and later to Alexander the Great of Greece.

make him serve them. <sup>8</sup> And it shall be, that the nation and kingdom which will not serve Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, and which will not put its neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, that nation I will punish,' says the LORD, 'with the sword, the famine, and the pestilence, until I have consumed them by his hand. <sup>9</sup> Therefore do not listen to your prophets, your diviners, your <sup>3</sup> dreamers, your soothsayers, or your sorcerers, who speak to you, saying, "You shall not serve the king of Babylon." <sup>10</sup> For they prophesy a <sup>k</sup> lie to you, to remove you far from your land; and I will drive you out, and you will perish. <sup>11</sup> But the nations that bring their necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon and serve him, I will let them remain in their own land,' says the LORD, 'and they shall till it and dwell in it.''"

<sup>12</sup> I also spoke to <sup>l</sup> Zedekiah king of Judah according to all these words, saying, "Bring your necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him and his people, and live!" <sup>13</sup> <sup>m</sup> Why will you die, you and your people, by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence, as the LORD has spoken against the nation that will not serve the king of Babylon? <sup>14</sup> Therefore <sup>n</sup> do not listen to the words of the prophets who speak to you, saying, 'You shall not serve the king of Babylon,' for they prophesy <sup>o</sup> a lie to you; <sup>15</sup> for I have <sup>p</sup> not sent them," says the LORD, "yet they prophesy a lie in My name, that I may drive you out, and that you may perish, you and the prophets who prophesy to you."

<sup>16</sup> Also I spoke to the priests and to all this people, saying, "Thus says the LORD: 'Do not listen to the words of your prophets who prophesy to you, saying, "Behold, <sup>q</sup> the vessels of the LORD's house will now shortly be brought back from Babylon"; for they prophesy a lie to you. <sup>17</sup> Do not listen to them; serve the king of Babylon, and live! Why should this city be laid waste? <sup>18</sup> But if they are prophets, and if the word of the LORD is with them, let them now make intercession to the LORD of hosts, that the vessels which are left in the house of the LORD, in the house of the king of Judah, and at Jerusalem, do not go to Babylon.'

Hananiah's Falsehood and Doom

28 And <sup>a</sup> it happened in the same year, at the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the <sup>b</sup> fourth

27:8 The symbol of the yoke is explained to the foreign ambassadors. Those who would not submit as vassals to Babylon would be punished.

27:9, 10 The way kings summoned various prophet-diviners to give them direction is well known from the Book of Daniel (see Dan. 2:2; 5:7). Besides prophets, there were diviners, like Balaam (see Num. 22–24), who were prohibited from practicing their craft in Israel (see Deut. 18:9–14); dreamers, a class of fortune-tellers prohibited by the Law (see Deut. 13:1–5); as well as soothsayers and sorcerers, both common among the nations but forbidden to practice their trades in Israel (see Deut. 18:9–24). The collective effort of these diviners to determine the fate of their nations failed. Like the false prophets of Judah, they heralded a message of rebellion and resistance against Babylon. Only Jeremiah stood for the truth: the Lord would punish Judah through Nebuchadnezzar.

27:11 bring their necks under the yoke: To submit to Babylon was to submit to the will and purposes of God.

27:12, 13 Jeremiah's message to Zedekiah was the same as his message to the foreign ambassadors (vv. 4–11): submit to Nebuchadnezzar and the Babylonians and live, or rebel against Nebuchadnezzar—and God—and die.

27:15 I have not sent them: Divine call and commission are prerequisites to fulfilling a true prophetic role.

27:16, 17 Do not listen: For the priests to listen to the false words of the prophets concerning the inviolability of the temple was to seal their own doom and that of the temple. Many vessels (v. 19) had been carried off by Nebuchadnezzar in the exile of Jeconiah (Jehoiachin). The false prophets said that Babylon would be defeated and the temple furnishings would be returned.

27:18 Jeremiah proposed a test to verify the words of the contentious prophets. if the word of the LORD is with them: If the prophets truly spoke for the Lord, their intercession—the survival of the remaining temple implements—would come to pass. vessels which are left: Many of the furnishings of the temple of the Lord were transported to Babylon in the exile of Jehoiachin and his entourage (see 2 Kin. 24:13). According to Jeremiah, the vessels that remained would be taken in the final destruction of the city. Events would demonstrate whose word was from the Lord.

27:21, 22 Jeremiah's message from the Lord is presented in detail. The remaining vessels in the temple, as well as in the king's palace, would be carried to Babylon until the Lord restored His people. In the midst of a prophetic message against the false prophets, Jeremiah spoke a message of hope and restoration. Destruction was imminent, but God does not forget His people. He would restore the righteous remnant.

28:1 The same year refers to the time of ch. 27 (593 B.C.). The fifth month was the month of Ab (July–August). Hananiah was from Gibeon, six miles northwest of Jerusalem and about year and in the fifth month, that Hananiah the son of <sup>c</sup>Azur the prophet, who was from Gibeon, spoke to me in the house of the LORD in the presence of the priests and of all the people, saying, <sup>2</sup>“Thus speaks the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, saying: ‘I have broken <sup>d</sup>the yoke of the king of Babylon. <sup>3</sup>’ Within two full years I will bring back to this place all the vessels of the LORD’s house, that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon <sup>f</sup>took away from this place and carried to Babylon. <sup>4</sup>And I will bring back to this place <sup>1</sup>Jeconiah the son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, with all the captives of Judah who went to Babylon,’ says the LORD, ‘for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon.’”

<sup>5</sup>Then the prophet Jeremiah spoke to the prophet Hananiah in the presence of the priests and in the presence of all the people who stood in the house of the LORD, <sup>6</sup>and the prophet Jeremiah said, <sup>7</sup>“Amen! The LORD do so; the LORD perform your words which you have prophesied, to bring back the vessels of the LORD’s house and all who were carried away captive, from Babylon to this place. <sup>7</sup>Nevertheless hear now this word that I speak in your hearing and in the hearing of all the people: <sup>8</sup>The prophets who have been before me and before you of old prophesied against many countries and great kingdoms—of war and disaster and pestilence. <sup>9</sup>As for <sup>h</sup>the prophet who prophesies of <sup>i</sup>peace, when the word of the prophet comes to pass, the prophet will be known as one whom the LORD has truly sent.”

broke it. <sup>11</sup>And Hananiah spoke in the presence of all the people, saying, “Thus says the LORD: ‘Even so I will break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon <sup>k</sup>from the neck of all nations within the space of two full years.’” And the prophet Jeremiah went his way.

<sup>12</sup>Now the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, after Hananiah the prophet had broken the yoke from the neck of the prophet Jeremiah, saying, <sup>13</sup>“Go and tell Hananiah, saying, ‘Thus says the LORD: “You have broken the yokes of wood, but you have made in their place yokes of iron.” <sup>14</sup>For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: <sup>14</sup>“I have put a yoke of iron on the neck of all these nations, that they may serve Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon; and they shall serve him. <sup>m</sup>I have given him the beasts of the field also.”’”

<sup>15</sup>Then the prophet Jeremiah said to Hananiah the prophet, “Hear now, Hananiah, the LORD has not sent you, but <sup>n</sup>you make this people trust in a <sup>o</sup>lie. <sup>16</sup>Therefore thus says the LORD: ‘Behold, I will cast you from the face of the earth. This year you shall <sup>p</sup>die, because you have taught <sup>q</sup>rebellion against the LORD.’”

<sup>17</sup>So Hananiah the prophet died the same year in the seventh month.

CHAPTER 29

five miles west of Jeremiah’s hometown, Anathoth. Hananiah’s name means “The Lord Is Gracious.”

28:2–4 Hananiah spoke in the name of the LORD of hosts, using the name of God as Jeremiah did to introduce a solemn message of judgment against Babylon. Building on Jeremiah’s imagery of the yoke (ch. 27), Hananiah proclaimed the contradictory message that the yoke of . . . Babylon would be broken by God. Hananiah believed that God’s message for Judah was one of imminent deliverance—within two full years—from servitude to the king of Babylon. Hananiah also prophesied the return of the holy vessels taken by Nebuchadnezzar from the temple of God. Furthermore, Hananiah espoused the popular belief that the kingship of Zedekiah was illegitimate and that God would restore Jeconiah (Jehoiachin) to the throne in Jerusalem.

28:7–9 war and disaster and pestilence: Hananiah’s message of peace and prosperity ran contrary to the long tradition of the genuine Hebrew prophets. Amos, Hosea, Micah, Joel, and Nahum spoke words of judgment and destruction against great kingdoms like Assyria and Egypt. Peace in this context refers to the well-being and wholeness resulting from God’s restoration of the nation.

28:10, 11 Seizing the yoke from Jeremiah’s neck (ch. 27) and breaking it before the people, Hananiah made a resounding proclamation: Even so I will break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar . . . from the neck of all nations within the space of two full years. This announcement reversed every statement by Jeremiah and advanced the cause of rebellion against Babylon by Judah and the surrounding nations, something King Zedekiah had desired all along.

28:12, 13 After an indefinite period of time, the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah. God’s prophet was instructed to return to Hananiah with a new interpretation of the yoke motif. Because Hananiah had broken the original yokes of wood, God would replace them with yokes of iron that could not be broken.

28:14 All these nations against which Jeremiah originally had spoken (in 27:11–11) would serve Nebuchadnezzar.

28:15, 16 Hananiah had not been sent by God, but he had led the people astray with a lie. As a result, Hananiah would be cast . . . from the face of the earth and die that very year.

28:17 the seventh month: Two months after Hananiah prophesied about Judah’s captivity (v. 1), the false prophet was dead.

29:1 words of the letter: A written document was carried from Jerusalem to the Jews in Babylon. remainder: This may imply that some of the elders were executed in the 594 B.C. revolt alluded to in vv. 21–23.

lem to Babylon. <sup>2</sup> (This happened after <sup>b</sup>Jeconiah <sup>1</sup> the king, the <sup>c</sup>queen mother, the <sup>2</sup>eunuchs, the princes of Judah and Jerusalem, the craftsmen, and the smiths had departed from Jerusalem.) <sup>3</sup> The letter was sent by the hand of Elasah the son of <sup>d</sup>Shaphan, and Gemariah the son of Hil-kiah, whom Zedekiah king of Judah sent to Babylon, to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, saying,

- 4 Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, to all who were carried away captive, whom I have caused to be carried away from Jerusalem to Babylon:
- 5 Build houses and dwell in them; plant gardens and eat their fruit. <sup>6</sup> Take wives and beget sons and daughters; and take wives for your sons and give your daughters to husbands, so that they may bear sons and daughters—that you may be increased there, and not diminished. <sup>7</sup> And seek the peace of the city where I have caused you to be carried away captive, <sup>c</sup>and pray to the LORD for it; for in its peace you will have peace. <sup>8</sup> For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Do not let your prophets and your diviners who are in your midst <sup>f</sup>deceive you, nor listen to your dreams which you cause to be dreamed. <sup>9</sup> For their prophesy <sup>g</sup>falsely to you in My name; I have not sent them, says the LORD.

- 10 For thus says the LORD: After <sup>h</sup>seventy years are completed at Babylon, I will visit you and perform My good word toward you, and cause you to <sup>i</sup>return to this place. <sup>11</sup> For I know the thoughts that I think toward you, says the LORD, thoughts of peace and not of evil, to give you a future and a hope. <sup>12</sup> Then you will <sup>j</sup>call upon Me and go and pray to Me, and I will <sup>k</sup>listen to you. <sup>13</sup> And <sup>l</sup>you will seek Me and find Me, when you search for Me <sup>m</sup>with all your heart. <sup>14</sup> <sup>n</sup>I will be found by you, says the LORD, and I will bring you back from your captivity; <sup>o</sup>I will gather you from all the nations and from all the places where I have driven you, says the LORD, and I will bring you to the place from which I cause you to be carried away captive.

29:2 This parenthetical passage provides background from 2 Kin. 24:12–16 concerning the deportation of Jeconiah (Jehoiachin), the royal family, and chief artisans of Judah to Babylon in 597 B.C. This method of eliminating leaders and leaving the peasant population to pay taxes to the kingdom was learned from the Assyrians and was designed to reduce the likelihood of rebellion.

29:3 The messengers were Elasah the son of Shaphan, perhaps a brother of the sympathetic Ahikam (26:24), and Gemariah the son of Hilkiyah, a member of Jehoiakim’s administration (36:10).

29:4 Jeremiah reminded the exiled community that ultimately it was God, not Nebuchadnezzar, who had caused them to be carried away captive . . . to Babylon.

29:5, 6 Jeremiah had proclaimed a period of 70 years (25:12) of Babylonian exile. For the meantime, he counseled the people to settle in and carry on their normal daily activities. The terms build and plant are significant because they fulfill the particulars of Jeremiah’s call (1:10). Exile did not necessarily mean imprisonment or enslavement, but displacement and resettlement in unknown lands. be increased . . . not diminished: If the people were faithful in the circumstances of captivity, God would cause them to prosper with children and with fertile crops.

29:7 The exiles were instructed to seek and pray for the peace, or well-being, of Babylon and the other towns where they were deported. As a result, they themselves would live in peace as beneficiaries of God’s gracious sovereignty over the nations (27:5, 6).

29:8, 9 Jeremiah issued a warning against following the advice of prophets, diviners, and dreams. A similar warning was issued to the nations surrounding Judah in 27:9, 10 and to Judah in 27:14, 17.

29:10 The concept of the seventy years of Babylon captivity is reiterated from 25:12. The number 70 symbolizes completion and fulfillment of God’s sovereign plans for creation and human history. The completion of the years of the kingdom of Babylon would also be the completion of Judah’s exile.

29:11 I know the thoughts that I think: The Lord here places considerable emphasis on His unchangeable plan to bring peace and not evil. a future . . . a hope: God had not terminated His relationship with Judah; He remembered His covenant promises of restoration (see Deut. 30:1–10).

29:12, 13 The promised response of the Lord to the people’s prayers stands in contrast to His refusal to hear in 7:16. all your heart: The picture here differs greatly from the usual depiction of the heart of the people of Judah as stubborn and wicked (3:10; 4:14; 7:24). God would search the people’s heart and reveal its true character (11:20).

29:14 I will be found: Those who seek God with a whole heart will find Him and experience His renewal. I will bring you back . . . gather you . . . bring you to the place: God was the captor, and He would restore His people from captivity.

kingdoms of the earth—to be <sup>s</sup>a curse, an astonishment, a hissing, and a reproach among all the nations where I have driven them, <sup>19</sup>because they have not heeded My words, says the LORD, which <sup>1</sup>I sent to them by My servants the prophets, rising up early and sending them; neither would you heed, says the LORD. <sup>20</sup>Therefore hear the word of the LORD, all you of the captivity, whom I have sent from Jerusalem to Babylon.

<sup>21</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, concerning Ahab the son of Kolaiah, and Zedekiah the son of Maaseiah, who prophesy a <sup>u</sup>lie to you in My name: Behold, I will deliver them into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and he shall slay them before your eyes. <sup>22 v</sup> And because of them a curse shall be taken up by all the captivity of Judah who are in Babylon, saying, “The LORD make you like Zedekiah and Ahab, <sup>w</sup> whom the king of Babylon roasted in the fire”; <sup>23</sup>because <sup>x</sup> they have done disgraceful things in Israel, have committed adultery with their neighbors’ wives, and have spoken lying words in My name, which I have not commanded them. Indeed I <sup>y</sup> know, and am a witness, says the LORD.

<sup>24</sup> You shall also speak to Shemaiah the Nehelamite, saying, <sup>25</sup> Thus speaks the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, saying: You have sent letters in your name to all the people who are at Jerusalem, <sup>s</sup> to Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah the priest, and to all the priests, saying, <sup>26</sup> “The LORD has made you priest instead of Jehoiada the priest, so that there should be <sup>a</sup> officers in the house of the LORD over every man who is <sup>b</sup> demented and considers himself a prophet, that you should <sup>c</sup> put him in prison and in the stocks. <sup>27</sup> Now therefore, why have you not rebuked Jeremiah of Anathoth who makes himself a prophet to you? <sup>28</sup> For he has sent to us in Babylon, saying, “This captivity is long; build houses and dwell in them, and plant gardens and eat their fruit.”

<sup>29</sup> Now Zephaniah the priest read this letter in the hearing of Jeremiah the prophet. <sup>30</sup> Then the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, saying: <sup>31</sup> Send to all those in captivity, saying, Thus says the LORD concerning Shemaiah the Nehelamite: Because Shemaiah has prophesied to you, <sup>d</sup> and I have not sent him, and he has caused you to trust in a <sup>e</sup> lie— <sup>32</sup> therefore thus says the LORD: Behold, I will punish Shemaiah the Nehelamite and his <sup>3</sup> family: he shall not have anyone to dwell among this people, nor shall he see the good that I will do for My people, says the LORD, <sup>f</sup> because he has taught rebellion against the LORD.

Restoration of Israel and Judah

30 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying, <sup>2</sup> “Thus speaks the LORD God of Israel, saying:

29:19 The cause of Jerusalem’s shame was its failure to heed the words of God, revealed through the covenant stipulations and the diligent—rising up early—proclamation of the prophets (25:3; 26:5).

29:21 Ahab the son of Kolaiah, and Zedekiah the son of Maaseiah were the prophets spoken of in 29:15. The two were accused by Jeremiah of a deplorable crime: prophesying a lie in God’s name. Their lie was prophesying the imminent collapse of Babylon and the restoration of the captives to Jerusalem. Such false prophecy urging rebellion against God was a capital offense (see Deut. 13:5–10). The prophetic punishment of Ahab and Zedekiah was death by command of Nebuchadnezzar.

29:22, 23 This term curse may be a play on the name Kolaiah (“called of the Lord”; v. 21). He claimed to be called of God, but was cursed along with those who supported his position. These Jewish leaders had compounded their sin by doing disgraceful things (see Deut. 22:21).

29:24–28 Jeremiah addressed Shemaiah the Nehelamite concerning his correspondence with Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah and the Jerusalem priesthood. Shemaiah had challenged Zephaniah’s apparent leniency in dealing with the problem of Jeremiah’s prophecies about the exiles’ immediate future.

29:29, 30 When Zephaniah received the letter from Shemaiah, he read it to Jeremiah, who then received a word of judgment from God against Shemaiah and his family.

29:31, 32 prophesied . . . caused you to trust in a lie: The accusation against Shemaiah parallels that of numerous judgment oracles in Jeremiah (5:31; 14:14; 23:16; 27:10). The ensuing sentence against Shemaiah is like those against Pashhur (20:6), Jehoiachin or Coniah (22:30), and Hananiah (28:16).

30:2 The oracles of Jeremiah were recorded by the scribe Baruch (ch. 36). Book refers to any type of writing medium, from a clay tablet to a parchment scroll. Jeremiah’s oracles were recorded on a scroll (36:2).

hissing (Heb. shereqah) (29:18; 2 Chr. 29:8; Mic. 6:16) Strong’s #8322: The Hebrew word translated hissing is from a verb meaning “to whistle” (Is. 5:26) or “to play a pipe” as a signal for flocks (see Judg. 5:16). This word may refer to a superstitious practice among ancients: They would shake their head and whistle when passing by the ruins of a village or a deserted city, as a charm against suffering the same fate. The OT prophets used this word to warn the Israelites of the ridicule and scorn they would endure as part of God’s judgment on their sins (Lam. 2:15, 16; Zeph. 2:15). Jeremiah often used this word in connection with “astonishment” over a calamity (19:8; 29:18; 51:37). Zechariah used the same word to describe God’s gracious regathering of the Israelites from the Exile (Zech. 10:8), using the image of a shepherd whistling for his sheep.

‘Write in a book for yourself all the words that I have spoken to you. <sup>3</sup>For behold, the days are coming,’ says the LORD, ‘that <sup>a</sup>I will bring back from captivity My people Israel and Judah,’ says the LORD. <sup>b</sup>‘And I will cause them to return to the land that I gave to their fathers, and they shall possess it.’”

<sup>4</sup>Now these are the words that the LORD spoke concerning Israel and Judah.

<sup>5</sup>“For thus says the LORD:

‘We have heard a voice of trembling, Of <sup>i</sup>fear, and not of peace.

<sup>6</sup> Ask now, and see, Whether a <sup>2</sup>man is ever in <sup>3</sup>labor with child?

So why do I see every man with his hands on his loins

<sup>7</sup> <sup>d</sup>Alas! For that day is great, <sup>c</sup>So that none is like it;

And it is the time of Jacob’s trouble, But he shall be saved out of it.

<sup>8</sup> ‘For it shall come to pass in that day,’ Says the LORD of hosts,

‘That I will break his yoke from your neck,

And will burst your bonds; Foreigners shall no more enslave them.

<sup>9</sup> But they shall serve the LORD their God,

And <sup>j</sup>David their king, Whom I will <sup>g</sup>raise up for them.

<sup>10</sup> ‘Therefore <sup>h</sup>do not fear, O My servant Jacob,’ says the LORD,

‘Nor be dismayed, O Israel;

For behold, I will save you from afar, And your seed <sup>i</sup>from the land of their captivity.

Jacob shall return, have rest and be quiet,

And no one shall make him afraid.

<sup>11</sup> For I am with <sup>j</sup>you,’ says the LORD, ‘to save you;

<sup>k</sup>Though I make a full end of all nations where I have scattered you,

<sup>l</sup>Yet I will not make a complete end of you.

But I will correct you <sup>m</sup>in justice, And will not let you go altogether unpunished.’

<sup>12</sup>“For thus says the LORD:

<sup>n</sup>‘Your affliction is incurable, Your wound is severe.

<sup>13</sup> There is no one to plead your cause, That you may be bound up;

<sup>14</sup> <sup>p</sup>All your lovers have forgotten you; They do not seek you;

For I have wounded you with the wound <sup>q</sup>of an enemy,

With the chastisement <sup>r</sup>of a cruel one, For the multitude of your iniquities, <sup>s</sup>Because your sins have increased.

<sup>15</sup> Why <sup>t</sup>do you cry about your affliction?

Your sorrow is incurable.

Because of the multitude of your iniquities,

Because your sins have increased, I have done these things to you.

<sup>16</sup> ‘Therefore all those who devour you <sup>u</sup>shall be devoured;

30:3 they shall possess it: Possession of the land, as in the original possession under Joshua’s leadership, would be the responsibility of the faithful remnant living according to the covenant relationship.

30:5, 6 voice of trembling . . . fear . . . not of peace: Jeremiah’s audience was the whole nation of Israel and Judah, which had experienced the dread and horror of the day of the Lord (see Joel 1:1—2:11; Amos 5:18–20). Hands on his loins symbolizes the agony of God’s people, who had become like defenseless pregnant women in the midst of delivery before their enemies (4:31; 6:24).

30:7–9 The incomparable day of God was an ordained time of horror and distress for Israel and Judah, out of which the Lord would save them. Jeremiah expressed the hope of release from the bondage of the yoke of Babylon according to the Lord’s timing (25:12) and not that of men (28:11). Then Israel would no longer serve foreigners in foreign lands or in their own. Instead, the people of God would serve the LORD their God, and David their king. God would raise up a messianic king from David’s line to rule over the nation (see Is. 9:7; 11:1; Hos. 3:5).

30:10 My servant: The use of this terminology for Israel and Judah parallels that of Is. 42:1; 44:1. The hope of the nation was rest, tranquility in the absence of external and internal distress, and quiet, security and ease resulting from trust in the Lord.

30:12 Your affliction is incurable, Your wound is severe: God’s hand of judgment had brought serious harm to the nation, a mortal wound unless God intervened.

30:13 Healing here refers to the growth of new skin over an open wound.

30:14 Israel’s lovers were nations like Assyria, Egypt, Phoenicia, Ammon, and Edom, with whom it had made political and religious alliances. These nations had quickly forgotten Judah; they shrank back or were defeated by Nebuchadnezzar. Egypt, for example, had supported Zedekiah’s rebellion, but was defeated in 588 b.c. by Nebuchadnezzar. When the Egyptian army retreated beyond the Brook of Egypt, the army of Babylon laid siege to Jerusalem and destroyed it, in 586 b.c. (37:1–5).

30:15 iniquities . . . sins: These terms are repeated from v. 14, emphasizing the character of the people and echoing the reasons for harsh judgment. The lament applied to both the sin and its results.

30:16, 17 Restoration and healing of Israel came in two forms, retribution against its enemies and healing of its wounds.

And all your adversaries, every one of them, shall go into <sup>v</sup>captivity; Those who plunder you shall become <sup>w</sup>plunder, And all who prey upon you I will make a <sup>x</sup>prey.
 17 <sup>y</sup>For I will restore health to you And heal you of your wounds,' says the LORD,
 'Because they called you an outcast saying:
 "This is Zion;
 No one seeks her.'"

18 "Thus says the LORD:
 'Behold, I will bring back the captivity of Jacob's tents,
 And <sup>z</sup>have mercy on his dwelling places;
 The city shall be built upon its own <sup>4</sup>mound,
 And the palace shall remain according to its own plan.
 19 Then <sup>a</sup>out of them shall proceed thanksgiving
 And the voice of those who make merry;
<sup>b</sup>I will multiply them, and they shall not diminish;
 I will also glorify them, and they shall not be small.
 20 Their children also shall be <sup>c</sup>as before,
 And their congregation shall be established before Me;
 And I will punish all who oppress them.

Then I will <sup>e</sup>cause him to draw near,
 And he shall approach Me;
 For who is this who pledged his heart to approach Me?" says the LORD.

22 "You shall be <sup>f</sup>My people,
 And I will be your God."

23 Behold, the <sup>g</sup>whirlwind of the LORD
 Goes forth with fury,
 A <sup>5</sup>continuing whirlwind;
 It will fall violently on the head of the wicked.

24 The fierce anger of the LORD will not return until He has done it,
 And until He has performed the intents of His heart.

<sup>h</sup>In the latter days you will consider it.

The Remnant of Israel Saved

31 "At <sup>a</sup>the same time," says the LORD, <sup>b</sup>"I will be the God of all the families of Israel, and they shall be My people."

<sup>2</sup>Thus says the LORD:

"The people who survived the sword
 Found grace in the wilderness—
 Israel, when <sup>c</sup>I went to give him rest."

3 The LORD has appeared <sup>1</sup>of old to me,
saying:

"Yes, <sup>d</sup>I have loved you with <sup>e</sup>an everlasting love;
 Therefore with lovingkindness I have <sup>f</sup>drawn you.

4 Again <sup>g</sup>I will build you, and you shall be rebuilt,
 O virgin of Israel!
 You shall again be adorned with your <sup>h</sup>tambourines,

Four sets of terms designate God's retributive justice: those who devour would be devoured; adversaries would go into captivity; those who plunder would become plunder; and all who prey would become prey. Healing was promised in response to the people's repentance (3:22; 33:6), a reversal of their incurable position (8:22; 30:12).

30:18 Jacob's tents . . . dwelling places . . . city . . . palace: These phrases emphasize God's work in rebuilding the homes and cities of His returning exiles, from the peasant population to the administration.

30:19 Instead of the voice of lament, fear, and trembling echoing throughout the land (4:31; 30:5), the sound of thanksgiving and merrymaking would reverberate. The word thanksgiving refers to a manner of appreciative praise. Merry suggests the joy of laughter and play.

30:21 Israel's leaders would no longer be appointed by foreign kings, and foreign rulers would not preside over Israel's lands.

30:23, 24 These verses are essentially a reiteration of 23:19, 20. In this context, they attest to Israel's new understanding of its God and assure the people of God's judgment on their enemies and oppressors.

31:1 Coinciding with the restoration of the nation to its land would be the fulfillment of the covenant between God and His people, all the families of Israel.

31:2 survived the sword . . . found grace in the wilderness . . . give him rest: These phrases describe Israel's deliverance from Egypt and God's victory over the army of Pharaoh. God's grace, or favor, was manifest in the desert as He provided sustenance, shelter, and rest for His people.

31:3 Of old, which may also be translated "from afar," may refer to the betrothal days of Israel in the wilderness (2:1-3) or to the distant lands of Assyria and Babylon to which Israel and Judah had been exiled. The phrase everlasting love is paralleled with lovingkindness, which means "loyal love" or "covenant loyalty." Out of His faithfulness to the covenants He established with Abraham and Moses, and out of His great love, God established the nation Israel for His glory and for hers. The Lord would also deliver His people from captivity and reestablish them by His love.

31:4 There will be rejoicing as village life is restored. I will build: In Ps. 127:1, the psalmist says that unless God builds a house, the labor is in vain. O virgin of Israel: Earlier in Jeremiah, this expression was used sadly in depicting the departure

And shall go forth in the dances of those who rejoice.
 5 <sup>i</sup> You shall yet plant vines on the mountains of Samaria; The planters shall plant and <sup>2</sup> eat them as ordinary food.
 6 For there shall be a day When the watchmen will cry on Mount Ephraim,
<sup>j</sup> Arise, and let us go up to Zion, To the LORD our God?<sup>7</sup>
 7 For thus says the LORD:
<sup>k</sup> Sing with gladness for Jacob, And shout among the chief of the nations;
 Proclaim, give praise, and say,
 ‘O LORD, save Your people, The remnant of Israel!’

8 Behold, I will bring them <sup>l</sup> from the north country, And <sup>m</sup> gather them from the ends of the earth, Among them the blind and the lame, The woman with child And the one who labors with child, together; A great throng shall return there.
 9 <sup>n</sup> They shall come with weeping, And with supplications I will lead them. I will cause them to walk <sup>o</sup> by the rivers of waters, In a straight way in which they shall not stumble; For I am a Father to Israel, And Ephraim is My <sup>p</sup> firstborn.
 10 “Hear the word of the LORD, O nations, of Israel from faith in God (2:32; 14:17). Here the image is reversed; Israel is rebuilt in the manner of her former betrothal (2:2), having become again like a virgin bride to God. adorned . . . go forth in the dances: Joyful celebration of marriage and festival throughout villages is in view here (v. 13).

31:5 The mountains of Samaria, which were ravaged by the Assyrians in 733–722 B.C., would be replanted with vineyards. The hills would produce fruit for consumption rather than tribute for foreign powers. The plantings would be for regular, normal enjoyment—a gift of God in the lives of His people.

31:6 The day would come when the nation would be united once again, with northern kingdom Israelites making pilgrimages to Zion (Jerusalem) for worship, instead of continuing to visit the rival sanctuaries of Dan and Bethel (see 1 Kin. 12:27–29). The purpose of the watchmen would be not to warn the people about oncoming armies but to call them to come with joy to the holy city.

31:7 The chief of the nations would be Jacob, meaning Israel.

In 15:9 the remnant is described as all but vanquished. Here the restored community shouts for joy.

31:9 weeping . . . supplications: Phrases from the Songs of Ascents (Ps. 120–134) are found here. In Ps. 126, those who are weeping are filled with gladness at the Lord’s return of exiles from captivity. rivers of waters: This imagery of God’s provision of life-sustaining water through the desert is like Is. 35:5–7. The reference to the straight way parallels Is. 40:3–5. Father: This text is one of the few cases in the OT where the fatherhood of God is portrayed directly (see Deut. 32:6; Is. 63:16). Israel was familiar with the idea of God as Father, but it was not until the teaching of Jesus that the phrase took on the importance that we understand it to have in our lives today. Firstborn conveys the concept of preeminence (31:7; Deut. 32:9).

31:10, 11 God would be the people’s good shepherd, unlike past kings (23:1–4). redeemed . . . ransomed: These two terms for redemption describe the transfer of ownership of Israel

The New Covenant Jeremiah is the only Old Testament prophet who speaks of the New Covenant that Jesus inaugurated (see Matt. 26:28). Some readers, desiring to celebrate what is “new” in the “New Covenant,” might be tempted to disparage the former covenant, the Mosaic covenant. But we should be careful to avoid any implication that there was something wrong in the covenant God had graciously bestowed on Israel. God had never designed the Law of Moses as a means to obtain salvation. Instead, forgiveness of sins has always been God’s gracious gift to those who have humbled themselves before Him in faith (see Gen. 15:6; Mic. 6:6–8; Rom. 4:1–5:2; 7:13–25). The Law was God’s way of pointing out the pathway that believers should walk. Thus the problem with the covenant at Mount Sinai was not in God’s provision, but in Israel’s response. The Israelites had continually broken the covenant. Time and again through priests and prophets God called His people to repent, but any change of heart they underwent they soon abandoned. In the days of Jeremiah, King Josiah destroyed the idols that were in the land. But soon after this godly king died, the people turned back to worshiping the idols of the neighboring countries. The hearts of the people remained unchanged. Only God Himself could change hearts and minds: thus a New Covenant was needed.

The announcement of a New Covenant by the prophet Jeremiah would have been alarming to godly Israelites. After all, the old covenant had come from the very hand of God and had been accompanied by miracles and wonders. But the New Covenant would also be accompanied by the miracle of changed hearts and lives. The very Spirit of God would enter people’s lives in order to assure their adherence to the covenant (31:34; see Acts 2). No longer would intermediaries like priests or prophets have to stand between the people and God. The Spirit would teach the people the knowledge of God—a knowledge that would be evidenced by faith, obedience, and devotion to the Lord. Jesus fulfilled Jeremiah’s prediction of the coming of a New Covenant through His work on the Cross. By His death, the giving of His lifeblood for many, redemption and forgiveness of sins were attained (31:34). While Jesus was on earth, He instructed His disciples in His Father’s ways (Luke 24:13–27). But after Jesus ascended to heaven, the Spirit of God was poured out on the believers gathered in Jerusalem, fulfilling the promise spoken by Jeremiah.

Mercy on Ephraim

- <sup>x</sup>“A voice was heard in <sup>y</sup>Ramah,
 Lamentation and bitter <sup>z</sup>weeping,
 Rachel weeping for her children,
 Refusing to be comforted for her
 children,
 Because <sup>a</sup>they are no more.”

<sup>16</sup> Thus says the LORD:

- “Refrain your voice from <sup>b</sup>weeping,
 And your eyes from tears;
 For your work shall be rewarded,
 says the LORD,
 And they shall come back from the land of the enemy.
<sup>17</sup> There is <sup>c</sup>hope in your future, says
 the LORD,
 That your children shall come back to their own border.
<sup>18</sup> “I have surely heard Ephraim bemoaning himself:
 ‘You have <sup>d</sup>chastised me, and I was chastised,
 Like an untrained bull;
 ‘Restore me, and I will return,
 For You are the LORD my God.
<sup>19</sup> Surely, <sup>e</sup>after my turning, I repented;
 And after I was instructed, I struck myself on the thigh;
 I was <sup>f</sup>ashamed, yes, even humiliated, Because I bore the reproach of my youth.’
<sup>20</sup> Is Ephraim My dear son?
Is he a pleasant child?
 For though I spoke against him,
 I earnestly remember him still;
<sup>h</sup>Therefore My <sup>g</sup>heart yearns for him;
<sup>i</sup>I will surely have mercy on him, says
 the LORD.
<sup>21</sup> “Set up signposts,
 Make landmarks;
<sup>j</sup>Set your heart toward the highway,
 The way in which you went.
<sup>6</sup> Turn back, O virgin of Israel,
 Turn back to these your cities.
<sup>22</sup> How long will you <sup>k</sup>gad about,
 O you <sup>l</sup>backsliding daughter?
 For the LORD has created a new thing in the earth—
 A woman shall encompass a man.”

from the mighty Babylon to the incomparable God. Israel’s freedom was gained by God, its great “kinsman redeemer” (see Is. 51:10, 11).

31:12 The blessings of the goodness of the Lord are bountiful crops, flocks, and vineyards (see Ps. 65). well-watered garden: This expression of blessing upon the crops is also found in Is. 58:11.

31:14 The theme of joy is summarized in God’s intention to fill the priests and the people with abundance. Jeremiah gave the people hope and comfort in facing the poverty and oppression of exile and captivity.

31:15 According to 1 Sam. 10:2, 3, Rachel’s tomb was near Zelzah, which was near Ramah in Benjamin. This may have been a memorial for Rachel, located in the tribal allotment of the descendants of her son Benjamin (see Gen. 35:16–20). Genesis says that Rachel was buried in Ephrath, near Bethlehem (Gen. 35:19; 48:7). Rachel was the mother of the northern Israelite tribes of Benjamin and Joseph, whose sons were Ephraim and Manasseh. Rachel’s bitter weeping was caused by the exile and captivity of her children. She refused to be comforted in her sorrow and loss.

31:17 Hope describes a faith that waits expectantly for God’s redemptive and eternal blessing. their own border: Ephraim would be restored to its God-ordained territories.

31:18, 19 struck . . . on the thigh: This indicates an outward demonstration of remorse over sin and change of life (see Ezek. 21:12).

31:20 My heart yearns: This phrase describes the Lord’s deep love and concern for the welfare of His children.

31:21 The signposts and landmarks would point out the way to the people’s homeland. More importantly, Israel was instructed to set its heart toward the way that is the path of faith in its God.

31:22 Backsliding was a major theme in 3:6–4:4, describing the continual waywardness of the nation. Here the Lord was bringing about the re-creation of His people. A new thing probably refers to the fact that virgin Israel would encompass or cling to her divine Bridegroom.

Future Prosperity of Judah

<sup>23</sup>Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: “They shall again use this speech in the land of Judah and in its cities, when I bring back their captivity: <sup>m</sup>“The LORD bless you, O home of justice, and <sup>n</sup>mountain of holiness!” <sup>24</sup>And there shall dwell in Judah itself, and <sup>o</sup>in all its cities together, farmers and those going out with flocks. <sup>25</sup>For I have <sup>r</sup>satiated the weary soul, and I have replenished every sorrowful soul.”

<sup>26</sup>After this I awoke and looked around, and my sleep was <sup>s</sup>sweet to me.

<sup>27</sup>“Behold, the days are coming, says the LORD, that <sup>q</sup>I will sow the house of Israel and the house of Judah with the seed of man and the seed of beast. <sup>28</sup>And it shall come to pass, that as I have <sup>r</sup>watched over them <sup>s</sup>to pluck up, to break down, to throw down, to destroy, and to afflict, so I will watch over them <sup>t</sup>to build and to plant, says the LORD. <sup>29</sup><sup>u</sup>In those days they shall say no more:

‘The fathers have eaten sour grapes,
And the children’s teeth are set on edge.’

<sup>30</sup><sup>v</sup>But every one shall die for his own iniquity; every man who eats the sour grapes, his teeth shall be set on edge.

A New Covenant

<sup>31</sup>“Behold, the <sup>w</sup>days are coming, says the LORD, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah— <sup>32</sup>not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that <sup>x</sup>I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt, My covenant which they broke, <sup>3</sup>though I was a husband to them, says the LORD. <sup>33</sup><sup>y</sup>But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, says the LORD: <sup>2</sup>I will put My law in their minds, and write it on their <sup>9</sup>hearts; <sup>4</sup>and I will be their God, and they shall be My people. <sup>34</sup>No more shall every man teach his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, ‘Know the LORD,’ for <sup>b</sup>they all shall know Me, from the least of them to the greatest of them, says the LORD. For <sup>c</sup>I will forgive their iniquity, and their sin I will remember no more.”

<sup>d</sup>Who gives the sun for a light by day,
The ordinances of the moon and the stars for a light by night,
Who disturbs <sup>e</sup>the sea,

Rom. 11:27] <sup>35</sup> <sup>d</sup>Gen. 1:14-18; Deut. 4:19; Ps. 72:5, 17; 89:2, 36; 119:91 <sup>e</sup>Is. 51:15

31:23–26 Mountain of holiness refers to the ideal city of Jerusalem, the holy mountain home of God, the Righteous One, and Judah, His righteous remnant. As with Israel, Judah’s reestablishment would see renewed productivity of its crops and flocks (31:5, 12). The people would be satiated (31:14).

31:27, 28 sow: God would plant and multiply the seed of man and animal in the land of Judah. To build and to plant are the same terms used in Jeremiah’s call (1:10).

31:29, 30 The proverb in this passage is also found in Ezek. 18:2. The contexts in both books indicate that this proverb is not original to Jeremiah or Ezekiel. In Israel and other ancient Middle Eastern communities, corporate responsibility was emphasized in legal and moral matters (see Deut. 5:9), though individual accountability was not overlooked (see Deut. 24:16; 2 Sam. 12:1–15). In Jeremiah and Ezekiel, focus is placed on the responsibility of the individual for his or her own iniquity.

31:31 days are coming: In Jeremiah, this phrase usually introduces a special occasion of divine intervention in history. new covenant: As contrasted with the Mosaic and Deuteronomic covenant. house of Israel . . . house of Judah: According to 11:10, both kingdoms had broken God’s covenant by rejecting His words and by worshipping other gods.

31:32 The old covenant demanded adherence to stipulations (see Ex. 19:1–23:33) which the people were unable to keep. Above all other commandments, the people were commanded to love and serve God and abandon all others (see Ex. 23:33; Deut. 6:4, 5). This they did not do. fathers: From the wilderness period (see Ex. 32:1–10; Num. 25:1–9) until the days of Manasseh, the history of Israel was permeated with idolatrous activity, only occasionally broken by periods of true faithfulness to God. The people seemed incapable of acting in sustained obedience to the covenant. husband: As Hosea was to Gomer, the Lord had been a faithful and devoted husband to Israel.

31:33 I will make: The new covenant would be initiated by God Himself, assuring its effectiveness. after those days: This expression looks forward to the time of fulfillment of the new covenant, which found fruition in the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ. put My law in their minds . . . write it on their hearts: Together the mind and heart describe the total inner motivations of mind, will, emotion, and spirit.

31:34 No more shall every man teach: No longer would intermediaries like priests or prophets be needed to show the people how to know the LORD. From youngest to oldest, from peasant farmer to kings and princes, all would know God. Knowledge of God is a major theme of Jeremiah (2:8; 4:22; 5:4; 8:7) as well as of other prophets (see Hos. 5:4). This knowledge is an intimate relationship with God evidenced by faith, obedience, and devotion. God will forgive and will purposefully not remember the sin and iniquity of His people who come to Him in repentance and faith. Jesus the Messiah fulfilled this promised New Covenant through His work on the Cross (see Matt. 26:26–28; Mark 14:22–24; 1 Cor. 11:25).

31:35 sun . . . moon . . . stars: God, the Creator of all things, entered into covenant with His people. sea . . . waves: The Hebrew people learned from their Canaanite neighbors to fear the sea (see Ps. 93). But God is Master of the sea, as He is Master of all things (see Is. 51:15).

plant (Heb. nata’) (1:10; 18:9; 31:28; 2 Sam. 7:10) Strong’s #5193: Aside from references to the planting of crops (Gen. 9:20), this verb is used to describe the placement of tents and other objects on the ground (Dan. 11:45). Jeremiah uses this word to testify of God’s sovereignty not only over Israel but over the establishment and eventual overthrow of all powers great and small on earth (12:2). Since God planted and established every nation, He could also uproot them whenever He wished (1:10).

And its waves roar
<sup>f</sup>(The LORD of hosts is His name):

<sup>36</sup> “If <sup>g</sup>those ordinances depart
 From before Me, says the LORD,
 Then the seed of Israel shall also cease
 From being a nation before Me

<sup>37</sup> Thus says the LORD:

<sup>h</sup>“If heaven above can be measured,
 And the foundations of the earth
 searched out beneath,
 I will also <sup>i</sup>cast off all the seed of Israel
 For all that they have done, says the
 LORD.

<sup>38</sup> “Behold, the days are coming, says the LORD, that the city shall be built for shut up <sup>b</sup>in the court of the prison, which was in the king of Judah’s house. <sup>3</sup>For Zedekiah king of Judah had shut him up, saying, “Why do you <sup>c</sup>prophesy and say, ‘Thus says the LORD: <sup>d</sup>“Behold, I will give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it; <sup>4</sup>and Zedekiah king of Judah <sup>e</sup>shall not escape from the hand of the Chaldeans, but shall surely be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon, and shall speak with him <sup>f</sup>face to face, and see him <sup>g</sup>eye to eye; <sup>5</sup>then he shall <sup>h</sup>lead Zedekiah to Babylon, and there he shall be <sup>i</sup>until I visit him,” says the LORD; <sup>i</sup>“though you fight with the Chaldeans, you shall not succeed”?”

<sup>6</sup> And Jeremiah said, “The word of the LORD came to me, saying, <sup>7</sup>“Behold, Hana-mel the son of Shallum your uncle will come to you, saying, “Buy my field which is in Anathoth, for the <sup>j</sup>right of redemption is yours to buy it.”” <sup>8</sup>Then Hanamel my uncle’s son came to me in the court of the prison according to the word of the LORD, and said to me, “Please buy my field that is in Anathoth, which is in the country of Benjamin; for the right of inheritance is yours, and the redemption yours; buy it for yourself’ Then I knew that this was the word of the LORD. <sup>9</sup>So I bought the field from Hanamel, the son of my uncle who was in Anathoth, and <sup>k</sup>weighed out to him the money—seventeen shekels of silver. <sup>10</sup> And I signed the <sup>2</sup>deed and sealed it, took witnesses, and weighed the money on the scales. <sup>11</sup> So I took the purchase deed, <sup>both</sup> that which was sealed according to the law and custom, and that which was open; <sup>12</sup> and I gave the purchase deed to <sup>l</sup>Baruch the

31:36, 37 Ordinances here are the natural laws that govern creation. The foundation of the New Covenant is as sure as the God who maintains creation. measured . . . searched out: At the peak of Judah’s apostasy, shortly before the destruction of the nation by Babylon in divine judgment, the Lord emphatically reaffirmed His covenant relationship with the Jewish people in such strong terms that the promise was unbreakable, even by Him. When we observe the sun, moon, or stars in the sky (v. 35), we should remember God’s promise to the Jewish people, even as God does.

31:38-40 days are coming: This expression introduces a new era in the history of God’s dealing with His people. A survey is made of the environs of the new Jerusalem, a city built for the LORD in its entirety. The Tower of Hananel (see Neh. 3:1) was located at the northeast corner of the city. The Corner Gate (see 2 Kin. 14:13) was to the northwest. Expansion of the northwest side of the city took place under Uzziah and Hezekiah. The valley of the dead bodies is probably a reference to the Valley of Hinnom, where children had been sacrificed in times of terrible apostasy (7:32). The fields as far as the Brook Kidron are the slopes of Mt. Zion bordered by the Valley of Hinnom. plucked up . . . thrown down: The destructive terms of Jeremiah’s call are employed again (1:10). No longer would the city see devastation, for it would be holy to the LORD.

32:1, 2 This verse relates the chronologies of Israel and Babylon. Nebuchadnezzar’s eighteenth year was 588 B.C., at the beginning of the siege of Jerusalem. The siege resulted from Zedekiah’s revolt against Babylonian rule.

32:3-5 Jeremiah was imprisoned for his declaration that Jerusalem would fall to the Chaldeans and Zedekiah would be taken captive. face to face . . . eye to eye: The one-on-one confrontation with Nebuchadnezzar would result in the removal of Zedekiah’s eyes (39:5-7).

32:6-8 The Lord instructed Jeremiah to purchase a field in his hometown of Anathoth, three miles north of Jerusalem, when Jeremiah’s cousin Hanamel came to visit. right of redemption: According to Lev. 25:25-30, a man had the right to redeem property when a relative found it necessary to sell land because of debt or financial failure.

32:9 The land transaction was conducted according to the legal customs of the day. The price of seventeen shekels would amount to about seven ounces of silver.

32:10, 11 According to custom, one copy of a deed was sealed for safekeeping; a second copy was left open for future consultation.

32:12 Baruch the son of Neriah: This friend of Jeremiah is first mentioned here (see ch. 36); he may have brought the silver for the land to Jeremiah in prison.

<sup>13</sup>“Then I charged Baruch before them, saying, <sup>14</sup>“Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: “Take these deeds, both this purchase deed which is sealed and this deed which is open, and put them in an earthen vessel, that they may last many days.” <sup>15</sup>For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: “Houses and fields and vineyards shall be o possessed again in this land.””

Jeremiah Prays for Understanding

<sup>16</sup>“Now when I had delivered the purchase deed to Baruch the son of Neriah, I prayed to the LORD, saying: <sup>17</sup>“Ah, Lord God! Behold, p You have made the heavens and the earth by Your great power and outstretched arm. q There is nothing too <sup>3</sup>hard for You. <sup>18</sup> You show r lovingkindness to thousands, and repay the iniquity of the fathers into the bosom of their children after them—the Great, s the Mighty God, whose name is t the LORD of hosts. <sup>19</sup> You are u great in counsel and mighty in v work, for Your w eyes are open to all the ways of the sons of men, x to give everyone according to his ways and according to the fruit of his doings. <sup>20</sup> You have set signs and wonders in the land of Egypt, to this day, and in Israel and among other men; and You have made Yourself x a name, as it is this day. <sup>21</sup> You y have brought Your people Israel out of the land of Egypt with signs and wonders, with a strong hand and an outstretched arm, and with great terror; <sup>22</sup> You have given them this land, of which You swore to their

God's Assurance of the People's Return

<sup>26</sup>Then the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, saying, <sup>27</sup>“Behold, I am the LORD, the c God of all flesh. Is there anything too hard for Me? <sup>28</sup>Therefore thus says the LORD: ‘Behold, I will give this city into the hand of the Chaldeans, into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and he shall take it. <sup>29</sup>And the Chaldeans who fight against this city shall come and d set fire to this city and burn it, with the houses e on whose roofs they have offered incense to Baal and poured out drink offerings to other gods, to provoke Me to anger; <sup>30</sup>because the children of Israel and the children of Judah f have done only evil before Me from their youth. For the children of Israel have provoked Me only to anger with the work of their hands,’ says the LORD. <sup>31</sup>‘For this city has been to Me a provocation of My anger and My fury from the day that they built it,

32:13–15 earthen vessel: Examples of storage jars that served as safety-deposit vessels have been excavated in Judah. The Dead Sea Scrolls were also stored in ceramic vessels, aiding their preservation for almost two thousand years. The illustrated message of the purchase was assurance and confirmation that restoration of the land was certain. shall be possessed again: Jeremiah realized that the end of the city was near (v. 2); his action in purchasing land was a remarkable demonstration of faith in God that the people of Judah would return one day to their land.

32:17 There is nothing too hard for You: Affirming God's power in creation (27:5) bolstered Jeremiah's faith in God's ability to deal with the siege of Jerusalem.

32:18, 19 The Lord's mercy and devotion to His people was demonstrated in His extending lovingkindness, or loyal love, to thousands (see Deut. 5:9, 10). The Lord's faithful love far outweighs His punishing judgment, but the seriousness of sin is not to be overlooked (see Ex. 20:5, 6; 34:7). everyone according to his ways: Each man and woman will be judged individually on the basis of his or her own actions (17:10).

32:20, 21 The great historical demonstration of God's loyal love was the exodus of Israel from Egypt. This was accomplished with signs and wonders (see Ps. 78:43) by which the name of God was made known among nations such as Moab (see Num. 22–24), and peoples such as those in Jericho (see Josh. 2:8–14). strong hand . . . outstretched arm: These expressions are found in Israel's confessional statement regarding the Exodus (Deut. 26:8). The addition of great terror indicates the mighty acts done against the Egyptians.

32:22, 23 The final step in this rehearsal of history was the gift of the Promised Land. not obeyed: The nation responded to God's grace with disobedience and breaking of the covenant, resulting in the calamity of the Babylonian siege and the eventual destruction of Jerusalem.

32:24, 25 You see it: What Jeremiah had prophesied in the name of God, the attack of the Babylonian foe from the north and the ensuing sword, famine, and pestilence (21:7), was now being fulfilled. Buying a field in a disintegrating land seemed out of line with Jeremiah's previous messages of destruction. Why buy land in a region overrun by Babylonians?

32:26, 27 God of all flesh: God was Lord over Israel and Judah, and Lord over the nations (27:1–11)—including mighty Babylon (25:15–26).

even to this day;<sup>a</sup> so I will remove it from before My face<sup>32</sup> because of all the evil of the children of Israel and the children of Judah, which they have done to provoke Me to anger—<sup>b</sup> they, their kings, their princes, their priests, <sup>c</sup> their prophets, the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem.<sup>33</sup> And they have turned to Me the <sup>d</sup>back, and not the face; though I taught them, <sup>e</sup> rising up early and teaching them, yet they have not listened to receive instruction.<sup>34</sup> But they <sup>f</sup>set their abominations in <sup>g</sup>the house which is called by My name, to defile it.<sup>35</sup> And they built the high places of Baal which are in the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, to <sup>h</sup>cause their sons and their daughters to pass through the fire to “Molech,” which I did not command them, nor did it come into My mind that they should do this abomination, to cause Judah to sin.<sup>36</sup>

<sup>36</sup>“Now therefore, thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, concerning this city of which you say, ‘It shall be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence:’<sup>37</sup> Behold, I will <sup>i</sup>gather them out of all countries where I have driven them in My anger, in My fury, and in great wrath; I will bring them back to this place, and I will cause them <sup>j</sup>to dwell safely.<sup>38</sup> They shall be <sup>k</sup>My people, and I will be their God; <sup>l</sup>then I will <sup>m</sup>give them one heart and one way, that they may fear Me forever, for the good of them and their children after them.<sup>40</sup> And ‘I will make an everlasting covenant with them, that I will not turn away from doing them good; but ‘I will put My fear in their hearts so that they will not depart from

<sup>42</sup>“For thus says the LORD: <sup>ab</sup>‘Just as I have brought all this great calamity on this people, so I will bring on them all the good that I have promised them.<sup>43</sup> And fields will be bought in this land <sup>ac</sup>of which you say, ‘It is desolate, without man or beast; it has been given into the hand of the Chaldeans.’<sup>44</sup> Men will buy fields for money, sign deeds and seal them, and take witnesses, in <sup>ad</sup>the land of Benjamin, in the places around Jerusalem, in the cities of Judah, in the cities of the mountains, in the cities of the <sup>ae</sup>lowland, and in the cities of the <sup>af</sup>South; for <sup>ag</sup>‘I will cause their captives to return,’ says the LORD.”

Excellence of the Restored Nation

33 Moreover the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah a second time, while he was still <sup>ah</sup>shut up in the court of the prison, saying, <sup>ai</sup>“Thus says the LORD <sup>aj</sup>who made it, (the <sup>ak</sup>LORD is His name): <sup>al</sup>‘Call to Me, and I will answer you, and show you great and <sup>am</sup>mighty things, which you do not know.’

<sup>44</sup>“For thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, concerning the houses of this city and the houses of the kings of Judah, which have been pulled down to fortify against <sup>an</sup>the siege mounds and the sword:

3 <sup>d</sup> Ps. 91:15; [Is. 55:6, 7]; Jer. 29:12 inaccessible 4 <sup>e</sup> Is. 22:10; Jer. 32:24; Ezek. 4:2; 21:22; Hab. 1:10

32:32 kings . . . princes . . . priests . . . prophets . . . men of Judah . . . inhabitants of Jerusalem: This exhaustive list indicates the rebellion of the entire nation against God.

32:36 This verse serves as a summary of the situation in Jerusalem, described by the regular triad of devastation: sword . . . famine . . . pestilence.

32:39 one heart . . . one way: Because the Lord had written on the heart of the people a New Covenant (31:33), no longer would they worship other deities and turn to foreign nations for help. The word way is often used in Jeremiah to denote the character of a person's life, whether evil (4:18; 7:3, 5; 10:2; 18:11) or good (7:23). fear Me: To fear God is to submit to His sovereign majesty and walk according to His way.

32:40 The expression everlasting covenant is also found in Is. 55:3; Ezek. 16:60; 37:26. In Ezekiel it is equated with a “covenant of peace” that God will establish with His people. This covenant will be everlasting, unlike the Sinai covenant which had been broken and ignored for so long. My fear in their hearts: This phrasing closely parallels in meaning and purpose that of the New Covenant of 31:31–34.

32:41 plant: This term from Jeremiah's call (1:10) depicts God establishing His people back in their homeland with a restoration of peace and prosperity. My heart . . . My soul: These terms describe God's total devotion of heart, will, and emotions to His faithful children.

32:42–44 calamity . . . good: God would act to reverse the manner in which He dealt with His people after they had been punished by the Babylonians. Men will buy fields: Final assurance is given to Jeremiah, who had purchased a field in perilous and disastrous times. Fields would be bought and sold again throughout the land when the captives had been brought home.

33:1 while he was still shut up: A chronological tie is made to 32:2 (588 B.C.). Jeremiah had been placed under palace court guard because of what his enemies regarded as “seditious speeches,” announcing the fall of Jerusalem and giving advice to Zedekiah to surrender to Nebuchadnezzar.

33:3 Jeremiah urged the people to call out to the Lord, pointing out that this time the Lord would hear and answer (7:16) their cries. Mighty things has the abstract meaning of “inaccessible” or “unfathomable.” God had done great things in creation; here the people were invited to observe anew the unfathomable greatness of God's work on their behalf.

33:4, 5 Houses that were built along the city walls could be torn down and filled with rubble to produce a wider, more solid wall. This was one means of combating the sloping earthen siege ramparts that armies constructed opposite domestic quarters rather than at heavily fortified towers or gates.

<sup>5</sup>“They come to fight with the Chaldeans, but only to <sup>f</sup>fill their places with the dead bodies of men whom I will slay in My anger and My fury, all for whose wickedness I have hidden My face from this city. <sup>6</sup>Behold, <sup>g</sup>I will bring it health and healing; I will heal them and reveal to them the abundance of peace and truth. <sup>7</sup>And <sup>h</sup>I will cause the captives of Judah and the captives of Israel to return, and will rebuild those places <sup>i</sup>as at the first. <sup>8</sup>I will <sup>j</sup>cleanse them from all their iniquity by which they have sinned against Me, and I will pardon all their iniquities by which they have sinned and by which they have transgressed against Me. <sup>9</sup><sup>k</sup>Then it shall be to Me a name of joy, a praise, and an honor before all nations of the earth, who shall hear all the good that I do to them; they shall <sup>l</sup>fear and tremble for all the goodness and all the prosperity that I provide for it.”

<sup>10</sup>“Thus says the LORD: ‘Again there shall be heard in this place—<sup>m</sup> of which you say, “It is desolate, without man and without beast”—in the cities of Judah, in the streets of Jerusalem that are desolate, without man and without inhabitant and without beast, <sup>11</sup>the <sup>n</sup>voice of joy and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, the voice of those who will say:

“Praise the LORD of hosts,
For the LORD is good,
For His mercy endures forever”—

and of those who will bring <sup>p</sup>the sacrifice of praise into the house of the LORD. For I will cause the captives of the land to return as at the first,’ says the LORD.

<sup>12</sup>“Thus says the LORD of hosts: <sup>q</sup>“In this place which is desolate, without man and without beast, and in all its cities, there shall again be a dwelling place

The Permanence of God’s Covenant

<sup>19</sup>And the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, saying, <sup>20</sup>“Thus says the LORD: ‘If you can break My covenant with the day and My covenant with the night, so that there will not be day and night in their season, <sup>21</sup>then <sup>aa</sup>My covenant may also be broken with David My servant, so that he shall not have a son to reign on his throne, and with the Levites, the priests,

33:6 Judah and Jerusalem in their idolatry and rebellion were without peace and health (8:15, 22). The Lord promised healing in response to their repentance (3:22; 30:17).

33:8 Forgiveness is described with two terms, cleanse and pardon. The word cleanse describes ritual purification of what is physically or spiritually unclean or defiled, like Israel and Judah (2:23; 7:30). Pardon means “to forgive,” and in the OT is used only with God as the subject as He forgives man. This fact helps us understand the reaction of the scribes when they heard Jesus forgiving sins (see Mark 2:7).

33:9 As the citizens of Moab (see Num. 22:1–6) and Jericho (see Josh. 2:8–14) were full of fear and trembling before the nation that had benefited from the Lord’s mighty works, so all would fear and tremble in amazement at God’s new masterwork.

33:12, 13 The focus turns to the regions within the nation of Judah that would experience God’s mighty restoration. desolate: Note the parallel judgment in 7:34; 25:9. The regions listed are similar to those in 17:26. The six locations are organized around two triads: one introduced by the words mountains (the hill country), lowland (the Shephelah), and South (the Negev); and the second moving in a north-south direction: Benjamin, around Jerusalem, Judah. The term flocks is used to depict the Israelites as they returned from captivity into the fold of the holy city of Jerusalem.

33:15, 16 These verses closely parallel 23:5, 6, which has as its focus the royal leadership of the nation, the combined restored Israel and Judah. Branch of righteousness: God would raise up a messianic king of Davidic lineage who would rule according to the divine ideal, with judgment, meaning justice, and righteousness. saved . . . dwell safely: Following the devastation of the Babylonian onslaught, Jerusalem would exist under divine protection.

33:17, 18 The Davidic covenant of divine succession is reiterated (see 2 Sam. 7:12–16). The Levitical priesthood would likewise be heirs to a divine succession in overseeing the sacrificial system in the Jerusalem temple. Jesus, as Priest and King, fulfills both offices in the New Covenant.

My ministers. <sup>22</sup>As <sup>a</sup>the host of heaven cannot be numbered, nor the sand of the sea measured, so will I <sup>b</sup>multiply the descendants of David My servant and the <sup>c</sup>Levites who minister to Me.”

<sup>23</sup>Moreover the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, saying, <sup>24</sup>“Have you not considered what these people have spoken, saying, ‘The two families which the LORD has chosen, He has also cast them off’? Thus they have <sup>d</sup>despised My people, as if they should no more be a nation before them.

<sup>25</sup>“Thus says the LORD: ‘If <sup>e</sup>My covenant is not with day and night, and if I have not <sup>f</sup>appointed the ordinances of heaven and earth, <sup>26</sup><sup>g</sup>then I will <sup>h</sup>cast away the descendants of Jacob and David My servant, so that I will not take any of his descendants to be rulers over the descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. For I will cause their captives to return, and will have mercy on them.’”

Zedekiah Warned by God

34 The word which came to Jeremiah from the LORD, <sup>a</sup>when Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and all his army, <sup>b</sup>all the kingdoms of the earth under his dominion, and all the people, fought against Jerusalem and all its cities, saying, <sup>2</sup>“Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: ‘Go and <sup>c</sup>speak to Zedekiah king of Judah and tell him, “Thus says the LORD: ‘Behold, <sup>d</sup>I will give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he

Treacherous Treatment of Slaves

<sup>8</sup>This is the word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, after King Zedekiah had made a covenant with all the people who were at Jerusalem to proclaim <sup>k</sup>liberty to them: <sup>9</sup><sup>l</sup>that every man should set free his male and female slave—a Hebrew man or woman—<sup>m</sup>that no one should keep a Jewish brother in bondage. <sup>10</sup>Now when all the princes and all the people, who had entered into the covenant, heard that everyone should set free his male and female slaves, that no one should keep

33:23, 24 The two families in this context are the houses of David and Levi (see Zech. 12:12, 13). Because of their sins of rebellion against the covenant and their idolatry, Israel and Judah were despised (6:30; 7:29) by God and ridiculed among the nations.

33:25, 26 Ordinances refers to the laws which govern the divine order of the cosmos (5:22; 31:35, 36). If day and night should cease, only then would God cast away the great multitude of the descendants of Jacob. The promise of leadership succession is extended to the nation in terms of its existence as the people of God. The evidence of that promise and God’s mercy would be the return and restoration of the exiles to the land of God’s inheritance.

34:1 all his army . . . all the kingdoms . . . all the people: Jeremiah pictured all the armed forces of Babylon and its vassals arrayed simultaneously against Judah and Jerusalem.

34:2, 3 you shall not escape: Though Zedekiah attempted to flee to Jericho, Nebuchadnezzar’s forces captured him and brought him to Riblah for a face to face meeting with Nebuchadnezzar (32:3, 4).

34:4, 5 In 21:4-7, Jeremiah proclaimed the destruction of Jerusalem and the death of its inhabitants by sword, pestilence, and famine. The particular implications for Zedekiah are outlined here. The king would die in peace in Babylon, meaning that he would not be executed by the sword. According to 2 Kin. 25:6, 7, his sons were killed before his eyes and then his eyes were put out.

34:7 The background of the siege of Judah and Jerusalem is outlined. The fortifications at Azekah and Lachish in the lowlands were the avenue through which possible aid from Egypt would have come. They were the last to fall before Jerusalem was destroyed.

34:8, 9 covenant: A legal agreement was made between Zedekiah and the people of Jerusalem during the Babylonian siege to release from bondage all Hebrew slaves. Liberty is a technical word for the release of Hebrew slaves every 50 years in the Year of Jubilee (see Lev. 25:8-10), when slaves were freed and indebted land was returned to its original owners. In Deut. 15:1, 12-15, a similar release during the sabbatical year is outlined.

34:10, 11 The princes concurred with the king’s covenant (vv. 8, 9) and released Jews in bondage to them, but then reversed their decision when the siege was briefly withdrawn (vv. 21, 22). This opportunism in a moment of crisis demonstrated the leaders’ contempt of the covenant.

cast away (Heb. ma’as) (8:9; 33:26; Lev. 26:43). Strong’s #3988: This Hebrew verb means “to despise,” “to hold without regard,” or “to refuse, reject” (Lev. 26:43; Job 30:1; 1 Sam. 16:10). Like the Hebrew verb ‘azab (meaning “to abandon”), this term has reciprocal connotations when used in covenant contexts. When the people of Judah rejected God’s law (6:19), the Lord rejected that generation (7:29). As part of the New Covenant, the Lord promised that He would never again reject His people, but would forgive their sin and remember it no more (31:34, 37).

them in bondage anymore, they obeyed and let them go. <sup>11</sup>But afterward they changed their minds and made the male and female slaves return, whom they had set free, and brought them into subjection as male and female slaves.

<sup>12</sup>Therefore the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying, <sup>13</sup>“Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: ‘I made a <sup>a</sup>covenant with your fathers in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage, saying, <sup>14</sup>“At the end of <sup>o</sup>seven years let every man set free his Hebrew brother, who <sup>2</sup>has been sold to him; and when he has served you six years, you shall let him go free from you.” But your fathers did not obey Me nor incline their ear. <sup>15</sup>Then you <sup>3</sup>recently turned and did what was right in My sight—every man proclaiming liberty to his neighbor; and you <sup>b</sup>made a covenant before Me <sup>4</sup>in the house which is called by My name. <sup>16</sup>Then you turned around and <sup>r</sup>profaned My name, and every one of you brought back his male and female slaves, whom you had set at liberty, at their pleasure, and brought them back into subjection, to be your male and female slaves.’

<sup>17</sup>“Therefore thus says the LORD: ‘You have not obeyed Me in proclaiming liberty, every one to his brother and every one to his neighbor. <sup>s</sup>Behold, I proclaim liberty to you,’ says the LORD—“to the sword, to pestilence, and to famine! And I will deliver you to <sup>t</sup>trouble among all the kingdoms of the earth. <sup>18</sup>And I will give the men who have transgressed My covenant, who have not performed the words of the covenant which they made before Me, when <sup>v</sup>they cut the calf in two and passed between the parts of it— <sup>19</sup>the princes of Judah, the princes of Jerusalem, the <sup>4</sup>eunuchs, the priests, and

Lachish

Lachish was a walled city in the lowlands of Judah captured by Joshua and the Israelites (Josh. 10:32). The city is mentioned in early Egyptian sources as an important military stronghold. Archaeologists have excavated Lachish (modern Tell ed-Duweir), and it has become one of the most significant sites in the Holy Land. A small temple with an altar for burnt offerings was discovered here, along with a deep well that probably provided water for the city when it was under siege. Other important finds consisted of early Hebrew writings on bowls, seals, a stone altar, and 21 pottery sherds on which were written letters about the attack on Lachish and Jerusalem by Babylon in 586 B.C. One of the letters states that signals from Azekah could no longer be seen. It was written shortly after the events noted in Jer. 34:7, which observe that Lachish and Azekah were the only fortified cities left in Judah.

all the people of the land who passed between the parts of the calf— <sup>20</sup>I will <sup>w</sup>give them into the hand of their enemies and into the hand of those who seek their life. Their <sup>x</sup>dead bodies shall be for meat for the birds of the heaven and the beasts of the earth. <sup>21</sup>And I will give Zedekiah king of Judah and his princes into the hand of their enemies, into the hand of those who seek their life, and into the hand of the king of Babylon’s army <sup>y</sup>which has gone back from you. <sup>22</sup>Behold, I will command,’ says the LORD, ‘and cause them to return to this city. They will fight against it <sup>a</sup>and take it and burn it with fire; and <sup>b</sup>I will make the cities of Judah a desolation without inhabitant.’”

The Obedient Rechabites

35 The word which came to Jeremiah from the LORD in the days of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, saying, <sup>2</sup>“Go to the house of the <sup>a</sup>Rechabites,

34:12–14 Jeremiah, a faithful steward of the word of God, began his attack against Judah’s leaders by recounting the teaching of the Law on the matter of emancipating slaves (see Ex. 21:2–6; Deut. 15:12–15). He reminded the people that their forefathers were slaves in Egypt, and that God had freed them from slavery and oppression.

34:15, 16 When the princes of Judah emancipated their Hebrew slaves, it demonstrated their covenant faithfulness and devotion to God (v. 10). But when the righteous decision was reversed (v. 11), the name of God was profaned. The name of God sums up and represents His attributes, character, and work. That name had been defiled by the breach of covenant in the same way that the people had defiled the land with their idolatry (16:18).

34:17 Because the leaders of Judah had disobeyed the covenant by revoking the liberty granted to Hebrew slaves (v. 11), the Lord declared that He would grant liberty to the leaders—liberty from their disobedience and liberty to the sword, to pestilence, and to famine.

34:18, 19 The covenant ceremony is outlined. The main ritual of the two-party covenant began with cutting the sacrificial animal in half, after which the two participants would walk together between the parts (see Gen. 15). The divided animal portrayed the potential fate of one who broke the covenant stipulations.

34:20 I will give them into the hand of their enemies: The slaves who had been wronged by the leaders of Judah would be vindicated by God, using the Babylonian army as His instrument.

34:21, 22 gone back: Nebuchadnezzar had withdrawn from Jerusalem to meet the Egyptian army of Pharaoh Hophra. Zedekiah had hopes that Hophra would be successful in delivering Israel from its impending doom. However, Nebuchadnezzar soon renewed the siege of Jerusalem and destroyed the city.

35:1 in the days of Jehoiakim: Jehoiakim reigned from 609 to 598 B.C.

35:2 The Rechabites were a tightly knit group of descendants of the Kenites (see Judg. 1:16; 1 Chr. 2:55). This group is known first from the story of Jehonadab the son of Rechab, who speak to them, and bring them into the house of the LORD, into one of <sup>b</sup> the chambers, and give them wine to drink.”

<sup>3</sup>Then I took Jaazaniah the son of Jeremiah, the son of Habazziniah, his brothers and all his sons, and the whole house of the Rechabites, <sup>4</sup>and I brought them into the house of the LORD, into the chamber of the sons of Hanan the son of Igdaliah, a man of God, which was by the chamber of the princes, above the chamber of Maaseiah the son of Shallum, <sup>c</sup>the keeper of the <sup>1</sup>door. <sup>5</sup>Then I set before the sons of the house of the Rechabites bowls full of wine, and cups; and I said to them, “Drink wine.”

<sup>6</sup>But they said, “We will drink no wine, for <sup>d</sup>Jonadab the son of Rechab, our father, commanded us, saying, ‘You shall drink <sup>e</sup>no wine, you nor your sons, forever. <sup>7</sup>You shall not build a house, sow seed, plant a vineyard, nor have any of these; but all your days you shall dwell in tents, <sup>f</sup>that you may live many days in the land where you are sojourners.’ <sup>8</sup>Thus we have <sup>g</sup>obeyed the voice of Jonadab the son of Rechab, our father, in all that he charged us, to drink no wine all our days, we, our wives, our sons, or our daughters, <sup>9</sup>nor to build ourselves houses to dwell in; nor do we have vineyard, field, or seed. <sup>10</sup>But we have dwelt in tents, and have obeyed and done according to all that Jonadab our father commanded us. <sup>11</sup>But it came to pass, when Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came up into the land, that we said, ‘Come, let us <sup>h</sup>go to Jerusalem for fear of the army of the Chaldeans and for fear of the army of the Syrians.’ So we dwell at Jerusalem.”

<sup>12</sup>Then came the word of the LORD to Jeremiah, saying, <sup>13</sup>“Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: ‘Go and tell the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, “Will you not <sup>i</sup>receive instruction to <sup>2</sup>obey My words?’” says the LORD. <sup>14</sup>“The words of Jonadab the son of

The Rechabites

The Rechabites were a Kenite tribe founded by Jonadab, the son of Rechab. They were convinced it was easier to live a godly life as nomads than in the settled life of the cities, where they would be tempted with idolatry and immorality. They did not drink wine or other intoxicating drink; they chose to live in tents rather than houses.

When Nebuchadnezzar’s army attacked Judah, the Rechabites sought refuge in Jerusalem. At God’s command, Jeremiah tested them to see if they would live up to their vows. He set wine before them and encouraged them to drink, but they refused. Jeremiah praised them and held them up as an object lesson to the people of Judah who had disobeyed the laws of God.

Because of their faithfulness, Jeremiah promised that the Rechabites would never cease to exist. Followers of this group still live in the Middle East—in Iraq and Yemen.

Rechab, which he commanded his sons, not to drink wine, are performed; for to this day they drink none, and obey their father’s commandment. <sup>j</sup>But although I have spoken to you, <sup>k</sup>rising early and speaking, you did not <sup>3</sup>obey Me. <sup>15</sup>I have also sent to you all My <sup>l</sup>servants the prophets, rising up early and sending them, saying, <sup>m</sup>“Turn now everyone from his evil way, amend your doings, and do not go after other gods to serve them; then you will <sup>n</sup>dwell in the land which I have given you and your fathers.’ But you have not inclined your ear, nor obeyed Me. <sup>16</sup>Surely the sons of Jonadab the son of Rechab have performed the commandment of their <sup>o</sup>father, which he commanded them, but this people has not obeyed Me.”

<sup>17</sup>“Therefore thus says the LORD God of hosts, the God of Israel: ‘Behold, I will bring on Judah and on all the inhabitants of Jerusalem all the doom that I have pronounced against them; <sup>p</sup>because I have spoken to them but they have not heard, assisted Jehu in purging the Baal prophets from Samaria (see 2 Kin. 10:15–28). The Rechabites lived as nomads, rejecting all forms of urban and agrarian life. They refused to drink wine or strong drink and would not cultivate vineyards. They also would not plant any other crops. Many scholars believe that they were a clan of metalsmiths. The Rechabites were invited by Jeremiah into one of the chambers surrounding the courtyard of the temple of God for a symbolic demonstration.

35:3–5 Man of God refers to a number of named and unnamed prophets, emissaries from God who delivered specific messages (see 1 Sam. 2:27; 1 Kin. 12:22; 13:1; 2 Kin. 1:9). Hanan was apparently sympathetic to Jeremiah’s preaching. In the temple and in the presence of leading temple personnel, Jeremiah tested the Rechabites’ faithfulness to their tradition by putting wine in front of them and telling them to drink.

35:6–10 The faithful Rechabites refused to drink wine, on the basis of the teaching of Jonadab their forefather. obeyed the voice: This is the language of faithfulness, often used in the negative by Jeremiah to refer to Judah’s failure to obey the covenant (3:13; 7:23, 24).

35:13–15 receive instruction . . . obey My words: This phrasing comes from the words of the Rechabites (v. 8) and from Jeremiah’s oracle in 7:28. The Rechabites had obeyed the instructions of their forefather Jonadab. In the case of Judah, though God Himself had instructed the Israelites in the covenant and had presented His message repeatedly through many faithful prophets, the people had not obeyed Him. Rising early and speaking . . . sending describes the persistence of the many prophets in Israel’s history.

35:16 The Rechabites had not wavered in keeping the commandment of Jonadab, but the Israelites had continually rebelled against the teaching of God.

and I have called to them but they have not answered.”

<sup>18</sup> And Jeremiah said to the house of the Rechabites, “Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: ‘Because you have obeyed the commandment of Jonadab your father, and kept all his precepts and done according to all that he commanded you, <sup>19</sup> therefore thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: ‘Jonadab the son of Rechab shall not lack a man to <sup>q</sup>stand before Me forever.’”

The Scroll Read in the Temple

36 Now it came to pass in the <sup>a</sup>fourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, that this word came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying: <sup>2</sup> “Take a <sup>b</sup>scroll of a book and <sup>c</sup>write on it all the words that I have spoken to you against Israel, against Judah, and against <sup>d</sup>all the nations, from the day I spoke to you, from the days of <sup>e</sup>Josiah even to this day. <sup>3</sup> It <sup>f</sup>may be that the house of Judah will hear all the adversities which I purpose to bring upon them, that everyone may <sup>g</sup>turn from his evil way, that I may forgive their iniquity and their sin.”

hearing of the people in the LORD’s house on <sup>j</sup>the day of fasting. And you shall also read them in the hearing of all Judah who come from their cities. <sup>7</sup> It may be that they will present their supplication before the LORD, and everyone will turn from his evil way. For great is the anger and the fury that the LORD has pronounced against this people.” <sup>8</sup> And Baruch the son of Neriah did according to all that Jeremiah the prophet commanded him, reading from the book the words of the LORD in the LORD’s house.

<sup>9</sup> Now it came to pass in the fifth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, in the ninth month, that they proclaimed a fast before the LORD to all the people in Jerusalem, and to all the people who came from the cities of Judah to Jerusalem. <sup>10</sup> Then Baruch read from the book the words of Jeremiah in the house of the LORD, in the chamber of Gemariah the son of Shaphan the scribe, in the upper court at the <sup>k</sup>entry of the New Gate of the LORD’s house, in the <sup>3</sup>hearing of all the people.

The Scroll Read in the Palace

<sup>11</sup> When Michaiah the son of Gemariah, the son of Shaphan, heard all the words of the LORD from the book, <sup>12</sup> he then went down to the king’s house, into the scribe’s chamber; and there all the princes were sitting—<sup>l</sup>Elishama the scribe, Delaiah the son of Shemaiah, <sup>m</sup>Elnathan the son of Achbor, Gemariah the son of Shaphan, Zedekiah the son of Hananiah, and all the princes. <sup>13</sup> Then Michaiah

35:18, 19 Blessing is pronounced over the faithful household of the Rechabites. Their complete obedience is outlined in a triad of verbs: obeyed . . . kept . . . done.

36:1 The narrative recounts the interaction with Jehoiakim concerning the word of God during the king’s fourth year, 605–604 B.C. In late spring as the year began and the river was “at flood stage,” Nebuchadnezzar crossed the Euphrates and defeated the Egyptians at Carchemish. it came to pass: The original scroll of Jeremiah’s oracles, which had been prepared with the scribal assistance of Baruch, was read in the temple in the ninth month of the fourth year of Jehoiakim in November–December 604 B.C. (see v. 9). This was at the same time as the attack of the Babylonians on Ashkelon.

36:2 scroll of a book: The usual material for a scroll was parchment (a kind of leather), though Egyptian papyrus was also available. The contents of the scroll were the oracles dating from the days of Josiah, at the advent of Jeremiah’s ministry (626 B.C.), to this day (604 B.C.).

36:4 Baruch the son of Neriah was a trained scribe and close friend of Jeremiah (32:12). at the instruction: This phrase refers to the process of dictation from Jeremiah to Baruch.

36:5 Confined can refer to physical imprisonment, being placed under guard (33:1; 39:15); a mental or spiritual constraint; or some other form of restriction. No prison is mentioned in this chapter. It is possible that Jeremiah was somehow prohibited from entering the temple courts, perhaps after his temple sermon (7:1–15; 26:1–19).

36:6, 7 The scroll of Jeremiah’s early oracles against Israel and Judah was to be read on a day of fasting, a time aside by official declaration of the king or priests (v. 9) in a period of national crisis.

36:8 Baruch, a faithful disciple like Jeremiah, read from the book of God’s words in the temple of the Lord. This act closely parallels the reading of the Book of the Law in the temple of God, after it was discovered there (see 2 Kin. 22; 23).

36:9, 10 The official proclamation of the fast came in November–December of 604 B.C. People from all over Judah assembled in the temple of the Lord for the fast, providing Baruch and Jeremiah a sizable audience. Gemariah was the son of Shaphan, the scribe who read the scroll found during Josiah’s reign (see 2 Kin. 22:1–20). It seems Gemariah was sympathetic toward Jeremiah, allowing the use of the room in the upper court, a room overlooking the temple courts and giving access to those gathered for the fast.

36:11–13 Gemariah’s son Micaiah reported the occasion and words to the royal princes, including Gemariah and Elnathan. Elnathan’s father Achbor also played a role in the reading of the scroll in the days of Josiah’s reform. The parallels between Josiah’s reform and Jeremiah’s desire for national revival were included by Baruch deliberately, to remind the people of the earlier event.

declared to them all the words that he had heard when Baruch read the book in the hearing of the people. <sup>14</sup>Therefore all the princes sent Jehudi the son of Nethaniah, the son of Shelemiah, the son of Cushi, to Baruch, saying, “Take in your hand the scroll from which you have read in the hearing of the people, and come.” So Baruch the son of Neriah took the scroll in his hand and came to them. <sup>15</sup>And they said to him, “Sit down now, and read it in our hearing.” So Baruch read it in their hearing.

<sup>16</sup>Now it happened, when they had heard all the words, that they looked in fear from one to another, and said to Baruch, “We will surely tell the king of all these words.” <sup>17</sup>And they asked Baruch, saying, “Tell us now, how did you write all these words—<sup>4</sup>at his instruction?”

<sup>18</sup>So Baruch answered them, “He proclaimed with his mouth all these words to me, and I wrote them with ink in the book.”

<sup>19</sup>Then the princes said to Baruch, “Go and hide, you and Jeremiah; and let no one know where you are.”

The King Destroys Jeremiah's Scroll

<sup>20</sup>And they went to the king, into the court; but they stored the scroll in the chamber of Elishama the scribe, and told all the words in the hearing of the king.

<sup>21</sup>So the king sent Jehudi to bring the scroll, and he took it from Elishama the scribe's chamber. And Jehudi read it in the hearing of the king and in the hearing of all the princes who stood beside the king. <sup>22</sup>Now the king was sitting in <sup>n</sup>the winter house in the ninth month, with a fire burning on the hearth before him.

<sup>23</sup>And it happened, when Jehudi had read three or four columns, that the king cut it with the scribe's knife and cast it into the fire that was on the hearth, until all the scroll was consumed in the fire that was on the hearth. <sup>24</sup>Yet they were <sup>o</sup>not afraid, nor did they <sup>p</sup>tear their garments, the king nor any of his servants who heard all these words. <sup>25</sup>Nevertheless Elnathan, Delaiah, and Gemariah implored the king not to burn the scroll; but he would not listen to them. <sup>26</sup>And the king commanded Jerahmeel <sup>5</sup>the king's son, Seraiah the son of Azriel, and Shelemiah the son of Abdeel, to seize Baruch the scribe and Jeremiah the prophet, but the LORD hid them.

Jeremiah Rewrites the Scroll

<sup>27</sup>Now after the king had burned the scroll with the words which Baruch had written <sup>6</sup>at the instruction of Jeremiah, the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, saying: <sup>28</sup>“Take yet another scroll, and write on it all the former words that were in the first scroll which Jehoiakim the king of Judah has burned. <sup>29</sup>And you shall say to Jehoiakim king of Judah, ‘Thus says the LORD: “You have burned this scroll, saying, <sup>q</sup>“Why have you written in it that the king of Babylon will certainly come and destroy this land, and cause man and beast to <sup>r</sup>cease from here?”’” <sup>30</sup>Therefore thus says the LORD concerning Jehoiakim king of Judah: <sup>s</sup>“He shall have no one to sit on the throne of David, and his dead body shall be <sup>t</sup>cast out to the heat of the day and the frost of the night. <sup>31</sup>I will punish him, his <sup>7</sup>family, and his servants for their iniquity; and I will bring on them, on the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and on the men of Judah all the doom that I have pronounced against them; but they did not heed.”’”

<sup>32</sup>Then Jeremiah took another scroll and gave it to Baruch the scribe, the son of Neriah, who wrote on it <sup>8</sup>at the instruction of Jeremiah all the words of the book which Jehoiakim king of Judah had burned in the fire. And besides, there were added to them many similar words.

36:14 Jehudi: The list of three ancestors is unusual. The last name Cushi may indicate that Jehudi was a Cushite, thus of foreign ancestry. Jehudi was the messenger appointed to summon Baruch to the court of the princes.

36:15–19 looked in fear: Alarmed at the words of the scroll, the princes felt impelled to inform the king. wrote them with ink: Baruch told the princes how and when the scroll was written. The leaders told Baruch to go with Jeremiah and hide until the matter could be investigated.

36:20–24 Baruch and Jeremiah would have learned later that the original scroll was destroyed, since they were in hiding when it happened. winter house: The royal palace had rooms with fireplaces for use in the winter. As the scroll was read, Jehoiakim showed no signs of fear or lamentation, unlike Josiah when the Book of the Law was read in his hearing (see 2 Kin. 22:11–13).

36:25, 26 The king's son could mean: (1) the literal son of Jehoiakim; (2) the son of a man named Hamelech, which means

“the king”; (3) or an office title for a person with the function of a deputy or policeman. The third view seems to be indicated in this context.

36:27, 28 The Lord told Jeremiah and Baruch to prepare a second scroll of the earlier oracles. Verse 32 notes that additional material was included.

36:29–31 Indictment and judgment against Jehoiakim is pronounced. The indictment was declared because he destroyed the scroll of the word of the Lord. First, the Davidic lineage would not continue through him. His son would rule for only three months before Nebuchadnezzar deported Jehoiachin to Babylon, where he died. Second, the king's body would be treated disgracefully after his death. As the king had cast the scroll into the fire, so his body would be cast from the royal palace. Third, the royal household would experience the destructive judgment that had been proclaimed in the words of the original scroll.

Zedekiah's Vain Hope

37 Now King <sup>a</sup>Zedekiah the son of Josiah reigned instead of Coniah the son of Jehoiakim, whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon made king in the land of Judah. <sup>b</sup>But neither he nor his servants nor the people of the land gave heed to the words of the LORD which He spoke by the prophet Jeremiah.

<sup>3</sup>And Zedekiah the king sent Jehucal the son of Shelemiah, and <sup>c</sup>Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah, the priest, to the prophet Jeremiah, saying, <sup>d</sup>“Pray now to the LORD our God for us.” <sup>4</sup>Now Jeremiah was coming and going among the people, for they had not yet put him in prison. <sup>5</sup>Then <sup>e</sup>Pharaoh’s army came up from Egypt; and when the Chaldeans who were besieging Jerusalem heard news of them, they departed from Jerusalem.

<sup>6</sup>Then the word of the LORD came to the prophet Jeremiah, saying, <sup>7</sup>“Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, ‘Thus you shall say to the king of Judah, <sup>f</sup>who sent you to Me to inquire of Me: “Behold, Pharaoh’s army which has come up to help you will return to Egypt, to their own land. <sup>8g</sup>And the Chaldeans shall come back and fight against this city, and take it and burn it with fire.”’” <sup>9</sup>Thus says the LORD: ‘Do not deceive yourselves, saying, “The Chaldeans will surely depart from us,” for they will not depart. <sup>10h</sup>For though you had defeated the whole army of the Chaldeans who fight against you, and there remained only wounded men among them, they would rise up, every man in his tent, and burn the city with fire.’”

Jeremiah Imprisoned

<sup>11</sup>And it happened, when the army of the Chaldeans left the siege of Jerusalem for fear of Pharaoh’s army, <sup>12</sup>that Jeremiah went out of Jerusalem to go into the land of Benjamin to claim his property there among the people. <sup>13</sup>And when he was in the Gate of Benjamin, a captain of the guard was there whose name was Irijah the son of Shelemiah, the son of Hananiah; and he seized Jeremiah the prophet, saying, “You are defecting to the Chaldeans!”

<sup>14</sup>Then Jeremiah said, <sup>1</sup>“False! I am not defecting to the Chaldeans.” But he did not listen to him.

So Irijah seized Jeremiah and brought him to the princes. <sup>15</sup>Therefore the princes were angry with Jeremiah, and they struck him <sup>i</sup>and put him in prison in the <sup>j</sup>house of Jonathan the scribe. For they had made that the prison.

<sup>16</sup>When Jeremiah entered <sup>k</sup>the dungeon and the cells, and Jeremiah had remained there many days, <sup>17</sup>then Zedekiah the king sent and took him out. The king

37:1, 2 Zedekiah, like Jehoiakim and so many other kings before him in Israel and Judah, had rejected the word of God and its warnings of judgment, although it was communicated tirelessly and faithfully by God’s messengers the prophets. The end of rebellion was in sight. Jerusalem would soon fall to the Babylonian armies, the instruments of divine discipline.

37:3, 4 Jehucal was a friend of Pashhur (21:1). Together they eventually called for Jeremiah to be executed (38:1). Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah was a member of the delegation who had sought a word from God at the beginning of the Babylonian siege (21:1–10). He was sympathetic toward Jeremiah, as reflected in the letter from Shemaiah (29:24–28).

37:5 In late spring or early summer 588 B.C., Pharaoh Hophra led the Egyptian army into southern Palestine. The Babylonian forces withdrew their siege of Judah and Jerusalem to confront the Egyptians. Zedekiah hoped the Babylonians would be defeated, but his hopes proved to be in vain.

37:6–8 Jeremiah’s response to Jehucal and Zephaniah (vv. 3, 4) was the same unchanging word from the LORD he had always proclaimed. The Babylonians would soon return to destroy Jerusalem.

37:9, 10 Do not deceive yourselves: To think that the brief respite caused by the Egyptian appearance in the southern coastal plain was proof of imminent deliverance, as the false prophets declared, was an exercise in self-deception and futile imagination.

37:11, 12 The lifting of the siege by the Babylonians afforded the people in Jerusalem some opportunity for movement outside the city.

37:13 Irijah, a captain of the guard and a royal military official, arrested Jeremiah at the Gate of Benjamin on the north side of the city. The charge of defection was not unreasonable. Jeremiah had advised the people of Jerusalem to defect to the Chaldeans so that their lives would be spared (21:9). A number of them followed his advice (38:19).

37:14–16 Jeremiah denied the accusation of defection but to no avail. Irijah arrested the prophet and arraigned him before the court of princes. Prison space was lacking in Jerusalem due to the crowded conditions of the siege, so a prison was devised in the house of Jonathan the scribe. the dungeon and the cells: Jeremiah’s prison seems to have been a cistern with vaulted ceilings in Jonathan’s house.

37:17–19 Fearing possible exposure and opposition from his courtiers, Zedekiah secretly summoned Jeremiah and asked of him a word from the Lord. The several encounters between Jeremiah and Zedekiah indicate the weak character of Zedekiah. He seems to have earnestly desired a word from God but could not come to grips with the reality and respond appropriately.

prophet (Heb. nabi') (37:6; Deut. 13:1; 1 Sam. 3:20; 2 Kin. 19:2) Strong’s #5030: The probable root word for nabi' means “to announce” or “to proclaim” (19:14; Ezek. 37:4). Another possible derivation is from a Hebrew word meaning “to bubble up” or “to pour forth.” Prophecy can be compared to the “bubbling up” of the Holy Spirit in a person who delivers a divine message (compare Amos 3:8; Mic. 3:8). In OT times, prophets were heralds or spokesmen who delivered a message for someone else (see 1:5; 2:8; 2 Kin. 17:13; Ezek. 37:7). In the case of the Hebrew prophets, they spoke for God Himself. This is the reason the prophets introduced their messages with “thus says the LORD of hosts” on countless occasions (see 9:7, 17).

asked him secretly in his house, and said, “Is there any word from the LORD?”

And Jeremiah said, “There is.” Then he said, “You shall be <sup>l</sup>delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon!”

<sup>18</sup> Moreover Jeremiah said to King Zedekiah, “What offense have I committed against you, against your servants, or against this people, that you have put me in prison? <sup>19</sup> Where now are your prophets who prophesied to you, saying, “The king of Babylon will not come against you or against this land?” <sup>20</sup> Therefore please hear now, O my lord the king. Please, let my petition be accepted before you, and do not make me return to the house of Jonathan the scribe, lest I die there.”

<sup>21</sup> Then Zedekiah the king commanded that they should commit Jeremiah <sup>m</sup> to the court of the prison, and that they should give him daily a piece of bread from the bakers’ street, <sup>n</sup> until all the bread in the city was gone. Thus Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison.

Jeremiah in the Dungeon

of war who remain in this city, and the hands of all the people, by speaking such words to them. For this man does not seek the <sup>3</sup>welfare of this people, but their harm.”

<sup>5</sup> Then Zedekiah the king said, “Look, he is in your hand. For the king can do nothing against you.” <sup>6h</sup> So they took Jeremiah and cast him into the dungeon of Malchiah <sup>4</sup> the king’s son, which was in the court of the prison, and they let Jeremiah down with ropes. And in the dungeon there was no water, but mire. So Jeremiah sank in the mire.

<sup>7i</sup> Now Ebed-Melech the Ethiopian, one of the <sup>5</sup>eunuchs, who was in the king’s house, heard that they had put Jeremiah in the dungeon. When the king was sitting at the Gate of Benjamin, <sup>8</sup>Ebed-Melech went out of the king’s house and spoke to the king, saying: <sup>9</sup> “My lord the king, these men have done evil in all that they have done to Jeremiah the prophet, whom they have cast into the dungeon, and he is likely to die from hunger in the place where he is. For there is <sup>j</sup>no more bread in the city.” <sup>10</sup> Then the king commanded Ebed-Melech the Ethiopian, saying, “Take from here thirty men with you, and lift Jeremiah the prophet out of the dungeon before he dies.” <sup>11</sup> So Ebed-Melech took the men with him and went into the house of the king under the treasury, and took from there old clothes and old rags, and let them down by ropes into the dungeon to Jeremiah. <sup>12</sup> Then Ebed-Melech the Ethiopian said to Jeremiah, “Please put these old clothes and rags under your armpits, under the ropes.” And Jeremiah did so. <sup>13</sup> So they pulled Jeremiah up with ropes and lifted him out of the dungeon. And Jeremiah remained <sup>k</sup> in the court of the prison.

37:20, 21 Jeremiah appealed to Zedekiah’s sense of justice and decency and asked to be released from prison. Zedekiah consented and committed the prophet to the court of the prison, a place near the royal palace where limited mobility was possible, such as in the transaction to purchase the field (see 32:1–15; Neh. 3:25).

38:1 Jucal (Jehucal) was one of the emissaries sent by Zedekiah to Jeremiah in 37:3. Pashhur came to Jeremiah with a group when the Babylonian siege began in January 588 B.C.

38:2, 3 Verse 2 is almost an exact duplicate of 21:9. Jeremiah said the choice was between life under the Babylonians and death among the ruins of Jerusalem. Such a statement was treasonous, as was the statement that Jerusalem must fall.

38:4 The princes accused Jeremiah of demoralizing Judah and seeking the harm of Jerusalem. weakens the hands: This expression describes the discouragement or demoralization of soldiers (see Ezra 4:4).

38:5 the king can do nothing: Zedekiah was powerless before the court of princes. The fate of Jeremiah was placed in their hands.

38:6 Jeremiah was imprisoned in the basement cistern of Malchiah the king’s son. Probably due to the length of the Babylonian siege, the cistern had no water sufficient for drinking, only mire of muddy lime clay. This particular cistern had a narrow circular opening, and could be entered and exited only by means of ropes. The court princes probably expected Jeremiah to die a slow and quiet death in a very unpleasant environment.

38:7–9 Ebed-Melech the Ethiopian: The name means “Servant of the King.” Gate of Benjamin: Jeremiah had entered and left the city many times through this northern gate. The king was likely performing his normal function of mediating disputes and settling legal questions. no more bread: A siege cut off water and food supplies from a city, hoping starvation would force a surrender.

38:11–13 Ebed-Melech took special care to obtain rags for Jeremiah to cushion his armpits, preventing the ropes from cutting his skin. A foreigner, a once-despised Cushite, cared more for the prophet of God than did the king and princes of Jeremiah’s own people.

Zedekiah's Fears and Jeremiah's Advice

<sup>14</sup>Then Zedekiah the king sent and had Jeremiah the prophet brought to him at the third entrance of the house of the LORD. And the king said to Jeremiah, "I will <sup>1</sup>ask you something. Hide nothing from me."

<sup>15</sup>Jeremiah said to Zedekiah, "If I declare it to you, will you not surely put me to death? And if I give you advice, you will not listen to me."

<sup>16</sup>So Zedekiah the king swore secretly to Jeremiah, saying, "As the LORD lives, <sup>m</sup>who made our very souls, I will not put you to death, nor will I give you into the hand of these men who seek your life."

<sup>17</sup>Then Jeremiah said to Zedekiah, "Thus says the LORD, the God of hosts, the God of Israel: 'If you surely <sup>n</sup>surrender <sup>o</sup> to the king of Babylon's princes, then your soul shall live; this city shall not be burned with fire, and you and your house shall live. <sup>18</sup>But if you do not <sup>7</sup>surrender to the king of Babylon's princes, then this city shall be given into the hand of the Chaldeans; they shall burn it with fire, and <sup>n</sup>you shall not escape from their hand.'"

<sup>19</sup>And Zedekiah the king said to Jeremiah, "I am afraid of the Jews who have <sup>q</sup>defected to the Chaldeans, lest they deliver me into their hand, and they <sup>r</sup>abuse me."

<sup>20</sup>But Jeremiah said, "They shall not deliver you. Please, obey the voice of the LORD which I speak to you. So it shall be <sup>s</sup>well with you, and your soul shall live.

<sup>21</sup>But if you refuse to <sup>s</sup>surrender, this is the word that the LORD has shown me: <sup>22</sup>'Now behold, all the <sup>t</sup>women who are left in the king of Judah's house shall be surrendered to the king of Babylon's princes, and those women shall say:

"Your close friends have <sup>9</sup>set upon you
And prevailed against you;
Your feet have sunk in the mire,
And they have <sup>1</sup>turned away again."

<sup>23</sup>'So they shall surrender all your wives and <sup>n</sup>children to the Chaldeans. <sup>v</sup>You shall not escape from their hand, but shall be taken by the hand of the king of Babylon. And you shall cause this city to be burned with fire.'"

<sup>24</sup>Then Zedekiah said to Jeremiah, "Let no one know of these words, and you shall not die. <sup>25</sup>But if the princes hear that I have talked with you, and they come to you and say to you, 'Declare to us now what you have said to the king, and also what the king said to you; do not hide it from us, and we will not put you to death,' <sup>26</sup>then you shall say to them, <sup>w</sup>'I presented my request before the king, that he would not make me return <sup>x</sup>to Jonathan's house to die there.'"

<sup>27</sup>Then all the princes came to Jeremiah and asked him. And he told them according to all these words that the king had commanded. So they stopped speaking with him, for the conversation had not been heard. <sup>28</sup>Now <sup>y</sup>Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison until the day that Jerusalem was taken. And he was there when Jerusalem was taken.

The Fall of Jerusalem

39 In the <sup>a</sup>ninth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the tenth month, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and all his army came against Jerusalem, and besieged it. <sup>2</sup>In the <sup>b</sup>eleventh year of

38:14 This meeting between Jeremiah and Zedekiah is parallel to the account in 37:17–21. The location of the third entrance is unknown. The secrecy of the meeting may indicate that it was a private access for the king from the royal palace into the temple courts. Zedekiah's request to ask Jeremiah something is asked with sincerity. He wanted the prophet to be honest and open in his answer.

38:15, 16 will you not: Jeremiah was fearful of being returned to the dungeon, of being turned over to the Egyptian courtiers who would do him further harm, or of being executed for speaking boldly against the king. Zedekiah swore by the name of God that no harm would come to the prophet from any source.

38:17, 18 Jeremiah repeated to the king the message recorded in vv. 2, 3. Surrender would spare the life of the king and the city; failure to surrender would bring death and destruction.

38:19 I am afraid: Zedekiah revealed he was afraid to surrender to the Babylonians because he feared retaliation by early deserters (21:9; 39:9; 52:15) from Jerusalem. His unfitnes to be king is proven by his concern for his personal safety above that of the city and its inhabitants.

38:20–23 Jeremiah tried to settle Zedekiah's fears and to resolve his moral and ethical dilemma by reassuring him that surrender would result in his personal safety. But if the king refused to surrender to Nebuchadnezzar, the word of judgment would fall. Women and children would be handed over to Nebuchadnezzar, and Jerusalem would be destroyed.

38:24–26 Zedekiah instructed Jeremiah not to tell the Egyptian princes about their conversation lest the prophet be executed. Together they constructed an account of their meeting that might be used if Jeremiah was questioned about what had been said. It is clear that Zedekiah was afraid of a revolt from within his royal court.

38:27, 28 As expected, the princes questioned Jeremiah. The answer he and Zedekiah had prepared proved satisfactory.

39:1 The Babylonian siege began in the tenth month of the ninth year of Zedekiah's reign, that is, in December 589 or January 588 B.C. Today the tenth of Tebeth is a fast day in the Jewish calendar.

39:2 eleventh year of Zedekiah . . . fourth month . . . ninth day: The walls of Jerusalem were breached about the time food supplies were exhausted, in June or July 586 B.C.

Zedekiah, in the fourth month, on the ninth day of the month, the <sup>1</sup>city was penetrated.

<sup>4d</sup> So it was, when Zedekiah the king of Judah and all the men of war saw them, that they fled and went out of the city by night, by way of the king's garden, by the gate between the two walls. And he went out by way of the <sup>4</sup>plain. <sup>5</sup> But the Chaldean army pursued them and <sup>e</sup>overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho. And when they had captured him, they brought him up to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, to <sup>7</sup>Riblah in the land of Hamath, where he pronounced judgment on him. <sup>6</sup> Then the king of Babylon killed the sons of Zedekiah before his <sup>8</sup>eyes in Riblah; the king of Babylon also killed all the <sup>h</sup>nobles of Judah. <sup>7</sup> Moreover <sup>i</sup>he put out Zedekiah's eyes, and bound him with bronze <sup>5</sup>fetters to carry him off to Babylon. <sup>8j</sup> And the Chaldeans burned the king's house and the houses of the people with <sup>k</sup>fire, and broke down the <sup>l</sup>walls of Jerusalem. <sup>9m</sup> Then Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard carried away captive to Babylon the remnant of the people who remained in the city and those who <sup>n</sup>defected to him, with the rest of the people who remained. <sup>10</sup> But Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard left in the land of Judah the <sup>o</sup>poor people, who had nothing, and gave them vineyards and fields <sup>at</sup> at the same time.

CHAPTER 40

Jeremiah Goes Free

<sup>11</sup> Now Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon gave charge concerning Jeremiah to Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard, saying, <sup>12</sup> "Take him and look after him, and do him no <sup>p</sup>harm; but do to him just as he says to you." <sup>13</sup> So Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard sent Nebushasban, Rabsaris, Nergal-Sharezzer, Rabmag, and all the king of Babylon's chief officers; <sup>14</sup> then they sent someone <sup>q</sup> to take Jeremiah from the court of the prison, and committed him <sup>r</sup> to Gedaliah the son of <sup>s</sup> Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, that he should take him home. So he dwelt among the people.

<sup>15</sup> Meanwhile the word of the LORD had come to Jeremiah while he was shut up in the court of the prison, saying, <sup>16</sup> "Go and speak to <sup>t</sup> Ebed-Melech the Ethiopian, saying, 'Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: "Behold, "I will bring My words upon this city for adversity and not for good, and they shall be performed in that day before you. <sup>17</sup> But I will deliver you in that day," says the LORD, "and you shall not be given into the hand of the men of whom you are afraid. <sup>18</sup> For I will surely deliver you, and you shall not fall by the sword; but <sup>v</sup> your life shall be as a prize to you, <sup>w</sup> because you have put your trust in Me," says the LORD."

Jeremiah with Gedaliah the Governor

40 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD <sup>a</sup> after Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard had let him go from Ramah, when he had taken him bound in chains among all who were carried away captive from Jerusalem and

39:3 sat in the Middle Gate: The Middle Gate was probably in the north wall of Jerusalem, the direction from which the city was taken. The Babylonian princes sat in the gate to assert their authority in the conquered city. Nergal-Sharezzer ruled Babylon from 560 to 556 B.C. Nebo may be a short form of Nebushasban. When combined with Sarsechim, the resulting name is probably a variation of the name Nebushasban Rabsaris (v. 13). Rabmag and Rabsaris are titles.

39:4 When Zedekiah saw the Babylonian officers enter the gate on the north side of Jerusalem, he and his men left at night through a gate between the two walls, probably near the union of the Kidron and Tyropoeon valleys on the south side of the city. Plain refers to the Jordan valley.

39:5-7 Zedekiah and his military escort were captured near Jericho and taken to Riblah, a city in Aram. Hamath was a region of Aram. There Zedekiah met Nebuchadnezzar face to face, as Jeremiah had prophesied (34:3). Zedekiah's sons and his men were killed before his eyes just before he was blinded. Bronze fetters refers to the pairs of shackles placed on his wrists and ankles. Zedekiah died in prison in Babylon (52:11).

39:8-10 In addition to the royal palace and homes of the inhabitants, 52:13 includes the "house of the Lord" among the buildings burned in Jerusalem. poor: Typically the Babylonians deported the upper classes, such as court officials, merchants, artisans, and craftsmen, and left behind peasants to work the fields.

39:11 Nebuchadnezzar had given special instructions to Nebuzaradan regarding the treatment of Jeremiah. The positive teaching of the prophet regarding the king of Babylon had come to his attention in some way, perhaps through deserters or spies.

39:12-14 During the destruction of Jerusalem, Jeremiah was released from the court of the prison and brought to Mizpah to be under charge of Gedaliah, whom Nebuchadnezzar had appointed governor over the peasant population of Judah and Benjamin. A more detailed account of Jeremiah's trip from Jerusalem to Ramah to Mizpah is found in 40:1-6.

39:15-18 Ebed-Melech, who had carefully rescued Jeremiah from the muddy cistern in the prison court (38:11-13), was promised safety and deliverance by the LORD because of his assistance to Jeremiah and because he had put his trust in God.

40:1 Ramah was about five miles north of Jerusalem, along the ancient road leading from Jerusalem to Shechem. With the destruction of Jerusalem still in process, Ramah served as a way station for captives going to the eastern provinces of the Babylonian Empire.

Judah, who were carried away captive to Babylon.

<sup>2</sup> And the captain of the guard took Jeremiah and <sup>b</sup>said to him: “The LORD your God has pronounced this doom on this place. <sup>3</sup> Now the LORD has brought it, and has done just as He said. <sup>c</sup> Because you people have sinned against the LORD, and not obeyed His voice, therefore this thing has come upon you. <sup>4</sup> And now look, I free you this day from the chains that <sup>1</sup> were on your hand. <sup>d</sup> If it seems good to you to come with me to Babylon, come, and I will look after you. But if it seems wrong for you to come with me to Babylon, remain here. See, <sup>e</sup> all the land is before you; wherever it seems good and convenient for you to go, go there.”

<sup>5</sup> Now while Jeremiah had not yet gone back, Nebuzaradan said, “Go back to <sup>f</sup> Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, <sup>g</sup> whom the king of Babylon has made governor over the cities of Judah, and dwell with him among the people. Or go wherever it seems convenient for you to go.” So the captain of the guard gave him rations and a gift and let him go. <sup>6h</sup> Then Jeremiah went to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, to <sup>i</sup> Mizpah, and dwelt with him among the people who were left in the land.

<sup>7j</sup> And when all the captains of the armies who were in the fields, they and their men, heard that the king of Babylon had made Gedaliah the son of Ahikam governor in the land, and had committed to him men, women, children, and <sup>k</sup> the poorest of the land who had not been carried away captive to Babylon, <sup>8</sup> then they came to Gedaliah at Mizpah—<sup>l</sup> Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, <sup>m</sup> Johanan and Jonathan the sons of Kareah, Seraiah the son of Tanhumeth, the sons of Ephai the Netophathite, and <sup>n</sup> Jezeaniah <sup>2</sup> the son of a <sup>o</sup> Maacathite, they and their men. <sup>9</sup> And Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, took an oath before them and their men, saying, “Do not be afraid to serve the Chaldeans. Dwell in the land and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be <sup>p</sup> well with you. <sup>10</sup> As for me, I will indeed dwell at Mizpah and serve the Chaldeans who come to us. But you, gather wine and summer fruit and oil, put them in your vessels, and dwell in your cities that you have taken.” <sup>11</sup> Likewise, when all the Jews who were in Moab, among the Ammonites, in Edom, and who were in all the countries, heard that the king of Babylon had left a remnant of Judah, and that he had set over them Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, <sup>12</sup> then all the Jews <sup>q</sup> returned out of all places where they had been driven, and came to the land of Judah, to Gedaliah at Mizpah, and gathered wine and summer fruit in abundance.

<sup>13</sup> Moreover Johanan the son of Kareah and all the captains of the forces that were in the fields came to Gedaliah at Mizpah, <sup>14</sup> and said to him, <sup>3</sup> “Do you certainly know that <sup>r</sup> Baalis the king of the Ammonites has sent Ishmael the son of Nethaniah to murder you?” But Gedaliah the son of Ahikam did not believe them.

<sup>15</sup> Then Johanan the son of Kareah spoke secretly to Gedaliah in Mizpah, saying, “Let me go, please, and I will kill Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and no one will know it. Why should he murder you, so that all the Jews who are gathered to you would be scattered, and the <sup>s</sup> remnant in Judah perish?”

<sup>16</sup> But Gedaliah the son of Ahikam said to Johanan the son of Kareah, “You shall not do this thing, for you speak falsely concerning Ishmael.”

40:2, 3 Nebuzaradan knew of Jeremiah’s predictions regarding the demise of Jerusalem and the victories of the armies of Babylon. Prophets whose words were deemed verified were generally treated well by peoples of the ancient Middle East. The LORD your God has pronounced this doom: Consider the irony of a foreigner stating the truth concerning the reason for Jerusalem’s destruction.

40:4, 5 Jeremiah was released from bondage and given three options: (1) to go with Nebuzaradan to Babylon and enjoy special treatment and protection there; (2) to remain in the care of Gedaliah, the district governor at Mizpah; (3) to live in the land as he chose. Nebuzaradan gave Jeremiah rations and gifts because of the prophet’s proclamations about Babylon and Nebuchadnezzar (25:9; 27:6).

40:6 Jeremiah chose to go to Mizpah to serve under Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, staying with his people not far from his hometown and the property he had purchased while in the court of the prison (32:1–15). Mizpah was about eight miles north of Jerusalem.

40:7–10 The captains of the armies refers to the surviving Jewish commanders of the armies in the towns throughout Judah who had fled into the rugged hill country. Among the list of escaped leaders was Ishmael, a member of the royal family and a court officer (41:1); Johanan, who would become the leader of the assembly (vv. 13–16); and Jezeaniah (Jaazaniah) whose father was a Maacathite.

40:11, 12 The Jews who had escaped the Babylonian onslaught into neighboring states returned home and began working the fields, vineyards, and orchards.

40:13, 14 Johanan led a group of leaders to Gedaliah to warn him of a plot by Ishmael and the Ammonite king Baalis to assassinate the governor.

40:15, 16 Johanan secretly asked Gedaliah permission to kill Ishmael quietly, fearing reprisal from Babylon that would surely destroy the reconstruction efforts and lead to further bloodshed. Unfortunately, Gedaliah was far too trusting of Ishmael, the royal descendant who seems to have coveted Gedaliah’s position.

Insurrection Against Gedaliah

41 Now it came to pass in the seventh month <sup>a</sup> that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, the son of Elishama, of the royal <sup>1</sup>family and of the officers of the king, came with ten men to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, at <sup>b</sup>Mizpah. And there they ate bread together in Mizpah. <sup>2</sup>Then Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and the ten men who were with him, arose and <sup>c</sup>struck Gedaliah the son of <sup>d</sup>Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, with the sword, and killed him whom the king of Babylon had made <sup>e</sup>governor over the land. <sup>3</sup>Ishmael also struck down all the Jews who were with him, that is, with Gedaliah at Mizpah, and the Chaldeans who were found there, the men of war.

<sup>4</sup>And it happened, on the second day after he had killed Gedaliah, when as yet no one knew it, <sup>5</sup>that certain men came from Shechem, from Shiloh, and from Samaria, eighty men <sup>f</sup>with their beards shaved and their clothes torn, having cut themselves, with offerings and incense in their hand, to bring them to <sup>g</sup>the house of the LORD. <sup>6</sup>Now Ishmael the son of Nethaniah went out from Mizpah to meet them, weeping as he went along; and it happened as he met them that he said to them, “Come to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam!” <sup>7</sup>So it was, when they came into the midst of the city, that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah <sup>h</sup>killed them and cast them into the midst of a <sup>2</sup>pit, he and the men who were with him. <sup>8</sup>But ten men were found among them who said to Ishmael, “Do not kill us, for we have treasures of wheat, barley, oil, and honey in the field.” So he desisted and did not kill them among their brethren. <sup>9</sup>Now the <sup>3</sup>pit into which Ishmael had cast all the dead bodies of the men whom he had slain, because of Gedaliah, was <sup>i</sup>the same one Asa the king had made for fear of Baasha king of Israel. Ishmael the son of Nethaniah filled it with the slain. <sup>10</sup>Then Ishmael carried away captive all the <sup>j</sup>rest of the people who were in Mizpah, <sup>k</sup>the king’s daughters and all the people who remained in Mizpah, <sup>l</sup>whom Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard had committed to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam. And Ishmael the son of Nethaniah carried them away captive and departed to go over to <sup>m</sup>the Ammonites.

<sup>11</sup>But when <sup>n</sup>Johanan the son of Kareah and all the captains of the forces that were with him heard of all the evil that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had done, <sup>12</sup>they took all the men and went to fight with Ishmael the son of Nethaniah; and they found him by <sup>o</sup>the great pool that is in Gibeon. <sup>13</sup>So it was, when all the people who were with Ishmael saw Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces who were with him, that they were glad. <sup>14</sup>Then all the people whom Ishmael had carried away captive from Mizpah turned around and came back, and went to Johanan the son of Kareah. <sup>15</sup>But Ishmael the son of Nethaniah escaped from Johanan with eight men and went to the Ammonites.

<sup>16</sup>Then Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, took from Mizpah all the <sup>p</sup>rest of the people whom he had recovered from Ishmael the son of Nethaniah after he had murdered Gedaliah the son of Ahikam—the mighty men of war and the women and the children and the eunuchs, whom he had brought back from Gibeon. <sup>17</sup>And they departed and dwelt in the habitation of <sup>q</sup>Chimham, which is near Bethlehem, as they went on their way to <sup>r</sup>Egypt, <sup>18</sup>because of the Chaldeans; for they were afraid of them, because Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had murdered Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, <sup>s</sup>whom the king of Babylon had made governor in the land.

41:1, 2 The year of the assassination of Gedaliah is not given, only the month—the seventh month or Tishri, September-October. The murder of the governor could have taken place as soon as three months after the fall of Jerusalem. Others associate the third deportation of 582 B.C. with this rebellion. Ishmael’s act was especially despicable since it took place during a banquet.

41:4-7 Two days after Gedaliah’s death a group of faithful pilgrims were on their way to Jerusalem, probably with grain rather than animal offerings. Ishmael and his followers falsely led the worshipers aside, massacred them, and cast their bodies into a pit.

41:10 carried away: Ishmael took captives from Mizpah for future use. He then fled into Ammonite territory, no doubt to join forces with his ally Baalis.

41:11, 12 When Johanan, who had warned Gedaliah about the assassination plot (40:13-16), heard of the atrocities of Ishmael, he mustered his captains and forces and confronted the rebel army at Gibeon. The pool, six miles northwest of Jerusalem and three miles from Mizpah, was the site of the famous battle between Joab and Abner’s men (see 2 Sam. 2:12-29).

41:13-15 When they saw Johanan, the captives Ishmael had taken from Mizpah ran over to join his forces. Ishmael and eight of his men escaped to Ammon.

41:16-18 Fearing imminent reprisal from the Babylonians on account of the rebellion, Johanan gathered the inhabitants of Mizpah, including Jeremiah, together with those he had rescued and began a trek toward Egypt, seeking a place of safety. Egypt was the only country in the region that was free from Babylonian control. Johanan and his group went south toward Bethlehem, camping at Chimham.

The Flight to Egypt Forbidden

42 Now all the captains of the forces, <sup>a</sup>Johanah the son of Kareah, Jezeaniah the son of Hoshaiiah, and all the people, from the least to the greatest, came near <sup>2</sup>and said to Jeremiah the prophet, <sup>b</sup>“Please, let our petition be acceptable to you, and <sup>c</sup>pray for us to the LORD your God, for all this remnant (since we are left but <sup>d</sup>a few of many, as you can see), <sup>3</sup>that the LORD your God may show us <sup>e</sup>the way in which we should walk and the thing we should do.”

<sup>4</sup>Then Jeremiah the prophet said to them, “I have heard. Indeed, I will pray to the LORD your God according to your words, and it shall be, that <sup>f</sup>whatever the LORD answers you, I will declare it to you. I will <sup>g</sup>keep nothing back from you.”

<sup>5</sup>So they said to Jeremiah, <sup>h</sup>“Let the LORD be a true and faithful witness between us, if we do not do according to everything which the LORD your God sends us by you. <sup>6</sup>Whether it is <sup>i</sup>pleasing or <sup>2</sup>displeasing, we will <sup>i</sup>obey the voice of the LORD our God to whom we send you, <sup>j</sup>that it may be well with us when we obey the voice of the LORD our God.”

<sup>7</sup>And it happened after ten days that the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah. <sup>8</sup>Then he called Johanah the son of Kareah, all the captains of the forces which were with him, and all the people from the least even to the greatest, <sup>9</sup>and said to them, “Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, to whom you sent me to present your petition before Him: <sup>10</sup>‘If you will still remain in this land, then <sup>k</sup>I will build you and not pull you down, and I will plant you and not pluck you up. For I <sup>l</sup>relent concerning the disaster that I have brought upon you. <sup>11</sup>Do not be afraid of the king of Babylon, of whom you are afraid; do not be afraid of him,’ says the LORD, <sup>m</sup>‘for I am with you, to save you and deliver you from his hand. <sup>12</sup>And <sup>n</sup>I will show you mercy, that he may have

<sup>13</sup>“But if <sup>o</sup>you say, ‘We will not dwell in this land,’ disobeying the voice of the LORD your God, <sup>14</sup>saying, ‘No, but we will go to the land of <sup>p</sup>Egypt where we shall see no war, nor hear the sound of the trumpet, nor be hungry for bread, and there we will dwell’— <sup>15</sup>Then hear now the word of the LORD, O remnant of Judah! <sup>18</sup>“For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: ‘As My anger and My fury have been <sup>u</sup>poured out on the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so will My fury be poured out on you when you enter Egypt. <sup>19</sup>“The LORD has said concerning you, O remnant of Judah, <sup>w</sup>‘Do not go to Egypt!’ Know certainly that I have <sup>x</sup>admonished you this day. <sup>20</sup>For you <sup>y</sup>were hypocrites in your hearts when you sent me to the LORD your God, saying, ‘Pray for us to the LORD our God, and according to all that the LORD your God says, so declare to us and we will do it.’ <sup>21</sup>And I have this day declared it to you, but you have <sup>z</sup>not obeyed the voice of the LORD your God, or anything which He has sent you by me. <sup>22</sup>Now therefore, know certainly that you <sup>z</sup>shall die by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence in the place where you desire to go to dwell.”

42:1-3 said to Jeremiah: The people asked Jeremiah to intercede with the Lord on their behalf.

42:4-6 I will pray: Jeremiah cautiously agreed to pray to God. He asked the people to agree to abide by the answer he received. The people responded with an oath of obedience, calling upon the Lord as witness.

42:7-10 after ten days: God’s response to Jeremiah’s prayer on behalf of the people did not come immediately. Jeremiah convened the assembly and declared the answer from God in terms reminiscent of his call: build you . . . not pull you down . . . plant you . . . not pluck you up (1:10).

42:11, 12 Jeremiah assured the people with the same words the Lord had used to give him assurance in his call: I am with you, to save you and deliver you (1:8). God’s promise to bring His people through a time of trial to experience His restorative power would show His great mercy. God had promised this restoration in earlier oracles (12:15).

42:13, 14 If the people disobeyed God and fled to Egypt, they would suffer the consequences. The people’s hope for safety in Egypt is presented in a triad of phrases: see no war, nor hear the sound of the trumpet, nor be hungry. The people seem to have had their minds made up before they sought the word from the Lord (vv. 2, 3).

42:15-17 set their faces: This expression indicates the fixed intentions of the people. The announcement of judgment against the disobedient evacuees echoes Jeremiah’s earlier pronouncements against Judah. The very thing they were trying to escape from would meet them in Egypt. sword . . . famine . . . pestilence: This common triad indicates the completeness of God’s judgment upon the disobedient.

Jeremiah Taken to Egypt

43 Now it happened, when Jeremiah had stopped speaking to all the people all the <sup>a</sup>words of the LORD their God, for which the LORD their God had sent him to them, all these words, <sup>2b</sup> that Azariah the son of Hoshaiah, Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the proud men spoke, saying to Jeremiah, “You speak falsely! The LORD our God has not sent you to say, ‘Do not go to Egypt to dwell there.’ <sup>3</sup>But <sup>c</sup>Baruch the son of Neriah has <sup>i</sup>set you against us, to deliver us into the hand of the Chaldeans, that they may put us to death or carry us away captive to Babylon.” <sup>4</sup>So Johanan the son of Kareah, all the captains of the forces, and all the people would <sup>d</sup>not obey the voice of the LORD, to remain in the land of Judah. <sup>5</sup>But Johanan the son of Kareah and all the captains of the forces took <sup>e</sup>all the remnant of Judah who had returned to dwell in the land of Judah, from all nations where they had been driven— <sup>6</sup>men, women, children, <sup>f</sup>the king’s daughters, <sup>g</sup>and every person whom Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard had left with Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, and Jeremiah the prophet and Baruch the son of Neriah. <sup>7h</sup>So they went to the land of Egypt, for they did not obey the voice of the LORD. And they went as far as <sup>i</sup>Tahpanhes.

43:1-3 The people had already intended to go to Egypt to escape the perceived danger of Babylon. Azariah and Johanan spoke out against the counsel given by Jeremiah in 42:9-22.

43:4-7 Johanan led the migration to Egypt, against the direction of the Lord through Jeremiah. The caravan journeyed as far as Tahpanhes, a city on the eastern edge of the Nile Delta (2:16).

43:10, 11 This judgment oracle echoes earlier pronouncements against Judah, with Nebuchadnezzar identified as the servant of God (25:9; 27:6). The stones symbolized the strong foundation of Nebuchadnezzar’s empire, the point from which he would spread his royal pavilion (tent, or canopy). death . . . captivity . . . sword: Severe judgment is pronounced on Egypt, including judgment on the disobedient people of Judah.

Jeremiah’s Journey to Egypt When Jerusalem fell to Nebuchadnezzar, Jeremiah was taken in chains to Ramah and then released. He went on to Mizpah to support the people left in the land. When the governor was killed, Jeremiah prophesied that people should not leave the land, but he was taken against his will to Tahpanhes in Egypt. His further prophecies to Jews living in Migdol, Noph, and Tahpanhes may have contributed to establishing Jewish settlements in other parts of Egypt, as far as Elephantine.

says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: “Behold, I will send and bring Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, <sup>k</sup>My servant, and will set his throne above these stones that I have hidden. And he will spread his royal pavilion over them. <sup>l</sup>When he comes, he shall strike the land of Egypt and deliver to death <sup>m</sup>those appointed for death, and to captivity those appointed for captivity, and to the sword those appointed for the sword. <sup>12,3</sup>I will kindle a fire in the houses of <sup>n</sup>the gods of Egypt, and he shall burn them and carry them away captive. And he shall array himself with the land of Egypt, as a shepherd puts on his garment, and he shall go out from there in peace. <sup>13</sup>He shall also break the sacred pillars of <sup>4</sup>Beth Shemesh that are in the land of Egypt; and the houses of the gods of the Egyptians he shall burn with fire.””

Israelites Will Be Punished in Egypt

43:12, 13 The destructive judgment was extended to the temples of Egyptian gods and goddesses. Destruction of Egyptian temples was carried out by Esarhaddon of Assyria in the seventh century B.C., and again by Cambyses of Persia in the sixth century B.C. Beth Shemesh (“House of the Sun”) was the temple of the sun god Re. The temple was known for its two rows of pillars, or inscribed obelisks.

44:1 Migdol is a common Semitic term meaning “Watchtower.” Here the term is identified with a small fortress 25 miles east of Tahpanhes. Noph is another name for Memphis, the capital of Lower Egypt. Pathros is Upper Egypt. Since Jehohaz had been deported to Egypt in 609 B.C., a number of Jews had settled there in the fertile lands along the Nile.

44:2, 3 Jerusalem was brought to desolation because the people broke God’s covenant by worshipping other gods, rejecting the lordship of God, and thus provoking Him to anger.

44:4, 5 prophets, rising early and sending: Jerusalem had been warned time and again by faithful and tireless messengers from God (7:25; 25:4; 26:5). they did not listen or incline their ear: The reference here is to the people’s disobedience in continually worshipping foreign deities.

44:8 provoke: This term indicates willful, stubborn rebellion against God, which roused His anger.

44:9, 10 They have not been humbled . . . nor have they feared: The present generation of Jews had learned nothing from the past failures of the nation. The people were not broken in heart, only more stubborn.

44:11, 12 I will set My face against you: This expression describes the will of God, here pronouncing judgment upon the rebellious Jews in Egypt. set their faces: God had set His face against the remnant of Judah because they had set their face to enter Egypt against His will (43:7).

44:13, 14 The Jews in Egypt would suffer the same judgment as those in Jerusalem. Only a small remnant would survive to tell their story.

Tahpanhes

Tahpanhes was a city on the eastern frontier of lower Egypt, in the area of the Nile delta (2:16). This city was probably named for a powerful general who brought the surrounding area under firm Egyptian control in the eleventh century B.C. Tahpanhes became a place of refuge for Jews who fled their homeland after the assassination of Gedaliah, the governor of Judah placed in power by the Babylonians. Jeremiah warned the Jews against this move (42:16). He dramatically visualized this for them by hiding stones at Tahpanhes for the foundation of the throne of Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon (43:9, 10).

Tahpanhes is identified with the modern Tell Defneh, a small mound bordering Lake Menzaleh in northern Egypt.

Judah who have gone into the land of Egypt to dwell there shall escape or survive, lest they return to the land of Judah, to which they <sup>7</sup>desire<sup>5</sup> to return and dwell. For <sup>8</sup>none shall return except those who escape.<sup>2</sup>”

<sup>15</sup>Then all the men who knew that their wives had burned incense to other gods, with all the women who stood by, a great multitude, and all the people who dwelt in the land of Egypt, in Pathros, answered Jeremiah, saying: <sup>16</sup>“As for the word that you have spoken to us in the name of the LORD, ‘we will not listen to you!’ <sup>17</sup>But we will certainly do <sup>18</sup>whatever has gone out of our own mouth, to burn incense to the <sup>19</sup>queen of heaven and pour out drink offerings to her, as we have done, we and our fathers, our kings and our princes, in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem. For <sup>20</sup>then we had plenty of <sup>21</sup>food, were well-off, and saw no trouble. <sup>22</sup>But since we stopped burning incense to the queen of heaven and pouring out drink offerings to her, we have lacked everything and have been consumed by the sword and by famine.”

<sup>19</sup>The women also said, <sup>20</sup>“And when we burned incense to the queen of heaven and poured out drink offerings to her, did we make cakes for her, to worship her, and pour out drink offerings to her without our husbands’ permission?”

<sup>20</sup>Then Jeremiah spoke to all the people—the men, the women, and all the people who had given him that answer—saying: <sup>21</sup>“The incense that you burned in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem, you and your fathers, your kings and your princes, and the people of the land, did not the LORD remember them, and did it not come into His mind? <sup>22</sup>So the LORD could no longer bear it, because of the evil of your doings and because of the abominations which you committed. Therefore your land is a desolation, an astonishment, a curse, and without an inhabitant, <sup>23</sup>as it is this day. <sup>23</sup>Because you have burned incense and because you have sinned against the LORD, and have not obeyed the voice of the LORD or walked in His law, in His statutes or in His testimonies, <sup>24</sup>therefore this calamity has happened to you, as at this day.”

<sup>24</sup>Moreover Jeremiah said to all the people and to all the women, “Hear the word of the LORD, all Judah who are in the land of Egypt! <sup>25</sup>Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, saying: ‘You and your wives have spoken with your mouths and fulfilled with your hands, saying, “We will surely keep our vows that we have made, to burn incense to the queen of heaven and pour out drink offerings to her.” You will surely keep your vows and perform your vows!’ <sup>26</sup>Therefore hear the word of the LORD, all Judah who dwell in the land of Egypt: ‘Behold, <sup>27</sup>I have sworn by My <sup>28</sup>great name,’ says the LORD, ‘that <sup>29</sup>My name shall no more be named in the mouth of any man of Judah in all the land of Egypt, saying, “The Lord God lives.” <sup>27</sup>Behold, I will watch over them for adversity and not for good. And all the men of Judah who are in the land of Egypt <sup>28</sup>shall be consumed by the sword and by famine, until there is an end to them. <sup>28</sup>Yet <sup>29</sup>a small number who escape the sword shall return from the land of Egypt to the land of Judah; and

44:16, 17 The people countered Jeremiah’s words with an argument from experience. They rejected God by saying that when they worshiped the queen of heaven—that is, the goddess Ishtar or Astarte, they had plenty of food, were well off, and saw no trouble.

44:18 Queen of heaven refers to Ishtar, a goddess of war and fertility who was worshiped with explicit sexual activity. The people reasoned that when they stopped worshiping the queen of heaven in the days of Josiah’s reform, their king was killed and their land was overrun and destroyed.

44:19 Women were leaders in the Ishtar rites, which included incense burning, drink offerings, and special ceremonial cakes marked with the symbol of the goddess (7:18).

44:21 remember: This term is often used in contexts describing the basis for God’s judgment.

44:22, 23 no longer bear it: The longsuffering of the Lord had reached its end. The cause of the judgment was the people’s evil . . . doings and abominations. When the covenant was broken, the covenant curses came to bear.

44:24, 25 The focus here is on the stubbornness of the women who persisted in their idolatry. Nothing could make them abandon their vows to worship Ishtar.

44:26, 27 The name of God reveals His quality and character in dealing with humankind.

44:28, 29 A small remnant would survive and see the fulfillment of God’s word as revealed through Jeremiah. Their own all the remnant of Judah, who have gone to the land of Egypt to dwell there, shall know whose words will stand, Mine or theirs. <sup>29</sup> And this shall be a sign to you,' says the LORD, 'that I will punish you in this place, that you may know that My words will surely <sup>e</sup>stand against you for adversity.'

<sup>30</sup> "Thus says the LORD: 'Behold, <sup>f</sup>I will give Pharaoh Hophra king of Egypt into the hand of his enemies and into the hand of those who seek his life, as I gave <sup>g</sup>Zedekiah king of Judah into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, his enemy who sought his life.'"

Assurance to Baruch

45 The <sup>a</sup>word that Jeremiah the prophet spoke to <sup>b</sup>Baruch the son of Neriah, when he had written these words in a book <sup>1</sup> at the instruction of Jeremiah, in the <sup>c</sup>fourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, saying, <sup>2</sup> "Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, to you, O Baruch: <sup>3</sup> "You said, "Woe is me now! For the LORD has added grief to my sorrow. I <sup>4</sup> fainted in my sighing, and I find no rest.'"

<sup>4</sup> "Thus you shall say to him, 'Thus says the LORD: "Behold, <sup>e</sup>what I have built I will break down, and what I have planted I will pluck up, that is, this whole land. <sup>5</sup> And do you seek great things for yourself? Do not seek them; for behold, <sup>f</sup>I will bring adversity on all flesh," says the LORD. "But I will give your <sup>g</sup>life to you as a prize in all places, wherever you go.'"

Judgment on Egypt

46 The word of the LORD which came to Jeremiah the prophet against <sup>a</sup>the nations. <sup>2</sup> Against <sup>b</sup>Egypt.

- <sup>3</sup> "Order <sup>1</sup> the <sup>2</sup>buckler and shield,
 And draw near to battle!
- <sup>4</sup> Harness the horses,
 And mount up, you horsemen!
 Stand forth with your helmets,
 Polish the spears,
<sup>f</sup>Put on the armor!
- <sup>5</sup> Why have I seen them dismayed and turned back?
 Their mighty ones are beaten down;
 They have speedily fled,
 And did not look back,
 For <sup>g</sup>fear was all around," says the
 LORD.
- <sup>6</sup> "Do not let the swift flee away,
 Nor the mighty man escape;
 They will <sup>h</sup>stumble and fall
 Toward the north, by the River
 Euphrates.
- <sup>7</sup> "Who is this coming up <sup>i</sup>like a flood,
 Whose waters move like the rivers?
- <sup>8</sup> Egypt rises up like a flood,
 And its waters move like the rivers;
 And he says, 'I will go up and cover
 the earth,
 I will destroy the city and its inhabitants.'

hopes of prosperity in Egypt would vanish, and the sign of God's work against them would be the fall of Pharaoh Hophra of Egypt. In 570 B.C. Hophra was overthrown in a military coup by his own general Amasis. Three years later he was executed in fulfillment of Jeremiah's prophecy.

45:1 Baruch assisted and encouraged Jeremiah when he was imprisoned. In this passage Jeremiah replies with a personal word of encouragement from the Lord for his scribal friend. The date of the passage, 604 B.C., identifies it with the circumstances of ch. 36. Baruch had read Jeremiah's oracles before the temple crowd and the princes of Judah, before Jehoiakim burned the original scroll. A second scroll was prepared by Baruch, and he remained an assistant to Jeremiah throughout his ministry, including the journey to Egypt.

45:2, 3 Jeremiah addressed Baruch in light of the scribe's sorrow. Woe: Baruch lamented his plight in the same manner that Jeremiah had done (15:10). added grief to my sorrow: Baruch suffered mental anguish and personal rejection from his people due to his association with Jeremiah (36:15-19; 43:3).

45:5 great things: Baruch apparently had hopes for position, honor, and distinction. However, these dreams were lost through his association with Jeremiah. Yet Baruch would be spared the judgment that would befall the land, for the Lord would give him his life as a prize, or booty (21:9; 38:2).

46:1 This verse introduces a collection of oracles against the nations. The text moves generally from the west—Egypt—to the east—Elam and Babylon. Scattered throughout the oracles are brief messages of the restoration of Israel and Judah. Internal evidence indicates a date prior to the fall of Jerusalem for most of the material. In v. 2, the first oracle is dated specifically to 605 B.C. In other oracles, the contents reflect events dating from Nebuchadnezzar's southern campaigns (604 B.C.) to his subsequent campaigns in 586 or even 582 B.C. The main message of these oracles is the sovereignty of God over all the nations of the earth.

46:2 Against Egypt: The background here is Nebuchadnezzar's defeat of Pharaoh Necho at Carchemish in 605 B.C. Jeremiah's proclamations concerning the future Babylonian invasion were no doubt based in part on this battle, which firmly established Nebuchadnezzar as the great imperial monarch of his generation.

46:3, 4 Buckler and shield are two different sizes of shields (see 1 Kin. 10:16, 17).

46:5, 6 The strong Egyptian army was overpowered suddenly by the mightier Babylonians. fear . . . all around: This expression was also the name given to Pashhur by Jeremiah in 20:3, 4, and to Jeremiah's persecutors in 20:10.

46:7-9 Egypt had been weak for three hundred years (see 1 Kin. 14:25); but was still known for producing and exporting chariots. Ethiopians, Libyans, and Lydians were apparently mercenaries under Necho.

9 Come up, O horses, and rage,
O chariots!
And let the mighty men come forth:
3 The Ethiopians and 4 the Libyans who handle the shield,
And the Lydians <sup>j</sup> who handle and
bend the bow.
10 For this is <sup>k</sup> the day of the Lord God of hosts,
A day of vengeance,
That He may avenge Himself on His adversaries.
<sup>l</sup> The sword shall devour;
It shall be <sup>s</sup> satiated and made drunk
with their blood;
For the Lord God of hosts <sup>m</sup> has a sacrifice
In the north country by the River
Euphrates.
11 “Go <sup>n</sup> up to Gilead and take balm,
<sup>o</sup> O virgin, the daughter of Egypt;
In vain you will use many medicines;
<sup>p</sup> You shall not be cured.
12 The nations have heard of your
<sup>q</sup> shame,
And your cry has filled the land;
For the mighty man has stumbled against the mighty;
They both have fallen together.”

Babylonia Will Strike Egypt

<sup>13</sup> The word that the LORD spoke to Jeremiah the prophet, how Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon would come and <sup>r</sup> strike the land of Egypt.

14 “Declare in Egypt, and proclaim in <sup>s</sup> Migdol;
Proclaim in <sup>6</sup> Noph and in <sup>t</sup> Tahpanes;
Say, ‘Stand fast and prepare
yourselves,
For the sword devours all around
you.’
15 Why are your valiant men swept away?
They did not stand
Because the LORD drove them away.

From the oppressing sword?
17 They cried there,
‘Pharaoh, king of Egypt, is but a

He has passed by the appointed time!’
18 “As I live,” says the King,
<sup>w</sup> Whose name is the LORD of hosts, “Surely as Tabor is among the
mountains
And as Carmel by the sea, so he shall come.
19 O <sup>x</sup> you daughter dwelling in Egypt,
Prepare yourself <sup>y</sup> to go into captivity!
For <sup>z</sup> Noph shall be waste and desolate, without inhabitant.
20 “Egypt is a very pretty <sup>a</sup> heifer,
But destruction comes, it comes <sup>b</sup> from the north.
21 Also her mercenaries are in her midst like <sup>c</sup> fat bulls,
For they also are turned back,
They have fled away together.
They did not stand,
For <sup>d</sup> the day of their calamity had come upon them,
The time of their punishment.
22 <sup>e</sup> Her noise shall go like a serpent,
For they shall march with an army
And come against her with axes,
Like those who chop wood.
23 “They shall <sup>f</sup> cut down her forest,”
says the LORD,
“Though it cannot be searched,
Because they are innumerable,
And more numerous than <sup>g</sup> grasshoppers.
24 The daughter of Egypt shall be ashamed;
She shall be delivered into the hand
Of <sup>h</sup> the people of the north.”

46:10–12 The day of the Lord God is described here as a day of vengeance in which Egypt is punished for the death of Josiah. The imagery of a devouring sword is also found in 2:30. Egypt’s demise is pictured as a sacrificial feast. As there was no healing balm for sinful Judah, so now Egypt was mortally wounded, stumbling to its death.

46:13 This verse is a prose introduction to a poetic description of Nebuchadnezzar’s attack on Egypt. After the battle at Carchemish, the Babylonian march through Palestine was resumed in 604 B.C. They attacked Ashkelon and then pursued the Egyptians.

46:14–17 Why are your valiant men swept away: The fall of the gods before God in judgment is a prominent theme in the oracles against the nations (v. 25). the LORD drove them: Babylon is depicted as the instrument of God’s judgment.

46:18, 19 King . . . LORD of hosts: The term hosts can also be translated “armies.” God is the true and sovereign King over all the armies of heaven and earth. Tabor . . . Carmel: The mountains stand for the certainty of God’s kingship. Like Judah, Egypt would face God’s destructive judgment.

46:20–24 Egypt’s destroyer invaded from the north, the same direction from which Judah’s adversary attacked. fat bulls: Egypt’s well-paid mercenaries were frail before God and the Babylonians, who came like lumberjacks cutting down the forest and chopping the fleeing serpents, the Egyptians. Egypt’s demise is parallel to Israel’s; the virgin daughter had been violated and stood ashamed (2:26), soon to be taken captive by Babylon.

Mount Tabor

Tabor is a mountain of limestone in the northeastern part of the Valley of Jezreel (Josh. 19:22). Now called Jebel et-Tur, Mt. Tabor rises some 1,350 feet above the plain. Because of its strategic location and commanding height, Mt. Tabor frequently was fortified with protective walls. It played an important role in Israel's history. Here Barak gathered ten thousand men and attacked the Canaanite armies of Sisera (Judg. 4:6, 12, 14). Here the Midianite kings Zebah and Zalmunna killed Gideon's brothers (Judg. 8:18, 19). During the time of the prophets, the top of the mountain was a sanctuary for idolatry (Hos. 5:1). In fact, the mountain may have been the site of a pagan sanctuary from ancient times (Deut. 33:19). In 218 B.C. Antiochus III captured a town on the summit and fortified it. As a Jewish general, Josephus added a defensive rampart to the fortress in A.D. 66. The remains of this structure can still be seen today.

<sup>25</sup> The LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, says: "Behold, I will bring punishment on <sup>9</sup> Amon of <sup>10</sup> No, <sup>1</sup> and Pharaoh and Egypt, <sup>h</sup> with their gods and their kings—Pharaoh and those who <sup>i</sup> trust in him. <sup>26j</sup> And I will deliver them into the hand of those who seek their lives, into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and the hand of his servants. <sup>k</sup> Afterward it shall be inhabited as in the days of old," says the LORD.

God Will Preserve Israel

Judgment on Philistia

<sup>2</sup> Thus says the LORD:

"Behold, <sup>c</sup> waters rise <sup>d</sup> out of the north,
And shall be an overflowing flood;
They shall overflow the land and all that is in it,
The city and those who dwell within;
Then the men shall cry,
And all the inhabitants of the land shall wail.
<sup>3</sup> At the <sup>e</sup> noise of the stamping hooves of his strong horses,
At the rushing of his chariots,
At the rumbling of his wheels,
The fathers will not look back for their children,
<sup>l</sup> Lacking courage,
<sup>4</sup> Because of the day that comes to plunder all the <sup>f</sup> Philistines,
To cut off from <sup>g</sup> Tyre and Sidon every helper who remains;
For the LORD shall plunder the Philistines,
<sup>h</sup> The remnant of the country of <sup>i</sup> Caphtor.<sup>2</sup>
<sup>5</sup> <sup>j</sup> Baldness has come upon Gaza,
<sup>k</sup> Ashkelon is cut off
With the remnant of their valley.
How long will you cut yourself?
<sup>6</sup> "O you <sup>l</sup> sword of the LORD,
How long until you are quiet?
Put yourself up into your scabbard,
Rest and be still!
<sup>7</sup> How can <sup>3</sup> it be quiet,
Seeing the LORD has <sup>m</sup> given it a charge

46:25, 26 The gods and goddesses of Egypt were punished in the defeat of the people who worshiped them. days of old: After the Babylonian invasion and exile, normal life in Egypt would be restored.

46:27, 28 do not be dismayed: Israel would be preserved. These verses are like 30:10, 11 with only slight variation.

47:2 The metaphor of rising waters is found in Is. 8:7, 8; 28:17 in reference to the Assyrian army; here the foe is Babylon (1:13; 4:6; 6:1, 22; 25:9). The destructive overflowing of the river is more typical of the Euphrates River in the north than of the Nile floods, which bring beneficial nutrients to the fertile valley.

47:3 Lacking courage is literally "from weakness of hands," describing the paralyzing terror felt by parents as they abandon their children in flight.

47:4, 5 Philistines and Phoenicians are associated through their origins among the sea peoples who came from the northern Mediterranean and Aegean islands to the coastlands of Palestine in the twelfth century B.C. Caphtor is identified with Crete. Tyre and Sidon were the largest Phoenician ports. Gaza and Ashkelon were the last of the Philistine strongholds to fall, along with Ashdod, which is not mentioned. Baldness . . . cut yourself: Shaving the head and self-inflicted wounds were mourning customs forbidden in Israel (16:6).

47:6, 7 The image of the sword of the LORD is often used to portray divine judgment (12:12; 46:10, 14, 16). quiet . . . Rest . . . be still: The judgment had long been withheld; the long-suffering of the Lord had reached its end.

Against Ashkelon and against the seashore?
There He has "appointed it."

Judgment on Moab

48 Against <sup>a</sup>Moab.
Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel:

- "Woe to <sup>b</sup>Nebo!
For it is plundered,
<sup>c</sup>Kirjathaim is shamed and taken;
<sup>1</sup> The high stronghold is shamed and dismayed—
<sup>2</sup> <sup>d</sup>No more praise of Moab.
In <sup>e</sup>Heshbon they have devised evil against her:
'Come, and let us cut her off as a nation.'
You also shall be cut down,
O <sup>f</sup>Madmen!<sup>2</sup>
The sword shall pursue you;
<sup>3</sup> A voice of crying shall be from <sup>g</sup>Horonaim:
'Plundering and great destruction!'

<sup>4</sup> "Moab is destroyed;
<sup>3</sup> Her little ones have caused a cry to be heard;
<sup>5</sup> <sup>h</sup>For in the Ascent of Luhith they ascend with continual weeping;
For in the descent of Horonaim the enemies have heard a cry of destruction.

<sup>6</sup> "Flee, save your lives!
And be like <sup>4</sup>the <sup>i</sup>juniper in the wilderness.
<sup>7</sup> For because you have trusted in your works and your <sup>j</sup>treasures,
You also shall be taken.
And <sup>k</sup>Chemosh shall go forth into captivity,
His <sup>l</sup>priests and his princes together.
<sup>8</sup> And <sup>m</sup>the plunderer shall come against every city;
No one shall escape.
The valley also shall perish,
And the plain shall be destroyed,
As the LORD has spoken.

48:6-8 The juniper ekes out its stunted growth in the wilderness, hiding in crevasses of rock. As the apostate people of Judah trusted in the queen of heaven (44:17, 18), Moab trusted in its patron deity Chemosh, a god of fertility and storm. captivity: Taking a deity captive was a well-known Middle Eastern custom. The national statue of the patron deity was seized and it was believed that the captured god could no longer protect its people.

48:11-13 not been emptied from vessel to vessel: Though Moab was subject to Israel in the ninth century B.C., it had never experienced exile and had become complacent in its security. God would empty Moab's vessels, causing the Moabites to be taken captive. break the bottles: Moab's cities would be destroyed. Chemosh (v. 7), the great protector of Moab, would become powerless before God, as Bethel fell with Israel (Amos 3:14).

48:14-17 Jeremiah assured Moab that there is but one true King, Whose name is the LORD of hosts, the all-powerful "God of armies." Bemoan: A note of sarcasm is communicated. The nations around Moab, like Judah, who was attacked by Moab's mercenaries, were called upon to lament Moab's destruction. 48:18-20 Dibon was the capital from which King Mesha ruled (see 2 Kin. 3:4-27). The haughty Moab was shamed by the destruction of its mighty fortresses.

He has destroyed your strongholds.

48:21–25 Mephaath was one of the Levitical cities (see Josh. 21:37). Bozrah refers not to the capital of Edom, but to Bezer, one of the cities of refuge (see Josh. 20:8). Kerioth is mentioned in Amos 2:2. Horn and arm are symbols of the power and strength that was broken.
48:26–29 Make him drunk: Judgment is portrayed in the form of drunkenness to the point of vomiting, the result of Moab’s mockery of Israel (25:15–29). Pride refers to the self-indulging, self-honoring haughtiness by which one thinks of oneself as greater than others.
48:30–33 The scene in Moab turns to mourning and intense lamentation over the failure of the crops and vineyards. Kir Heres, also called Kir Haraseth, (see 2 Kin. 3:25; Is. 16:11), may be a name for the capital city of Moab (Kir of Moab; see Is. 15:1). The joy once heard echoing from the vineyards and winepresses had vanished before the horrifying sound of horses’ hoofbeats and clashing weapons.

48:34 The waters of Nimrim empty into the Jordan opposite Jericho. A lament from Heshbon and Elealeh to Horonaim and Zoar would cover all the Moabite plateau from north to south, from the Dead Sea to the desert.
48:35–39 offers sacrifices . . . burns incense: Idolatry would end; the people could no longer worship Chemosh and other deities. head . . . beard . . . hands . . . loins: Every kind of lament would be used to mourn for Moab, as the proud Moab became a derision and a dismay like Judah.

- 39 “They shall wail:
 ‘How she is broken down!
 How Moab has turned her back with shame!’
 So Moab shall be a derision
 And a dismay to all those about her.”
- 40 For thus says the LORD:
- “Behold, <sup>d</sup>one shall fly like an eagle,
 And <sup>e</sup>spread his wings over Moab.
 41 Kerioth is taken,
 And the strongholds are surprised;
<sup>f</sup>The mighty men’s hearts in Moab on

 And he who gets out of the pit shall be caught in the <sup>i</sup>snare.
 For upon Moab, upon it <sup>j</sup>I will

 The year of their punishment,” says
 the LORD.
 45 “Those who fled stood under the

“In the latter days,” says the LORD.

Judgment on Ammon

49 Against the <sup>a</sup> Ammonites.
 Thus says the LORD:

- “Has Israel no sons?
 Has he no heir?
 Why then does <sup>1</sup> Milcom inherit <sup>b</sup> Gad,
 And his people dwell in its cities?”
- 2 “Therefore behold, the days are coming,” says the LORD, “That I will cause to be heard an alarm of war
 In <sup>d</sup> Rabbah of the Ammonites;
 It shall be a desolate mound,
 And her <sup>2</sup> villages shall be burned with fire.
 Then Israel shall take possession of his inheritance,” says the LORD.
- 3 “Wail, O <sup>e</sup> Heshbon, for Ai is
 plundered!
 Cry, you daughters of Rabbah,
<sup>f</sup> Gird yourselves with sackcloth!
 Lament and run to and fro by the
 walls;
 For <sup>3</sup> Milcom shall go into captivity
 With his <sup>g</sup> priests and his princes
 together.
- 4 Why <sup>h</sup> do you boast in the valleys, <sup>4</sup> Your flowing valley, O <sup>i</sup> backsliding daughter?
 Who trusted in her <sup>j</sup> treasures,
<sup>k</sup> saying,
 ‘Who will come against me?’”
- 5 Behold, I will bring fear upon you,”
 Says the Lord God of hosts,
 “From all those who are around you;
 You shall be driven out, everyone headlong,
 And no one will gather those who wander off.
- 6 But <sup>l</sup> afterward I will bring back
 The captives of the people of Ammon,” says the LORD.

48:40–44 The imagery is that of Babylon spreading its ravaging armies over Moab like an eagle spreading its wings (49:22; Deut. 32:11; Ezek. 17:7). exalted himself: Moab’s chief sin was pride, considering itself greater than the God of Israel. Its pride would be turned to fear and terror, and then the nation would be taken captive.

48:47 Bring back means “restore the fortunes of.” Moab would see its people restored to their homeland. Their crops and vineyards would once again be productive. Moab, Judah, and Israel returned home in 538 B.C., during the reign of Cyrus.

49:1, 2 Milcom, the patron deity of the Ammonites, is pictured as taking possession of the land formerly belonging to the Gadites, a process that began in the days of the judges.

49:3 Heshbon (48:2) was at one time possessed by the Ammonites, but later lost to the Moabites. Ai is not the Israelite city of the same name. Rabbah was the capital city of the Ammonites. The captivity of the patron deity Milcom was tantamount to his defeat, visible in the exile of leaders and people, together with his statue, from their homeland.

49:4 Valleys . . . flowing valley may be a reference to the Jabok valley on the northern border of Ammon.

49:5 no one will gather those who wander off: Those who fell by the wayside during the flight from Ammon would be abandoned.

Judgment on Edom

<sup>7m</sup> Against Edom.

Thus says the LORD of hosts:

<sup>6a</sup> “Is wisdom no more in Teman?

<sup>6b</sup> Has counsel perished from the prudent?

Has their wisdom <sup>7</sup>vanished?

<sup>8</sup> Flee, turn back, dwell in the depths, O inhabitants of <sup>9</sup>Dedan!

For I will bring the calamity of Esau upon him,

The time that I will punish him.

<sup>9</sup> <sup>1</sup>If grape-gatherers came to you, Would they not leave some gleaning grapes?

If thieves by night,

Would they not destroy until they have enough?

<sup>10</sup> <sup>3</sup>But I have made Esau bare; I have uncovered his secret places, And he shall not be able to hide himself.

His descendants are plundered, His brethren and his neighbors, And <sup>4</sup>he is no more.

<sup>11</sup> Leave your fatherless children, I will preserve them alive; And let your widows trust in Me.”

<sup>12</sup> For thus says the LORD: “Behold, <sup>12</sup>those whose judgment was not to drink of the cup have assuredly drunk. And are you the one who will altogether go unpunished? You shall not go unpunished, but you shall surely drink of it. <sup>13</sup>For <sup>13</sup>I have sworn by Myself,” says the LORD, “that <sup>14</sup>Bozrah shall become a desolation, a reproach, a <sup>5</sup>waste, and a curse. And all its cities shall be perpetual <sup>6</sup>wastes.”

<sup>16</sup> Your fierceness has deceived you, The <sup>7</sup>pride of your heart, O you who dwell in the clefts of the rock,

Who hold the height of the hill!

<sup>17</sup> <sup>4</sup> “Edom also shall be an astonishment; <sup>c</sup> Everyone who goes by it will be astonished

And will hiss at all its plagues.

<sup>18</sup> <sup>d</sup> “As in the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah And their neighbors,” says the LORD, “No one shall remain there, Nor shall a son of man dwell in it.

Who will arraign Me?

And <sup>h</sup> who is that shepherd

Who will withstand Me?”

<sup>20</sup> <sup>i</sup> “Therefore hear the counsel of the LORD that He has taken against Edom,

49:7 Edom was known in the Bible for its wisdom (Obad. 8). Teman was the name of a city or district of Edom in which the capital city Bozrah was located.

49:9-11 grape-gatherers: This imagery derives from 6:9, but there was no real remnant left in Edom. The nation had been totally ravaged and stripped bare, with only women and children left alive to work the land. These workers were invited to trust in God.

49:12, 13 drink of the cup: The imagery of the cup of divine wrath is found in 25:15-29. Here it is particularly applied to Edom and more specifically to its capital city, Bozrah.

49:14-16 The imagery in these verses is that of the nations being mustered by God to besiege Edom. Edom would be reduced from a proud people of mighty mountain fortresses to one that was small among the nations.

49:17-19 an astonishment . . . hiss: Like Israel, Judah, Egypt, Moab, and Ammon, Edom would be destroyed and would become an object of derision. Like the lion that emerges from the thickets along the lower Jordan and seizes its prey, God would attack the Edomites through His appointed instrument.

49:20-22 The two things on which Edom most prided itself, its wisdom and its fortresses, would vanish before the judgment of the Lord. As the strongholds collapsed, the earth would cup (Heb. kos) (25:15; 49:12; Ps. 23:5; Is. 51:22) Strong’s #3563: The Hebrew word translated cup refers to a drinking goblet. In the OT prophetic books, the word is usually associated with imagery of God’s wrath, such as the “wine cup of fury” or “the cup of horror” (25:15; Ezek. 23:33). In other places the cup can have a positive significance: it indicates a close relationship with a powerful person (see “Pharaoh’s cup” in Gen. 40:11). Moreover in both the OT and NT, the cup can be symbolic of fellowship because of the cup’s association with togetherness. The cup is an important image in the NT, especially in the celebration of the Lord’s Supper (1 Cor. 11:25-28).

And His purposes that He has proposed against the inhabitants of Teman:
 Surely the least of the flock shall<sup>8</sup> draw them out;
 Surely He shall make their dwelling places desolate with them.
<sup>21</sup> <sup>J</sup>The earth shakes at the noise of their fall;
 At the cry its noise is heard at the Red Sea.
<sup>22</sup> Behold, <sup>k</sup>He shall come up and fly like the eagle,
 And spread His wings over Bozrah;
 The heart of the mighty men of Edom in that day shall be like the heart of a woman in birth pangs.

Judgment on Damascus

<sup>23</sup> <sup>1</sup>Against Damascus.

<sup>m</sup>“Hamath and Arpad are shamed,
 For they have heard bad news.
 They are fainthearted;
<sup>n</sup>There is <sup>9</sup>trouble on the sea;
 It cannot be quiet.
<sup>24</sup> Damascus has grown feeble;
 She turns to flee,
 And fear has seized her.
<sup>o</sup>Anguish and sorrows have taken her like a woman in <sup>1</sup>labor.
<sup>25</sup> Why is <sup>p</sup>the city of praise not deserted, the city of My joy?
<sup>26</sup> <sup>q</sup>Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets,
 And all the men of war shall be cut off in that day,” says the LORD of hosts.
<sup>27</sup> “I<sup>r</sup> will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus,
 And it shall consume the palaces of Ben-Hadad.”

Judgment on Kedar and Hazor

<sup>28</sup> <sup>s</sup>Against Kedar and against the kingdoms of Hazor, which Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon shall strike.

Judgment on Elam

<sup>34</sup> The word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah the prophet against <sup>a</sup>Elam, in the <sup>b</sup>beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, saying, <sup>35</sup>“Thus says the LORD of hosts:

‘Behold, I will break <sup>c</sup>the <sup>3</sup>bow of Elam,
 The foremost of their might.

<sup>36</sup> Against Elam I will bring the four winds
 From the four quarters of heaven, quake; its tremors would be felt all the way to the Red Sea. The imagery of the broad wings of the eagle, representing the all-encompassing power of God and His agents of destruction, is also found in 48:40, 41.

49:23–25 Hamath and Arpad were major towns located west and north of the capital of Damascus.

49:28 The region of Kedar was the most important Arab tribal group in the biblical period. Kedar was in northern Arabia and was known for its sheepherding and merchant caravans (see 2:10; Is. 60:7; Ezek. 27:21). The phrase men of the East is associated with the Arameans, Midianites, Amalekites, and other nomadic desert tribes (see Gen. 29:1; Judg. 7:12).

49:29 The various items listed in this verse are typically those of nomadic peoples. The panic-filled shout, fear is on every side, is common in Jeremiah’s oracles (6:25; 20:10; 46:5; 49:5).

49:30–33 Nebuchadnezzar’s destructive army would attack the tent villages of Kedar and Hazor. The oases would be left to the jackals for habitation (9:11; 10:22). The Bedouin peoples would be scattered afar, as if by the hot desert winds.

49:34–36 break the bow: The Elamites were famous for their skilled archers (see Is. 22:6), who became an important part of the Persian army under Cyrus. The expression four winds indicates the military might that the Lord musters against His enemies (see Ezek. 37:9; Dan. 8:8).

The Lower Jordan Valley

The Lower Jordan Valley contains three distinct levels known as the zor, the qattara, and the ghor. The zor, a narrow strip of land one or two miles wide, which the Bible calls the “floodplain of the Jordan” (49:19). Thanks to seasonal floods, the zor is a jungle of dense brush, shrubs, and tamarisk trees. The sons of the prophets were cutting down trees here when Elisha recovered an ax head (2 Kings 6:1–7).

Away from the river is the qattara. This territory is covered by ancient deposits of sediment from the lake that once filled the Jordan Valley. Seasonal streams carve deep crevices. No one grew crops there because the soil was salty. Modern Israeli scientists are reclaiming the soil by washing it with river water.

The ghor is a steep but fertile terrace between the qattara and the mountains. Farmers irrigate and cultivate these fields.

And scatter them toward all those winds;

There shall be no nations where the outcasts of Elam will not go.

37 For I will cause Elam to be dismayed before their enemies

And before those who seek their life.

<sup>a</sup>I will bring disaster upon them,

My fierce anger,’ says the LORD;

‘And I will send the sword after them Until I have consumed them.

38 I will <sup>e</sup>set My throne in Elam, And will destroy from there the king and the princes,’ says the LORD.

39 ‘But it shall come to pass <sup>f</sup>in the latter days:

I will bring back the captives of Elam,’ says the LORD.”

8 “Move <sup>s</sup>from the midst of Babylon, Go out of the land of the Chaldeans;

49:37–39 I will set My throne: This expression depicts the establishment of the kingdom of the God of Israel, the great conquering King in the land of the Elamites (1:15; 43:10). Elam would experience the restorative power of God, as its people were returned and its fortunes restored (48:47; 49:6).

50:1 The Chaldeans, or Babylonians, were vassals of Assyria until the revolt of Nabopolassar, who gained control of Babylon in 626 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar, the son of Nabopolassar who succeeded his father to the throne in 605 B.C., was the strongest and longest-reigning Chaldean monarch. After Nebuchadnezzar died, the nation declined steadily. In 539 B.C. it was conquered by Cyrus, apparently with little effort.

50:2, 3 Bel was a title like Baal, meaning “Lord,” for Merodach, another name for Babylon’s patron deity Marduk. idols . . . images: The oracle begins with a defamation of the gods of Babylon. The term translated images means animal droppings. The Hebrew prophets are openly contemptuous of idols and speak of them with ridicule. out of the north: The invading nation is not defined, yet from historical records it is known that Cyrus attacked Babylon from the north after defeating the city of Sippar.

50:4, 5 Israel and Judah would be restored as they sought the Lord in mournful repentance, looking for help to return home. They would enter into a perpetual covenant with the Lord that they would not forget or reject (see Ezek. 16:60).

50:6, 7 Shepherds refers to the national princes, priests, and prophets who led the people to sin against the Lord, their true source of hope and sustenance (23:1–4).

50:8–10 The train of thought turns to the Jews, who should flee from Babylon like rams of a flock.

And be like the <sup>a</sup>rams before the flocks.
 9 <sup>b</sup> For behold, I will raise and cause to come up against Babylon
 An assembly of great nations from the north country,
 And they shall array themselves against her;
 From there she shall be captured.
 Their arrows shall be like those of <sup>c</sup>an expert warrior;
<sup>d</sup>None shall return in vain.
 10 And Chaldea shall become plunder;
<sup>e</sup>All who plunder her shall be satisfied,” says the LORD.
 11 “Because <sup>f</sup>you were glad, because you rejoiced,
 You destroyers of My heritage,
 Because you have grown fat <sup>g</sup>like a heifer threshing grain,
 And you <sup>h</sup>bellow like bulls,
 12 Your mother shall be deeply ashamed;
 She who bore you shall be ashamed.
 Behold, the least of the nations shall be a <sup>i</sup>wilderness,
 A dry land and a desert.
 13 Because of the wrath of the LORD
 She shall not be inhabited,
<sup>j</sup>But she shall be wholly desolate.
<sup>k</sup>Everyone who goes by Babylon shall be horrified
 And hiss at all her plagues.

14 “Put <sup>b</sup>yourself in array against Babylon all around,
 All you who bend the bow;
 Shoot at her, spare no arrows,
 For she has sinned against the LORD.
 15 Shout against her all around;
 She has <sup>c</sup>given her hand,
 Her foundations have fallen,
<sup>d</sup>Her walls are thrown down;
 For <sup>e</sup>it is the vengeance of the LORD.
 Take vengeance on her.
 As she has done, so do to her.
 16 Cut off the sower from Babylon,
 And him who handles the sickle at harvest time.
 For fear of the oppressing sword
<sup>f</sup>Everyone shall turn to his own people,
 And everyone shall flee to his own land.
 17 “Israel is like <sup>g</sup>scattered sheep;
<sup>h</sup>The lions have driven him away.
 First <sup>i</sup>the king of Assyria devoured him;
 Now at last this <sup>j</sup>Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon has broken his bones.”
 18 Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel:
 “Behold, I will punish the king of Babylon and his land,
 As I have punished the king of <sup>k</sup>Assyria.

50:11–13 Babylon’s plunder would be its punishment for gloating over Judah’s demise and the abuse of God’s heritage. Great Babylon would be reduced to the least of the nations. Defamation, drought, desertion, desolation, and derision were Babylon’s destiny (18:16; 19:8; 49:17).

50:14–16 against her all around: Assault forces would press hard on every side, as what had been the instrument of God became the object of His wrath.

50:17–20 The Lord had used Babylon to punish Assyria for deporting Israel; He would use another foe from the north to inflict punishment on Babylon. The result would be the restoration of Israel and Judah and the pardoning of their iniquities and sins, the very reason for their demise (5:25; 16:10, 18; 31:34; 33:8).

Contemporary Pagans Today’s increasingly secular society may seem to have little in common with the world of Jeremiah’s day. Yet the truth is that many people who disavow the traditional idea of God or gods nevertheless have a very similar mind-set to the pagan idol worshipers, or “Gentiles” (10:2), of ancient times.

Jeremiah lived in a world of cultures based on idolatry (10:3–10). His own nation, Judah, was quite given over to idols during the reigns of Manasseh and Amon, probably the period when Jeremiah was a boy (2 Kin. 21). In fact, the prophet observed that Judah had as many gods as it had cities (Jer. 2:28). Likewise, each society surrounding Judah worshiped its pantheon of gods. The Babylonians, for example, were said to be “insane with their idols” (50:38). Looking back on these religions from today’s perspective, our tendency may be to think of an idol merely as an object crafted from wood or metal to whom superstitious, benighted pagans bowed down in hopes of receiving good fortune or avoiding misfortune. But that would be a superficial understanding. An idol is anything that is sacred to a person, in that it defines self-worth, becomes the controlling center of life, and takes priority over all other loyalties.

In light of that definition, what are some of the idols that people worship today? Certainly work and possessions would have to qualify for many people, especially given the addictive way in which they pursue them. What would be an idol for you? What do you hold “sacred” in the sense that it defines who you are, controls your life, and is the last thing that you would ever let go?

Jeremiah recognized the idols of his day for what they were—futile customs that supplanted the true God (10:3, 10). Are you pursuing futility at the cost of knowing the living Lord?

19 <sup>l</sup> But I will bring back Israel to his home,
 And he shall feed on Carmel and Bashan;
 His soul shall be satisfied on Mount Ephraim and Gilead.

20 In those days and in that time," says the LORD,
